The first meeting of the Marmora Public School Board for 1937 was held in the Public School on Wednesday evening. L. R. Rundle was appointed chairman and Mrs. Mae Leonard was reappointed secretary-treasurer. The other members of the board are P. Gray, T. E. Neal, F. Sweet, J. W. Hickey and Lewis Phillips.

END OF A HEADACHE

Physicians extracted a .32 calibre bullet from behind his left ear. It had not penetrated the skull.

Whitley said he did not know when he was shot.

Rising Star

Sam Snead of West Virginia, the "dark horse" of the 1937 winter open golf circuit, won the $5,000 Oakland (Calif.) open championship by reason of a sensational closing 36-hole dash. Pounding down the home stretch with successive scores of one-over par 69 and one-under-par 67, Snead sank a four-foot putt for a birdie four on the home green with a total of 270, two strokes under par, for 72 holes. Snead is shown demonstrating the putting touch that helped him take the title.

GARDINER PLANS REAL INSECT WAR

Minister Closely Questioned As House Passes Lower Agriculture Estimates

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 (CP)—Efforts to combat bovine tuberculosis, grasshoppers and other threats to agriculture and livestock industries will be maintained uncurtailed despite the fact agricultural estimates for the next fiscal year are lower than the amount asked during the current year.

This assurance was given the House of Commons in committee of supply yesterday by Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture. Supplementary estimates would be brought down if necessary to meet any additional expenditures needed for these purposes, the minister said.

Apart from the charge by Dr. D. J. Hartigan (Lib. Cape Breton South) that Nova Scotia was being neglected by the department, discussion of the estimates for agriculture proceeded harmoniously, but the minister was closely questioned on many aspects of his work.

Three New Directors

The agriculture minister also announced reorganization of the department in three branches. Each of the three divisions, marketing, experimental farms and research, and production, will have its individual director.

Before going into committee of supply the House quickly put through all stages six government bills and a resolution of Transport Minister Howe relative to reorganization of the control of wharves owned by the Dominion. There was no debate on any of these measures. Because of the speedy passage of these measures it was agreed to forego the evening session and the House adjourned at six o'clock.

Opposition leaders in both Houses of parliament are included among those to be invited to join Canada's official representation at the pageantry of the Coronation ceremonies in May, together with speakers of both chambers and other members.

GRASSHOPPERS NOW

Campbellford Hydro Employees Report Lively Specimen.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23. — If grasshoppers are a harbinger of spring then housewives should soon be getting ready for spring cleaning, because Hilton Beatty and a number of Hydro employees reported seeing one of the sprightly creatures sitting on an old sardine can down at No. 9 Power House Thursday afternoon. Several attempts were made to catch the specimen, but he proved altogether too lively for his would-be captors.

Protestant Sunday Schools Gain 1,000,000 In 4 Years.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (CP)—The Protestant Sunday School has almost 1,000,000 more adherents in the world today than four years ago, the quadrennial report of the World's Sunday School Association shows.

Greatest gains are in Africa, Asia and Central and South America. In Europe and North America enrollment is described as "far from stimulating." The Union of South Africa showed the greatest gain since 1932—100,000 pupils.

ROAD RATE IS CUT BUT MONEY SPENT LIKELY EQUAL 1936

County Council Reduces Rate From 2.3 Mills To Two Mills

TWO CLOSE VOTES

County councillors called attention to the farmer-taxpayers who have not yet felt the upswing of recovery and lopped $4,600 off the Peterborough County road budget for 1937 in session Friday afternoon. The road rate was cut from the 1936 rate of 2.3 mills to an even 2 mills after a short but energetic debate, the vote of Warden Roy Brown settling a tie count.

The matter was opened with Reeve William Griffith's motion that the rate should be left unchanged from last year. Reeve Frank Leahy seconded the motion but Reeves Mullen and Johnston put forth an amendment for the two-mill rate.

Leader of the group in favor of reduction, Reeves Tanner and Mullen argued that two mills may bring as much money this year as the 2.3 rate did last year. Reeves Griffith and Leahy urged that any reduction would result in neglect of the heavy investment the County has in its roads. Casting the deciding vote in favor of the reduced rate, Warden Brown said he was inclined to the view of Mr. Mullen that 2 mills will bring an increased return this year.

A motion to give the same allowance as last year to the Suburban Area Commission, $7,350, carried with less discussion. Mover of a proposal to increase it to $9,000 was supported by no seconder.

An undercurrent of mixed feelings over the recent re-arrangement of the Equalized Assessment scheme which has existed throughout the present session came to the surface during the afternoon.

Ask For More County Road

It all started when Reeve George Mullen of Smith asked the Council to take over a five-mile stretch of road stretching from near the Waterworks on Highway 28 north through the center of the township to the Eighth Concession. He pointed out that Smith was boosted to top assessment position in the County and intimated that it deserved a little consideration on that score. The highest assessed farms in the township lie along the road in question, he claimed.

Reeve E. N. McDonald of Dummer took up the battle. If there were to be any extensions in the County road system, Dummer township must press for extension of its mileage, he declared. He indicated Dummer was willing to allow things to

MRS. WILLIAM RIDGE

MILLBROOK, Jan. 23.—Another of Millbrook's aged and most highly respected citizens has passed in the person of Mary Thompson, beloved wife of the late William Ridge whose death occurred at the family residence, King street east, Tuesday, January 19th.

Deceased, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Manvers, had lived almost her entire life period in the surrounding community, having been a resident of the village for approximately twenty years. A former member of the Methodist church deceased entered with that church into union.

Of a family of seven only one brother, James Thompson, now remains. Left to mourn her death also are one son, John Ridge, Millbrook, and a niece, Margaret, Mrs. William Dobson, Toronto, who has always been an intimate member of the household.

The funeral, held Thursday from the late residence, was conducted by Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., pastor of Grace and Centreville Presbyterian churches and interment was made in the family burial plot at the Pontypool cemetery.

Pall-bearers were nephews of the deceased and included John Thompson, Toronto; Harry Ridge, Toronto; Harold Thompson, Bethany; Herbert Ridge, Bethany; Walter and Fred Thompson, Bethany.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Bert Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. John Cain, Mr. Clifford Richardson, Mr. William Cain and Miss Ruth Richardson, Pontypool; Mr. John Thompson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ridge, Mr. Harry Ridge, Mrs. Wilbert Ridge and Mrs. William Dobson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson, Mrs. Robert Patton, Misses Ethel, Lillian and Marion Thompson, Mrs. Carlton Patton, Messrs. Walter and Fred Thompson, Bethany, and Mr. Charles Gibson, Peterborough.

MISS HANNAH SULLIVAN

The funeral of the late Miss Hannah Sullivan, formerly of Emily township, was held on Saturday morning, January 16th, from the home of her brother, Denis Sullivan of Downie street to St. Peter's Cathedral, where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Grant. Rev. Father Moloney of Sacred Hearth parish was present in the sanctuary.

The pall-bearers were T. Sullivan, S. Sullivan, Dr. E. M. Crough, J. Guiry, M. Donohue, J. Deannard.

Mute evidence of the esteem which the deceased woman's life inspired, was given by the large numbers of mourning friends and relatives who attended the funeral mass and also the burial at St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore.

Miss Sullivan leaves to mourn her loss two sisters, Mrs. Kearns of Weston and Sister M. Felicitas of Comox, B.C., also one brother Denis of this city.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 46

COLINDALE listened to Selden's suggestions that he marry Lady Severinge in ill-concealed anger.

"It's all right for you to talk in that pharisaical manner, and I suppose you think you have got me now. Confound that woman!! It was she who suggested this, and it wasn't blackmail, you ought to know that."

"Don't argue," Selden said sternly. "It was not only blackmail but conniving at a felony, for you promised to keep back knowledge to yourself if he made that grant. Now what is it to be——"

"We can't live without money," Colindale grumbled.

"Lady Severinge has some of her own, and I promise that she shall receive an allowance. I will guarantee you that."

"How can you?" Colindale began but the look he saw on Selden's face caused him to refrain from further argument. "I meant to take her away," he protested. "I told her this morning. If she will go with me, I'll clear out of this cheery place."

When Selden left James' room some little time afterwards he was besieged by the frightened servants. The departure of Mrs. Thornton and the arrest of the butler had knocked the bottom out of the staff, coming as it did after the events of the night.

Selden did his best to reassure them, but when they heard that Lady Severinge was going as well they started to pack like frightened sheep. They would not stay another hour in the place.

Selden told them that if they felt like that, they had better pack what they wanted for immediate needs, and leave the rest, as he was certain they would be returning in a few days. He watched from the study window as Colindale drove slowly down the drive with Hilda, and then the servants' exodus. He took the key which he had got from James' room, and locked the great doors of the gateway, returning to Reid and his charges.

* * *

Reid remained with Sylvia and the twins in the library at Selden's instructions. The girl had cooked a breakfast over the fire, for no one had come near them and the house was very quiet.

Reid was still a sick man; the excitement of the night had brought a strong reaction, and his wounds ached badly. He was angry with Selden for leaving them practically prisoners in the library and exposed to some intangible danger. The thought that the children were being used as lure to draw some unknown enemy was maddening, and the children were getting fretful. They wanted to go out into the grounds, and Sylvia had to read to them with a listless air.

When reid was not looking she cast a sad, questioning glance at him. Her feelings were deeply hurt. He had told her more plainly than in eloquent phraseology that he loved her, and then had suddenly become cold, reserved, and like a stranger. She tried to think that the danger and the situation they were in, coupled with his illness, accounted for this, but in her heart she knew that there was some great barrier—something he would not tell her, that would always stand between them.

He had come into her life in this queer way, at a time when the intolerable existence at the Abbey had grown impossible, and had saved her from utter despair. With a girl's curiosity she longed to know about him, who he was, and how he had come at the very moment to the Abbey.

And there, just as things were becoming pest bearing, a step was heard and Selden called out. Reid unlocked the door; the detective entered with a smile on his face, and Sylvia hurried forward eagerly.

"What news?" she asked with a great sense of relief.

Selden glanced at the children, and then spoke. "Well, I think they are old enough to share our councils. It is no use trying to hide things from them now."

"I've got some news for you. First, Lady Severinge decided to go off, as her nerves have broken down under the strain of the last few days. She has gone for a holiday with Eric Colindale."

Sylvia looked up with a look of disapproval, but Joan solemnly said, "I know; they are going to get married. We both thought so, but they might have asked us. We wanted to be bridesmaids."

"Cold-blooded little ruffians," Selden said with a smile that took the sting from the words.

Reid started at the quiet unemotional way in which the detective made the statement.

"You need not be alarmed—Hutchins did so, and it is the best thing that could have happened."

"James?" Sylvia cried. "But this is awful for him! Won't he be brought up before the magistrate or something?"

There was an undertone of certainty and a sort of exhilaration about the detective's manner that convinced Reid that he knew that a crisis was approaching, and that he was confident as to the result.

"The servants have all gone, and I have locked up the Abbey—here is the key." He held it up.

"Anything more?" Reid asked sarcastically. "You haven't by any chance locked up the murderer in the Abbey?"

"But what are we to do now?" Sylvia sked, quite bewildered by these revelations.

"You are at liberty to go out for a walk if you like—in fact, I advise it. I have told Hutchins on the phone that you have turned up—just that. He is so busy with James, and taking down statements from Mrs. Thornton, that he hardly appreciated what I said. I told him 'Miss Lawrence and the children have been found and are quite safe', and he merely said, 'Oh, that is all right then'."

"He didn't seem to care whether we had been murdered or not," Joan exclaimed indignantly.

"Then we can go to our own rooms," Marian chimed in. But Selden at once became grave. "You'll have to make shift with these quarters for the present—only for tonight. Can you manage that, Miss Lawrence?"

"If it is necessary, but it would be much better if you could tell us the reason."

"I promise you that this is a temporary arrangement for one night only. But this evening you must be in before dark, and lock the place up carefully. Reid—you can't be too careful. And on no account go out, whatever you hear." He walked to the window and looked at the lowering sky. "It's going to rain; if you want a walk I should have it now. Perhaps the children could get their things on."

Sy could sense that something was happening of which she and Reid had no knowledge. Every word of the seemingly simple conversation had a hidden meaning.

"I would like to go to the village. I want to buy a few small things. Is that permissible?" She spoke to try to draw the detective, expecting a refusal.

"I was about to suggest the same thing muself, and will come with you if I may."

Sylvia bit her lip. This was far too subtle for her liking, but she took the children upstairs to get their mackintoshes on, and for a brief moment the two men were alone.

"Selden, what the devil does all this mean?" Reid said crossly.

"It means very likely life or death." Selden's face was very grave. "Please follow my instructions to the letter. And one thing more, Jack, I didn't want to frighten the children—the bloodhounds may be loose tonight. If so, don't go out on your life."

"Why can't you stop with us?"

"That would ruin everything, but I shan't be far away."

Selden did his best to dispel the gloom that had settled on them all by recounting the arrest of James in his own way, and his manner reassured Reid and Sylvia that he was certain that Hutchins had made a big blunder.

"How could he possibly believe a vindictive, lying woman like that Mrs. Thornton?" Sylvia remarked with unusual passion.

"He's had his eye on poor James." Selden chuckled, "and I'm not sure he doesn't suspect Reid as well, but he had no evidence."

"They won't do anything to James, will they?" the twins asked anxiously.

"Nothing that will hurt him, but the amusing thing is that if he does happen to come before the magistrates tomorrow the chairman will be Colonel Graham."

He seemed to find humor in the thought.

OTONABEE COUPLE MARRIED 25 YEARS

Mr. And Mrs. Maurice O'Leary Of Indian River Celebrate Happy Anniversary

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Maurice O'Leary of Indian River, who on Tuesday celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

The day was fittingly opened by the celebration of a High Mass in St. Joseph's Church, Douro, sung by Very Rev. M. J. O'Leary, of Bracebridge, Ont., brother of Maurice O'Leary. Present in the sanctuary were Rev. E. Welsh, assistant parish priest of Douro, and Rev. P. J. Lynch, of Kearney, nephew of the Jubilarians. Mass was served by their son, Joseph O'Leary, and Gerald Walsh. At the conclusion of the Mass a very appropriate sermon was delivered by Very Rev. M. J. O'Leary congratulating the couple, Maurice O'Leary and Frances FitzPatrick, whom he married in St. Paul's Church, Norwood, 25 years ago, wishing them many more years of happiness. Also recalling to the many relatives and friends present the long lasting good faith of the families of Douro, handed down many years by their ancestors.

Showered With Confetti.

Arriving home, the couple were showered with confetti, renewing their wedding-day experiences. Here a reception was held, including a sumptuous dinner served to about fifty guests, decorations being carried out in silver and white, the room centering with a large bell joining the years of their wedded life, 1912-1937. After the dinner toasts of good luck and happiness were made to the couple. Also an address was read from the relatives, some of whom were unable to attend, being followed by a presentation, including cheques from brothers and sisters of the jubilarians; also many other very beautiful gifts, mostly pieces of silver. Mr. O'Leary made a suitable reply on behalf of his wife, thanking their guests for their gifts, mentioning their past happiness amongst their relatives and friends hoping it may be continued.

The day was closed by an enjoyable evening for the younger people, spent dancing to very excellent music.

HAVELOCK

BELMONT W.I. WILL HOLD QUILTING BEE

Members Take Great Interest In "Buymanship"—Euchre Party Proposed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 23.—The January meeting of the Belmont Branch Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Smith, with a splendid attendance, including one new member and several visitors.

The roll call, 'A Most Useful Article in the Kitchen" was responded to by everyone and some very interesting answers were received.

Another birthday book was contributed to the Institute library, bringing their total number of books to seventeen. It was decided that the books be placed in the Belmont town hall and that Mrs. J. Roe act as librarian.

Mrs. H. Scott and Mrs. Dunlop, who have been attending the course in "Buymanship" in Peterborough, reported it to be most interesting and useful. Mrs. Scott gave a short outline of the course, so far, and the members were so enthused that a special meeting was arranged for Tuesday, February 9th, when the subject of "Buymanship" may be discussed more fully.

A supply of "Kleenex" was ordered to be placed in the Preneveau school as their effort to prevent the spreading of disease among the school children

The Institute plan to hold a progressive euchre party in the Belmont town hall on Thursday, January 28th, with lunch served and an admission of 25 cents to be charged.

A day of quilting will be held on Friday, February 5, when it is expected that five or six quilts shall be completed The members will have a pot-luck dinner and stay for the whole day.

The short program included a contest by Miss Iva Smith and won by Miss Ruth McMullen and a reading by Mrs. Hartin.

A delicious lunch was served at the conclusion of the meeting by those in charge and a social time spent over the tea-cups.

Branch Notes

DISTRICT EXECUTIVE.

An executive meeting of the District Council of the A.Y.P.A. was held in St. Luke's Parish Hall with the president, Roland Krant, in the chair.

A motion was passed to hold the Lenten rally on February 15th next.

Jack Marshall, dramatic convenor, picked a committee to act with him in the Dramatic Contest which will be held some time after Easter. It is hoped by the District Council that a larger number of branches will participate this year.

The meeting accepted a request from St. Mary's, Lifford Line, A.Y.P.A. that their branch be made a member of the Peterborough District Council. Welcome, Lifford Line.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH.

The members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. attended a lantern slide lecture on Wednesday evening, in the Parish Hall, by the Rev. Allan Green, of the British Columbia Coast Mission. The slides and lecture combined to give the audience a graphic description of the work of the B.C. Coast Mission, in carrying out its three-fold program of developing the religious and educational life of the people in its charge and rendering valued medical attention. Interesting incidents in the lives of the people were depicted and Rev. Allan Green's explanation as the pictures were shown, proved very enlightening and helped to make an enjoyable and worth-while evening. Some very fine pictures of B.C.'s scenic grandeur, including its famed mountains, rivers and lakes were also shown. Hymns were sung during intermissions and the meeting closed with the B.C. Coast Mission prayer. The A.Y. members afterwards held a practice for the forthcoming minstrel show.

The Marlene Dietrich influence is visible in this smart beach ensemble worn at Miami, Fla., by Miss Nova Daniels of New York. The suit is of white sharkskin with double-breasted coat set off by colorful silk ascot. Red beret and open beach sandals complete the outfit.

OBITUARY

JOSHUA W. ROBINSON.

The death of Joshua W. Robinson, who was born in Peterborough County eighty-three years ago, occurred in Carson City, Nevada, on December 20. He was a brother of the late Robert J. Robinson of Otonabee, and an uncle of Mrs. E. Griffin, 219 Bethune Street. He left Peterborough in 1873 when he was twenty years old, and took up farming west of Carson City. He is survived by his widow and one daughter. In a report of his death the Carson City Appeal said Mr. Robinson had become one of the last of the city's old-timers. He was the oldest living member of the Methodist Church in that community. "His passing will be mourned by all who knew him, but his beautiful influence will live on and be an inspiration to others to become brave, helpful members of our human family.

SAMUEL ADAMS.

A life-long resident of this district passed Friday in the death at his residence, 168 Morrow street, of Samuel Adams in his 80th year, after a week's illness. Mr. Adams was born here on June 25, 1857, and was a farmer for many years in the Norwood area and other parts of the district. Fifteen years ago he retired from the farm and took up residence here. He was a son of the late Samuel and Mrs. Adams.

His wife, who was Miss Flora Leeper, survives. Mr. and Mrs. Adams were married in April, 1883, and celebrated the fifty-third anniversary of their wedding last year. The deceased was widely known and much respected. He was a member of St. James' United church and of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

In addition to his widow, two daughters and three sons are also left, Mrs. Albert Armstrong, Peterborough, Mrs. D. A. Kerr, Calgary, R. L. Adams and Gordon Adams, Peterborough and Samuel Adams of Syracuse, N.Y.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 168 Morrow street, to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. F. W. Craik of St. James' church will officiate.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 24 is John 4, 1-54, the Golden Text being John 4:14. "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst.")

* * *

THIS fourth chapter of John is a marvelous clinic in soul saving in which Christian workers may study the technique Jesus used in the saving of the woman of Samaria at Jacob's well.

A Passion for Souls

There must first be a passion for souls. It was this that kept Jesus from detouring around Samaria as others of His people did in going from Judaea to Samaria: "He must needs pass through Samaria." Again we must be willing to have our own plans disturbed as Jesus was willing that His rest be disturbed that noon as He "being wearied with His journey sat thus (as He was) at the well."

Tactfulness of Approach.

We must learn to approach the subject of sin and salvation with the utmost tactfulness, as Jesus did when He asked the woman for a drink of water, that He might reveal Himself to her as the source of the water of life: "If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldst have asked of Him and He would have given thee living water." And how tactfully Jesus approached the subject of this woman's sin: "Go, call thy husband and come hither." And when she said she had none to call, Jesus referred to the man with whom she was living in sin, and brought from her a full confession, doubtless attended with all the evidence of genuine repentance. Thus was half her conversion effected in making her see herself as a sinner in need of salvation.

Avoid Religious Argument

The woman tried to divert Christ from His course by raising an argument over the relative merits of her people's religion and His, but He held to the main issue: "God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth," regardless of where they worship. And when the woman spoke of the coming Messiah, that is called Christ, He was quick to reveal Himself to her as the fulfillment of this hope of His people and hers: "I that speak unto thee am He." This is the great objective of evangelism, to bring the unsaved to a consciousness of sin and faith in Jesus Christ as their Saviour able to save unto the uttermost all that come unto God through Him. When Jesus' disciples, having prepared the noonday lunch, urged Him to eat, He replied, "I have meat to eat that ye know not of...My meat is to do the will of Him that sent Me, and to accomplish His work." To Jesus the reaching of the unsaved was more important than food, and the source of greater joy and satisfaction.

Put the Saved to Work

Conversion should evidence itself in a changed life dedicated to the salvation of others. The woman of Samaria was so full of joy at finding Christ that she forgot her waterpot as she rushed back to the city to tell her friends of the Christ she had found as her Savior, and brought them out to find Him as their Savior too: "Come, see a man, who told me all things that ever I did: Can this be the Christ?" "And from that city many of the Samaritans believed in Him because of the word of the woman." She was not only saved, but saved to serve.

National Message

THE only Gospel that saves is that which declares, "But He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray (the flock movement); we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid upon Him the iniquity of us all," Isa. liii. Jesus said: "Except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God. Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter the Kingdom of God." John III. St. Paul says: "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ; by Whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God." So we read the Gospel of Salvation set forth in language so plain that the simple mind can clearly understand. The watchman must send this forth with all the brightness of a lamp that burneth. Think of some of the modern lamps, for instance that of the Lizard Lighthouse. It sends forth a ray which travels so far that the sea drops away from under its beams because of the curve of the earth which the sea follows. The light is a considerable distance above the water level, and yet its light can be seen from ships at sea long before they enter the direct path of its beam. It is like the lights of an auto which is approaching but which is hidden by the crest of an intervening hill. Thus the lamp that burneth sends its light out over land and sea, to guide the traveller over life's ocean to the haven of safety in the name of Jesus. Further, it is the place of the watchman to "give the Lord no rest' until He make Jerusalem a praise in the earth. This is the supreme duty of ceaseless prevailing prayer.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

IF we ask what is truth, the only answer that can be given is that those things which our consciousness is capable of apprehending are true for us, no matter what they may be for others Any attempt therefore, to force one particular aspect of truth upon another is, to say the least, immoral, an offence against one's intellectual integrity. To lead and guide another to a point where the truth is self-evident is the only honest way. A broad tolerance for the foibles and frailities of mankind is one thing we should have, but we should not be tolerant of cruelties and injustice inflicted upon others by reason of these foibles and frailities, more so in fact than of injustice suffered by ourselves. Our aim should be truth and righteousness, not 'goody-goodiness' but a living in harmony with God and our neighbour. We cannot live in harmony with one and not the other for to live in harmony with God and not our neighbour is a sheer impossibility. And our neighbour is every living person on God's earth, not our own particular friends only. There has been and there still is too much fuseiness about the correct form of belief, too much emphasis upon definitions and phrases, which may mean one thing today and a totally different thing a hundred years hence, too much stress upon non-essentials and a slurring over of essentials, too much dogma and too little of the basic teachings of Jesus. If we live this life in harmony and love we shall be too occupied to worry over the next life, and there will be no need for it will take care of itself. God will not make us go through a theological examination to see if we hold the correct current opinions about Himself. When one considers the snail-like progress of humanity towards the ideal state and contrasts it with the God-like potentiality inherent in every one of us, it is obvious we are astray. It is very clear that the message of Jesus, the last of the great Initiates has been misread, or else largely ignored by those who claim to be His interpreters. The point is, have we ever tried, seriously tried, to apply the teachings of the Master in our relations of man to man. Is our society based on Him, our business fabric? Or have we been listening to a gospel of expediency and trying to serve two masters got ourselves into the state we find ourselves now. No one can say that a social fabric based on a self first and "devil take the hindmost" is Christian, but if it was based on co-operation, a recognition of the common brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God, would it not be more in the spirit of the Master? Cooperation not only in the social and business world but also in the religious world, for if the various religions recognized the fact that they as spokes in a wheel each leading to a common centre and based their teaching on an actual brotherhood with Christ, a joint kingdom of God and man to be realized here and now; a kingdom to be striven and worked for, not solely for themselves but for all humanity, we would have a vitality and power injected into affairs that would work miracles, miracles not of law-made compulsory reform but of eager emulation of love and true helpfulness. This may seem visionary, yet it is possible none the less. Man himself is the arbiter, through him and by him, either the dark powers or the Light, Life and Love of the Eternal God will rule, to man alone is given the choice.

REFORESTATION OF COUNTY URGED BY A. D. RUNIONS

County Council Names Committee To Inquire Into The Matter

NOTHING TO HOLD WATER

That the time has come when Peterborough County must tackle the problem of reforestation was agreed by County Councillors in session Friday afternoon. A committee to inquire into the matter was named.

A plea from the Farmers' Advocate brought the problem before the Council. A need for reforestation on a Province-wide scale with all counties co-operating was urged. Year by year, the acreage of land of cut over lands lying in useless idleness is increasing, it was pointed out.

Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions was invited to address the Council on the problem. He urged that reforestation is not merely good business but a necessity. The droughts and floods of recent years can be blamed partially on a lack of proper reforestation activity.

Rain Drained Away

"Within a few hours a heavy rainfall on Peterborough County drains off into Lake Ontario," Mr. Runions said. "The woods and swamps of former days which used to save this water are disappearing."

Mr. Runions said reforestation is also highly important in the prevention of soil erosion. In preventing the dissipation of valuable soil minerals. Reforestation will pay immediate dividends in such regards and will prove a good investment in the long run from the wood cut, he said.

"Why pass the buck to the County Councils?" asked Reeve Milby, suggesting the reforestation is a problem of the Provincial and Federal governments.

Of Vital Importance

"I think we should turn in ourselves as it is a matter of vital importance to the County and we'll never get anywhere if we wait on the governments," Reeve Leahy declared.

Reeve McDonald to the floor to suggest that 100 acres of Crown land lie a few miles north of Norwood and that the area would make a good site for an initial reforestation effort. The land might be obtained from the Government for nothing, he suggested.

Deputy-reeve Johnston declared the Council should petition the Government to put a stop to the annual slaughter of Christmas trees He said the practice is denuding valuable water sheds throughout the country.

MARMORA AGAINST RENAMING LAKE

Geographic Board Is Informed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 23—In response to the letter received here from the Geographic Board calling for an expression of opinion concerning a proposed change of the name 'Crowe' to 'Marmora' with respect to the lake and river bearing the former name, Marmora village and Marmora and Lake councils have passed motions against a change.

A similar motion was passed at the regular meeting of the Canadian Legion.

Others however, are following a lead given by W. C. Dymond of Toronto, the proprietor of Marble Point Lodge, Crowe Lake, in favouring the alteration."

The Geographic Board will have no easy task to decide what action to take. Through a letter received by H. R. Pearce, secretary of Marmora Booster Club from the Board's secretary, it is learned that opposition to the change has been forthcoming from the Havelock district.

Two Miracles of Mercy — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture: John 5:1-6:72

While in Jerusalem to worship Jesus hunted up the sick and afflicted at the Pool of Bethesda. Here he found a man who had been helpless thirty-eight years, whom he healed, saying, "Arise, take up thy bed and walk."

Because he healed this man on the sabbath Jesus' enemies were indignant and sought to slay him. Jesus rebuked them for their unbelief in refusing to receive the combined testimony of many witnesses concerning him.

Great crowds followed Jesus out to a desert place where Jesus fed them by multiplying a lad's lunch of five barley cakes and two small fishes into enough to feed five thousand men.

When the people tried to force Jesus to become their king he sent his disciples away in a boat. Later he came to them walking on the sea.

(GOLDEN TEXT—John 6:35.)

So successful have been the luminous sticks recently introduced in Paris for the use of blind people when out at night that the authorities are advocating their use in other parts of France under the safety laws.

Great Britain will return nearly $50,000,000 in taxes to the railway companies, and it is believed that this will pave the way for radical reductions in freight rates on heavy traffic, export coal, milk and livestock.

White Men and Indians

The Department of Indian Affairs fears there may be a hunting war develop between the Indian and the white man. It is reasoned that if white people seek to deplete the Indian hunting grounds then the Indians are going to take all they can get while they can. In that way the department fears there many be extinction of valuable animal species. In the northern sections of several provinces the hunting grounds are recognized as being the rights of Indians, and they make their own arrangements. Tribal chiefs attend to that. It was so in our own district not so many years ago before the Mississauga Indians sold their hunting, fishing and trapping rights to the government.

The Department of Indian Affairs finds that whites who are now invading recognized Indian grounds are using poison extensively, and it is also stated that not a case of an Indian using poison in trapping animals has ever been recorded. The belief is general that the only solution is to set aside tracts of lands where only Indians will be allowed to hunt.

We believe it is true to state the white people have not taught the Indian much that is good. The whites have made it possible for the Indians to learn how to drink liquor, and there are white people who make it a point to become particularly active when the Indian gets his cash from his spring catch of muskrats in order that he may get as much of that money as possible. And now the white people are using poison when trapping, something which an Indian has not yet done, but a method which he may be forced to adopt owing to the competition from the white man.

The Indian Department we believe has made an effort to deal with its charges honestly, but the Department cannot have jurisdiction over all the white men who come in contact with Indians the Dominion over. That is what makes the charge possible that the white man has not been a good influence on the Indian.

There Will Be Much To See

A number of people have driven out to look at the new ski jump built at Nassau. Some possessed of sufficient energy have climbed the hill to make closer inspection, and not a few have said they would never risk the danger of breaking their necks on that contraption. At the end of next week there will be a chance to see it in operation provided there is snow in the meantime. There will be representatives from Toronto, Midland, Huntsville and a number of other places. Six Olympic contestants will be here, and two of the best from Camp Borden, and we are certain they will not break their necks. It will be possible to see close to the city something which thousands of people in other lands travel great distances to witness—ski jumpers in action.

On Friday evening Peterborough is to see a spectacle on ice which will be unusual. The Toronto Skating Club will give here what is actually a preview of the winter carnival to be held later in the Queen City. Skating as an expression of artistic accomplishment has been making great strides in recent years. All this is made possible by the Peterborough Winter Sports Committee, and this committee in turn has behind it the Chamber of Commerce, the City Council and all the service clubs and other interested groups in the city. If you have friends outside the city it would be a fitting time to invite them for a visit. Given some snow and cold weather—there will be much to see.

Buying the British Press

Norman Jacques, Social Credit member of Wetaskiwin in the Federal House, made the statement in debate that British bankers spent $25,000,000 to silence the press of their country so the Douglas Social Credit doctrine would be suppressed. Mr. Jacques also stated it was difficult to get Canadian newspapers to publish Social Credit writings.

Finance Minister Dunning asked Mr. Jacques who got the $25,000,000, and the answer was as usual, "the press." He said the charge had been made and never disproved. The fact that it had never been proved apparently made no difference.

Mr. Jacques may not know it, but the standard of ethics for British papers is high. Apart from ethics most of the British papers are in the position where they do not have to sell their souls, and money, if offered, would not be a serious consideration.

In regard to the claim that Canadian papers are not willing to publish Social Credit writings, the bald fact is that the Social Credit party in Alberta has received more space than any other political organization in that province or elsewhere. When Social Credit leaders can agree among themselves regarding something of merit which they wish to have published Canadian papers will be ready to grant them anything within reason. If they actually have a workable system which is better than that which we are now using the papers of the Dominion would be ready at once to present it to their readers. But first they must agree among themselves just what their system is, and beyond that they ought to give a practical demonstration of the worth of their system in their own province of Alberta.

The Speed Limit

J. H. Clark, member of the Ontario Legislature for Windsor-Sandwich, is prepared to sponsor a bill for the abolition of speed limits on Ontario highways. He would set up a 30 mile limit in built-in areas not incorporated as municipalities and instead of the 35-mile limit elsewhere Mr. Clark would insert a safe-driving clause.

One thing is plain as a pikestaff: A great many drivers have already abolished the speed limit of 35 miles, so as far as they are concerned there is no speed limit, and to the same extent there is no law.

The idea of taking off the speed limit entirely looks too much like opening the gate, and pointing to the highways with the general instruction to go ahead and do what you like.

In some roads in United States where traffic is heavier than anything we experience in Ontario there are variable speed limits according to the district, and they are all marked plainly. We have many roads where 35 miles an hour is dangerous, and others where 50 miles an hour is safe enough.

We believe it would be better to increase the speed limit to 45 miles an hour and enforce the law than to leave it at 35 miles with so many drivers feeling they need pay no attention to it.

Why Let Him Wander?

There has been a good deal in print about George Woodcock, a man of 60 years, who within recent days complained that a fiery cross had been burned in front of the house in which he had been living in Dummer township. In conversation with provincial officers he was also certain an effort was going to be made to blow up his house. That of course was not so; there was no person in Dummer or elsewhere who had any intention of blowing up his house.

Mr. Woodcock left Dummer and took his two children with him, landing in Coe Hill, Hastings county, and shortly after a stick of dynamite exploded. It seems that something like that happened each place he went. Within recent times he is reported to have lived in Frontenac, Peterborough and now in Hastings county. It is also stated he suffers from some incurable disease.

Places where he has gone apparently offer no resistance when he desires to leave, and we learn he has been offered a couple of days' provisions and means of transportation to induce him to move on from Coe Hill. County officials do not like the idea of having to offer welcome to an individual who is in need of treatment, 50 per cent. of the cost of which will be incurred by the county. Preference is given to pointing to the residence rule to protect the municipal treasury.

All that of course does not deal with the case with any degree of finality. It merely picks it up from here and puts it there. Here is a man of 60, known to live a strange and wandering life, coming to police with stories which are grotesque, and known to be suffering physically, and in his company are two daughters. The provincial government is reported as saying it is not responsible, and several counties say the same thing which leaves the situation just as it was. The man does not actually belong to any of the counties through which he has been wandering and in which he has been living a strange sort of life for some time.

We believe the provincial government with its wider powers and greater facilities, should deal at once with such a case. Whether the man wants or will accept hospitalization is hardly the entire question. It should be determined quickly just what is wrong with him because it is certain he is living in an abnormal world.

Good Old Days Returning?

Always are we watching to see if there is evidence that the world is returning to the place where events parallel things as they used to be. Now and then something turns up which indicates the search is not entirely in vain. Just a day or so ago there was an account of a near accident which faced Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands. She was driving in a car on a slippery road in the mountains of Austria, and the car skidded at a place where there was a drop of 650 feet. And that we submit is a long distance.

Right then an officer on a motor cycle who was riding behind came to the rescue. The car was near the brink and was going nearer until the officer placed his big shoulder against the corner of the auto and made it quit sliding toward that 650 foot drop.

Now that is something like the stories we used to get in the school books. Within the pages of the early readers there used to dwell that little lad of Holland who stuck his finger in a hole in the dyke and thereby kept the country from being flooded. The story was presented in such a way that it caused all the little lads at school to hope for the day when they could do something like that. Of course in this country we are a little short of dykes, so the chance of sticking a finger in a hole in one and then becoming famous was rather remote.

But there was another story of the boy who found a broken rail in the railway track, and he ran at once to flag the express which was heading for disaster. The engine stopped just a short space from the broken rail. Passengers flocked out and found how they had been saved. They took up a collection right there and afterward we believe the boy worked for the railway and became its president. That too aroused the feeling that perhaps the lads at school would find a broken rail and go that way to fame and distinction.

For a long time there has been a falling off in that sort of incentive, and for that reason we are inclined to regard with favor the story of the officer who put his shoulder to the corner of the car and kept a queen from sliding over a 650-foot cliff. Just what will be done for him we do not know, but if the school book tradition holds firm he ought to receive a title and a decree should be issued that people would have to salute him when he walks across the village green. If that sort of thing keeps up then we believe the world would again be a happy place in which to live because it was a very happy place in the days when we read about the boy and the dyke and the lad who flagged the express train.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Is there something in a name, despite Shakespeare? We notice where a horse called "Speed to Spare" only won by a neck at Santa Anita park.

Acorns from Windsor Forest are to be planted in Ontario this summer—a nice bit of sentiment on the part of the Toronto branch of the Men of the Trees.

A Serbian inventor who started the manufacture of bullet-proof vest from old razor blades has gone broke. He should have opened his plant in Chicago.

And now somebody has brought forward the idea of Sunday professional hockey in Toronto. That was sure to follow the suggestion that baseball be permitted on that day.

It has been ruled at Ottawa that the word "silly" is unparliamentary. In recent sessions of the Ontario House the boys would not think of using such a sissified expression.

The United Farmers of Alberta have decided as a body to keep out of politics and popular opinion will say that the organization has arrived at a sound decision.

Montreal is planning a world exhibition in 1942. Canada's metropolis has three hundred years of history to celebrate and should be able to make a good job of it.

One of the most extraordinary things about the new government Hydro legislation is the statement of Attorney-General Roebuck that there is nothing extraordinary about it.

That long speech of Mr. Roebuck's at least gave the Telegram a chance to play up a story of the taking over of the Canada Cement Company's power plants on the Trent. Evidently the Toronto paper did not know the Hydro had been operating those plants for weeks.

Los Angeles council has appropriated $2000 to buy red flannel underwear and woollen socks for city laborers working out-of-doors. The Chamber of Commerce will probably resign in a body as a protest against this libel on the California climate.

Brampton town council cancelled an old bylaw providing a $50 annual fee for tobacco retailers. It was passed 35 years ago and the bylaw's existence was unknown until one of the councillors discovered it late last year. We dare say a search of existing bylaws in a good many municipalities would reveal a similar need for revision or elimination.

THEY COME TO CHAT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The neighbors come and visit me, and I'm as happy as can be, we argue and discuss; we talk of how men drive a car, and figure if the trip be far, one should use train or bus.

¶ When Neighbor One drops in at night, I grip my chair and hold on tight, I make a pleasant sound; I know what lies ahead of me, and I'll be tired as man can be, for he is so profound.

¶ He dotes on Socrates I know, knows how the thoughts of Plato go, he picks them for his theme; and Aristotle now and then, gets numbered with his favored men, he puts him on his team.

¶ I know I should enjoy that treat, and clap my hands and stomp my feet, to know these men of old; but I just nod my head and grin, and try to keep at peace with him, because it leaves me cold.

¶ When Neighbor Two comes in to chat, I gladly take his coat and hat, and offer him a chair; because he's just a common guy, and with him I see eye to eye, it is a glad affair.

¶ He talks about the rent he owes, of when he bought his last new clothes, of taxes we can't stand; about the price of prunes and tripe, on how he straps his wallet tight—and things I understand.

BELLEVILLE FAIR.

(Belleville Intelligencer)

BELLEVILLE Fair Board looked forward the other day at the annual meeting as reference was made to the future needs. One of the healthy signs is the need for more livestock accommodation. This is a proof that the fair is not getting away from the primal purpose of such events, its agricultural foundation. In such exhibitions livestock has always been one of the foundations. That Belleville fair is living up to its possibilities in this regard is proven by the increasing number of entries of livestock of the best kind. The judges who have inspected this branch of the fair have had only words of praise for the quality of the stock attracted to the annual show. Accommodation increased almost yearly still finds itself inadequate—evidence of growth and development.

Letters To The Editor

Corresopndents Discuss Various Topics

CITY FINANCES

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Mr. Tinker's letter on easing the burden of the taxpayer, while not a feasible plan as your editorial on same explains, serves a good purpose in bringing before the ratepayers the financial situation and the way to deal with it.

It is unfortunate that the council takes the position of giving as little information as possible on financial matters. Unless the council indulges in expenditure that we can easily do without, the tax rate should be at least two mills lower this year because of additional taxes resulting from expired fixed assessments and tax arrear payments also the $22,000.00 gain on old age and mothers' pensions.

Five years hence we should have an additional gain of over one hundred thousand dollars per year from the expiration of other fixed assessments, and when this is followed by the retirement of two hundred thousand per year on the city debendiutres it should make quite a drop in the tax rate provided—and this is the big risk—the council does not give way to unnecessary expenditure and grants to all and sundry who clamor for aid at the taxpayers' expense.

Even when these future gains mature the tax load will still be heavy. One ill-timed suggestion advanced is the raising of civic employees' salaries. This would be all right in case of salaries of less than $1,200.00 per year. Those getting more than that amount and certain employment are indeed fortunate compared with the property owners who have been forced to surrender over 300 lots because they could not meet tax payments or the 700 unemployed registered at the government agency.

Another suggested expense—a good thing if we could afford it—is roofing the market. Better to consider keeping the roof—may be a leaky one—over the head of the struggling taxpayer who is making a desperate effort to save his life's earnings and have at least a shelter for his old age.

We hope the present council will not indulge in personal hobbies or the desire to "father something" at the taxpayers' expense. If they want to raise salaries that will be a public benefit they should make some move to expose employers who are not paying a living wage and brand them as No. 1 public enemies.

A letter recently published in the Examiner by "Ex Clerk" gave a very plain account of this "sweat shop" evil that is all too prevalent in this city. Business improvement—that often misses the small taxpayer—will naturally start a clamor for many things and the council should stoutly resist all claims that do not come under the necessary hospitals, health and children's aid needs, and act for the taxpayers as a whole and not for one or more business groups.

Yours truly,
TAXPAYER

Our Statesmen At Their Tasks.

(Use An Island to Base Their Arguments.)

From Parliamentary Reports

Mr BLACKMORE: The laugh will be on the other side of the faces before long, too. All right; think of an island like Ontario, filled with natural riches. Could that island have money? If the government of the island created money, what would be the backing of that money? For those who are so exceedingly smart over there let me suggest that they go and get Sir Norman Angell's series of articles which appeared in the Financial Post last year. He says a sailor landed on a certain island with a block of gold. He wanted to use the gold in order to buy certain goods for his own use, but at the time he did not see how he could use the gold. So he went to a missionary and confided the gold to his keeping, saying, "As soon as you get a chance, take my gold to the old country and have it minted. Meanwhile I will write orders against it." So the sailor wrote orders and passed them to the natives in return for the goods which the natives gave him. In due time the natives were passing a great quantity of these orders around the island, and accepting them as face value as money. But, Sir Norman Angell says, the gold never did go to the old country; it never was minted into coin, but the system continued to function just the same, and the gold might just as well have been a piece of lead. When hon. gentlemen opposite get through explaining that it will be plenty of time to sneer. Until they can explain it, however, they would be wise not to reveal their ignorance; until they can explain that away it might be just as well to keep right on studying.

Now, the question is, what was the backing of the money when it was in circulation in the island?

Mr. LAWSON: The intrinsic value of the gold block.

Mr. BLACKMORE: But the block was never minted.

Mr. LAWSON: It did not have to be minted to have intrinsic value.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Remember, this is all on page 19 of Sir Norman Angell's article. Go and read the pamphlet.

Mr. LAWSON: But I have read it, and I am trying to get my hon. friend to explain to my satisfaction that there is no intrinsic value behind this credit which he is going to set up.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Very good, but you will find that the backing of that money was the goods and services, the producing and consuming power of that island, the exchanges, as Sir Norman Angell says. It will take a good deal of laughing to explain that away.

Mr. DUNNING: Sir Norman Angell did not say that.

Mr. LAWSON: Nor anything like it.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Get the pamphlet; read page 19, and we will see. At any rate, this is an illustration.

Mr. DUNNING: Confidence, that is it. All the rest can be left out.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Quite so. Now the question is, How are you going to produce that confidence?

Mr. DUNNING: That is it.

Mr. BLACKMORE: What Angell calls exchanges. May I read a passage from Senator Owen?

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Who is he?

Mr. BLACKMORE: He is the chairman of the monetary reform committee of the United States. I am sorry the hon. member does not know. He says:

There is no mystery in what makes the value of money,—

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): These are nearly all foreign authorities. The hon. member passes over those of his own province.

Mr. BLACKMORE: If you would leave the province alone it might do better. The value of money depends absolutely upon the supply of money in relation to the demand for money, entirely regardless of the value of gold content.

Mr. ROGERS: What creates the demand for money?

Mr. BLACKMORE: The desire of the people to produce, motivated by their desire to consume, operating through effective demand.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. The hon. member's time is up.

Mr. BLACKMORE: I think I have four minutes more, owing to the interruptions, have I not? May I have another minute to make up for the interruptions?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Go on.

On The Tenth Concession.

(Touch of Onion With the Potatoes.)

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Out here on the Tenth tonight real winter has set in. The wind howls and the cheer of the warm kitchen is emphasized by contrast to the weather outside.

Your column much enjoyed. Referring to the clothes cut down for the boys. Perhaps if more people were studying how to cut down father's clothes to fit his sons there might not be quite so many on relief these days. We got quite a smile out of your father's love of a horse deal. I knew a man like that and he was a member of parliament too. He traded a balky horse to a Methodist minister one time, and he always spoke of it as his greatest triumph, as the minister like David Harum could never resist a horse deal. In your column you often speak of your mother's kitchen personally. I think the kitchen is the "Power House" of the home. Not that one should be constantly thinking of food, but there is no question but what the well-nourished person is much more competent than the one who never gets the amount and kind of food he should have. By the way, has Peterborough a slogan. Perhaps it has, but I do not recall seeing one?

To me a place that is still developing is more interesting than one quite satisfied with itself and not making any plans for future development. The fact that the Kawartha Lakes are so near in a real drawing card. The idea suggested in your paper recently, in regard to developing the whole district seems a smart idea. The fuss they make in California over a little lake should make us realize what a lovely thing it is to have such wonderful lakes and streams so near. When I left Michigan they were just beginning to develop their winter sports, and had a little hard luck in always having a thaw on the big days they invited the city people up, but they got quite a bit of advertising out of it any way. Perhaps the best thing people get out of all these efforts is the comradeship shared and the good one gets from working together in a common cause. It is snowing outside, inside smells of scalloped potatoes and I must be truthful just a suggestion of onion in the potatoes. One might say onions are important since Premier Hepburn began to raise them—sort of got into politics, Liberal at that. One nice thing about the "Tenth Concession." lots of nice butter, cream and milk to make many nice and appetising dishes.

Well, the kindling is in the oven and that means chores are done for the night, usually my exit sign, leaving the two brothers to their evening talk while I sink into my downy couch for my two hours daily reading, a great pleasure. And as night settles on the Tenth Concession, a stillness comes on, seldom disturbed, until the roosters begin their morning challenge to the dawn. With my good wishes to your paper.

Sincerely yours,
EMERALD ISLE

BRINGS DISASTER.

(St. Catharines Standard)

FROM war torn Spain comes a further illustration of the insane folly of war, and the disastrous blows which it deals to industry and commerce. The lesson is in the blight of the Spanish orange industry.

The orange gardens of Andalusia and Seville have been neglected while Spaniard shot at Spaniard, and naturally the crop has failed. A Spanish despatch says:

"The failure of our oranges is but one of the many signs that deep wounds have been inflicted in the past six months on the whole system of Spanish commerce."

The orange harvest was always of vital importance to Spanish industry, for this fruit stands first among the national products so far as export was concerned.

When the minds of men and nations are centred upon destruction, when billions of dollars are expended upon the creation of engines of destruction—is there any need to wonder why international trade and commerce lag and languish?

Man cannot do two things well at the same time, and so when they are engaged in war, industry must suffer. In Spain the populace are engaged in a bitter struggle to the death, and so things like building prosperity and happiness are forgotten, and whichever side wins will be the loser.

War is madness, and yet the lesson seems one nations find difficult to remember.

OTTAWA TAKES HAND.

(Montreal Star)

IT IS good news that the Federal Department of Health is beginning to come into its own somewhat. A little more money—not much—is to be spent on it and its scope is to be extended to cover child and maternity hygiene, epidemiology and health engineering.

Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Health, rather let the cat out of the bag when, as reported, he said that at a meeting of the Health Ministers of all the Provinces last year, these gentlemen were "not in very substantial agreement on any one subject." What they disagreed about is not disclosed, but it is a fair assumption that Ottawa decided that it was time the Federal Department became something more than a "skeleton corps," a very sensible conclusion if the various Provinces are not getting on as well together as was to be hoped.

The new branches are to be properly headed and staffed, we are told, and will get down to business forthwith. There is certainly work to be done in one direction anyway. The maternal hygiene field in Canada is more than ready, and whatever the newly organized bureau can do to improve things will be welcome indeed. Meantime, perhaps the various provincial Health Departments might try getting together again and seeing wherein their differences lie and whether they cannot be straightened out in the public interest. There is far, far too much to do in the realm of public health in this country for disagreements among those who are supposed to be doing it.

MILD DECEMBER.

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—(CP)— December meteorological records for Saint John showed no temperature below zero, 1.50 inches of snowfall—the lease since 1889—and 8.20 inches of rain.

OIL STOCKS ACTIVE DURING PAST WEEK

Market Was In Process Of Consolidating Gains Made Since Christmas

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — (CP).— Stocks of the small Alberta oil companies had a more prominent place than usual in the Toronto market this week, the result evidently of recent publicity given the Turner Valley field. Many substantial gains were recorded on heavy expansion of trading in the group.

Industrial stocks, with a few exceptions, had a week of backing and filling without getting far in any direction from the level of a week ago. The market appeared to be in the process of consolidating the gains accumulated since Christmas.

Base metal stocks were definitely lower, reflecting the moderate losses taken by copper, lead and zinc in the last week while the gold shares registered a gain of 1½ points in the exchange index. The loss recorded by the industrial group was too small to have any significance.

Royalite Leads.

Royalite gave strong leadership to the small oils as it advanced $5.35 from $44 to $49.35. Trade in the stock was not heavy. Calgary-Edmonton, Home Oil and Dalhousie attracted a large following and these closed the period with gains of 55 to 92 cents each. The juniors came into action as the week advanced and gains of 10 to 17½ cents were registered by Calmont, Commonwealth, Highwood-Sarcee, Lowery Petroleum, Nordon and Model.

Gains among the higher price golds reached 70 to 80 cents for Pioneer, Pickle Crow, Siscoe, Canadian Malartic, and Preston. The seniors held steady except for a drop of $1.25 for McIntyre. Wright-Hargreaves lost 15 cents.

The whole list of active base metal stocks fell back. Noranda declined $1.90, Hudson Bay $1.90, Pend Oreille 30 cents, and Falconbridge, Sudbury Basin, Sherritt-Gordon, Waite-Amulet, and Ventures weakened 12 to 25 cents each. There was little business in the silver group.

Steel Did Well.

Steel listings of the industrial section continued to do well. Both Canadian Car and Foundry issues registered new High prices for recent years, the common going up $2.00 to $21, while National Steel Car added $1.25. Steel of Canada $1.00, and the Bridge stocks, Dominion Steel and Coal B, Page-Hersey, and Eastern Steel Products had smaller gains.

Brazilian reached its best price since 1931 at 22, and Ford of Canada climbed back to 28. In the flour milling group Maple Leaf Common stood out with a gain of $3.50 to close yesterday at $10.35.

General Steel Wares, Industrial Alcohol A, the Brewing Corporation stocks, Bathurst Power A, and Union Gas were active and strong. Of the other liquor stocks, Distillers-Seagrams declined $1.25. Walkers Common held steady. The big oils showed practically no change.

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point.

Wheat $1.24 to $1.28, oats 52c to 54c, barley 76c to 77c, corn 71c to 73c, rye $1.00 to $1.04, buckwheat 85c to 90c, malting barley 99c to $1.03, milling oats 54c to 55c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 23. — The rush to market of Argentina's new wheat crop got into full swing yesterday, with a resultant unsettling effect on world grain futures markets.

Prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange were off 1⅞-1⅞ cents at the close of the session in which wheat dumped into the pit found few takers.

Prompting the liquidation were the heaviest week's grain shipments in history from Argentina this week, 19,000,000 bushels, of which 7,696,000 bushels were of wheat. In the same week of last year, wheat exports totalled only 436,000 bushels.

Prices broke more than 2½ cents at times. Export sales of 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, developed on the swift recessions, served only to stay the declines. For most of the active session little support was in evidence.

In the van of a world-wide lowering of grain prices were futures at Liverpool, where net setbacks of 2⅝d-2¾d were boarded. Chicago was off more than 2 cents at the close.

Coarse grains prices sagged with wheat. Rye was a standout in that section, showing comparative strength against the weakness in other grains. The May future got up ⅛ cent.

ENGLISH LEADERS ARE 3 POINTS UP

Arsenal And Charlton Athletic Have Each 34 Points In League

LONDON, Jan. 23—(C.P. Cable)—Victories in to-day's English Football League games sent Arsenal and Charlton Athletic into a three-point lead over Brentford, their nearest rival. The Gunners found Wolverhampton Wanderers easy opposition at Highbury, winning 3-0, while Charlton edged out a 2-1 decision at Birmingham. Brentford and Sunderland drew 3-3 in London. The two championship contenders each have 34 points, but Arsenal takes first place by virtue of a superior goal average.

At the other end of the table, Sheffield Wednesday and West Bromwich Albion drew away from Manchester United, now the only occupant of the bottom rung of the ladder. The Wednesday defeated Manchester United 1-0 and West Bromwich blanked Chelsea 2-0.

Blackpool retained its place at the top of the Second Division with a creditable 2-1 triumph at Newcastle. The runner-up berth is now shared by Plymouth Argyle and Leicester City who met in a big battle at Leicester. The home team won 3-2.

SHIP INSPECTION DETAILS REVEALED

Passenger Vessels Carrying Up To 1,000 Often Have Lifeboats For Less Than 200

OTTAWA, Jan. 23—C.P.)—The nature of inspection service for Canadian passenger vessels and the amount of life-saving equipment were described in answers tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Transport Minister Howe, in reply to questions by H. E. Wilson (Cons., Hamilton West).

"Is it a fact that passenger boats plying in Canadian waters with a carrying capacity of 1,000 passengers have only lifeboat equipment for less than 200 people?" Mr. Wilson asked.

"A passenger boat with a carrying capacity of 1,000 passengers might have lifeboat equipment for less than 200 persons," was the answer. "She would, however, have other equipment in the way of buoyant apparatus or life rafts, which with the boats would provide for a certain percentage of the total completment, ranging from 100 per cent. to 40 per cent. according to whether the vessel were employed in open waters or sheltered waters.

Boilers and machinery are opened out for inspection annually, said Mr. Howe, and the hull is examined above the waterline. Life-saving and other equipment are also inspected annually.

Salt water vessels have their bottoms, rudders and sea connections examined annually in drydock. Where a ship is plying in fresh water the same drydock inspection is carried out every second or every fourth year, according to the nature of the waters in which the ship is employed.

Tailshafts are drawn for inspection at intervals varying from two to four years, according to the arrangement of the shaft and the waters in which the vessel plies.

There are 32 steamship inspectors provided for in the steamship inspection service.

St. John's Girls Lose To Westclox

Westclox Juniors coped a 9-7 victory over St. John's in a smart junior Basketball League contest last night in the Y.W. gym. With some speedy passing and neat checking shown, play was quite even most of the way. The Clockmakers had a 7-4 edge in the first half but the Saints outscored them by a point in the last chapter. Each team cashed in once on free tosses. I. Gynane led the losers in scoring with three points, while J. Coleman and E. Clark had two apiece. For Westclox, J. Crowe led with five and P. Davis notched four. The teams:

St. John's—J. McIlwain, I. Gynane, J. Coleman, G. Martyn, M. Snowden, B. Castle, A. Bowler, A. Maxwell, H. Maxwell, I. Young.

Westclox—J. Crowe, E. Walsh, Z. Florence, A. Flynn, M. Pammett, L. McNaughton, D. Dawson, L. Turcotte, P. Davis.

CELTIC IS BEATEN BY ABERDEEN 1-0

Celts Drop Into Fourth Place While Aberdeen Strengthens Lead

GLASGOW, Jan. 23—(C.P. Cable)—Inflicting a 1-0 setback to Celtic at Pittodrie Park to-day, Aberdeen improved its chances of winning the Scottish Football League championship. The Celts drop into fourth place behind Hearts, who trounced Partick Thistle, 5-1. Rangers, two points behind Abredeen, blanked St. Mirren, 2-0, at Ibrox Park.

The Dons have 45 points, two more than the cup-holders, but they have played two more games. Hearts have a point total of 41, one more than the Celts.

Winning 3-2 against St. Johnstone at Muirton Park, Perth, Third Lanark tightened its hold on fifth place. The only other away victory in the First Division was registered by Motherwell victor 1-0 at Kilmarnock. The win sends the Fir Park outfit ahead of Falkirk, held to a 2-2 stalemate at Clyde.

Albion Rovers and Dunfermline, battling to avoid relegation to the Second Division, met on the former's ground at Coatbridge. The home team won 4-0 to take 19th place in the league table, two up on the Fifers.

Solway Star wins.

Playing a week in advance of the scheduled date for first-round games, Solway Star defeated Lambert Amateurs 3-1 in the Scottish Football Cup competition to-day. The game was played on the latter's grounds.

BLACK BEAR SEEN IN HASTINGS AREA

Animal Is Spotted In Farmer's Orchard, Then Takes To Woods

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 23.—It is not often that bears are reported in this district but apparently Mr. Bruin has been seen by two or three during the past week. While on his way to the village Dennis Ward who was employed by Earl Clark almost encountered Mr. Bruin. The bear was in the act of getting over the fence from Norman Rusaw's orchard when first seen. From there he ascended McGuires hill and took to the woods. Mr. Ward thought he may have been mistaken but when he reached the village he was informed that two others had seen the bear when on the Cobourg Road. Later the footprints were traced.

WESTCLOX GIRLS COP CAGE TILT

Nose Out 17-16 Decision Over C.G.E. In Smart Senior Struggle At Y.W.C.A.

In the keenest Ladies' Basketball League game seen for a long time in the Y.W.C.A., Westclox Seniors nudged out a 17-16 overtime verdict over C.G.E. Hooping the ball on a penalty throw in the three-minute overtime period, G. Mortimer got the deciding point after a tight, exciting struggle. Competition was so hot that three C.G.E. and two Westclox players left by the four-foul route, checking being close and shooting good all evening. The score was 9-7 for the Electrics at half-time, but Westclox rallied somewhat in the second spasm. M. Hodson was big scorer for the losers with nine points, while A. Craig, M. Woods and M. Hanahan had two each, and K. Rogow one. For Westclox, G. Mortimer shone with 10 points, six on free tosses, as B. Blade got four, and A. Livingstone, G. Hunter and M. Ferguson one apiece. The teams:

C.G.E.—A. Craig, M. Hodson, E. Hodson, M. Woods, K. Rogow, J. Alexander, H. Bradley, E. Bradley, D. Schultz, M. Hallahan.

Skater Of Youthful Promise.

Miss Hall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hall of Glencairn avenue, Toronto (her father is an old Peterborough boy), and is a niece of Lt.-Col. W. Gordon Hall of this city.

Miss Hall was the winner of the Girls' Novice Single Championship of the Toronto Skating Club in 1936 and also won the Junior Ten Stenning competition with Sandy McKechnie. This year, with the same partner, she won the Junior Pairs championship and is runner-up in the Girls' Junior Single Championship of the Toronto Skating Club. In February, in the Canadian Figure Skating Associations' Championship competition, to be held in Montreal, she will skate with Mr. McKechnie in the Junior Pairs. She is also a member of the Senior Four of the Toronto Skating Club.

Hostess Tea St. Paul's Ladies' Aid.

A delightful Hostess tea was held on Friday afternoon in the Sunday School auditorium of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church under auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. The ladies were received by the president, Mrs. C. E. Blewett, assisted by Mrs. A. T. Barr and Mrs. G. A. Macdonald.

Tea was served from two large tables arranged with lace cloths, large baskets filled with Spring flowers and mauve and yellow candles. Individual tables were also flower-centered and served by numerous hostesses.

During the afternoon, tea was poured by Mrs. R. F. MacGregor, Mrs. S. D. Hall, Mrs. H. Marsh, Mrs. Dickson Davidson, Mrs. R. H. Hunter, Mrs. H. E. Stenson, Mrs. G. S. McKee and Miss Lena Eakins.

Mrs. C. A. Sollitt and Mrs. H. G. Mason were in charge of the large tables, assisted by Mrs. W. Hynes, Mrs. R. McWilliams and Mrs. C. Mann. Ladies in charge of refreshments were Mrs. James Savigny, Mrs. J. A. Vincent and Mrs. J. Bateson. The general convenor of arrangements for the afternoon was Mrs. Robert Ross, Mrs. William Lyburn acted as treasurer.

A much-enjoyed program during the tea hour consisted of a guitar solo and tap dance by little Shirley Fitzsimmons; a piano duett by Jean Magee and Charlie Seal; vocal solos by Miss Isobel Duthie and Don Kennedy, and a violin selection by William Moorhead. Accompaniments were played by Mrs. Adam Sands and Don Ross.

Annual Event Canadian Nashua Company.

The annual dinner and dance tendered by the management of the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, Limited, and the Canadian Sealright Company, Limited, to their employees, as an expression of appreciation for their loyalty and faithfulness during the year, was a pleasant event of Friday evening at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, with an attendance of one hundred people, representative of the staff members and their friends and especial guests of the evening.

The presidents of the Nashua Paper Company at New Hampshire, W. L. Carter, and the vice-president, V. E. Nunez, were present for the occasion; also His Worship Mayor G. A. Macdonald, and Mrs. Macdonald, and two of the sales representatives of the company: Desmond Marshall of Toronto, and H. M. Dagley of London, Ontario, who was accompanied by Mrs. Dagley.

At dinner, various brief speeches were given by Mr. Carter, Mr. Nunez, Mayor Macdonald and J. R. Marshall, general manager of the Peterborough company, who received the guests with Mrs. Marshall. S. Whitehouse, the manager of the Sealright Company, the auxiliary concern, was absent through illness.

G. A. Richmond acted as toastmaster and Al Davis led a program of community singing. Later, dancing was enjoyed, to Jack Marshall's orchestra, and bingo games, with boxes of chocolates as prizes.

In addition to those mentioned above, the guests of the evening included Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ellison, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lockie, Mr. and Mrs. R. Martyn, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Milliken, Mr. and Mrs. E. Red Cross Has Wide Range

Families Assisted; Nursing Tuition; Food Classes; Help For West

At the January executive meeting of the local branch of the Red Cross Society, held this week and presided over by the president, Mrs. R. H. Turner, interesting reports of work of various committees were presented by convenors. D. A. Loomis is in charge of Soldiers' Work; Mrs. C. B. Muir of Nutrition classes; Mrs. W. Perks of Home Nursing; Mrs. C. J. Ray of Family Welfare Service; Mrs. C. G. Graham of Purchasing; T. A. Mackay of Finance; R. M. Glover of Unemployment and Relief; Mrs. J. G. Mills of Campaign Lists.

The Family Welfare committee, convened by Mrs. Ray, with supervisors in Mrs. F. E. Hooper, Mrs. T. Shield, Miss Margaret Hamilton and Miss Helen Munro, has already rendered valuable service to eight different families through the medium of the Visiting Housekeepers who take charge of the household during the illness of the wife and mother.

Nutrition classes, taught by Mrs. C. B. Muir and Miss Aileen Morgan, are being held each Thursday evening for the next seven weeks at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, as the Board of Education has again this year granted the Red Cross Society the privilege of using the Domestic Science Room for this purpose.

Home Nursing classes are being arranged now and several graduate nurses have again, as in the past, agreed to act as instructors.

In giving a report on the result of the appeal for Western Drought Relief, Mrs. C. G. Graham told that six bales had been shipped from Peterborough, totalling 1345 pounds in weight, comprising not only blankets, quilts and comforters, but also warm wearing apparel, towelling, dishes and kitchen utensils.

Appreciation was expressed to the J. J. Turner Company for kindness in packing and shipping these articles; to the Young Men's Christian Association for use of the Board Room for assembling; and the Thursday Club for a donation of $25 to purchase blankets, also to individual citizens for generous responses, as well as to various organizations in Lakefield, Keene, Norwood, Hall's Bridge, Westwood and Springbrook, from all of which points substantial boxes were received.

Fashion Service

Your smock to be really smart must be fitted and flared as the charming princess model pictured.

The shoulder sleeve interest is also very important and has a youthfully slimming effect upon the waistline. The four patch pockets add a tailored look. They're mighty useful, too. The full length tyrolean cotton smock is simply a grand "cover-all" for the busy housewife. It looks like a dress.

The shorter length aqua blue cotton smock with above-the-elbow sleeves and mandarin collar will particularly appeal to school girls and young business women.

The pattern provides for both styles. Easy to sew! Well, I guess! You've practically only panels to stitch together for the main part. It cuts in one piece from shoulder to hem.

Style No. 2621 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

Synge and His Irish Dramas

Women's Art Association Listens To Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas

"The greatest attribute of Synge, probably, was his capacity for richly-imaged speech, bordering close to poetry. Combined with this rich imagery was his love of simplicity and a tragic imagination which was brought about, possibly, by his years of suffering and the knowledge that his life would be very short, for he was a sufferer from cancer."

Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas spoke on "Synge and the Irish Dramatists," under auspices of the Museum Club and Women's Art Association, at an evening meeting held on Friday in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., with the president, Mrs. F. Hooper, in the chair.

It was an interesting review of the life and work of a dramatist who dared to hold up to mild ridicule some of the cherished foibles of his own countrymen, and whose artistic life was all too short, for only eight plays had flowed from the pen of John Millington Synge when he died at the early age of 38 years. Born in 1871 at Rathfarnham, near Dublin, he died in Dublin in 1909.

While in Paris, where he worked at the translation of French works into English, striving to maintain a single idion, he suffered much from hunger and privation. He met in Paris the Irish poet and dramatist, William Butler Yeats, who asked him what he would like best to do.

Synge replied: "To do for Ireland what Pierre Loti has done for Bretagne." In other words, to interpret in his writing the absolute peasant life of Ireland in all its simplicity without any ornamentation.

Poking Fun at the Irish

It was this that he accomplished later in his plays. As a prelude to them, he wrote two books of beautifully descriptive prose about the Arran Islands, where he lived for a time, and it was from his experiences there that he wove the theme of his first play, "The Playboy of the Western World," in which gentle ridicule is heaped on some of the dearly-loved weaknesses of the race to which he belonged and which he loved so well.

Incensed by his portrayal of the unkind credulity of the romanticists of his land, his first audience responded by stoning the author from the theatre, but later, "with that lovely capacity for smiling at themselves which is a characteristic of the race," he was forgiven, and his career at the Abbey Theatre in Dublin progressed successfully. Then he wrote "Riders to the Sea," which has since been translated into almost every language, and which was described as "an almost perfect example of the one-act drama."

Other plays followed, including "The Well of the Saints," in which the action and dialogue are carried by two blind people who live happily together until, by a miracle at the well, their sight is restored and both husband and wife are disappointed in their mate. A reversal of the miracle takes their sight away again and these two, who "live on the roads," are happily united once more.

Speaking of the meticulous fashion in which Synge wrote, revising again and again in his quest for perfection, so that his work may be described as "written in blood," the speaker referred to the rhythmic movement, "the way in which the words just flow," which characterizes his work. She said that he worked on the dramatic theory known as the old Sophocles arch. Sophocles formed his tragedies in this manner, with the build-up proceeding to the middle of the second act, when the dramatic crisis occurs and the Nemesis takes place in the third, with as much emphasis as was used for the build-up, the whole forming a perfect arch, as it were.

Leading up to a description of Synge's work was a review of the older theatre in England, the passing of the Irvingite tradition in which the actor was paramount, the succession of the Ibsenite period which glorified the writer and the play, and the transition to the modern mode, when actor, writer and producer work on an equal level. In this school, Gordon Craig in England and Max Reinhardt in the United States were mentioned as outstanding directors.

Dr. Cotton Thomas read several extracts from two of Synge's plays, "The Playboy of the Western World," and his last play, "Dierdre of the Sorrows," which tells the tale of that ancient Dierdre, considered the most beautiful woman in the world, who was pursued to her death by the great Conchuhar, King of Ulster.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

MAY not the complaint that common people are above their station often take its rise in the fact of uncommon people being below theirs? . . . . . There are shades in all good pictures, but there are lights too, if we choose to contemplate them.—Dickens.

Dear Friends:

Not long ago, I heard a lady complain that another was so "common", and I asked her what she meant. She went on that she had not much education, and I told her that I had met many brilliant people who were successful in life, but had had little or no education.

She said that this lady worked in a menial position, and I said all work was honourable. She explained that the one she was talking about was poor and poorly dressed. I asked is she a beggar or a thief, is she careless in her work, does she slander others, and the answer was no.

But she still persisted that the lady was "common," and it came out that she was vulgar, ill-bred, loud voiced, careless in eating, pushed her opinion at other people, did not know when to keep silent and when to speak, intruded and pried into other people's affairs, and I agreed that the woman was "common" indeed.

All of us are "common" to a certain extent. We are born of man and woman. We have faces and features altho' all are not similar, women dress like other women, and men like other men, we eat in common and drink in common and are human beings in common, separate from the beasts.

But where we differ is in our habits. Training does not always account for this, altho' it has a large part in it, for if your manners are coarse your children will copy them. If you are a discourteous person, your children will be more or less like you, unless their mates or some other person trim it out of them.

Some of us have an innate refinement which is called breeding, but all of us can learn of it, and train ourselves into it if we try. Blood will tell at times, but never forget that no one person has all bad blood or all good blood in them. We are a mixture of many people, and when we think of all the ones who were responsible for us being alive at all, we see that altho' there may be bad, there must also be good, just like the light and shade in a picture, or on the street when the sun is shining.

There is many a common person in a high station in life, and many an uncommon one in a lower place. If we were all herded together, the common here, and the uncommon there, you would be surprised to see so many uncommon ones in certain stations, and so many utterly common ones occupying places they were not fitted for, but the accident of birth placed them there.

But never class anyone as common unless you have found that they are really so. Many's the noble personality that is hidden behind a shabby exterior, and there are lots of shabby people behind grand clothes.

Robbie Burns says this:

"What tho' on hamely fare we dine,
Wear hodden grey and a' that?
A man's a man for a' that."

So do not get the habit of thinking anyone is common because they are poor, or have to do lowly work. Look below the surface and behind the dross you see, there may be pure gold. After all, the best things in life are common to us all, the flowers and the sunsets and the tree that gives us shade, yet which one of us could make one of them?

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

With the Girl Guides

1ST COMPANY.

The meeting was brought to order by the captain. Patrol leaders fell in and marked paces, followed by their patrols.

P.L. Jane Turner led the girls in a game of French tag.

Campfire was next on the program. Here the Guides discussed a church parade to be held at All Saints' Church, Sunday, January 24, and also a cooking sale for Saturday, February 13.

A sing-song was conducted by Hazel Bradley. The meeting closed with the singing of the Taps.

Faithful Dog: BROCKVILLE—Wounded yesterday while trying to defend his master's property, 'Prince' German police dog was humanely destroyed. The animal's owner is now enjoying a holiday in Florida. The dog was shot through the head and chest when burglars entered the hardware store where he had been left to spend the night, and he resisted their entry. All three of the intruders, Montrealers, and 15 years of age, were arrested by policemen when they dashed from the store.

Challenged: NEW YORK—An embarrassed widow went before 1,000 of the United States retailers at their convention here and challenged the theory that employees past 40 are ready for the scrap heap. She was Mrs. Florence Schwartz, retail store worker, who at 51 won the Retail Association's first prize in a contest in which employees put forward their idea for "better selling."

CHIEF S. NEWHALL GUARDIAN OF LAW FOR FORTY YEARS

Joined The World - Famous Metropolitan Police In London In 1897.

THIRTY YEARS IN CITY

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall on Monday celebrates his fortieth anniversary as a police officer. He has been a member of the local force since June, 1906.

Joining the world-famous Metropolitan Police in London on January 25, 1897, he served there for five years, then transferring to the Liverpool police force.

During the time he was with the Metropolitan Police he was engaged with "C" squadron of the Royal Squadron, members of which were always detailed for the big events that happened, such as the visits of royalty, or for duty in connection with events in which they participated.

Leaving Liverpool during 1904, he went to Cuba and served on the police force in that country until June, 1906, when he came to Peterborough. He has resided here ever since.

Many changes have taken place in the local force since that time. When he joined, the force consisted of Chief Roszel, R. Adams, Charles McGinty and John Meharry.

On the death of Chief Roszel in 1910, Daniel Thompson came from Woodstock to take the command. The force was then reorganized, the strength being increased to nine men. A few years later it was further enlarged until the total strength attained a maximum of 13 men.

Became Chief in 1920

Chief Thomoson resigned in 1920, the present chief then being appointed. During the year following the strength of the force was reduced to 13 all ranks, at which figure it still remains.

Glancing at the "rogues' gallery"—a collection of photographs of every criminal of note that has passed through the hands of Chief Newhall and his predecessors and which are kept on file in his office, brings to mind in a vivid way the number of people that have come within the long arm of the law. Recent additions to the collection are profile and full face views of the pair of youthful gunmen sentenced this week to prison and reformatory terms and strappings.

Chief Newhall is past president of the Chief Constables' Association; a member of the executive of the Ontario Police Association; and a member of the International Police Chiefs' Association.

MEANS BIG SAVING HASTINGS COUNTY

New Government Policy Means Reduction Of 2 1-2 Mills In Tax Rate

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 23.—Hastings County will benefit to the extent of two and one-half mills in the tax rate should the government assume costs of mothers' allowance and old age pensions, members of the council were informed.

The council concurred in a reduction in the statement of claim against the municipality of Monteagle-Herschel for indigent hospital accounts amounting to $374.12. It was also decided to grant $15 to each of the Women's Institutes in North, East and West Hastings. A grant of $75 will be made to every public library in the county for the purpose of supplying literature for high school students.

Warden Wesley Gray and County Clerk E. S. Denyes were appointed representatives to the Belleville Hospital Board. James Haggerty, treasurer, was named representative to the Ontario Municipal Association, and Deputy-Reeve Roscoe Robson, of Thurlow Township, was named representative to the Ontario Educational Association.

On motion, $300 was granted to the Municipality of Monteagle-Herschel, and $150 to McClure-Wicklow-Bangor. The grants were deducted from the municipalities representing more than one township, last year. It was also moved that the county assume the road from the Shannonville side-road on the 5th Concession, to Coffey's Corner, and the 3rd Concession road from Shannonville side-road to Marysville side-road.

British Malaya is turning to Palestine for its citrus fruit.

China will construct at Sianfu and Hankow large observation stations which will control a chain of minor ones to watch for floods on the Hwang-ho and Yangtse Rivers and warn the people in time of danger.

MERCHANT OF VENICE

The students of P.C.V.S. assembled yesterday afternoon and the auditorium quietened as the curtains parted for the third literary program of the school year. The participants were members of Third Form Special, Third and Second forms Commercial, and 2A Academic. Two talented pupils from Upper School also took part. H. A. Toole had selected a presentation of the Merchant of Venice as the main feature of the program. A clever burlesque of the celebrated play ensued, set to a musical score which included jigs, the well-known "Tavern in Our Town," "My Bonny Lies Over the Ocean" and other similar numbers.

Kenneth Brenton played Bassanio's role, and Howard Phillips that of Antonio.

The laughter which echoed through the hall gave evidence to the fact that the students enjoyed seeing William Wheeler enter (in his own make-up) to play the part of Shylock. Jessica, Shylock's daughter, was acted by Mary Cathcart. Lorne Janeway, playing the role of Lorenzo, received hearty applause although he could not be heard well at the back of the assembly hall.

The part of Portia was done by Assunta White, contralto. Her stage appearance was fine and her mellow voice carried well. Doris Routley as Nerissa, was Portia's made-in-waiting and companion. The most humorous section of the performance was supplied by Gus Gunsolus. Dressed to represent the Duke of Venice, he made his appearance. His apparel, although not befitting a judge, was striking—long white stockings, basketball shorts and a bright red robe. Long, white, curly hair protruded from a large Elizabethan hat. He stole the show with his clever acting and humorous pantomines.

An interpretation of an old-fashioned polka was rendered by 14 girls from Second Commercial. Seven of these were dressed in long flowing gowns of yellow, white, blue and rose material. The remaining seven, dressed as young men, wore blue suits.

Mildred McIntyre and Lenore Skitch of 2A Academic played a piano duet. Another piano selection was cleverly executed by Carlyle Jaquith.

ROUGH GOING

The P.C.V.S. orchestra got off to a good start at the beginning of the school year but lately it appears troubles have arisen. It is reported that A. J. Weames, the conductor for several seasons, has decided to postpone practices until more musicians can be found. This will be a decided loss to the school which will be regretted throughout the school.

For the last few years it has been the custom to have the school orchestra play during literary meetings. Yesterday their places were filled by five members of the student body — Merrill Smith, Bob Graham, Peter Demos, Hugh Davidson and Lloyd Rowan. During a pause in the performance they played several dance pieces.

RED CROSS SCHOOL

Appealing to girls of P.C.V.S. for support, a representative of the Red Cross announced this week that a school is to be formed in the Y.W.C.A. to teach girls first aid for the home. If the members attend nine out of twelve classes they will receive a certificate signed by Lord Tweedsmuir. She spoke to third, fourth and fifth form girls immediately following Wednesday morning assembly. The lectures will commence next Monday or Tuesday according to the wishes of the girls.

CADETS

The more military-minded youths of P.C.V.S. have recommenced their drilling activities. During the past week, H. A. Craig, cadet instructor, has been recruiting. Next Monday the machinery will be thrown into action with approximately thirty boys on hand. Capt. Craig and Sergt.-Major Frape will instruct them until spring when the entire corps will be called out.

The signallers and first aid corps members also met in Capt. Craig's room to prepare for the coming season. Many boys are anxious to enter the Signalling Corps as each signaller receives a check from the government when he passes examinations in Morse and Semaphore codes.

CAMPAIGN CONCLUDED

The subscription campaign for the Echoes has been wound up. On Monday the results of the contest revealed that 3A Academic led the field with 275 per cent. Form 3A will be awarded a dance. Forms 2B and 2C, losers in that group, must provide food and waiters.

HOCKEY

Grove Schools, representatives in the realm of hockey journeyed here last Wednesday to meet the P.C.V.S. hockey squad for the second time this year. The final score was: Grove 7, P.C.V.S. 4. Bill King succeeded in flashing the red light twice while Ernie Ward and Bill Dorris each scored once. The manager, Jack Patterson, feeling that his team is a better match for Grove than that score would indicate, is endeavoring to arrange another exhibition game for the near future. Approximately 100 P.C.V.S. rooters turned out to support their team. The majority of these was of the fair sex.

GLEE CLUBS

Practices for the current operetta have begun with the arrival of the operetta score. The girls met Thursday. An observer was overheard to remark that the coming performance ought to be a "howling success." As yet, the boys have not started rehearsals.

SCHOLARSHIP

Queen's University is awarding a new scholarship, L. J. Pettit announced on Thursday. The Ontario scholar with the highest average percentage for his five years' academic schooling is to receive this award. If the student wishes to enter Arts, the scholarship is worth $675; if Applied Science, $921; if Medicine, $969.

ODDS AND ENDS

The Camera Club postponed its meeting which is usually held on Wednesdays. . . It seems a correction is in order in connection with last week's report concerning the date of the school concert. It will be held on March fourth and fifth rather than the latter part of February as stated . . . Donald Carr, late of Fourth Form, Academic, is making his debut in the financial world as junior clerk in the Dominion Bank.

Three Outstanding Canadian Figure Skaters Coming To Carnival

GILLIAM WATSON (CENTRE)
OSBORNE COLSON (RIGHT)

ABOVE are shown three of the outstanding exponents of figure skating who are coming here next week-end for the Winter Sports Carnival. Miss Chambers held the Junior Canadians pairs championship with R. McCreath in 1935; Miss Watson is a noted Toronto star who holds many trophies; and Osborne Colson, is holder of the Senior Canadian figure skating championship last year. These are only three of two dozen outside stars who will perform on Brock street ice next Friday night.

FINCH W. MILLER DIES AT HIS HOME IN HIS 89TH YEAR

Relief Officer For Number Of Years And Conductor Of Fire Brigade Band

BAND WAS PRIDE OF TOWN

Relief officer in Peterborough for many years and conductor of the old Fire Brigade band, remembered only by the older generation of citizens, Finch William Miller died Friday evening at his home, 465 King street after an illness of three months. Mr. Miller was in his eighty-ninth year. He was born at Waltham Abbey, Sussex, England, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Miller. Sixty-three years ago he came to Peterborough and carried on his trade as a shoemaker for years, for some time employed by the late James T. Stenson, whose business is continued by his son, Herbert E. Stenson.

Shortly after his arrival in Peterborough Mr. Miller was appointed leader of the band of the town's volunteer fire brigade. Under his direction it won the title of champion amateur band of Canada in competition at the Toronto Exhibition in 1879, and was widely known throughout the province as one of the smartest brass bands of that time. A thorough musician himself, Mr. Miller was an exacting conductor, imparting to his bandsmen his own keen sense of tone and a desire to attain the fullest measure of personal accomplishment as instrumentalists. Finch Miller's band was the pride of Peterborough for years and was associated with the local militia as the 57th regimental band. Older residents will remember the old Fire Brigade band concerts as pleasant incidents of years that are gone.

Mr. Miller was a member of Murray Street Baptist Church and of the Canadian Order of Foresters. He is survived by five sons, George and Fred of Chicago, William of Rochester, and Thomas and Walter of this city; and one sister, Mrs. William Walters of Peterborough. His wife predeceased him in August 1920. The funeral will be held Monday at 3 p.m. from his late home at 465 King street to Little Lake cemetery and the service will be conducted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

LACHMAN PICKS RIFLE SLUGGER

Names Brantfordite Wanted In Store Robbery As Man Who Hit Him With Gun

SIMCOE, Ont., Jan. 23 (C.P.). — Charged with breaking and entering the general store of Clarke & Grant, at Teeterville, and theft of goods valued at $600, Nicholas Yvanelli, Brantford, was positively identified to-day in court by Melvin Lachman, Plattsville garageman, who battled with him in a garage. He also identified a small calibre rifle picked up between his house and the garage after the scuffle.

"Why is the gun in pieces?" Crown Attorney W. E. Kelly, K.C., asked Lachman.

"Because he broke it over my head," replied Lachman, whose bald head and face showed long scars.

"Who did?" the Crown asked.

"This man here. I don't know his name," said Lachman, indicating the accused Yvanelli. Lachman was positive of his identification. He said there was a street light within 15 or 20 feet of the garage where the scuffle took place and another one across the road.

A FLYING VISIT.

Leonard Dobson, former well known Peterborough athlete who used to play hockey for the Strathconas and was road secretary of the ball club when Peterborough had a franchise in the Canadian Professional League paid a few hours visit to his home here today. He has been attending a convention of the representatives of the Tuckett Tobacco Company in Hamilton and took advantage of the opportunity to come home for a short visit, leaving this afternoon for Vancouver where he has been living for a number of years.

WOOD CUTTING HAMPERED.

While the unusual rainfall this month has been a blessing to many farmers whose water supply required replenishing those who are anxious to cut a supply of wood find in many cases that too much water has been provided. The Examiner was told by one man this morning that the swamps in some areas are so full that more than one woodman has found it impossible to reach his trees and operations have been badly hampered. Several camps have closed until there is a change in the conditions.

ENTERS THE "PEN."

Gordon Druce, 19-year-old gunman who was this week sentenced along with John McClennan for the attempted hold-up and wounding of Edward D. MANY EXCURSIONISTS.

Many Peterborough folk took advantage of the C.P.R. excursion to Toronto today. The two morning trains carried large quotas and another big contingent was expected on the afternoon train. The appearance of the New York Rangers at Maple Leaf Gardens tonight was a potent magnet for Peterborough hockey fans.

NOT DOING BADLY.

Farmers interviewed at the market said that in spite of the conditions the fall wheat crop is still in good shape. They are hoping however that before there is a sharp drop in the temperature nature will provide a protective blanket of snow.

VISIT PORT HOPE.

Port Hope I.O.O.F. hall was the scene of a delightful fraternal gathering when a large number of members from Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, Peterborough visited the Lakeshore Rebekahs. A visiting team conferred the degree work of the evening in a highly creditable manner and appreciation on behalf of the local lodge was expressed by the presiding officer, Mrs. F. Snell. There was also a number of visitors from Oshawa, including District Deputy, Mrs. Edith Evans.

ARTICLES ARE NEEDED.

The Examiner is in receipt of two applications from families in need of a little household equipment. One lady is in need of a stove for a kitchen which she describes as small. Her present stove has reached the stage where she can no longer bake in it and she has no means of her own to do anything about it. The other request comes from a housewife who has need for a high chair for a baby who has been sick. She cannot afford to buy the chair as there are other children in the home 'who need so many things.' If any of the Examiner readers can assist, a phone call to 1600 asking for the editorial department would be all that is required.

Cummer, manager of the Bank of Montreal, George street branch; Dr. G. C. R. Hall, grand warden of the society, and Walter Hughes, inspector at Canadian General Electric Co. Mr. Cummer and Mr. Hughes received 25-year jewels.

BIG ICE CARNIVAL AT BROCK STREET ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Twenty - Five Members Of Toronto Skating Club Are Coming To City

TWO DAYS' SKIING

Winter has still a scant week to deliver on schedule the snow banks that delight the experts of the winged and shining runners whose ambitions to entrench Peterborough on the sports map need snow and plenty of it for the big ski meet.

However, if that phase of the sports carnival should have to be postponed until the snow comes, there is still the carnival at the Brock street arena which is to be featured by the skill and grace of twenty-five members of the Toronto Skating Club. It may not be generally appreciated that Peterborough has gained a warm spot in the hearts of Toronto figure skaters. Their club is deluged with invitations to visit many other cities, but it is understood that they have accepted only three engagements, Huntsville, Cleveland, where from 150 to 175 of the Toronto Skating Club attract capacity crowds to the big hockey arena, and finally Peterborough. The twenty-five visiting skaters will provide something of a preview of the Toronto Club's spectacular show in February, a chance to see here in Peterborough at only a small part of the cost in Toronto, even if one were lucky enough to get seats for that event, some of the outstanding experts who have restored skating to a fine art.

The Toronto Club's interest in Peterborough and its plans is indicated by the fact that they are sending ten more skaters than last year, twenty-five instead of the fifteen who gave such a splendid exhibition here last winter.

Only a packed rink can reward the Toronto Skating Club for their co-operation with this city in its inceptive efforts to associate Peterborough with winter sports. Everyone who attended the first carnival here last winter will be a booster for next week's ace attraction by the Toronto skaters.

LINDSAY

WATER IS CAUSING MANY COMPLAINTS

Lindsay Folk Say It Is Discolored And Very Unpalatable

LINDSAY, Jan. 22. — The local Water Board is having its troubles. The citizens are loudly protesting against the condition of the water which they are compelled to use for domestic purposes. It is badly discolored and while it may be free from contamination it is very unpalatable. The Provincial Department of Health has advised the Board to proceed with improvements to the pump house in the interests of public health. Such improvements will include the installation of a settling basin at an estimated cost of $25,0000. Added to these worries is the fact that the Board has to fight an appeal case before the Supreme Court.

This is the appeal entered by the contractors and the bonding company against the unanimous decision of the Osgoode Hall Appeal Court.

For Monday, January 25

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for an extremely pleasant and profitable day, with much of an eventful and enduring nature transpiring in both business and private affiliations. News of a vital character may bear influence on the affairs, and elderly persons may play a part in them, possibly in the way of gifts or bequests.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of substantial progress in the affairs and fortunes, with probably the benefices or gifts of elderly persons playing an important part.

A child born on this day may be studious, profound, responsible and trustworthy, thus gaining the confidence and benefices of its elders, especially women. It may have

SUCCESSFUL YEAR AT KNOX CHURCH

Board Of Managers Started Year With No Deficit Carried Over

A spirit of optimism was manifest at the annual meeting of Knox United Church held this week with a good attendance of members. The minister, Rev. S. G. McCormack, presided, with J. W. Byers secretary.

Reports from the various organizations revealed a year of progress.

The Board of Management reported financial returns enabling them to start out the new year with no deficit carried over, the splendid co-operation of the Women's Auxiliary being an important factor. The ladies in their regular and missionary activities reported good work done. The attendance of the Sunday school shows improvement and the session reported a slight gain in membership at the year end. Various other reports were received showing renewed interest.

The appointment of various officials resulted as follows:

To Board of Management—H. J. McCannan, G. Davis, R. Ralston, H. Hall, W. J. Lockie, A. Wedlock, H. Darling, C. Garside, Wm. Herd, Jr. and S. Thompson.

Nicholls Hospital Board —J. F. Morrison.

Bible Society—J. F. Morrison, A. E. Sanderson.

Missionary Treasurer —Alex Gillies.

Auditor — A. Pitchford, A. K. Whyte.

A sincere vote of appreciation of the work being done by Rev. and Mrs. McCormack was heartily endorsed by the meeting and an expression of confidence for the future was in evidence.

The service of dainty refreshments by the ladies concluded a most successful annual meeting.

MARMORA LEGION ELECTS OFFICIAL

H. Osborne Chosen Comrade-At-Arms—Badge Presented W. Mumby

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 23 — With a good attendance of members, and President T. Cousins in the chair, Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion held their regular meeting in the Legion Room on Friday evening.

Comrade H. Osborne was elected assistant comrade-at-arms and with Comrade W. Gifford, comrade at arms, was installed in office. It was decided to hold a card party and dance in Deloro Hall on Friday evening, January 29.

A motion was passed that a letter be sent to the Geographic Board protesting any change in the names of Crowe Lake and Crowe River.

The honorary president, Captain C. A. Bleecker, was called upon in course of the session to present Comrade W. Mumby, immediate past president, with a past president's badge. The recipient, in expressing his thanks to the branch, instanced the splendid co-operation accorded him in his term of office.

ESSAY CONTEST BEING PLANNED ON FISH AND GAME

Elementary School Pupils Entitled To Compete For 13 Prizes

SUPPORT COUNTY MOVE

An essay contest for city and county elementary school pupils with thirteen cash prizes was decided upon Friday evening by the executive committee of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association. The purpose of the essay contest is to create a greater appreciation among the younger citizens of the county and city of the importance of our fish and game and the means by which it may be conserved.

The consent and co-operation of the Board of Education, Separate School Board, school inspectors and teachers will be sought by the Fish and Game Association in connection with the contest, before the school children are officially advised of its details. Twenty-five dollars in cash is being set aside by the Fish and Game Association as prizes for the contest, first prize being ten dollars cash.

A. R. Kennedy, managing editor of The Examiner, E. G. Wager, of the city Public school staff, and Fred C. Marshall, former fish and game warden of the district, will be judges of the contest, and in their preliminary work will have the assistance of members of the Fish and Game Association.

Honorary memberships in the Association will be given the Boy Scouts of the city. It is planned that an outstanding speaker, possibly Captain Cornellius, famed athletic and Olympic coach, of Hamilton, will be obtained to address a joint meeting of the Scouts and members of the Association.

C. G. Graham was appointed the Association's representative on the executive committee of the Ontario Federation of Anglers. The Anglers will hold their annual meeting in Toronto in February and many members of the local Association are planning to attend it.

Members of the Association expressed satisfaction that the County Council has decided to press the Ontario Government for a fish hatchery. Any support the Association can give is assured the County Council, B. W. Harvey, president, commented. "We have been endeavoring to get this hatchery for more than a year," he said. "The fact that the County Council has decided to take the leadership in this matter shows that the Council is fully aware of its importance to the district. We appreciate the reasons that have caused the council to take their position on the matter and are optimistic as to results from such action."

Weather Prophet Beyond All Doubt

If this weather keeps on much longer Bill Evans down at Ross Hood's place is going to find himself elevated to the dignity of a prophet of open winters. Some of the crew with whom he daily associates and manages to hold his own are willing to concede that he has already earned a high rating as a prognosticator. He called the turn at any rate for two of the winter's three months, but there are still the winds of February to be taken into the accounting. Several of the men who are inclined to be captious want to know how Evans would fare on calling rough and tumble winters with all the trimmings of drifts and long shivers below zero. At present, however, he is ranking as a minor prophet with laurels enough even if he never attempted another prediction.

RAPS FORCED STUDY OF POETRY

BURLINGTON, Ont., Jan. 23 — (C.P.).—Forced study of poetry was deprecated by Wilson MacDonald, Canadian poet, in an address here yesterday. He suggested revising Ontario and other educational systems to eliminate this forced study among school children. Study of poetry should be approached from an inspirational angle, he said.

GALAXY OF STARS AT CARNIVAL HERE NEXT WEEK-END

Brilliant Figure Skaters, Holding Many Titles, To Perform At Brock Street Rink

An imposing array of starry figure skaters from Toronto will perform in Peterborough next week-end in connection with the big Winter Sports Carnival. Olympic stars, North American champions, Canadian titleholders and other outstanding performers in the graceful and difficult art of figure skating will be seen in the Brock St. rink.

Some of these noted athletes include Mrs. Constance Wilson Samuel, North American champion who was at the Olympics in 1928, 1932 and 1936; Miss Veronica Clarke, runner-up for the senior Canadian championships in '36, and joint holder with R. McCreath of the Dominion pair title; Miss Margaret Leslie, junior Canadian champion in '34; Miss Mary Jane Halstead, junior Canadian pair champion in '36 with Bruce Scythes; Miss Betty Chambers, junior Dominion 1935 pair champion with R. McCreath; and Misses Lillian Watson, Ruth Hall, Margaret Austin, Lorraine Hopkins, Mrs. Howard Burnham, Mrs. Alan Stewart and others.

There are also a dozen men stars, holders of various titles and cups, one of whom was an Olympic representative in 1928. No carnival in Ontario has a more brilliant galaxy of stellar performers lined up as this.

Every baby born in Heywood, England, on Coronation Day, May 12, will be given $125 by Alderman J. S. Hargreaves, a former mayor.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

24—CARRYING THE SKIS

It is necessary at times for the skier to reverse the usual procedure and carry the skis rather than let the skis carry him. Although this seems rather a simple matter, a few hints will probably be beneficial, to the novice particularly, as skis and sticks have an uncanny habit of becoming entwined around ones neck and legs—even when being carried.

Figure above shows a method recommended especially for use in mild weather, to prevent melting snow on the skis from running down and wetting ones clothing. The handles of the sticks are run through the ski bindings and the ski tips pushed through the baskets.

For normal conditions, first remove the snow from skis (fig. 2) and place running surfaces together. Then hoist skis over the shoulder with the points forward (fig. 3). Having the points in front minimizes the danger of a fellow skier impaling an eye thereon. Taking the sticks together in the other hand and over the other shoulder, they are placed under the skis and the weight is thus distributed evenly on both shoulders (fig. 4).

U. OF M. TROUNCES QUEEN'S BY 4 TO 2

Victory Ties Them With University Of Toronto, McGill And Harvard

TORONTO, Jan. 23 — C.P.) — If University of Montreal students needed any justification for entering Senior College hockey, they had it to-day in their team's standing at the top of the International Intercollegiate League.

They were tied at the top, after last night's 4-2 victory over Queen's, with University of Toronto, McGill and Harvard. That, however, hardly detracted from their jubilation for few had figured the Frenchmen to do so well this early in the season.

Meanwhile, Major D. Stuart Forbes, Athletic Director of McGill University and one of the founders of the College circuit, explained the set-up of the league which, with its actual three leagues in one, had the keepers of the standings slightly befuddled.

Interwoven with the schedule of the International League, explained Major Forbes, are the Canadian Intercollegiate games, for the Dominion's crown; and the United States Intercollegiate games, for the U.S. title.

All games, between intersectional or sectional teams, count for the Intercollegiate title, it was explained, but only games between teams of the same section count for the U.S. or the Canadian title.

One Win Each

Thus all four teams are tied for first place in the Canadian section standing with one win each, but U. of M. has played four games, Queen's, two; and U. of T. and McGill, one each.

Harvard leads the American section with two wins in two starts, while Yale have won their only intra-sectional game. Princeton have lost one in one and Dartmouth two.

The standings, both sectional and intercollegiate, could be shuffled again to-day, when Queen's make another try, this time against McGill Redmen, while Yale invades the Tigers' lair at Princeton.

Paul Genier sent U. of M. ahead at 16.16 of the first period, when he sank his rebound after a pass from Roger Gagne. Queen's evened the score for a short while in the second on Jack Carver's goal, but they seldom threatened after Jean Armand pushed the count to 2-1 for U. of M. late in the second.

Henri Delormier's goal early in the third signalized a strong rally from Queen's, and Johnny Poupore counted one goal before eJan Grignon made the game sure for the Montrealers with a goal only a minute from the end.

Birthday Greetings

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

THREE PROVINCIAL championships this Spring in volleyball, that's all the local Y.M.C.A.-ers desire! And they may cop 'em at that. Peterborough amazed them all at the Ontario tournament in Toronto last year, walking through the best intermediate teams without too much trouble. This year, that gang will move into senior competition—and should win out—and a strong intermediate squad and a good senior business men's team will be lined up from the local league. There is a wealth of material here in the big 10-team league of 84 players. In fact, this town has no equal in Ontario for the activity nor the calibre of its volleyball. The best clubs in Toronto will admit it. The tourney is around the end of March. We may get the Eastern Ontario playdowns here.

THIS AMUSING item appeared in the Cobourg Sentinel-Star: "Nelson E. Osborne, writing under the heading 'Bricks and Bouquets' in the Bowmanville Statesman, draws our attention to the following: We wish to draw to the attention of Ernie Foote of Cobourg the fact that while Mo Breslin may be the manager, coach financier and most of the executive of the Junior Hockey Club, he is not the whole executive, as a certain Nelson Osborne is president of the club. At a meeting held at the Arcade Store last week at which two people were present (Mo Breslin and Osborne), Mr. Osborne was unanimously elected to the presidency. After finding out that it would not cost him any money, Osborne accepted the office."

AND A clipping from Belleville: "After six minutes of play in the Belleville-Petes' junior game Monday night, 'Hot Dog' McCreary, local defenceman, was struck on the upper lip with the heel of an opponent's stick with the result his lip was laid open and required four stitches to close. McCreary only played that much and his loss to the team doubtlessly helped in their 3-2 reverse. Incidentally, Skipper Thomas says his boys were gypped on time in the first period when the Colts scored their first goal after regulation time was up." It wouldn't be Doubting Thomas of Belleville if he weren't squawking at something.

AFTER COVERING seven games in five nights this week, we are ready to catch up on slumber this week-end in a big way. Four were O.H.A. tilts—two out of town—and three were Senior City Loop contests run off in one evening. What with covering these and picking up minor games, we can write hockey in our sleep.

* * * * * * *

THE TREMBLING Trentoneers were trounced in terrific style here last p.m. by the intermediate Petes, 16-3, being the final figure. Funny part of it was the way a good-sized crowd stayed to the bitter end, apparently getting a kick out of the class shown by the locals or else just for morbid reasons. Yeah, the visitors were murdered in cool blood and probably buried as far as further play this season goes. They notified Peterborough yesterday afternoon that they weren't coming, but would default. When informed that in that case they'd have to pay over $100—at 15c a man one way to Trenton for the Petes—they changed their minds, but sent a patchy team, and were an hour late. York, Gould and Davis—three regulars—were absent. So the Petes showed 'em no mercy.

* * * * * * *

IT WAS an impressive local debut for the Petes, who dished up a fast-skating game with lovely combination and some sparkling stickwork shown. True the opposition wasn't much, but the locals still looked smart. Customers got a kick out of the tricky work of Shrimp McDougall at interceptiing passes in close, stickhandling around defence and drawing out the goalie, Calladine, Vitarelli, Coughlin and the rest all turned in a nifty performance, though for a time in the second they got themselves dizzy passing and couldn't find the net with a lantern. The local defence fed the forwards all evening and had a peaceful night. They'll have a tougher tilt here Tuesday against Belleville, who only lost 5-4 last eve to the Fliers.

THREE GRAND girls' cage games were run off in the Y.W. last gloaming. Since George St. couldn't floor a team, the groupings have been re-arranged, leaving Westclox, C.G.E. and Marconi Radio in the senior section; and "Y" Quakers, C.G.E., Westclox and St. John's in the junior division. Last week's defaulted game will be replayed, with "Y" Quakers taking George Street's place. Marconi drew a bye last night, while C.G.E. Juniors nosed out a 6-3 verdict over "Y" Quakers; Westclox Juniors got a 9-7 nod over St. John's; and Westclox Seniors had to go overtime in a grand tilt to gain a 17-16 win over C.G.E. Games next Friday will be postponed if the Winter Sports Carnival is on that evening.

THERE IS a strong league bowling Wednesdays at the Y.M.C.A., the Senior Ladies' League. Standings of the first half are in tonight and some lovely marks may be noted. Marion Timm, for instance, of the Lucky Strikes, averaged 194.9—what a lot of gents would like to be able to say—and they couldn't have all been lucky strikes, what? The leading team's average was 167.7, while the league rolled a total of 1585 for a 151.8 average. High three games went to N. Hepburn with 675, and A. Simmons had 307 for high single. If you know your bowling, you'll appreciate these marks by members of the fair sex. They have now started the second half.

CAMPBELL STIRS LIVELY ARGUMENT ON PENALTY SHOT

Lauded For His Handling Of Games But Players Dislike "Circle" Idea

FANS DIVIDED

By George Maguire
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(C.P.). — Although this is his first season officiating in the National Hockey League, Clarence Campbell, Rhodes Scholar and lawyer from Edmonton, Alta, to-day can claim the distinction of being about the most-talked-of official on the major league staff.

Players, fans, newspapermen and even managers commented on what was termed his "efficient" handling of games during the first half of schedule. Now he has aroused considerable discussion over his penalty-shot rulings.

Twice in the last 10 days he has disallowed scoring shots from the blue circle.

On Thursday, Harvey Jackson netted one for Toronto, and a week ago Happy Emms found the mark for New York Americans.

Before a player makes his scoring effort Campbell scrapes together a small pile of ice which he places about a foot from the circle apex nearest the cage target. He then stands aside in crouching position watching to see if the penalty-shot marksman carries the rubber out of the circle before letting it fly goalwards.

If he thinks the player has violated the rule, but is not positive, he only has to skate over to the pile of ice for confirmation. He claims the ice will be swept away by the player's stick if he carries the puck out.

His rulings are claimed nearly perfect by some, while others disagree, contending the follow-through would swipe the ice away. Others think the penalty shot method should be altered.

What the Players Think

Frankie Boucher, New York Ranger pivot, believes the circle should be abolished and that area marked out in the shape of a chute about six feet wide and 15 feet long. The sniper would be allowed to carry the puck into the designated area as that "is the natural method of delivering a shot."

Art Chapman, Americans' playmaking pivot, wants a return to the old-fashioned penalty-shot faceoff, while Dit Clapper, Boston Bruins' wing shooting-ace, suggested a red line across the entire rink so that sharpshooters could blaze away from any angle as long as they don't cross the stripe.

Meantime New York fans apparently want nothing more than more and better penalty shots if the applause Jackson and Emms got for their efforts is any criterion.

Westclox Puckists Lose To Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 23—When the Westclox team played Lakefield intermediates in the Lakefield rink on Friday night the visitors got the small end of a 6-2 score.

The first period ended a scoreless tie. Lakefield broke the tie at the beginning of the second when Blewett scored. Shortly afterwards White, on the Peterborough team drew a penalty for tripping. Blewett made a second goal and the period ended with the score 3-0 for Lakefield when Morin on the Lakefield defence pushed in a counter a minute before the bell rang.

Blewett was the first to score in the last canto. His goal was followed by one by Jewell on an assist from Blewett.

The visitors scored for the first time when Hill made a goal unassisted. Westclox tallied again, almost immediately, when Vitarelli pushed in a counter on a pass from Mowry. It looked for a while as though the homesters would have to fight to retain their lead, but Death scored for Lakefield making the count 6-2, which sewed up the game definitely for the Northerners.

There were a number of penalties meted out in the last period of which White and Lennox got a good share.

The game was a sample of rough and ready hockey. There was much slashing and raising of sticks, a lot of speed and not much combination, but it was enjoyable from the spectators' angle, especially in the last period.

The lineups:

Westclox—Goal, Thorby; defence, White and Stante; centre, Fields; wings, O'Leary and Hill; alternates, Coursey, Dineson, Mowry and Vitarelli.

Lakefield—Goal, Lloyst; defence, L. Sabatino and Morin; centre, Chittick; wings, Jewell and Blewett; alternates, L. Charlton, B. Whitton, G. Chappell, B. Lennox, G. Charlton and R. Death.

TWEED PUCKSTERS HERE ON MONDAY

Tweed Juniors Will Play Colts In O.H.A. Junior "B" Game

Tweed Juniors play the local Colts an O.H.A. junior "B" scheduled game here Monday evening at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. It will be the local's final game this season with Tweed, unless the latter team makes the playoffs—a doubtful matter at present. They still have a mathematical chance of tying for a playoff berth. While the Colts should win the game, the Tweed-Peterborough tilts their last two meetings since Tweed bolstered its team, have been full of action and are worth seeing. A good crowd of fans should take in this junior joust.

The visitors have added several district players from Marmora and Havelock and are noted as a battling aggregation that never quits. The Colts will be at full strength this game, Don Crowe being recovered and ready to get into the lineup. The starting line-up is unknown yet for the home squad, but Crowe is likely to be on the second forward line. The Colts have a fine classy crew and on good ice they will show fans some speedy, smart hockey. Typical slambang junior action is assured Monday here.

Campbellford Loses Twice To Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23.—The local boys lost two games Thursday in the School League when the Lakefield Public School teams took the first game by a score of 3-2, after ten minutes overtime and the second game by a score of 3-1.

Although the ice was none too fast both teams played some good hockey and the crowd gave plenty of support. Earnshaw and Sceicher did the scoring for Lakefield Juniors with both getting a counter in overtime and Sceicher getting credit for two goals and one assist. Lambert gave the locals their only point.

The line-ups:

Campbellford Juniors—Goal, Hollings; defence, Fox, Lambert; centre, Dunk; wings, Little, Bibby; subs, McGregor, Coxwell, Jones, Lucy, Fraser.

Referee—Joe Keating.

Lakefield Seniors—Goal, Winsor; defence, Pearson, Johnson; centre, Bullock; wings, C. Birch, J. Birch; subs, Kendall, McFadden, Brown and Arthurs.

Campbellford Seniors — Goal, L. Beggs; defence, Tinney, Sutton; centre, Kennedy; wings, Donald, Nichols; subs, Hendricks, Storie, Robinson, Runions, Cubitt, Wilson.

Referee—Ed. Bush.

CURLING
By HERB MARTIN

We have before us a copy of a paper called "The Curler" and it is issued weekly by The Halifax Curling Club.

There are some very useful hints in it, such as "Be on time for games," "The Sunshine of Life is Good Friendship"—and we notice that they have a No. 8 down east also, but they call that particular part of the rink "The Chamber of Wisdom."

The Editor in this edition goes on to tell what is expected from curlers, what curling is for and passes on a lot of real information...So it looks to us that whether it be down East, or out West, or right at home that curling is curling and it takes all kinds of curlers to make up a curling club.

And here's one printed on the last page:—

Small Boy—"I'm not afraid to go to the hospital, mother. I'll be brave and take my medicine, but I ain't going to let them palm off a baby on me like they did on you. I want a pup."

Petes Smear Trenton With 16-3 Walloping To Open Home Season

Local Intermediates Outclass Visitors In All Departments To Run Up Huge Total Of Counters With Classy Display

SHOW SMART COMBINATION

The Petes breezed through Trenton to a soft 16-3 victory here last night to open their home intermediate season before some 600 fans. The visitors, bringing a weakened team, arrived nearly an hour late and they were outclassed from start to finish. It was just a practise game for the locals who had an 8-0 lead in the first frame and were in front 10 to 1 going into the third.

Flashing a beautiful passing game, and outstepping their rivals with ease, the Buckland outfit looked far superior to Trenton. The crowd stayed to the finish as play was interesting, despite the one-sided score. The combination of the winners was nice to watch, while their stickhandling and checking left little to be desired. For a time in the second frame, Trenton held their own as the homesters temporarily lost their scoring punch but an easy victory was a foregone conclusion. Only two penalties were drawn in the clean contest.

ALL LOOK GOOD.

Overpowering their opponents from the first faceoff, all the Petes looked good. Clarke had an easy night in goal, and the defence were not overworked as the forwards checked effectively in centre ice. Both front lines clicked in fine fashion. McDougall, Calladine and Vitarelli looked most impressive of the forwards with Coughlin also in on a lot of the scoring. The starting defence pair looked best, but the whole squad turned in a sparkling debut before the home crowd. None of the Trenton team showed a great deal, but they never quit trying and were battling away hard in the last inning.

In the first minute of play, Calladine and Vitarelli combined for a goal, and repeated two minutes later, each tallying. McDougall intercepted a pass to notch a nice one and then Burton took Vitarelli's neat pass to score. Burton got another smart goal, aided by Calladine and Vitarelli, shortly. Calladine intercepted a pass to go in close and bulge the twine and then McDougall's shot from defence fooled Bowen. Coughlin wound up the scoring in this frame on McDougall's pass at close range. The Petes had all the play in this inning and looked great.

Trenton Scores

Calladine countered early in the second with Weir and Vitarelli getting assists. Magee got one later on Calladine's pass. With Ellis off for cross-checking, Anderson took Johnson's pass to tally for Trenton. The last half of the period saw the Petes having an edge on play but being unable to score. Play was slower toward the end.

The parade started again in a lively third chapter. Vitarelli was gated for chopping and LaMorre scored on Kidd's assist. Four Trenton players were up the ice and the team ganged at different times, but several breakaways by Petes meant goals. McDougall got credit for a goal when the net-minder tried to clear his easy shot and batted the disc into the net. Coughlin took McDougall's pass for a nice one, and later the local first line had Trenton bottled up in their own territory for two minutes, but were outlucked around the net. The Trenton goalie also made some nice saves. Vitarelli scored on Calladine's pass as they broke clear, and shortly after Creighton countered on assists by McDougall and Coughlin. Anderson notched the third Trenton goal in a scramble. McDougall took Creighton's passout to sink it, and Coughlin scored the final marker on McDougall's pass.

The teams:

Trenton: Goal, Bowen; defence, Kerr and Lemoire; centre, Johnson; wings, Anderson and Cain; alternates, Kidd, Miller, LaMorre, Drake and Vandervoort.

Petes: Goal, Clarke; defence, Weir and Magee; centre, Calladine; wings, Vitarelli and Burton; alternates, Ellis, Williamson, McDougall, Creighton and Coughlin.

Referee, J. Sabatino of Lakefield.

TWEED DEFEATS MADOC BY 8 TO 5 IN FAST BATTLE

Victors Run Up Big Lead Scoring 6 To Visitors' 2 In First Period

PENALTIES NUMEROUS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 23. — Before the best crowd of the season the Tweed Intermediates took the Madoc into camp at the local arena on Friday night to the tune of 8 to 5. The local lads lost no time in running up the score when they tallied six goals to two lone counters for the visitors in the first. Incidentally the first period produced the best hockey of the season, as the passing plays of both teams was based on some clever head work, and although the locals ran up a high score, this did not indicate the play, which ranged first from one end of the rink to the other, although the Madoc goalie had more of the sensational saving work to do to hold down the town boys.

Shorty Long opened the scoring on a lone rush for the home team following to two goals by Walter Leal on passes from H. Leal and Maguire. Elsbury took a three-way pass from Long and Courneyea to make the count four to nil in favor of the home forces. The fifth goal went to Tip Tummon on a pass from Courneyea.

On a scrambly play in front of the Tweed nets, Alexander tallied the first goal for the visitors, while F. Rodnick tallied the second Madoc goal on a clever rush through the Tweed team. The period ended with Maguire making a rink length rush to run the count to six to two. The only penalty of the period went to Long for mixing things up along the boards.

In the second period each team tallied once with W. Leal tallying for the home forces and Alexander for the Madoc team. Tip Tummon went to the cooler twice. Elsbury once for Tweed, while Embury took the bench for the visitors. This period did not have the excitement of the first period, and was of the choppy type, with both sides laying on the hickory and getting in the odd elbow.

Plenty of Penalties.

The last period was a parade to the penalty box, with Whytock carrying off the honors, being a bench warmer three times in the last canto, while Tip Tummon for Tweed had two trips, Elsbury was the other home player, while Embury and Akey provided the remaining visitors' penalties. F. Rodnick tallied for Madoc only to have the score for the period evened up by Courneyea who took a pass from Long, and Embury put the count one up on a solo near the end of the period.

Both teams put on the best hockey of the season, and being young players made it a game of pleasure. F. Rodnick for Madoc was the best player on the ice with his clever checking and ragging the puck. He is a new player to this district, and will bear watching in future games. For the home forces, Thompson in goal, Shorty Long, and Baldy Leal were the standouts. Quinn refereed the game, and had several arguments with the spectators before the game was over.

The summary:

First Period.

Tweed—Long.
Tweed—W. Leal, H. Leal.
Tweed—W. Leal, Maguire.
Tweed—Elsbury, Long, Courneyea.
Tweed—Tummon, Courneyea.
Madoc—Alexander.
Madoc—Rodnick.
Tweed—Maguire.
Penalties—Long.

Second Period.

Tweed—W. Leal, Tummon, Elsbury.
Madoc—Alexander.
Penalties—Tummon, Embury.

Third Period.

Madoc—Rodnick.
Tweed—Courneyea, Long.
Madoc—Embury.
Penalties—E. Tummon, Tip Tummon, Elsbury (2), Whytock (3), Embury, Akey.

Port Hope — Goal, Cancilla; defence, Hagerman and Record; centre, Jackman; wings, Phillips and Roach; subs., Pittsworth, Smith, Rowden, Trebenche, Hutchinson.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE-CRACKER.

Mister Sporting Editor

Well, Mac, by the time the lite of day gets onto this epistle the fans will of had a chance to look over the local intermediates, this being wrote before the Fri. nite clash with Trenton town. The boys was bumped off by a gang of aviators down in Belleville the other nite losing 7 to 3 but I for 1 aint going to shove my thumbs down just because the lads which aint had enough work to get into shape let alone shake down into a team was beat by a gang what had been playing together for months. My scouts tells me the Flyers has got a smart squad and I aint saying they aint but this group aint decided yet and the Air force gang may run into some landings what won't seem so happy before the firing ceases in this neck of the woods. The Petes has got some smart performers and Mister Buckland will have them hitting pretty smooth before the next battle with the Flyers.

Jrs. Going Along

Meanwhile the Petes jrs. has assured theirselves of a playoff in their group by copping 2 games this week. They nosed out the Belleville gang here Monday night on a cushion that was more like cheese than ice and the troops had great difficulty in keeping their drives on the fairway. The home talent tried to play orthodox hockey the 1st period but it couldn't be done. In the last 2 sessions they fell back on the hit-and-run stuff and it finally win for them when the Belleville goalie obligingly pulled down a drive that was going over the top of the net. It will be a nice playoff series with that Belleville crew who dropped 2 to 3 very fast kids over the boards here the other nite. But the Petes are bound to improve and they should have the speed, teamwork and punch to grab off the verdict when the 2 teams meet in the finals for the group title.

No Service for Youth

That old stuff about youth being served aint got around to the attention of the professional hockey loop as yet Mac. The 2 highest scoring lines in the League is the Aurie-Barry-Lewis trio of Detroit, Mich., and the Gagnon-Morenz-Joliat line of Montreal, Quebec, every member of both of which is in his thirties.

A glance at the individual performers too, oldtimer shows of the seven top scorers, ony 1 rookie the elusive Mister Sweeney Schriner of the Amerks, who is in 2nd place, is in the lineup. The others Mister L. Aurie, Mister M. Barry, Mister J. Gagnon, Mister H. Jackson, Mister A. Chapman and Mister H. Lewis, are veterans of the cash-and-carry circuit. They know all the numbers and all the answers, they aint burning themselves up off the ice, and when they get in there with the old boot-heel Mister Goalie has to be mighty smart or mighty lucky or both to fool them.

You can't dope out this hockey game anyway, Mac. After the Leaves going into Boston and running wild on the battering Bruins Thurs. nite's game with the Amerka looked like a sure 2 points for the Smythemen. Instead the New York gang beat them 6 to 3 and Mister Schriner whom the Toronto scribes is always trying to ride, had the final laugh by scoring 2 goals himself and figgering in 3 more. The Queen city writers might as well admit the kid's got something on the ball. He lead the loop last year and is running second right now, and you can't be that consistent without having more than a friend in the scorer's box.

Well, old-timer, that seems to be the lot for the week so I'll check out now.

Sportfully Yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

SPRING?

FREDERICTON, N.B.— (CP) — Mayflowers aren't the only signs of spring seen in New Brunswick woods this winter. Deemed just as much out of season, a frog was found alive and in fair condition near Scotch Lake.

WHITBY SMASHES COBOURG BY 14-1

Red Wings Are Too Strong For The Rubber Town Intermediates

WHITBY, Jan. 23.—Whitby Red Wings whitewashed Cobourg by 14-1 in an Intermediate "B" game here last night. Henderson of Cobourg scored their only goal in the third period. Penalties were numerous, there being as many as total goals. In the third period tempers ran high and at one time there were only three men to a team on the ice. Heard of Whitby proved the outstanding goal-getter, getting five, while Conlin, who played for the first time this season, got three. Piper and Jack Sleightholm got two apiece, and Louis Vipond and Oke netted one.

COBOURG JUNIORS WIN THIRD IN ROW

"B" Squad Takes Bowmanville Outfit In Hand Nicely 11-2

COBOURG, Jan. 23—(C.P.)—Cobourg won its third straight game be defeating Bowmanville by a score of 11-2 in an O.H.A. Junior "B" game here last night.

Cobourg led at the end of the first period, 3-1, and added three more goals in the second, the period ending 6-2.

Referee—Cameron, Bowmanville.

...CARD PARTY AT LIFFORD LINE

...Lathangue And Mrs. ... Henderson Are Joint Hostesses

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Jan 23. — On Wednesday evening, Miss E. Lahangue ... sister, Mrs. John Henderson, were joint hostesses for a jolly card party at their spacious farm home. Nine tables were occupied for progressive euchre and a series of 12 games were enjoyed. The winning lady was Mrs. Harry Neals, and the high-scoring gentleman, Harold Page. Handsome prizes were awarded these winners, while consolation awards were presented to Mrs. C. E. Staples and Olfa Staples.

Two interesting contests, the former demanding names of fruit or vegetable, and the latter the names of modern automobiles, were sponsored by the hostesses. The winners in this capacity were Miss Isobel Sisson and Gordon Staples, who had a perfect list of answers and who received prizes.

At the midnight hour a very appetizing lunch was served by the hostess family and a jolly social half hour was spent over the coffee cups. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell and daughter Pearl, of Nestleton; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Finney and family of Fleetwood; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Staples and family of Fleetwood; Mr. and Mrs. James Strachan and Vera; Miss Marjorie Page, Harold Page; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gray; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sisson and family; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Neals and Bernard; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Neals and Marguerite; Mr. and Mrs. Gervin Mulligan and sons, Messrs. Archie and Wilson; Thomas and Olfa Staples; George Tims; Lawrence Staples; Earl Lathangue and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Staples of Lifford.

OFFICERS CHOSEN BY CENTRETON W.A.

Organization Decides To Hold Membership Drive Followed By Supper

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTRETON, Jan. 23. — The W. A. met in the Sunday School Room on Wednesday afternoon when the new president, Mrs. H. Preaty, presided. There were 15 members present. Mrs. J. Walton and Mrs. R. Stewart were chosen as membership captains. An oyster supper to follow. Mrs. Webb gave a reading, "My New Year's Resolution." Collection was taken.

The following officers were elected: Vice-president, Mrs. R. Webb; second vice-president, Mrs. F. Birney; secretary, Mrs. A. Coffey; treasurer, Mrs. H. McAuley; pianist, Miss Maud Wolfraim; assistant, Mrs. R. Webb; Sunshine Committee, Mrs. John McKenzie, Mrs. Bromwich, and Mrs. W. Fraser.

Mrs. Bromwich read the duties of each of the officers in the absence of Rev. W. H. H. Bromwich.

Mrs. Walton offered her home for the February meeting.

Letters of thanks were sent by Mrs. E. Hope and Mrs. C. Blogett for fruit received when ill.

Personals.

Mrs. J. Merriam, Mrs. James Hope and Elnora and Mrs. James McKenzie spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Eric Hope.

Rev. W. H. H. Bromwich, Mrs. Simmons, and Miss Marie Millar spent Tuesday in Toronto.

Mrs. S. McBride is quite ill these days.

Y.P.S. Meets.

The Y.P.S. met on Tuesday night when Miss McKague, the new literary convenor, had charge. It was decided to hold a Valentine social for the society on February 16. Committees were appointed to help to prepare the meetings. Miss McKague took the topic and the following program was given: Readings, Hazel Blogett, Frieda Richardson, George Seymour sang a solo, and Roberta Webb sang "In the Garden." A contest was then enjoyed. Miss Roberta Webb has charge of the meeting on Tuesday, January 26.

FENELLA

THREE NAMED FOR DRAMATIC SOCIETY

Fenella Young People Select Committee—Regular Meeting Is Held

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FENELLA, Jan. 23.—The Young People's Society of Fenella United Church held their weekly meeting on Tuesday night.

Mr. R. K. McKee, Miss G. Knox and Miss Lenore Leach were elected as committee for the Dramatic Society. Next week's meeting will be in charge of the Christian culture convenor and the Social committee.

The program was in charge of the Citizenship convenor, H. Macklin: Solo, "That's Why It's True," by Miss Donna Lonsberry. The topic, 'Economics And Economy,' was given by Miss Donna Talling; reading, "All Pull Together," by Mrs. James Curtis.

SUBURBAN AREA ROAD COMMISSION TENDERS REPORT

LOOKS AFTER 41 MILES

A large program of maintenance and reconstruction which was carried on by the Suburban Area Roads Commission during 1936 was reviewed by members of the Commission in reporting to the County Council at its session Friday. The Commission kept within its budget of $27,811.15 with a balance of $24.64 Chairman Morley Smithson pointed out.

An outline of the year's work of the Commission was contained in a summary by A. E. Chalmers, Commission engineer. During the year the River Road from Peterborough to Lakefield boundary, portions of Monaghan road were taken into the system and the Commission now has 41 miles of road under its direction, the report indicated.

Principal improvements were construction of asphalt-gravel mulch surfaces on the Warsaw road from Armour road easterly a distance of .9 miles, a stretch of .6 miles in length in Warsaw village and a stretch .3 miles in length on Monaghan road from Charlotte street south. This work totalled 1.7 miles and the average cost was $2,790 per mile, Mr. Chalmers stated.

"The mulch road built jointly by the township of North Monaghan and the city of Peterborough on Monaghan road, and the portion constructed in 1935 through Bridgenorth, were reconditioned and given a surface treatment of asphalt and gravel chips. This treatment was also supplied to the new mulch in Warsaw and the portion on the Warsaw road west of the Trent Canal. A total mileage of 2.75 miles were treated in this way at an average cost of $702 per mile."

Concrete culverts were constructed on the Flatroad in Otonabee, on the Keene road and on Park street at Braidwood avenue. Grading and re-building work was carried out on the Warsaw road, the Keene road, the Bridgenorth road and the River road. Average costs of various types of work per mile were found to be as follows: Weed cutting and brushing, $7.13; dragging, $70.70; calcium chloride dust laying, $52.70; snow removal, $29.80 per mile. Average cost of maintenance per mile, including surface treatments but not asphalt mulch work, was $300.

Douro—West patrol section Warsaw road, $5,361.70; East Patrol section, $1,891.39; River road, $1,187.90; Construction on Road 4A, $1,390.61; construction on Road 4B, $1,267.70; construction on Road 3, $503.45. Total maintenance, $8,440.99 and total construction, $3,161.76. Total expenditure, $11,602.75.

North Monaghan—Maintenance of Road 11, Park street and Monaghan road, $532.77; maintenance of Road 11A, Lock and McKellar streets, $51.77; maintenance of Monaghan road, $1,459.99. Total maintenance, $2,040.53. Construction on Road 11, $468.47. Total expenditure, $2,509.

Otonabee — Maintenance Keene road, $2,637.42; maintenance Flat road, $996.16. Total maintenance, $3,633.58. Construction Keene road, $3,294.45; construction Flat road, $640.21. Total construction, $3,934.66. Total expenditure, $6,567.27.

Smith—Maintenance of Road 5, Chemong road, Bridgenorth and north to 8th Line Smith, $1,087.32; construction Road 5, $206.90. Total expenditure, $1,294.22.

Total maintenance cost on the system was $17,048.04 and total construction cost was $6,761.82.

Change Made in Rules

Changes in the rules and regulations of the County House of Refuge abolishing the 50 cents per week charge to local municipalities for each inmate from those municipalities and providing a three-month period before final acceptance of an inmate, were discussed by the Council. The changes were recommended by a committee headed by Reeve Gifford appointed for that purpose at the Council session last November.

After some discussion, the Council approved the recommendations for submission to the Department for final approval, hoping the problems will be clarified by the Department's disposal of the changes.

Reeve Gifford explained the 50-cent charge has never been enforced successfully and that the committee thus urged it be abandoned. The provision of a three-month period before acceptance of an inmate would provide time for determination whether or not the proposed inmate is in proper health and suitable for acceptance as a ward of the county, it was explained. During the three-month period the local municipality would be responsible for any expenses resulting from sickness or death of the individual, he said.

Nervous Fears

Fear, worry, anxiety rob you of rest and sleep and health. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will certainly help you to win back health, vigor and confidence. Use it to-day.

Dr. Chase's NERVE FOOD

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Does the Work in a Hurry. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, and, for real results, it is still a very dependable thing for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 20 ounces of really superior cough remedy—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such prompt, pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Quits The Army

With the press of public duties greatly increased since abdication of Edward VIII and succession of George VI and consequent change in his own status in the line of succession to the throne, H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester has felt compelled to resign his army career to devote more time to his royal duties. A keen soldier, it is well known that his military career was cherished by Prince Henry, who is pictured in the uniform of a major in the 10th Hussars, the regiment which he now leaves.

AUXILIARY VOTES FOR GROUP SYSTEM

Fairview W.A. Holds January Meeting And Appoints Three Leaders

FAIRVIEW, Jan. 23.—The January meeting of Fairview W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Lewis with a fair attendance. Mrs. Roseborough, newly elected president, took charge of the meeting when plans were made for the coming year. The group system was again adopted with Mrs. Reg. Coburn, Mrs. A. Reynolds and Mrs. Wilbert Bell as group leaders.

It was decided to have a study book to be studied at the regular meetings. A committee was appointed to see about getting a new stove. Fairview Women's Association begins a new year clear of debt and a balance on hand.

KEENE, Jan. 23.—The death of Mrs. Margaret McFarlane occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital at Peterborough on Thursday evening. A lifelong resident of Otonabee Township, she was 86 years of age. She leaves a son James, and two daughters, Mrs. John Renwick and Mrs. John Comrie, all of Otonabee. The funeral is to be held on Saturday at 2 p.m. from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Renwick, at Keene, to Keene Cemetery, with the Rev. A. J. Preston of Keene Presbyterian Church officiating.

committee to spend $70,000 on the roads this season, half that amount to be contributed by the Department of Highways. Mr. Miller's program allots $10,000 for construction purposes, and $60,000 for maintenance and repairs.

Other Appointments

Warden Jones appointed Reeve L. H. Wilson of Cobourg to the special property committee; Reeve J. A. Deviney of Haldimand was designated to attend the convention of the association of rural municipalities.

Reeve W. A. Wood, Cavan, and Deputy-reeve A. Merrill of Percy were appointed to the reforestation committee; Reeve A. L. Pascoe of Darlington, Reeve W. H. Nelson of Warkworth and the opposition as auditors of provincial justice accounts. A. [illegible] of Campbellford becomes [illegible]ncil's representative for [illegible] on the Campbellford Hydro Board.

Another bylaw [illegible] Warden Jones, Reeve C. Devey [illegible] Wright and Deputy-reeve [illegible] of Brighton township as [illegible] Management of the Co[illegible]. It was also decided to [illegible] time for the opening of the [illegible] sessions of the council to [illegible] on the third Tuesday of the [illegible] instead of 2.30 p.m. on the [illegible] Tuesday as in the past.

J. Norman McGill of Millbrook and W. H. Osborne of Colborne were re-appointed inspectors under the Corn Borer Act.

The council continued its support of the Ontario Agricultural Council, renewing its fee of $25 and authorizing Reeve E. R. Ireland of Murray township to attend its meetings.

Reeve H. G. Fairman's motion, seconded by Deputy-reeve Calver, for a grant of $50 for the lighting of Hastings bridge was passed without comment; but Mr. Calver's request for a grant toward the cost of lighting the Campbellford bridge was left over at his suggestion until June.

How Deputations Fared

The appeal of the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association for a grant was referred to the June sessions on Reeve Fairman's motion, seconded by Deputy-reeve Calver, although Reeves Waterman and Mallory wanted to dispose of it at once. On Mr. Mallory's motion the petition of the Cavan and South Monaghan Plowmen's Association for financial help this year was turned down, because the association was regarded as being comparatively local in its scope. Mr. Malugry said the council should withhold its assistance until the association was enlarged to a broader scale of interest to one or both counties.

South Monaghan's request that the road from the Peterborough-Port Hope highway to Wallace Point be assumed as a county road was referred to the roads commission for a report at the June sessions.

A grant of $150 was made to the National Institute for the Blind.

Two Salary Items

The council rejected the application of A. S. Miller, road superintendent, for an increase in salary from $1,500 to $2400 on Reeve Mallory's motion, seconded by Reeve W. A. Wood.

"Mr. Miller accepted the position only a year ago," Mr. Mallory stated, "and I think it is a little too soon for the council to make an increase in his salary."

Chas. Calver, Campbellford, remarked that apparently the counties officials "think they can step in and get increases because we don't have to pay the $80,000 for old age pensions and mothers' allowances this year."

The salary of Miss Helena McMahon, clerk in Mr. Miller's office, was restored to $1,000. It was reduced to $800 several years ago.

Mr. Miller pointed out in his application that the average salary of the road superintendent in thirty-seven counties was $2660, and on the basis of the number of miles of county roads was $12 a mile as compared with his salary of $5 a mile. On the average paid by the other counties his salary should be $3,330. Lennox and Addington counties had appointed a new superintendent at an initial salary of $2,000.

No action was taken on the request of John Borden, hired man at the Counties' Home for an increase in his salary of $45 a month.

A resolution from the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry requesting the provincial government to assume the entire cost of the hospitalization of indigent patients was endorsed on Reeve R. R. Mallory's motion seconded by Reeve A. L. Pascoe.

Floor Not Satisfactory

Complaints that the mastic flooring on a cement basis at the new Counties' Home was not giving satisfaction inspired a resolution by Reeve Stinson instructing F. D. Boggs, K.C., counties solicitor to notify the Employers' Liability Insurance Company that the contract of the W. A. Moffat Company of Toronto "has not been lived up to" according to the bond for $1150 guaranteeing the work. It was reported that the mastic surface was entirely satisfactory in the corridors at the Home, but was breaking up in bedrooms under the wearing effect of rocking chairs used by inmates.

R. B. Dawson of Warkworth, representing the Northumberland Trustees and Ratepayers' Association, asked that the usual grant of $26 be increased to $50 to help the association in financing a musical competition which was being instituted for the first time this year. Deputy-reeve Calver's motion that the grant to the two associations in Northumberland and Durham be $25, the same amount as last year.

Want Full Reports

Reeve Stinson reminded the council that the detailed report in the minutes of the items of road expenditure had not been printed last year because the auditors, Oscar Hudson and Company of Toronto, had asked for an additional $150 for preparing this statement for publication. Warden Jones and Reeve J. C. Cummiskey were given power to act in arranging for the publication of this information in the June minutes.

"I believe we should continue the publishing of that statement," Mr. Stinson said. "It makes available for the members of the council and for the many ratepayers who receive copies of the minutes exact information of expenditures of road expenses. Their demand for an additional $150 may look big, but we are not tied to Oscar Hudson and Company, although we are well satisfied with their service."

Reeve Mallory endorsed Mr. Stinson's proposal. The auditors are now paid $600 a year, and it was recognized that the itemized statement involved additional work.

The Port Hope members J. N. Greenaway and W. J. Crowhurst were appointed representatives to the Children's Aid Society at Port Hope and were asked for a report in June.

Mr. Miller informed the council that the workmen on county roads this year would be employed ten hours a day as usual.

LAKEFIELD GIRL MAY LOSE HER EYE

Six-Year-Old Ruth Tatham Seriously Injured When Knife Slips

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 23.—Ruth Tatham, aged 6, pretty daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Tatham of Lakefield, doctors are afraid, will lose her eye as the result of an accident which occurred when the point of a knife she was using to divide a stick of licorice with her younger sister, slipped and entered her eye. Ruth had bent the stick of licorice in the centre and was sawing away at it when the knife which she had been holding with the sharp end towards her, slipped and entered her eye giving her a nasty cut. She was rushed to hospital at Peterborough, where Dr. Buchanan, Peterborough eye specialist, performed an operation in an effort to save her vision. It was thought at first that the eye would heal in good condition, but infection from the knife-point had gotten into the wound and doctors expressed the belief yesterday that the eye would have to be removed.

Ruth attended school in Lakefield up until her accident. She is a clever little student and always stands high in her class. She has two sisters.

RESIGN AND LET PROVINCE SPEAK

Conservative premier in 1909, as setting a precedent for its present bills, said Mr. Henry. While it was true Whitney had stopped actions against Hydro in Galt, the matter had first been submitted to the people in a general election. The opposition would be satisfied if the Hepburn administration would do the same.

Ready For New Deal.

Mr. Henry said he had no doubt the Quebec power companies were willing to negotiate on the contracts.

"The government has negotiated with two of them and one is selling as much power as was contracted for in 1926 and 1927," he said.

"The Premier is hitched to the power barons now," Mr. Henry said. So is the Attorney-General who, together with the Minister of Highways is a member of the Hydro Commission. I don't suggest anything sinister. It is good business."

There was every reason, he went on, for Hydro to get together with the Ottawa Power Co. on Chats Falls development, "possibly with the idea of purchasing the company's interest."

"The Gatineau contract was revised as it should have been," said Mr. Henry. Horse power charge was reduced $2.50 at a time when money can be had for almost half the price ruling when the contract was negotiated. Terms of the contract are handsomer to Gatineau than if the old one prevailed."

Sir Adam Beck said Mr. Henry favored the purchase of power at $15. He suggested steam plants for power to bring the Quebec companies' price down from $19 and he succeeded. Hydro engineers agreed $15 was the proper price.

"The Attorney-General didn't tell you Gatineau power at $15 was delivered at Leaside cheaper than we could have bought Niagara power," he said.

"The Attorney-General talks about Decew Falls, the Trent River and the Madawaska as if they were new sources of power," said Mr. Henry. "He knows full well they're not. He knows the Trent might fail us. He knows calamity faced us last year if it had not been for Chats Falls. He wanted to put over a cock-and-bull story."

"It all boils down to this," Mr. McDonald declared. "Are we going to add our road costs or are we not. Dummer can't pay for any increase."

Reeve William Anderson went to Mr. Mullen's support, suggesting Smith should be granted the request out of fairness. Road Engineer Chalmers was called upon for the mileages of County roads in the various townships. The list he presented follows: Asphodel, 19.2 miles; Belmont, 10.8; Douro, 15.3 miles of County road and 20 miles of suburban; Dummer, 29.05 County and .7 suburban; Ennismore, 12.1; North Monaghan, 6.4 miles County and 4.3 suburban; Otonabee, 27.7 County and 11.9 suburban; and Smith, 16.7 County and 4.1 suburban.

Reeve William Griffith said he did not begrudge Smith a few extra miles of County road but that if other townships were also to ask for new County mileage he was bitterly opposed. "My township is one of the townships where the taxpayers have been hit hard. I don't intend to ask for a single mile of road."

Reeve Tanner said he felt Smith was deserving of the concession but John McColl, reeve of Asphodel, and Ernest Seeney of Havelock joined forces with Mr. McDonald. Mr. Seeney moved an amendment that no more mileage be taken into the County roads system this year and it was seconded by Wallace Shearer of Harvey.

Tie Vote Recorded

A tie vote was recorded on the motion. Deciding in favor of the amendment, the Warden said: "I'll have to take it in favor of the ratepayer. I feel that if there is an extra road taken on it will cost the ratepayer more."

Total expenditure of $39,374.86 was made on County roads and $19,141 was spent on bridges of Peterborough County during 1936, a general report tendered the Council by Mr. Chalmers indicated.

Expenditures on roads by township were given as follows:

Belmont—Maintenance, $3,309.75; construction, 238.40; total, $3,548.15.

Douro — Maintenance, $1,062.97; construction, $218.59; total, $1,281.56.

North Monaghan — Maintenance, $333.32; construction, $1,052.01; total $1,385.33.

Dummer-Asphodel boundary—Maintenance, $12.77.

Total maintenance costs in the County were $[illegible]36.13 and total construction costs were $7,752.89. Total village road costs were $1,206.27.

There are 238 miles of County roads.

How to Ease a Cold Quickly

Get Quick-Acting, Quick-Dissolving "Aspirin." Take 2 Tablets

The modern way to ease a cold is this: Two "Aspirin" tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three "Aspirin" tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

The "Aspirin" you take internally will act to combat fever, cold pains and the cold itself. The gargle will provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain, acting like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is quick, effective and ends the taking of strong medicines for a cold.

● "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

54 DROWNED IN 10 STATES WITH TOLL MOUNTING

20 ARE KILLED AS BUS PLUNGES FLORIDA CANAL

IN EVERGLADE AREA

Colored Porter Escapes, Aids Many Of 11 Survivors To Safety

MIAMI, Fla., Jan 25 (A.P.). — A motor bus overturned in a canal alongside the Tamiami Trail about 30 miles west of here to-day, and the negro porter, Robert Singleton, reported 20 of the 31 passengers were killed.

Singleton said the right front wheel broke, the big bus lurched from side to side, rolled over twice, and toppled into the deep canal which parallels the highway through the Everglades.

Singleton escaped by breaking a glass and then helped the other survivors to safety.

The police station received a report 23 had perished.

An ambulance driver returning with four bodies described the accident as "the worst I ever saw."

Driver Cut About Head.

Bill Hammond of Tampa, veteran driver, was brought in with lacerations of the head. Another survivor, Edward Lisk, seriously injured about the head, accompanied him.

"The bus turned and rolled over a couple of times and then went into the canal," said Ena Price, a survivor. "That's all I remember."

The crews of a fleet of ambulances and a large crowd which collected from passing cars set to work to extricate the victims. Men dived beneath the water and emerged with bodies, which they held until the crews on shore fastened ropes and dragged them out.

Officers received reports the bus was travelling 40 to 50 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

A later check up by the Tamiami Trail Tours disclosed 31 persons were on the bus and an incomplete survey of hospitals showed 11 survivors, indicating a death list of 20.

17 RURAL SCHOOLS CLOSED LAST YEAR

No General Policy However In Small Attendance Deputy-Minister Rules

TORONTO, Jan. 25.— (CP). — Seventeen rural schools were closed in Ontario in 1936 because of small attendance, Dr. Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education, said to-day. There is no general policy of the department towards compulsion in such closings, he said.

"Where attendance falls below eight or so and pupils can be readily accommodated in nearby school sections where attendance is also small, the inspectors might make suggestions about closing a school," said Dr. McArthur. "Each case is considered on its merits."

Dr. McArthur said a petition from ratepayers of School Section 10, Adelaide township, Middlesex county, opposing the closing of that school, had not reached the department.

"The school has not been ordered closed," he said.

Dr. McArthur had no comment to make on a statement reported made to Middlesex trustees and ratepayers' association by J. P. S. Nethercott, London secondary school teacher, that there would be no unemployed secondary teachers if classes were not too large.

PRINCETON, Devon, Jan. 25 (CP Cable)—A convict escaped Sunday from Dartmoor prison but his temporary freedom but emphasized the fact no prisoner has ever stayed at large after fleeing the grim institution on the moors.

Henry Alexander fled from the prison farm where he had been taken by a warden with four other prisoners. He wandered over the gale swept heath and finally took shelter, exhausted, in a hut six miles away.

He was found there and seized without a struggle. He had half completed a five years sentence.

Mussolini, Hitler Ready To Ban Volunteers

Note Sent To Britain States Germany, Italy Will Uphold Proposal

Will Be Enforced When Other Powers Adopt Same Provisions

ANSWER TO JAN. 10 QUERY

Points To Madrid's Proposal To Naturalize All Foreign Volunteers

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—(AP).—Germany announced to-day in a note to Britain, she was ready to promulgate a law making enlistment of German volunteers in Spanish armies a penal offense—but only if other nations do likewise.

ROME, Jan. 25—(A.P.).—Premier Mussolini informed Great Britain to-day the Italian Government was prepared to place an embargo on the departure of volunteers to the Spanish Civil War.

Mussolini's reply accepted the points raised by the British demand January 10 for immediate banning of volunteers for Spain.

The long-awaited note recalled Italy's previous proposal to remove all foreigners now participating in the Spanish conflict, directly or indirectly, and asked Britain's opinion on its feasibility.

Naturalization of foreign volunteers as is the reported intention of the Spanish Socialist Government, the note said, would "be contrary to any authentic policy of non-intervention."

Italy's proposed embargo on volunteers will be put into effect, the note said, as soon as all other governments adopt the same provision, or agree on the general lines of a system of control and fix the date for its effectiveness.

The note declared the naturalization proposal of the Valencia government "reveals how effective has been the contribution of foreign volunteers to the forces of one of the parties to the conflict."

GAMBLING IN YORK

County Council Gets Rap When Asking For Larger Share Court Fines

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (CP).—York County asked the Ontario Government today to be treated like Toronto and receive a larger share of police court fines. It was told crime conditions in the county were a "shame and a disgrace."

Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck, among Cabinet Ministers who received the county delegation, said lack of co-operation between the 26 township, town and village police forces in the county was responsible for failure to check crime.

"You have in your county five great gambling joints, some of them with as much as $100,000 on the table to pay for the evening's transactions," the Attorney-General said.

Alcohol Steps In, Ends Career Of Fading Star, Marie Prevost

Former Mack Sennett Bathing Beauty Believed Dead 2 Days When Found

BORN IN SARNIA

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Jan. 25. — (AP).—Death in a small Hollywood apartment ended Marie Prevost's futile fight to retrieve her faded screen glory.

The body of the one-time Mack Sennett bathing beauty who went on to leading roles lay to-day in the county morgue.

Dr. Frank R. Webb, assistant county autopsy surgeon, said a post-mortem examination indicated acute alcoholism. Face down on her bed, the silk pajama-clad body of Miss Pervost was found Saturday by a negro houseboy, William Bogle.

Whining beside his mistress was Maxie, the actress' daschund. Teeth marks on her body suggested the dog had made frantic attempts to arouse her. In the sink lay several whisky bottles empty.

Miss Prevost apparently had been dead two or three days.

On the door of the apartment was pinned this note:

"Please do not knock on this door more than once; as it makes my dog bark. If I am in, I will hear you, as I am not deaf."

Detectives found in the room a promissory note for $110 made in favor of Joan Crawford, film actress.

Marie Prevost, born May Bickford Dunn in Sarnia, Ont., in 1898, reached the peak of her success in the years between 1924 and 1928.

Since the "talkies," she waged a discouraging battle to come back. The speaking screen offered a major obstacle. Weight was another.

Recently she had been doing bits.

Miss Prevost, dark-haired and blue-eyed, was married twice, to H. C. Gerke and the late Kenneth Harlan, screen actor.

TANKERS FOR ITALY

Duce Prepares to Avoid Being Caught Short Again.

ROME, Jan. 25 (A.P.). — Premier Mussolini revealed to-day Italy has begun construction of a new fleet of tanker motorships, determined to avoid repetition of the lack of oil transports that developed when sanctions were imposed under the Ethiopian campaign.

Keels are being laid for three 13,500-ton motor tanks, each with a speed of 15 knots.

Reds Start Early To Hate Fascists

"Whom are you fighting?" she was asked.

"The Fascists," she replied.

STRAPPINGS GIVE PRISON AT GUELPH SUNDAY SCHOOL AIR

Extra Punishment Of Solitary Confinement Takes Abusiveness Out Of Unruly

NO BOOKS TO BE REPLACED

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (CP)—Acting Premier Harry Nixon today said he found the Ontario Reformatory, Guelph, like a Sunday school when he visited it yesterday. But there were three strappings in the "Sunday School" while he was there.

Mr. Nixon said he wished to emphasize that to date no one has been punished for anything done in the convict riot a week ago Sunday.

But in the ordinary course of discipline there have had to be strappings to subdue some of the unruly prisoners," he said. "The language of some of the prisoners to the guards, officials and everybody else was abusive and vile. That had to be straightened out."

No strappings were administered on Monday or Tuesday following because of the chaos in the Reformatory but since then "a considerable number of convicts," Mr. Nixon would not estimate how many, "have been strapped and placed in solitary confinement for breaches of discipline."

"The result is, everything is running smoothly again," he said.

"They know what to expect. Certainly I have no fault to find with the discipline there now. I observed it for myself."

Damage to the Reformatory in the riot and fire was largely superficial, said Mr. Nixon. It will be easily repaired for $25,000.

"That doesn't include cost of replacing library books which were put in a bonfire," he said. "They were donated to the Reformatory and we're certainly not going to buy books to replace them."

YORK WOULD PAY SALARY TO COUNCIL

Suggest $300 Year Instead Of Present $7 a Day Plus Mileage

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (CP).—York County Council wants to pay its members annual salaries instead of per diem fees for attendance at meetings, and a deputation waited on the Ontario Cabinet today to ask permission to do.

Warden W. E. MacDonald suggested the county be allowed to pay councillors $300 a year, county commissioners $700 and committee chairmen $200 extra. Present pay, he said, was $7 a day, plus mileage.

The Warden also protested against police from other townships joining Provincial police in gambling raids in "certain York municipalities." "The municipality gets a black eye," he said. "We don't want someone rushing in on us from outside and making our own police look ridiculous. The foreign police grab all the publicity. We feel when Provincial authorities get a complaint they should notify the township police and give them a chance to clean up."

Finds Neck Washers Slow At Swimming

East Lansing, Mich., Jan. 25 (AP)

R. B. Daubert, Michigan State College swimming coach, offered today a new criticism of the time-tried practice of washing necks with a washrag.

Daubert said that of the 3,500 non-swimming men students attending the college during the past ten years, those who used a washrag took twice as long to learn to support themselves in water.

ICY HIGHWAYS CLAIM 2 LIVES

Young Tillsonburg Man Is Victim As Car Crashes Into Ditch

GALT OFFICIAL IS SECOND

TORONTO, Jan. 25—(CP)—Ice-coated highways claimed one life in Ontario during the week-end and were the indirect cause of another death as autos and trucks skidded into ditches and swung helplessly about on the glassy surface.

Reginald Huffman, 24, Tillsonburg, was killed Saturday when his machine crashed into a ditch on No. 3 highway near Blenheim after skidding on the icy road. Mr. and Mrs. John Howard and their 13-year-old son, Tillsonburg residents, were injured in the crash.

The strain of driving was believed to have been responsible for the heart attack which claimed the life of Frank Pieraccini, superintendent at the Stauffer-Dobie plant at Galt. His car slipped into the ditch and as he walked to the front of it he was stricken.

Mr. and Mrs. Alderic Melo of Wallaceburg were injured when their car skidded into a westbound Canadian Pacific railway train at Chatham; Ed. Martin, Galt, was injured when Howard Priest's car struck a tree at Galt.

Murrell Martin, 12, suffered a fractured pelvis and internal injuries when struck by a truck driven by Thomas Kennie at Niagara Falls. He was placed in hospital.

Minor accidents were numerous as sleet and rain poured over the highways from east to west. Few cars crossed the Peace Bridge at Fort Erie and the highways to Niagara Falls and Fort Colborne were practically impassible.

WANTS WORK AT 106

Albertan Would Quit Hospital For Job to Pay For His Keep.

CONSORT, Alta., Jan. 25 (C.P.)—John Heaney, 106 years old, has one ambition in life. He wants to leave the hospital in this town 175 miles north-east of Calgary, and "hustle work" to pay for his keep.

Oldest man in Alberta, and possibly in the West, Heaney is active despite his years. He has a keen memory, needs no spectacles, and is a hearty eater.

He attributes his age to the "Irish in me," along with "lots of hard work."

BLUM IS OPPOSED TO ANY BARGAINS WITH THE GERMANS

Fears Economic Aid May Be Turned Against Those Who Gave It

QUIET IN EUROPE FIRST

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(CP-Havas).—France and Great Britain stood aligned to-day in a determination not to help Germany economically while the possibility exists that this aid may be turned against the countries that gave it.

Premier Blum in a speech at Lyon yesterday made this clear. He rejected any idea of "bargaining" with Germany and said a political settlement of Europe's problems must come before an economic agreement.

More than 2,000 guests, including nearly all the members of the Blum cabinet, heard the Premier's address at a banquet in honor of Andre Fevrier, head of the Parliamentary Socialist group.

"I continue to believe a settlement is possible if all the nations of Europe bring the same degree of good will to the task," he declared, "but I also believe, as Foreign Secretary Eden said in his speech in the House of Commons on Tuesday, that in the present hour it depends on Germany.

"I would like to express myself with complete frankness on one point. The German nation at this very moment is using all her science of organization and all the power of her national will to overcome grave economic difficulties.

"The idea is thus spontaneously

Maine Woodsman Likes It Cold Wears No Shirt Even To Town

Lets His Hair Grow And Defies Laughter Of Village Folk And Constable's Protests

OFTEN SLEEPS IN SNOW

TEMPLE, Me., Jan. 25 (AP) — Maine's own Paul Bunyan—30-year-old Clarence Butterfield — refused today to let near zero temperatures, neighbors jibes or official remonstrance make him wear a shirt.

"There ain't no law in America that says I can't go round without a shirt," the bearded, long-haired woodsman said he told a Farmington constable who objected to his appearance— semi-naked —in that shore town of Franklin County Saturday.

Not in the least abashed by the laughter of townspeople, Butterfield makes the five-mile trip to Farmington weekly for provisions.

The rest of the week he spends in the woods, swinging a 4½ pound axe all day, cutting and piling cordwood in quantities that he says breaks all records.

Clad only in pants and felt shoes, Butterfield says he often spends night as well as day in the forest, sleeping in the snow.

Not for a year has Butterfield shaved or had his hair cut, and only once has he worn a shirt. That was during a visit to his mother.

Red Cross Sends Call For $4,000,000 Relief Aid 500,000 Homeless

Warn Mrs. Simpson To Avoid England

Cannes, France, Jan. 25. (AP)

MRS. Wallis Warfield Simpson has been advised by Scotland Yard detectives who guarded her during her first weeks at Cannes not to return to England.

There is no possibility of a popular demonstration against her—they were thinking, they said, only of cranks.

The views they expressed were their own and not the official stand of Scotland Yard.

The detectives said that to many people in Great Britain Mrs. Simpson was a symbol rather than an individual.

BRITAIN AND U.S. NEAR TRADE PACT RUNCIMAN STATES

NOT TO DETAILS YET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(CP). — Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, announced to-day that he and President Roosevelt were close to an agreement in principle on the basis of negotiation of a reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Great Britain.

At a press conference held in the British Embassy after a week-end stay in the White House, Runciman said he and the President had made "great progress" in their conversations.

Necessarily, he added, only the broadest generalities were discussed, the details being left to more formal conversations between representatives of both governments.

Added indication his conversations had borne fruit was seen in Runciman's announcement he would not leave Washington until Wednesday, the day before he sails from New York to England.

Stefansson said he enjoyed the broiled reindeer but would have gobbled up a little seal blubber in great style if some had been around. He spoke of seal blubber as one of the "most delectable forms of fat."

A UNITED IRELAND

MacDonald Says Valera Is Strongly For Move.

LONDON, Jan. 25 (CP).—President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State has urged strongly that steps be taken toward establishment of a united Ireland, Dominions Secretary Malcolm MacDonald told the House of Commons today.

The Secretary, responding to a question in Parliament, said "No scheme was put forward, however," and the question was not discussed.

At present the Government of Ireland is divided, Dublin controlling the 26 southern counties, Belfast the six northern counties.

15 Reported Killed During Battle In Flood-bound Kentucky Penitentiary

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (A.P.). — Further details in United States flood areas swept the total to 58 to-day. This did not include the estimated 15 dead in the Frankfort Prison riot.

Revised death toll by States: Arkansas 3, Illinois 3, Kentucky 13, Missouri 11, Mississippi 1, Ohio 9, Tennessee 9, West Virginia 7, Pennsylvania 1, South Carolina 1—total 58.

Congress to Pay Relief.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (C.P.).—The White House announced to-day United States Congress would be asked to assume relief costs in the nation's flood area, where at least 10 States counted a mounting list of some 60 known dead and half a million homeless.

With the cities of Cincinnati and Louisville heaviest sufferers, the Red Cross asked the United States to contribute $4,000,000 at once for relief, augmented by appropriations from various legislatures.

Apartment Fire In Hand.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 25 (A.P.). — A fire at the deluxe 40-family Riverview Apartments, which caused the sounding of a general alarm, was declared under control to-day an hour later.

Damage was confined to the basement where several apartments had been burned out.

The janitor said the fire started in a locker near the laundry room where several women were washing. Lacking heat, the girls had started a small bonfire which got out of control.

Louisville to be in Darkness.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP).—Power water and food shortages added to the torment of fire, flood and disease to-day in the Ohio River Valley, focal point of rising United States river waters which swept disaster into 10 States and left an estimated 500,000 homeless.

At Cincinnati, where blazing gasoline tanks riding the swirling waters brought an ever-present fire-menace, officials feared meagre lines carrying electricity from Dayton and other centres might be cut off, leaving the city to the mercy of the water and flames

Louisville, Ky., was in darkness over night with 200,000 of its 330,000 population homeless. National Guardsmen threatened to use force to carry 5,000 more from Portsmouth, Ohio. Flood waters was swept through the Kentucky State Reformatory at Frankfort, where unconfirmed reports said 15 convicts were slain in rioting.

As the area counted at least 58 flood dead, rivers continued to rise further upstream, heightening the menace. At Wheeling and Parkersburg, W. Va., flood weary householders again sought relief shelters as the river rose. Northward, at Pittsburgh, Meteorologist W. S.

LONDON IS UNEASY AS THAMES RISES

Thousands Of Acres Flooded Though River Is Not At Spring Level Yet

LONDON, Jan. 25 (CP Cable)—Uneasily mindful of the ravages of the floods in the United States, Thames-side residents today anxiously watched the rising waters between Oxford and Sunbury.

The floods have not reached spring high-water records, but have already caused considerable damage and discomfiture over widespread areas. Recurrent rains last week and over the week-end caused the Thames to overflow its banks, and the river was still rising today.

Thousands of acres of meadows were covered with water. Boathouses were isolated and the playing fields of Eton were submerged. The main Windsor-London road was closed, being partially under water.

The Thames has risen six feet in some places. In the Runneymede district, only the roofs of bungalows were visible. The Windsor race track was flooded and the Datchet Golf Course was converted into a huge lake.

Over Half Cincinnati Is Now Under Water With Ohio Still Rising

$1,500,000 Oil Fire Hits City And Flood Carries Flames To New Districts

FEDERAL GOV'T AIDING

Martial Law Declared In Indiana—Louisville In Dark As Power Fails

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(CP).—Fire and water formed a strange and terrifying alliance to-day to heap new misery and the threat of death upon dwellers in the flooded Ohio river valley.

Flaming oil floated through parts of Cincinnati and the waters coursed downstream bearing the torch of destruction toward other communities.

The United States' government mobilized its forces on a virtual war-time basis to aid the Red Cross as the hourly-mounting reports from the 12 flood States pushed the known death total to 44 and the number of homeless toward 500,000.

Darkness engulfed Louisville, Ky., when the last power sources failed. The water supply was out Saturday. Fear of fire was heightened. At Frankfort, the State capital, an unverified report said 15 prisoners of the State reformatory died in fighting between flood-terrorized white and negro prisoners.

Armed farmers of the Birds Point-New Madrid, Mo., floodway area sought to prevent United States' army engineers from opening a levee to divert flood waters from Cairo, Ill. The engineers prepared to dynamite the levee in three places under armed guard after all floodway dwellers were evacuated.

Roosevelt Steps In.

President Roosevelt ordered all available government aid into the disaster zone after a Sunday night conference, placing the army, navy, coast guard, works progress administration and civilian observation corps on a 24hour basis to help the Red Cross evacuate refugees and aid the homeless.

The President personally advised City Manager C. A. Dykstra of Cincinnati that "the Federal Government is standing behind Cincinnati and the entire Ohio Valley flood zones," and that his private phone would be held open for any direct calls.

Cincinnati, with some 75,000 homeless, watched the Ohio river still edge upward after reaching almost 78 feet soon after midnight—six feet higher than any previous recorded level and 35 feet above flood stage.

Eighteen firemen were injured fighting a $1,500,000 oil fire in the industrial mill creek districts. The blaze continued to-day.

Tissue Is Attached To Man's Heart To Help Blood Supply.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England, Jan. 25 (CP).—An operation by which a tissue was attached to a man's heart to augment the blood supply was successfully performed at Newcastle hospital.

The operation—the first of its kind in the United Kingdom—was performed on Matthew Mason, 63-year-old carpenter. He suffered from a disease which deprives the heart of an adequate supply of blood.

In the operation the tissue was passed through the diaphragm to the heart.

HOUSE PREPARES FOR FAST HANDLING OF 19 RESOLUTIONS

Debate Looms When Wheat Marketing And Defence Estimates Come Up

OPENING WEEK QUIET

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—(CP).— The House of Commons turns again to-day to private members' business with 19 resolutions remaining on the order paper and prospects bright that they will be disposed of speedily, permitting curtailment of time allotted to such affairs.

First on to-day's order paper was a resolution by A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) that it would be in the best interest of British Columbia if the government ceased issuing trap-fishing licenses for the province's waters.

Next was listed that of James S. Woodsworth, bearded leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, contending this country should remain strictly neutral in the event of war, regardless of who the belligerents may be, and that Canadian citizens should not be permitted to make profit by supplying war materials.

Closely linked with Mr. Woodsworth's resolution is one by A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg North) who wants Canada to suggest that President Roosevelt of the United States call a world peace conference.

The House moved fast last week with an indication that all groups are anxious to facilitate early prorogation in view of the Coronation May 12 in London, but four contentious debates appeared on the horizon over defence estimates, wheat marketing, reduction in Canadian National Railways capitalization and demands for a commission to probe financial claims of the western provinces.

A Quiet Week

Unusual unanimity characterized last week with the exception of the debates on Social Credit resolutions, but a different atmosphere may be expected when the Commons begins to discuss defence estimates, wheat marketing, reduction in the capitalization of the Canadian National Railways and demands for a commission to investigate financial claims of western provinces.

The suggestion has been made that instead of a probe of the claims of the West along the lines of the Duncan Commission which some years ago investigated Maritime rights, the government may decide to have a commission study the whole set-up of provincial and Dominion taxation, subsidies and credits, covering all the provinces.

Probably the longest debate will be on the budget, particularly if the changes in the revised Canada-United kingdom trade agreement form part of it. Prime Minister Mackenzie King last week told Conservative leader Bennett the government had not yet decided whether the revisions in the trade agreement would

CAN BORROWING SOLVE FAMILY FINANCIAL PROBLEMS?

Some families can benefit by borrowing. Others should be warned against it. At Central Finance we lend only when the loan will be used to improve the family's financial position—such as to meet an emergency or to get a crushing load of debt under control.

Counsel in Money Management

To help borrowers get out of debt and stay out, we teach and encourage Home Money Management and Better Buymanship. Our service shows thousands how to save on purchases, how to budget income, how to stretch dollars.

If you must borrow, we suggest you come to Central Finance. Why don't you talk over your money problem with us in a private consultation room?

7 advantages of the CENTRAL FINANCE LOAN PLAN

1—If you can make regular monthly payments you can borrow from Central Finance.

2—Small monthly payments. For example: $15 a month repays a note of $180 in 12 months.

3—No co-makers or endorsers required.

5—Recently reduced charges on all loans over $120.

6—Charges rebated for payment ahead of schedule.

7—No embarrassing inquiries of employer, friends or relatives.

BELMONT REEVE OPPOSES GRANT TOURIST TRADE

REVERSE DECISION

"As far as Belmont township is concerned, we would be better off without the tourists," Reeve William Griffith declared as he voiced heated oppistion to a grant to the Kawartha District Tourist Association at the concluding session of the County Council Saturday afternoon.

"They drive at 60 miles an hour over our roads and we get all their dust," he asserted. ' 'Most of them bring trailers loaded with supplies bought in their own home towns. They fish the best fish out of our lakes. I'm not in favor of voting one cent at the present time. It means increased taxes for us and no return."

Request for a grant of $500 toward the work of the newly-formed tourist association brought about the debate. The request was made by a delegation headed by G. K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls, president, and including P. D. Kerr, K.C., and J. J. Doris of the Chamber of Commerce, secretary. Mr. Griffith, seconded by Deputy-reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan, urged that no action be taken.

Millions of Dollars

"There are millions of dollars being dumped into Ontario by tourists every summer and there is not a citizen who doesn't benefit directly or indirectly," Reeve Tanner of Lakefield replied to Mr. Griffith. He had made a motion, seconded by Reeve Wallace Shearer of Harvey township, for a grant of $250.

"If we neglect to advertise we are going to lose our share of the business to somebody else," Mr. Tanner asserted. "There's no use denying that the tourist business is very important to us." He remarked that such men as G. K. Fraser, F. D. Kerr and J. J. Doris are giving their time and services without salary to the work of building up the district's tourist trade and urged that they be encouraged.

Reeve Shearer took the floor to say he had been looking into the matter since the appeal of the delegation had been heard and found that one-half the taxes of Harvey township are paid by tourists. "What would we do for taxes if it weren't for the tourists?" he asked.

FIREWORKS LOOM IN ONTARIO HOUSE

Debate On Hydro Bill Expected To Last The Entire Week

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(CP)—Ontario Legislature today starts the second week of what promises to be a lively session with M. M. MacBrige (Ind., Brantford) leading off the debate on the Government's legislation to protect the Hydro-Electric Commission from court judgments.

First four days of the session were marked by divisions on Speaker Norman Hipel's rulings, charges, withdrawals and angry clashes across the floor of the House, culminating in the demand by George S. Henry, Conservative House leader, for an election with the Government's policy as the issue.

The government has introduced three bills to protect Hydro from judgments against it in respect to Quebec power contracts declared null by the 1935 session of the Legislature. The bills would:

Relieve Hydro of the need to pay judgments in connection with the contracts.

Make it necessary to have a fiat from the Attorney-General to sue the power commission.

Lieutenant-Governor H. A. Bruce had hardly left the chamber Tuesday after reading a short throne speech, when debate started. Opposition objected to introduction first day by Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck of the first Hydro bill.

Mr. Roebuck, being upheld on division, spoke three hours Wednesday and three Thursday reviewing the Hydro situation and defending the bill. Friday Mr. Henry led off for the opposition with a two-hour speech.

M. M. MacBride will speak when the House resumes this afternoon. He will be followed by Arthur Ellis (Cons., Ottawa South). Eight opposition speakers are ready and the government will match them man for man. Debate on the first of the three bills may last all week.

TRUCKER ADOPTS SNAKE AS HIS PET

Reptile However Is Asleep In Padding Of Vehicle's Seat Until Spring

LEAMINGTON, Ont., Jan. 25. —(CP)—Beware he who would ride in Sam Wallace's truck. You may think there are no other passengers, —but—Oswald the Snake lurks in the padding.

Oswald is a fine lad, however, and probably won't even untwine his 24-inch length just to satisfy his curiosity as to who's riding in the truck cab beside Sam. Oswald is reticent and besides its warm in the padding of the cab cushion.

Ossie was a shivering snake when Sam found him in a Dover township wheat field at the start of winter. When he refused to eat nice, juicy steaks, Sam put him in the cab of the truck. He's been there ever since and still won't eat anything offered him. He may be devouring the seat padding for all his master knows.

Death will be as a sleep to a laboring man.

Marooned On Great Lakes Island To Herd Moose

Mrs. George Blair, left, and Mrs. Harry Nichols, only women on Isle Royale this winter

Engaged in conservation work and moose herding for the national park service, 115 men and two women are marooned on bleak Isle Royale, in Lake Superior, separated from the Canadian mainland by 14 miles of shifting ice floes and from the Michigan mainland by 53 miles of stormy water. The islanders' work, gathering and burning brush, which provides a fire hazard, can be done safely only in winter. And the herding of the moose is done in winter because during this season the moose congregate quietly in herds and are easily corralled. The only contacts the island has with the outside world are the shortwave radio and possibly the aeroplane. One of the photos ABOVE shows boys unloading wood before the door of the camp hospital. The other is of Mrs. George Blair (LEFT) and Mrs. Harry Nichols, the only women on the island.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

CHAPTER 47

Before Sylvia, Selden, Reid and the children reached the gates of the drive, heavy drops were falling, and Sylvia suggested turning back, but Selden startled her by saying that he had ordered lunch for all at the Bull Inn, and it was better to go on.

Many eyes were fixed on the party as they made their way to the inn, for the news of the disappearance of the children had leaked out. Hucks gazed at them open-mouthed, but the presence of Selden prevented him from speaking.

He led the way into the low-roofed dining room, with huge old oak beams along the ceiling, and long latticed windows.

The village of Evenden was a well-known beauty spot, lying in the lovely Even valley, between two ridges, and at crossroads, and many tourists stayed for meals at the "Bull." A maid in uniform ushered the party to their table by the window, for Selden had merely ordered lunch for five on the telephone. He made an excuse to slip out while the lunch was being prepared, and found Hucks busy in his large comfortable bar.

"It's all right to talk, Mr. Selden, it takes a lot to frighten me"—he puffed out his great chest—"but there was something that wasn't human there, and I bet you never found anyone in that crypt."

"You're right there, Hucks, he had got away. He has the Abbey to himself now."

"So I heard," Hucks said, drawing a tankard for an importunate laborer. "Funny goings-on, I hear. The servants were round here for food—skeered right enough about what happened, and"—he dropped his voice—"I hear they've got that butler in chokee. Is that so?"

"I believe Inspector Hutchins has arrested him." Selden said carelessly, "but I shouldn't say too much about it, Hucks; you know how village gossip spreads."

"Bless you soul, sir," Hucks said with an expansive grin, "it's been the talk in the bar all the morning. Mrs. Thornton has been here, a-telling all about it. Fancy—James! He was a deep 'un, he was."

He moved off to serve a customer, and Selden took himself back to the dining-room.

The twins had already begun, with good healthy appetites, and sitting in his place was Mrs. Thornton herself, volubly telling Sylvia her opinion of the inhabitants of the Abbey, with many blanks for the sake of the children, who understood perfectly what she meant, and were enjoying the scandal. She rose awkwardly at Selden's approach.

"I beg pardon, sir, I was just keeping Miss Lawrence and Mr. Reid company till you came." She looked defiantly at Selden. "You see, my evidence would have been useful at the inquest after all, and why you stopped me from giving it—"

"You will be able to give it now," he said quietly.

"I am staying here for that purpose, and that's all that's keeping me in the village, I can tell you"

She gave a toss of her head, and stalked away to the other end of the room decisively.

"Pleasant woman," Selden said, helping himself to some fish.

"I can't understand it," Reid said, knitting his forehead into a frown. "While you were out, and Sylvia was taking the children's things off, she buttonholed me, and had the impertinence to start asking me all about my past life and who my parents were and so on."

Selden laughed "Just like her. No doubt she and that precious inspector have been putting their heads together, and she is trying to find out whether you have any connection with the murder.

"It tried to snub her, but she came across when Sylvia entered, and started asking where they had been, and where we were staying."

"You didn't tell her?"

"No fear. We had had quite enough of her. I was glad when you came back."

The rain was coming down now in straight heavy lines, the steady dull rain without wind beloved by the farmer when his corn has been gathered.

"We'll take the children to the local cinema," Selden said. "I'll drive you in my car and take you back to the Abbey."

An old converted barn bore the proud name of the Palace Picture House, and the twins were delighted at this promise treat, for they had never been allowed to go inside the place. Sylvia looked doubtfully at Selden.

The maid had gone and they were alone in the room.

"Look here, Selden," Reid said eagerly, "if you'd fetch your car and take us right away somewhere, I should feel much more satisfied."

"Where?" Selden looked at him blankly.

A vision of his old bed-sitting room in Pimlico rose to Reid's mind, and he paused. Money he could provide, but how could he suggest going to some hotel or lodging with Sylvia, even in the company of the twins, and they, poor mites, had heard too much in the Abbey for their precocious minds.

He remained silent, and Sylvia could only think of her peevish aunt in her shabby boarding house, and what she would say if they turned up there.

"Come on, then," Selden said cheerily. "I'll get the car, while you fetch your things."

He was paying for the lunch, and had asked the man to fetch his car out of the garage, where he had lodged it, when Colonel Graham came through the front entrance, dripping with rain.

"Hello, Selden," he said with an uneasy smile. "So Hutchins has got the better of you, after all. I've just ridden from Grinfold, and been having a chat with him. He's pretty wild with you, and I'm not surprised."

"We can't always bring it off, Colonel," Selden said dryly.

"I hear that the children who were supposed to be missing have turned up mysteriously. That scoundrel James had something to do with that, I expect, but as long as they are safe. . . . I suppose you don't happen to know where they are, Selden?"

"There's really no mystery about it. We have all had lunch together, and are going to the pictures for a treat. You see, the servants at the Abbey have all left, and with Lady Severinge gone as well, there's no one there. The place it shut up."

"They are not staying here at the inn?" Colonel Graham knit his brow and his mouth tightened to a straight line.

"Oh dear no!" They are going to stay at Reid's cottage for tonight. After that we must consult the family lawyer, Livingstone, unless you can put them up until some arrangement is made."

"I don't like it. That fellow Reid is not trustworthy, in my opinion, and in any case he has hardly recovered from his illness."

"They will be all right now that you have James under lock and key," Selden said casually.

The landlord, who had been standing respectfully at the door, not not liking to interrupt the conversation, coughed, and Selden turned.

"Beg pardon, sir, but your car's at the door and the others are waiting for you."

"You will be staying here, sir, tonight?" Hucks asked.

"Oh, yes, keep my room for me. I shall be back presently."

Selden drove the party to the cinema, and insisted on paying for the seats in the best part of the poor place. To Reid the whole morning had been like some strange nightmare. Selden's appearance, and James' arrest, the Abbey, and now the presence of the detective, apparently wasting his valuable time at a second-rate picture hall. And Mr. Thornton's cross-examination had disturbed him. Had Hutchins got on his track somehow? He recalled with a feeling of dread that Selden had plainly told him that he knew something at any rate of his past life from his ravings in delirium, and perhaps someone else may also have become acquainted with it.

And Sylvia? He could never ask her to join her life with his. Even now he was living on stolen money! He saw little of the pictures, but heard the children laughing wildly. They had not had much pleasure in their lives, and even Sylvia seemed to be amused. He was seated between the twins, with Sylvia on the other side, and Selden next to her on the outside.

He glanced at the stern set face of the detective, and it dawned on him that even here in this place Selden thought they were not safe and had come with them for protection.

It was still raining when they emerged into the dark street, and they waited on the doorway while Selden fetched his car, which he had parked round the corner.

"I have a message, sir," he said. "Colonel Graham requested that Miss Lawrence and the young ladies would go over to Grinfold to make some statement. I was to say that it was urgent. I have the car here, and can run them over and bring them back."

"Grinfold!" Sylvia exclaimed. "That's where the police station is. I suppose we shall have to go."

Selden drove up in his car, and was told by Reid.

"That's all right," he said to the man. "I'll drive them over myself. I want to see Inspector Hutchins."

"Very good, sir," the man replied. "I shan't be sorry—it's a dirty night for motoring."

He disappeared in his car down the road, and Selden laughed quietly as he drew on his motor gloves.

"Does the inspector want me to give evidence against James?" Sylvia asked with a flash of anger.

Selden made no reply, but handed Sylvia into his car, requesting her to sit between the children. Reid got up beside Selden in the front. The detective put his foot on the self-starter, and the machine purred steadily. And then, to Reid's amazement, he felt a revolver being pressed into his hand, and Selden whispered, "Shoot at sight if I tell you—don't ask any questions."

LAKEFIELD

GROUPS SPONSOR ENJOYABLE PARTY

Successful Affair Is Held Under Auspices Of Lakefield W. I.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 25. — Two groups of the Lakefield branch of the Women's Institute staged a successful card party in Lakefield on Thursday evening in the Parish Hall. There was a good crowd present. About twelve tables of cards were played, after which the ladies served a delicious lunch of sandwiches, cake and tea. Mrs. N. A. Moore presented the prizes. The winners were: Ladies' prize, Miss Clara Kidd; gentlemen's prize, Martin Sullivan; ladies' consolation, Mrs. George Charlton; gentlemen's consolation, Mrs. Jacob Murphy.

The party was arranged by Institute groups headed by Mrs. N. A. Moore and Mrs. Stanley Higgins.

BALE TO BE SENT BY ROSENEATH W.A.

Clothing And Quilts Are Prepared For Western Relief Purposes

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Jan. 25.—Mrs. A. Braithwaite and her daughter, Miss Mary Braithwaite, were hostesses to the members of the United Church W.A. when the regular meeting of the society was held on Wednesday afternoon.

During the business session it was decided to put one quilt in the frames and join with the W.M.S. in a day of quilting on January 27.

The secretary, Mrs. E. Blodgett, was instructed to write soliciting donations of remnants, yarn, etc., suitable for bazaar purposes.

It was decided to hold the annual bazaar early in May, with more definite arrangements to be made at a later date.

Mrs. M. Davey reported that a large bale of good used clothing and quilts was packed at the parsonage for western relief.

It was decided that the society donate $5 to the church fund.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Blodgett, when she and Mrs. E. Braithwaite will be joint hostesses.

Mrs. C. Sandercock and Miss Irene Brown are the program committee.

A short program, with part of the numbers appropriate to the beginning of the New Year, was contributed by the following members: Mrs. E. Braithwaite read "Ten commandments on how to get along" and also "The Coming Year"; Mrs. C. Sandercock read a poem, "1937," and Miss Irene Brown read "For the New Year."

Following the closing exercises, a social half-hour was enjoyed, while refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Centenary W. A.

The regular meeting of the Women's Association of the Centenary United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Newman Lean on Thursday afternoon, with the new president, Miss Jessie Sherwin, presiding.

During a brief business session, the society was divided in two groups, each group to make a quilt.

The correspondence consisted of letters of appreciation from those whom the society had remembered with Christmas gifts.

A program was enjoyed, the following ladies reading poems appropriate to the beginning of the New Year: Mrs. Walton Lean, Mrs. Lewis Dowler, Miss Emma Sherwin, Miss V. Sherwin and Miss Hilda Arthur.

Mrs. W. Hircock offered prayer, the meeting closed, and a social hour enjoyed while refreshments were served.

The February meeting will be held at the home of the Misses Jessie and Emma Sherwin.

331,450 POSITIONS PROVIDED IN 1936

Employment Service However Falls 23,926 Short Of Filling All Jobs

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—(CP)—Placements by the Employment Service of Canada in 1936 were 331,450, the Department of Labor reported to-day. Vacancies were 355,376 and applications for work 68,053.

A slight decrease from the previous year was shown in the number of placements, but this was explained by departmental officials as a result of the decrease in relief projects for which workers were taken from the employment offices. Placements in 1935 were 353,802 with 376,574 vacancies and 656,421 applications.

Practically all the unfilled vacancies are in domestic service, for cooks and cooks-general, the shortage being continually experienced in all offices across the country.

In Ontario during 1936 there were 113,166 vacancies, 316,815 applications and 124,534 placements.

Dancing was a part of the evening's entertainment also, to music played with great skill by the local "men of rhythm" known as the Roverines. Mr. Langley played the piano in accompaniment, assisted by Lionel Tomkins. Refreshments were served later.

Those present were the Misses Amy and Lily Bull, Peggy Baxter, Audrey Doig, Donna White, Marita Shaughnessy, Mildred White, Norma McIlmoyle, Josie Tomkins, Doris Watkins, Alicia and Margaret Langley; also Messrs. Lou Barry, Jim Amyotte, Eddie Amyotte, Pete Dominik, M. Crowe, Eric Edmundson, Charlie Dobbin, Jerry Grady, George Brooks, Fred Simons, Art Rose, Ted Tomkins.

Fashion Service

There's shoulder interest. Soft gathered fulness beneath the yoke, makes it roomy for home tasks and has a slimming effect upon the waist-line. The slender skirt is moderately flared. The sports pockets are useful.

Gay tyrolean cotton print with lots of yellow and red is very smart with red rickrack. And when summer arrives, you'll wear it for morning shopping or to the beach.

Style No. 2952 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with 2⅞ yards of braid.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

GOOD name in man and woman, dear my lord,
Is the immediate jewel of their souls:
Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands:
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed.
—Shakespeare.

Dear Friends:

How do you feel about your name? Do you think it is a good thing to possess, or are you careless with it, letting every Tom, Dick or Harry bandy it around because you are so indifferent about it yourself.

You see, it isn't always someone else who steals away our good name. If we do not keep our word, we are classed as a broken-promiser. If we keep saying we will do this or that and never do it, we are classed as a four-flusher.

If we pretend to be what we aren't we are known to others as swell-headed. If we brag about what we have done and about what we are going to do, they soon find out our limitations.

So you see that a lot of this losing of our good name is due to ourselves. But, supposing we have not done any of these things, and someone goes around telling lies about us?

Well don't get into a dither about it, but if you can talk it over calmly with the one who is saying these things, and get them to take back what they have said, well and good.

And if you have been told these things in this way: "I'll tell you what so-and-so said about you, if you will not mention my name, or say I told you," then refuse to listen. In the first place, if this friend thought anything about you at all, they would have denied the things the other said, and told her frankly that they were going to tell you so that you would know who was circulating these things.

What good is it to tell you bad things like this then put a muzzle of silence on your mouth so that you cannot even defend yourself? No good at all, and the ones who come carrying a tale like that, deserve the back of your hand.

And after all, your life will give the lie to any malicious stories that may go around. We are all talked about one time or another, but it is when lies are told that damage is done.

Even lies will die away when your life shows different, so why get all worked up over it. Just think that when they are talking about you, they are giving other people a rest. Frankly, I never trouble overly much as to what anyone says about me. If it is nice, that's alright, if it is not nice, I know my own life better than anyone else, and I do not bother.

People who take pleasure in blackening another's character generally trip themselves up sooner or later, and show themselves up for the liars and back-biters they are, so that where they thought they were making friends by all their talk, they find that people fight shy of them knowing that if they can do this to you, they can do it to them.

So that sometimes, far from hurting you or depriving you of friends, the tables are turned and they deprive themselves and are more hurt than ever you could be. The thing they did, acted like a boomerang, and rebounded on to themselves.

So, if you have been bothering yourself too much, because someone has been talking about you, just think that your life must show the type of person you are, and the more you bother, the more importance you give it, and right is bound to triumph in the long run.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

ROBERTA'S MAIL

Dear Roberta:

So many times I have felt like writing to you, because every one of your articles are, what shall I call them? "Pennies dropped from Heaven" seem to suit them in a way, as it just seems as if you knew our troubles and wrote about them, the very things we are worrying over. In tonight's Examiner, January 6th, it came so forcibly again. Like you I had the weakness of trying to bear everyone elses worries....I am the mother of six daughters, and four sons.... Have 14 grandchildren, and one great grandchild...I had chords and discords, and I want to endorse what you say, to teach them all we can, and then leave them alone, for some must learn the hard way, and it generally comes out right in the end, if we trust them to God...Excuse pencil please. Hope I have not taken too much of your time...May God bless you and give you strength to continue your work for our dear old Examiner. I have taken it for thirty years. Best wishes from.

"GRANDMA."

Dear "Grandma":

Thank you indeed for such a nice letter, and I am sure as you say, that you could write a book on your experiences. Such a nice long time to read our Examiner, I had to cut it down a little, but I am sure you won't mind. I certainly appreciate your letter, and do write again.

ROBERTA.

Dear Roberta:

I am writing from Woodstock to tell you how I like your articles in the Peterborough Examiner. I write also for another newspaper, and as one fellow-scribe to another, I say more power to your elbow, as you are doing famously. Please destroy this, and I may tell you my name later. Look for——in——paper, and maybe you will like mine too. I write from a man's point of view, and you from a woman's, and I think that is why I like it so much. Just call me "Woodstock" if you reply on your page. Best of luck and good wishes.

Dear "Woodstock",

It was so nice of you to write me like this. Curiously enough I have been getting letters from others who write, but am forbidden by the writers to print them, but all are very encouraging, as I like to write best of all my work. I shall look for your stuff, and if you send your address, will reply. How did you get my address? Thank you.

ROBERTA.

❖ ❖ ❖

Dear Roberta:

Seeing all the letters from your readers in our Evening Examiner recently has given me courage to write. I am a woman who is confined to her bed part of each day, but am in hopes that I will be soon cured of my ailment which is——. It is so hard when you have been active and then have to slow down. You can have no idea how you have cheered my lonely hours, and raised my spirits when I was in the depths of despair, because you just happened to write the thing I needed most at those times. We often discuss what you write, especially——. Do write some more along these lines. I often wish I could see you come in my door for a visit....I feel you are my friend. Sincerely,

"SYLVIA."

Dear "Sylvia",

Of course I am your friend, and so glad to hear from you, and maybe some day I will come in your door, what a nice talk we will have. I am so sorry you are not too well at present, but maybe this is a little interlude, to strengthen you for other things in life, and let you have time to think about them. Of course, if you spend any of these hours fretting, you will get no benefit from them. Many of the things I write you in my column, were thought out on a sick bed. Thank you, and do write again. Hope you are well soon.

ROBERTA.

Dear Roberta,

I am a young married woman, and another one who was married about the same time as I lives near me, and we were wishing you would write about the adjustments couples have to make in this different life. For instance——. Both my husband and I read your articles each night, and there is not one we have not had pleasure from. I know many who read them, and you surely do a lot of good, besides making the Examiner more interesting. We women feel we have something to look forward to each night, besides the news. Try and write about this soon. Thank you for all the pleasure and help I have received from you.

"BRUNETTE."

Dear "Brunette",

Yes indeed, I shall be most happy to write on these subjects. Am so glad if I have given you pleasure and it was nice of you to write, and I hope you will continue to get as much help all the time. Look for the article soon.

ROBERTA.

❖ ❖ ❖

To "Dad". Yes I shall give you an article soon along the lines you suggest. These things can be very aggravating indeed. No one will ever know who you are, so rest assured. Thank you for all the nice things you say about my column, and am glad I am helping so many.

ROBERTA.

To "Amy" and "Alice." Look for what you ask at any early date. Thank you for the phone call. Why not write me sometime? Glad if I have been of help.

ROBERTA.

BORIC ACID GOOD FOR APPLE DISEASE

Botanists Find It Cures Pithy And Brown Spots In Fruit

ITHACA, N.Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—The old eye wash, boric acid, given to apple trees, cures a world-wide apple disease, pithy spots and soft brown spots in the fruit.

An announcement from Cornell University today described the fruit discovery. The college botanists bore a single "eye" in the tree, a hole half an inch across and two deep. Into it they pour borie acid.

A. B. Burrell and H. J. Miller, discoverers of the remedy, gave this explanation:

"Boric acid has proved to be the cure for an apple disease, the nature of which has remained obscure until now. Boric evidently supplies a nutrient deficiency.

"The disease has been known for about 40 years, and in such widely separated regions as the Champlain Valley of New York, British Columbia, Korea and New Zealand."

Tiny sugared doughnuts, about an inch wide, are excellent to serve with afternoon tea.

Charm away chest colds with PENETRO!

What a boon to mothers is the PENETRO jar! When winter winds and weather bring colds in their train, let PENETRO guard you and your children from the dangers of unchecked colds in chest and head.

For PENETRO seems to charm colds away, if used in time. And it's so easy to apply: just rub chest, throat, and back with this snow-white, medicated salve, and feel its gentle warmth penetrating to the very seat of congestion and pain, and its aromatic vapour—released at body temperature—soothing away the irritation of congested nasal passages. And, quickly, the cold has gone!

Just as effective for adults as for children. PENETRO is the friend of the family when colds threaten the health of parent or child. At all druggists: 25c.

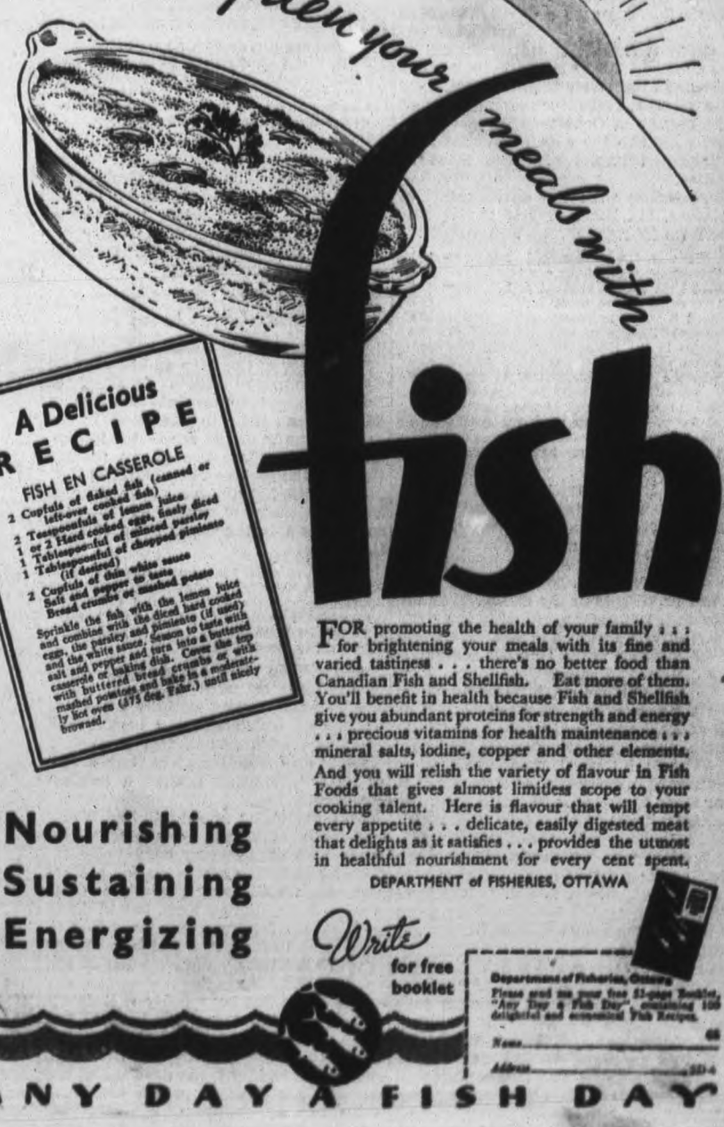
Brighten your meals with fish



A Delicious RECIPE
FISH EN CASSEROLE
2 Cupfuls of flaked fish (canned or left-over cooked fish)
2 Teaspoonfuls of lemon juice
2 or 3 Hard cooked eggs, finely diced
1 Tablespoon-ful of minced parsley
1 Tablespoonful of chopped pimiento (if desired)
2 Cupfuls of thin white sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
Bread crumbs or mashed potato
Sprinkle the fish with the lemon juice and combine with the diced hard cooked egg, the parsley and pimiento (if used) and the white sauce. Season to taste with salt and pepper and turn into a buttered casserole or baking dish. Cover the top with buttered bread crumbs or with mashed potatoes and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. Fahr.) until nicely browned.

Is Our Course Wise?

Three boys from Montreal, each of them 15 years of age, were caught when they emerged from a store in Brockville, which they had entered to secure supplies. There was a dog left in the store at nights and three shots from a .32 automatic were fired at it.

It is related the boys had been for some days making their headquarters at the caretaker's house in a park near the city, which is closed for the winter.

Three boys of 15 years, living in a house far from home, and in possession of an automatic weapon. Ready too to use it to shoot a dog.

About the age of first or second year boys at a collegiate institute—but already crowding up to enter the criminal class.

Nor are they alone; they are merely added to a great company of boys in trouble.

We have at the moment an adult commission for which we are paying good money. The members are moving about the country seeking to find out how we run our penitentiaries. And right in front of us is a greater question: What strange force is driving the youth to crime? It is of more importance to head these young fellows off than it is to consider and study how to deal with them after they finally are placed inside the prison walls?

If we find the water coming out of the tap in the house is bad and unfit for use, we do not call a man to fix the tap. Not at all. We gather experts together and they go forth to find what is wrong with the water. They will trace it if necessary right back to the source in order to find the point of contamination.

If we were wise and very much in earnest we would be doing much the same thing with crime. We would go upstream toward the source, and we would the more gladly do it when we find youth contaminated; youth away from home; youth cuddling an automatic gun; youth breaking and entering premises. Puddling about considering what we will do when youth finally enters prison appears to be aiming at the outer rim instead of shooting at the bullseye.

He Criticizes East Hastings

The Examiner is in receipt of a letter from H. H. Hicks of Toronto. It is published elsewhere on this page. The writer has read in papers of the strange case of the unfortunate man of 60 who has been moving about in this district encountering fiery crosses and dynamite at various places, and seems under the impression that such is rather typical of the district. Mr. Hicks admits he has travelled extensively in the hill districts of Kentucky, and after passing through "the section of Ontario referred to" but once comes to the conclusion that conditions and habits of living must be similar.

Proceeding with the development of his case, Mr. Hicks reverts to the East Hastings by-election. His own view is:

> "It was freely discussed and accepted throughout most of the province at the time that both parties realized and deplored the type of campaign being conducted, but decided it was a necessary evil in view of the general ignorance and illiteracy of the people in the riding. Why should this condition exist in this particular part of the province and not elsewhere? Is the system of education, academic and christian, different from that administered in other parts of the province or is it merely apathy of a reactionary people whose ambitions and powers of reasoning have fluttered and died?"

If Mr. Hicks travelled much through East Hastings riding he would find a variety of conditions. He would learn that such places as Deseronto, Madoc and Tweed were much the same as any other municipality. There are no other towns or villages in the riding. They are pleasant, well advanced, with their full share of refinement and desirable living conditions. He would find the surrounding district the same.

When he turned north he would notice the difference. East Hastings as well as all of Hastings County runs well to the north, even a greater distance that does Peterborough County. When one reaches the northern boundary of Hastings it is not more than 15 or 20 miles from the southern limits of Algonquin Park which is in Nipissing with a small section jutting down into Haliburton. During the time of the election meetings were held in Bancroft, which is not in the East Hastings riding, but the reason for going outside of the riding with meetings was because there was no other place in the district where people were accustomed to go and where a hall was available.

Mr. Hicks or any other person who cares to travel much in the northern part of Hastings and observe conditions, will find people scattered in a land where the problem of existence is at all times acute. It is not good farming country because it is too rocky. Taking out wood is one means of making a living. There are farms in there where the land in the valleys is worked, but the people there have to supplement what they can make from that source as best they can. People trap there but that is not a substantial industry. It does not seem just to apply the word "ignorant" to these people because the degree to which any community or group departs from that class is often bounded by opportunity. Certainly it is plain nonsense to claim the people in East Hastings as a riding had to have a special form of appeal made to them in the recent by-election, or that they would appreciate and understand politics only when it was presented in the form of personal abuse.

Debating or Theorizing?

Members of the House of Commons given to a study of problems of currency and credit have been having a field day to their own liking. The discussion may have a degree of futility in it, but it at least shows that some of the members have been doing a great deal of thinking and reading, and these members are particularly from the West.

W. A. Tucker, M.P., of Rosthern in bringing support to his contention that a bank is enabled to do an amount of business away beyond the limit of its cash reserves quoted from the British Macmillan report:

> "The bank can carry on the process of lending, or purchasing investments, until such time as the credits created, or investments purchased, represent nine times the amount of the original deposit of £1,000 in cash.
> "Given the maintenance of a certain cash base the banks will always in time expand their deposits to a figure of some nine or ten times that base."

Norman Jacques, M.P., of Wetaskiwin, wanted to know what it was he secured when he borrowed money from a bank. He claims the banks can create money, and refuses to believe the banks merely lend out what has been lent to them. He illustrated his argument this way:

> It is still doubted by some that the banks create money. There are still people who tell us that the banks lend simply what is lent to them. Now if 100 members of this chamber go to-morrow morning to a bank and each deposit a ten-dollar bill, there is $1,000. When they come out I go into the bank and I borrow $1,000. If it is true that I have borrowed the money which has just been deposited, then if they will go in and ask the manager where their money is, he will say, "I have lent it to Jacques." But the bankers do not say that. They say, "Of course, your money is here." So there you have $2,000, where only $1,000 existed before, and if that is not creation of money, what is it? I do not know. It is creation in the sense that I understand it.

It is a nice argument as far as it goes, but when Mr. Jacques secured $1,000 from the bank we are quite certain the bank asked for some security, or that the banker would in some way satisfy himself that the money would be returned. In other words, Mr. Jacques would himself have to actually deposit $1,000 worth of credit or security before securing the loan.

We believe people can become more deeply and hopelessly engrossed in discussion on credit, inflation and currency than any other question, including the tariff. One comes to a bit of nice cool water flowing through the debate in the remarks of Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, Minister of Labor, and formerly of the staff of Queen's University:

> "I imagine it is needless for me to tell the House that I do not speak as an expert on monetary questions. I have studied some of these questions for a number of years and I have nothing but envy for those who are able to discuss them with apostolic certainty."

It is a bit refreshing at times to encounter the parliamentarian who admits there are well-defined limits to his ability to at once produce that clarity of judgment and finality of conclusion which would render further research or argument unnecessary.

We Create Our Own Floods

United States has a distinct flood area in the valley of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Probably reports speaking of flood damage running into millions of dollars mean little to most readers because so many events are in the million dollar class today. One draws a little closer to the picture when learning that in Louisville 350 city blocks are flooded, and the element of danger and disaster comes more to the front when reading this report:

> A fleet of small boats was headed toward Eddyville, Ky., from Nashville, Tenn., in an effort to save the inhabitants of the little town at the mouth of the Cumberland River. The water there was expected to go fifteen feet above flood stage.

And fifteen feet above flood stage means exactly what it says. There are well-known and definitely marked heights at which flooding begins, and when one adds fifteen feet to such a mark it means nothing less than a wall of water advancing against a helpless community.

This particular area in United States has been surveyed by engineers for years, and nearly every community affected has built great walls for protection. Such walls may protect a community for a limited time, but in doing so it means forcing greater flooding of some area next in line which is unprotected. Obviously building walls is not the cure.

The cause has been fairly well determined, and the cause has been in the stage of formation for a good many years. It is the old story of the rapid clearing of the land, the draining of the swamps, the removal of the trees and denuding of hillsides of retaining growth. When a period of thaw or heavy rain comes the water rushes down the hills seeking to find its way to the river beds. There are few natural reservoirs to retain it. On the hillsides the water carries the earth with it because there are so few trees and lesser growth to hold the earth firm. This movement of earth and water carries tremendous deposits of mud to existing river beds, and they become deposited on the bottom. That in turn makes the rivers more shallow over the many miles they traverse and the next flood season finds them less able to contain or carry off surplus water.

That great area drained and served by the Ohio and Mississippi rivers is today paying in lives, property damage and sickness for the mad policy of many other years when men hacked down forests and blindly defied the general scheme of things as Nature desired them. We are doing much the same thing in our own country and unless we are willing to change our methods we are going to bring about our own punishment in years not far ahead.

SURRENDERED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My doctor said I was too stout, and like as not I'd get the gout, and I'd have aches and pain; he wrote down things I must not eat, they filled a long impressive sheet, he wrote them very plain.

¶ He gazed in awe upon my size, and said I ought to exercise, I was by far too plump; that I should bend and twist my spine, and do it yet another time, then I should skip and jump.

¶ I cut off pie, I cut off cake, no frosted tarts or things I'd take, at spuds I shook my head; I shivered when my meal time came, lest I should stoke inside my frame, a goodly piece of bread.

¶ I started bending like he said, as soon as I got out of bed, I feared 'twould do me harm; for my old joints were stiff I found, they made a rasping sort of sound, like hinges on a barn.

¶ I had to get some ointment then, for I limped like much-crippled men, and walking hurt a lot; when I went off to bed at nine, I placed six bricks along my spine, and they were heated hot.

¶ And I was hungry all the time, and sore from where I bent my spine, could hardly get about; so I decided I was through, I'd live like what I used to do—and take a chance with gout.

From Parliamentary Report

Mr. R. J. DEACHMAN (Huron North): Speaking in the house a few days ago the hon. member for Lethbridge (Mr. Blackmore) made an appeal to the members of this house for sympathy in regard to conditions existing in western Canada. I am quite sure that appeal will be met almost without being made. We in the House of Commons to-day owe a great debt to the people of western Canada. I would point out that at the present moment there are five political groups in this house. Every one of the leaders of these distinct groups represents a constituency in western Canada. In addition to that we have three provincial ex-premiers. Surely, as far as western Canada is concerned we have sufficient leading in the dominion at the present time. What we need in order to accomplish the desired end, is just a little more light. I appeal to the hon. gentleman who has just spoken, and to his friends, to give us a clearer explanation of what they really intend to do. I listened to my hon. friend this afternoon as closely as I could. He told us of the things that ought to be done, but he did not utter a single word of detail.

He asks for an increase of purchasing power. Purchasing power is something which must be created, not given. If a nation is going to prosper. My hon. friend talks about an island. I do not like his island, it is too large. It is almost as large as the province of Ontario and it does not suit my purpose at the moment. Will hon. members permit me to take them to another island, a nice productive island, large enough to accomodate every hon. member in the house and perhaps some of those who assist us in the work we do here. This is a fertile island and all that is required to bring forth fruit is labour. I ask my hon. friend a question, the answer to which can come during the session from him or some other member of his group: What will be the purchasing power of my hon. friend when he is settled upon that island? What will be his purchasing power at the end of his first year upon the island? I tell the house what I think his answer will be. His purchasing power will be measured exactly by his production.

Every hon. member on that island will bring to the market place the products which he has produced. His capacity to buy or to purchase the goods which others have produced will be determined by the volume and value of the products which he brings to the market place. In time a price system will evolve which will establish the relative price relationships between different products. Not everyone will produce grain or fruit. Perhaps some will make speeches. Some will be civil servants and perhaps we may have a governor on that island. It may be desired to have some music. I would be willing to make a contribution in order that the hon. member for New Westminster (Mr. Reid) might be present. I submit that the purchasing power of that island will depend upon production and there is no other way in which you can increase it.

Then the hon. member for Lethbridge comes upon the scene and says, "We ought to increase the purchasing power." How can you do it? You can do it only by taking from some who have produced and giving it to others. There may be some increase in consuming power through exchange with the other islands which surround you, but the ultimate standard of living on that island will depend upon the productive power of the island and upon the exchanges which take place with the other surrounding islands. I ask my hon. friend to think over this matter very carefully.

I ask my hon. friend and his friends to change, in their imaginations, this island into the province of Alberta. Exactly the same conditions prevail. Will it make any difference how often you change your government in the province of Alberta? Will it help you if you bring out money with stamps on the back of it? Will it help you if you put in a double or triple system of currency? Is there any means by which your consumptive power can be increased except by production, plus favourable exchange? I think my hon. friends ought to give an answer to that question. If they do not give an answer, then I think they ought to try to present to us what they deem to be an answer. We should be given an opportunity to examine it.

I read the platform of the Aberhart party—I cannot call it the social credit party because it certainly is not that—in the papers a few days ago. Its planks have been brought up again by the hon. member for Lethbridge. What does he say? He says that we should have the issuing of debt free money. I should like to know what constitutes debt free money. If I am a farmer in Alberta and want to borrow $500 with which to purchase twenty steers at $25 each in order that I may feed them on my land, can I, under the system proposed by my hon. friend, go to the government and ask for $500? When that is done, can I say to myself that I hold in my hand $500 which I have received from the Alberta government and which will purchase for me twenty steers? Can I say that I have no obligation to pay interest upon it? If that be true, the government of Alberta could give me the twenty steers. It could give me machinery and equipment to any amount, and there would be no interest to pay. Houdini on the stage took rabbits out of his hat—Houdini could not make his living by selling the rabbits. Yet that is the proposal made by my hon. friend.

A NICE POSITION.

(Manchester Sunday Chronicle)

MANY A harassed statesman would jump at the offer of a Ministry of Scenery—with the usual emoluments. Such an appointment is among the less erudite topics discussed at the British Association meeting. As an idea it is worth considering. Every country has scenery, but the British landscape is plus a little something the others haven't got. And, undeniably, we don't look after it as we should. Ministers in the past have been given departments much less worth while than one devoted to the beauty of Britain.

THE HUNTING

EDITOR Examiner.

Sir: I would gather from the expressed opinion of the local Fish and Game Association that they consider that no coon hunting should be allowed at night.

Apparently they have never studied the habits of coons nor know that they are nocturnal animals, and are rarely seen in the daytime.

With a good dog a man with no regard for game laws can get coons in the daytime. By going early in the morning the dog can pick up a coon track and follow it to the den, where the coon passes the day usually in a hollow tree, brush pile or a hole in the ground under a stump or tree. Since standing hollow trees are becoming scarcer coons are more frequently denned in the ground.

By felling the tree, tearing the brush piles apart or digging them from the ground he can get the whole family, sometimes as many as nine, for coons do not mate until they are at least a year old and then late in the year just before freezing up, so that in the den the unscrupulous hunter may get the parents, kittens and yearlings. Of course it is against the law but it is the only way day hunters can get coons.

The night hunter only gets after coons that are on the move and sometimes in the season when coons are fat they do not leave the den for nine days and then they go mostly singly or at the most two or three together so that the night hunter never gets after a whole family.

When the coons are treed the night hunter can use a light and glasses to see if the coon he has treed is large and prime and if he is considering the future will not knowingly kill kittens or unprime coons, so that the day hunter is an exterminator of coons, destroying families and homes while the night hunter is a conserver of game.

With respect to shooting I can only ask, should not a dumb animal be always killed in the most humane way possible? When shot through the head it has no realization of pain. Of course the legal way is to shake or club it out of the tree and kill it with clubs or let the dogs finish it. What could be more barbarous?

It may be against the law to shoot coons at night but I do not believe coons were thought of when the laws were being framed. Was not the law first made to protect against shooting ducks and other waterfowl with a light in a marsh at night.

What could be more inhuman than trapping them and allowing them to remain in the trap until the foot drops off, I catch coons with feet off every fall.

Thus I contend that if the law prohibits coon hunters from shooting with a light at night in the interests of true sportsmanship it should be changed as far as coons are concerned and the only legal way to take coons should be as it is in the United States, where they have apparently studied the problem, by shooting them at night with the aid of powerful light.

Then I believe all coon hides should be inspected by a game official before being offered for sale to ascertain if they have been taken before the season.

HUMANE HUNTER.

IN EAST HASTINGS

EDITOR Examiner.

Sir: Unfortunately we read, that Ontario "Crackers" are "feudin'" again. I refer to the cruel intimidation and persecution of the family at Coe Hill. Granted, I do not know the reason for it neither do the general public; perhaps you have a good and sufficient reason for not enlightening us. The fact remains however, that if the victims are guilty of violating the law—civil or moral—constituted authority, of which there is plenty in Ontario, should be the ones to decide their fate and not the unruly ignorant mob.

At too frequent intervals this portion of the province enters the limelight, always in the same garb—that of intolerance which betrays mass ignorance. The recent by-election in which both parties had to resort to disgusting tactics to bring their arguments before the electors was not, as many believed, a reflection on the parties themselves but rather on the people to whom they were addressing their remarks. It was freely discussed and accepted throughout most of the province at the time that both parties realized and deplored the type of campaign being conducted at the time but decided it was the necessary evil in view of the general ignorance and illiteracy of the people in the riding. Why should this condition exist in this particular part of the province and not elsewhere? Is the system of education, academic and christian, different from that administered in other parts of the province or is it merely apathy of a reactionary people whose ambitions and powers of reasoning have fluttered and died.

I have travelled extensively in the hill districts of Kentucky and Tenessee and have studied the customs and habits of the people. While I have only passed through the section of Ontario referred to I was immediately impressed with the similarity of the two peoples in appearance, habits and general code of living. I think you will agree that this condition should not be permitted to endure or grow in this wealthy province of Ontario.

Respectfully yours,
H. H. Hicks.

When a Letter Was a Work of Art.

(From the New Statesman and Nation.)

SOME business took me the other day to the British Museum. On the way out I lingered for a moment and lifted a cover or two from the glass cases in the manuscript room. It is always interesting to see how Milton, Keats, or Wordsworth mended their faulty phrases.

But what impressed me on this occasion was not the genius of the poets, but their handwriting. Each hand was not only full of character, as one might expect, but it was also beautiful to look at; the page was a work of art. And yet many of the pages in this case were chance scraps—letters written presumably, as we write them, to catch the post. There was no self-consciouness about them; they were not written with an eye to posterity gazing at them in glass cases, for when they were written, glass cases and museum were not in existence.

The writers had taken pains, if indeed they took pains at all, only for a friend or a printer. Yet if one compared them with the letters which we now write and receive daily, it was impossible not to conclude that handwriting has changed considerably for the worse. We are satisfied enough to be deciphered, and some of my friends do not worry even about legibility. Not once in 12 months do we pause, as we open a letter, to admire the beauty of the handwriting.

The obvious explanation — that neither we nor our correspondents are Keats, Lamb or Shelley—is not enough. The most obscure writers—writers whose private letters still lie in the family archives—are as clear, often as artistically satisfactory as the great. If we excuse ourselves by saying that we write in haste, we must remember that the typewriter takes a great deal of work off our pens and that our letters are shorter; besides, it is easier to put off writing to the last moment when there is only one post out a week than when there are five a day.

Further, and even more difficult to account for, is the fact that 20th century handwriting seems to have no common character. Each of us pursues his own method, to write slanting forwards or backwards or upright or large or small, as his fancy moves him. In the age of the machine-made man one would have expected the opposite.

A Cow-Milking Contest.

(From the New York Herald-Tribune.)

MISS ELSA MAXWELL on Saturday night gave one of the unusual entertainments of the year, a rustic party in honor of Mrs. James A. Corrigan and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst at the Waldorf-Astoria. Her guests included several hundred members of society and stars of the theatre and motion pictures. The jade and basildon rooms represented a farmyard and cows, sheep, chickens, geese and a small donkey were seen in realistic surroundings.

Miss Maxwell received in the basildon room. The guests wore ginghams, calicos and overalls, simulating farmerettes, country lassies and milkmaids, country squires and farmhands, shepherdesses and farmers' daughthers.

To reach the farmyard in the jade room the guests climbed a stile. They found themselves under a blue Summer sky, surrounded by haycocks, chicken coops, trees, and the front of a large typical barn. In one corner of the room an old-fashioned well flowed beer.

The Fairchild and Collins orchestra and a hillbilly band played for dancing. Leo Reisman was a guest conductor. The evening was enlivened by impromptu entertainment by many stage personalities.

The high spot of the evening was a cow-milking contest in which several amateur participated. Miss Maxwell presented prizes for a hog-calling contest and many other activities related to the barnyard but not often witnessed in a New York ballroom.

GETTING READY.

(London Daily Mail)

THE DOORS of Westminster Abbey were shut last week and will not again be flung wide until the lofty solemnities of May 12. To deck the great church with bliss and silver for the Coronation and to enlarge the seating capacity from 2,000 to over 8,000 is a labour for which four months are necessary. Very suitably, it has been decided to give the public opportunity of beholding the transformation, and the setting for the gorgeous scene will be preserved for some weeks after the Coronation. Visible signs that "the King's crowning" draws near are multiplying. The stands along the route begin to rise—skeletons of steel and wood that will later be festively apparelled. The streets are unusually populous; and the shops are doing a trade that is a foretaste of a bustling, thriving 1937.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

(Ottawa Journal.)

THE announcement that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will present a series of programs under the general heading of "Night Shift" and the direction of Robert T. Bowman, depicting the Canadian scene in many phases, should be a cause for satisfaction among those who look to their local station for something better than a pale copy of the best the world can offer its radio listeners.

"Night Shift" is to originate at the scene and not in the studio—and the series will give us such things as operations in a coal mine, an Atlantic lighthouse, a fox farm, the hold of a freighter from South America, a pulp and paper mill, a grain elevator, a newspaper office, the Royal Mint, and many others equally characteristic of the Dominion's life and activities.

Listeners will welcome this series, we think, and public opinion will commend the C.B.C. for its enterprise, its effort to translate good intentions into reality. But everything will depend, of course, on the effectiveness with which the Canadian scene is presented by Mr. Bowman, who has returned to Ottawa with valuable experience gained in the British Broadcasting Corporation.

They can find examples worth copying in the Empire broadcasts of some recent Christmas Days. And they can find specimens to avoid in much current broadcasting from United States stations—over-emphasis, the shrill hysteria of persons being extremely dramatic over trifles. If the scenes are given with good taste, naturalness, restraint, something interesting and instructive in Canadian radio will have been accomplished.

THE HUNT FOR GOLD.

(North Bay Nugget)

"THEY'RE looking for another mine under Timmins; under houses, yards, and streets of the town proper," says the Porcupine Advance in a recent issue.

The hunt for precious gold in the Porcupine region has become so intense miners' drills are now being put down even in residential areas. Exploration by dynamiting is the customary follow-up if the drills bring up the desired results. Surely the gold-seekers will be able to pursue their work without undermining the modern city to a dangerous degree.

Very few mining towns, however, have escaped mining under business districts and residential areas. In the balmy days of Cobalt drills couldn't be heard at work and blasts would shake buildings as the citizens slept. And it wasn't uncommon for visitors to experience a sleepless night in their first 24 hours in the camp.

DEATH ON ROADS.

(London Times)

THE figures of road accidents in 1936 are grim. The number of the killed was 6,489 and the number of the injured was 225,689. During the Boer War the total in our army killed in action was 5,744 and the number wounded 22,830. Those are the figures for a war that lasted two years and eight months. There were fewer killed in action than the yearly total of the killed on our peaceful roads and but a tenth of the injured. What are the road casualties of the whole world no one can compute.

Towns Are Isolated

A rising river stage left fully 25,000 homeless and hungry at Portsmouth. At Pomeroy, Ohio, the 3,500 residents were without power or gas. Bellaire and Bridgeport were virtually isolated. Governor Martin L. Davey called a special legislative session at Columbus to appropriate $250,000 for flood relief. Fully 4,500 workmen already were on the job.

Fire also menaced Augusta, Ky., as an oil drum burst. The town was almost deserted.

Refugees streamed from Paducah, as water rose through the business area. From 15,000 to 20,000 of the city's 34,000 residents were expected to be evacuated by nightfall.

Covington and Newport, Ky. reported food shortages and virtual isolation.

Memphis, Tenn., got word that three small gaps had been made in the Mississippi River levee above Hickman, Ky., where farmers stopped U.S. army engineer seeking to release the river into the Birds Point-New Madrid, Mo., floodway.

They sought in this manner to relieve Cairo, Ill., where 12,000 residents were endangered as the river level reached 58.08 feet on a 60-foot floodwall. Mayor August Bobe warned women and children to flee.

Governor Henry Horner went into southern Illinois, where fully 20,000 were refugees in seven counties. At Shawneestown, about two thirds of the city's 1,500 population was being carried out by boats.

15 Convicts Killed?

FRANTFORT, Ky., Jan. 25 (AP).—Reports of rioting among prisoners and the killing of at least 15 convicts filtered today past the flood-bound walls of Kentucky's largest penitentiary. Confirmation was handicapped by a strict censorship.

Gov. A. B. Chandler, after a boat tour of the century-old prison, said:

"We don't know how many, if any, are dead. We will have no idea what the real situation is until the water goes down."

Flood waters, covering four-fifths of Kentucky's capital city, flowed six feet deep in the prison grounds for the first time since 1883. Confined there are 2,900 prisoners.

National guardsmen, on duty at the prison since Friday, said at least 15 convicts were dead. Informants would not permit use of their names.

Whispering convicts, taken out of the prison in boats for jails in nearby cities and to a stockade camp near Frankfort, told of fierce fighting between white and negro prisoners.

May Abandon Prison.

Warden James Hammond and Adjt.-General John Kelly, handling all information out of the prison, said there was trouble, but denied anyone had been killed.

W. F. Arbogast, Associated Press reporter, forced by flood conditions to telephone his story to Columbus, O., said shots could be heard intermittently inside the prison walls.

Chandler said the huge prison, located in the heart of Frankfort near the Kentucky River, which had risen to a stage 47 feet—16 feet above flood stage—would be abandoned.

Prisoners were removed from third tiers until they could be taken flooded cellblocks to second and out three and four at a time in boats.

There was no heat, power, water, or communication into the institution. Food was carried in by boat.

Guards patrolled the institution in boats, training high-powered rifles toward the cell blocks, where convicts made a wholesale break for freedom last Friday.

Eighty women prisoners were removed first to a building about a block away. Some were in temporary hospital, ill from exposure.

Calls For All to Flee.

The brightest dawn in four days brought some revival of spirits to Louisville, but Mayor Neville Miller urged al residents to evacuate. The river reached 54.9 feet shortly after dawn. Government Meteorologist J. L. Kendall predicted an unprecedented level of approximately 58 feet by to-morrow.

As the rising Ohio reached a 79.1 foot stage at Cincinnati, the worst fire in the city's 143 year history broke out anew, but was controlled by firemen. The city will receive but four hours of water daily on rationing. Pumps were out of operation. Electric power was rationed also. Hospitals, police and fire de-

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 25. — Confidence returned to the wheat market on Saturday after prices had declined to 11 cents a bushel under the seasonal highs established last month. Off sharply at the opening, values rallied briskly on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to close ⅛ cent higher to as much lower on the day.

Indications of an over-sold condition were apparent as the reaction from Saturday's world-wide recession got under way. Renewed liquidation at the start was short-lived and as fresh buying appeared selling petered out.

Helping to rally prices were export sales of 300,000 bushels and confirmation of the recent purchase by Germany of a cargo of Canadian and one of Argentine wheats.

Cash-grains spreads held about unchanged. Coarse grains prices rallied with wheat. Rye was a standout, up nearly three cents a bushel net.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Jan. 25 — (C.P.) — Lamb prices eased 50 cents on the Toronto Livestock Market to-day. Cattle trade was dull and prices about steady. Calves and sheep sold around previous levels. The hog market was unsettled by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Thursday was 200 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 2,780; calves, 350; hogs, 1,240; sheep and lambs, 1,330.

Only about 500 head of cattle were traded by early afternoon. Medium to good weighty steers brought $5.25 to $6.50, with a few choice heavies at $6.75 to $7.10. Good butcher steers were from $5.50 to $5.75. Top heifers reached $6.50. Common butcher cattle sold down to $4.25. Cows went at $3.75 to $4 for best quality and canners and cutters at $1.75 to $2.50.

Fed calves were firm at $7.50 to $8 for choice, medium ranging downward to $5.50.

Choice calves were steady at last week's close of $10 to $10.50. Common were as low as $5.

Indications pointed to a steady to firm close on the hog division. Previous close for off truck bacons was $8.25.

The lamb supply included 1,000 Westerns. Good lambs were priced at $10, and common downward to $7.50. Sheep brought $5 to $5.50 for good light ewes. Light Western sheep sold at $5.75.

G.M. AIMS TO OPEN SEVERAL PLANTS

Executives Await Call From Washington To Join Conference

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—(AP).—General Motors Corporation proceeded to-day with preparations to reopen some plants as its executives awaited a summons to meet in Washington Wednesday for a peace conference with automotive strike leaders.

At the Corporation's office here it was said no statement would be made on the request until official word was received from United States' Secretary of Labor, Frances Perkins.

The headquarters of the United Automobile Workers of America, which called the strikes, signified the Union would accept the invitation.

Union picket lines formed to-day before the entrances of the Fleetwood and Cadillac Motor Company plants in Detroit and prevented office workers from entering. There was no disorder.

Cadillac and Fleetwood are two units which sit down strikers evacuated a week ago when it appeared negotiations were about to begin with General Motors executives.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors, said he hoped to be able to return 95,000 of the 125,000 idle employees to work but made no announcement as to which plants would resume operations. The re-openings are scheduled to begin to-morrow.

bulance. He died on the way to hospital.

Early today when Crabbe went down into the cellar of the Wentworth Motors, a man, hiding behind a door, attacked him. In the skirmish, Crabbe was struck about the head and finally subdued and tied up by his assailant.

Meantime, Crabbe began to shout for assistance. Harry Laidman, night operator at a Lennox service station, heard him and notified police, who entered the premises by a side door which the burglar left open.

Crabbe appeared none the worse for his experience when police arrived, and after relating the events which led up to the attack, and giving police a description of the thug, went on with his work until shortly before 9 o'clock.

Walking to his home, however, the watchman collapsed. Whether he suffered fatal injuries in the scuffle with the thug, or from the fall, has not been determined.

TWIN LOSES FIGHT DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Windsor Fire Brigade Administer Oxygen To Remainder Of Family

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 25 (CP). — Seven-year-old Marlynn Schaefer, one of five members of a family who have been waging a battle against pneumonia for the past week, died in hospital today. One of twin boys, Marlynn had been in hospital since Tuesday. From the outset fears were held he would not recover as he was most seriously ill of the four receiving treatment at hospital.

Marlynn's twin brother, Myron, is being watched anxiously and no change was noted in his condition today. Mrs. Schaefer and baby Larroy, seven months, were said to have shown improvement, and it is believed they will recover. Four-year-old Lester, Jr., most recent victim, is being treated at his home.

Members of the fire department rescue squad are still on duty at the hospital, administering oxygen to members of the family as required to aid their breathing. They were summoned Wednesday.

LAD CONFESSES HOLD-UP FAKED

Spent Employer's Money In Slot Machines, He Later Tells Police

Investigation by city police late Saturday night of the reported hold-up of a drug store messenger, resulted in the subsequent confession some hours later by the lad that he had lost a sum of money belonging to his employers in slot machines.

Cycling to the police station around ten o'clock p.m., the lad reported he had been held-up and robbed by two men while out on a lonely section of Bonaccord street. Furnishing a minute description of the alleged pair of robbers, he stated one of them had asked him, "Do you have a nickel buddy?"

When he told the pair he had no money, only that belonging to his employers, the lad claimed they demanded that he "hand it over." Investigating the lad's story, Inspector James F. Reid, Detective-Sergeant William Meagher and Constable William Piercy hurried to the scene of the supposed hold-up.

Later it was stated, the officers obtained an admission from the lad that he had invented the story of the hold-up, to account for the sum of $8.95 which was missing. He had in his possession $3.47.

Canada Life

Annual Report Reflects Improving Conditions

In addressing the Annual Meeting of Shareholders and Policyholders on Jan. 21, Mr. Leighton McCarthy, K.C., President, said in part:

"Canada has during the last few years been steadily climbing the somewhat steep ascent leading out of the Depression which enveloped her and other parts of the world. Now she appears to have successfully reached a point from which can be viewed, as in panorama, the foundation for such faith, hope, courage and confidence as is evidenced by this and other Annual Reports of Financial and Industrial Institutions which have been recently presented to various bodies of Shareholders.

We are thus—unless overindulgence creates another attack of indigestion, which God forbid!—led to believe that Canada is entering upon another era of prosperity."

Mr. A. N. Mitchell, Vice-President and General Manager, who also addressed the Meeting, stated:

"No country is more richly endowed with natural resources than Canada. Each year shows new records in their development. These resources were not lost during the depression. Their development may have been momentarily retarded but the ability to create new vast wealth from agriculture, fisheries, forests and mines is still as great as ever. . . .

" . . . Our predecessors and ancestors in this country fought the forces of nature to produce for us an opportunity such as has been given to few people in the history of the world. If we have inherited the characteristics of our forefathers—and I believe we have—our present problems will not be solved by evading them. They will be solved by using the resources bequeathed to us in such abundance and by using the brains, brawn and courage also bequeathed us to develop them. Our salvation will not be found through arbitrarily destructive laws. It will be found in progressive thinking and a determination to build a better and greater Canada—or in other words, in the individual initiative and courage of our citizens.

"The difficulties need not be minimized. I believe our people, both debtors and creditors, if properly led, have the courage to approach them as problems to be solved through the application of that common sense and common honesty which produces a true co-operation.

"Sectional prejudices have no place in such a common sense co-operation.

session and see in the meantime what the other municipalities were contributing was made. Reeve Tanner and others urged that if action was to be taken, it should be taken immediately.

Reeve George Mullen of Smith moved an amendment that $150 be granted. Reeve James Gifford suggested that $100 be given "for the time being," indicating that a further grant could be considered at the June session. He was seconded by Reeve James Milby of North Monaghan and the amendment calling for $100 grant passed with only the vote of Mr. Griffiths against it.

Overnight discussion apparently reconciled Council members to the plea made by Reeve Mullen Friday that the five-mile stretch of township road leading north through Smith from the Filtration Plant on Highway 28 be taken into the county road system. The motion had been turned down Friday with stiff opposition voiced from several chairs in the Chamber, but discussion was re-opened Saturday and Reeve Mullen's motion was put through without the sounding of a single objection.

Decision Reversed

Reeve Griffith, one of those who had voted against the motion Friday, seconded the motion Saturday and explained that, on thinking it over, he had come to the conclusion Reeve Mullen's request was a fair one. Reeve E. N. McDonald, Dummer, the leader of Friday's opposition, said he had been thinking the matter over and had come to the same conclusion.

The matter of the road rate for 1937 was then re-opened, the rate having been set at 2 mills Friday. Reeve Griffith moved that it be set at 2.3 mills.

Reeve Milby moved an amendment that it be set at 2 mills, arguing that 2 mills would bring more money than 2.3 mills did last year. He also urged that the County save the extra expense involved in the new five-mile addition of road by handing back to Otonabee township the five-mile road from Coldsprings to Wallace Point Bridge. He pointed out that Otonabee has 60 miles of improved roads.

Laid Over

Reeve Anderson of Otonabee rose to urge that the matter of County roads be looked upon by the councillors with a bigger view, not allowing the jealousies in connection with the equalized assessment system to interfere. He said Otonabee would be willing to take back some road mileage off the County hands but would like until the June sessions to look the situation over and decide what would make for a better balanced road plan in the township. Reeve Milby said Mr. Anderson's attitude was quite acceptable to him.

Reeves Gifford and Mullen moved an amendment that the road rate be set at 2.2 mills and the amendment carried on a vote.

A move that the County allow township clerks $1.50 for the task of making out each application for Old Age Pensions was defeated when Reeve Milby objected that there were too many little extras for municipal officials. "Every time a person gets a job here he tries to add to his salary by doing extra work," he said. People can't do that in regular business, he said.

Rebuke

Reeve Tanner aimed a rebuke at Ontario newspapers at the same time as he voiced an expression of appreciation to the press for the manner in which the session had been reported. Newspapers have been criticizing other employers for continuing low wage scales despite the improvement in economic conditions but are still paying their own reporters, many of whom are university graduates, unreasonably low wages, he declared. He urged the Council to pass a resolution deploring the practice.

Reeve Milby gave the opinion the County Council had no right to criticise others in view of the fact it is paying its own workers only 22 cents an hour, and no further action was taken in the matter.

Cabins Now Replaced By Two Storey Homes

One of the ramshackle cabins that once were homes of Dokis and Restoul Indians is shown. These cabins are now replaced by modern two-storey houses. TOP is a covered Indian grave—the roof added to protect the dead brave's hunting equipment which is placed atop the grave. At the LEFT is a Dokis Indian girl of 1937. Note the stylish clothing worn by this good-looking belle.

CAVAN INSTITUTE SECURES LIBRARY

Books Now Available For Use Of Community Meeting Informed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Jan. 25—Cavan Women's Institute convened for their January meeting at Mrs. J. W. Perrin's home on Thursday afternoon, with a good attendance of members. The roll call was answered by naming an export or import of New Zealand. Mrs. Perrin reported that a dozen Christmas cards, boxes of fruit and flowers had been sent at the Christmas season and when illness or bereavement occurred in Institute families.

Mrs. L. Sutton reported two dollars spent to brighten the Christmas of a lad of ten years.

Mrs. Matchett reported the delivery of a quilt from the Institute to a home in need.

A travelling library had been secured from the U.F.O. Toronto, and was announced ready for the use of the community without charge. The only expense in connection with the library is that the borrowing society pays the cost of transportation on arrival.

The correspondence brought acknowledgment of fruit, clothing, and plants received, and appreciation expressed for the same.

There was correspondence concerning township boards for rural schools. Discussion followed.

An Upholstering Course

The secretary was requested to write concerning the course on "upholstering furniture," which was expected to be available in and after the month of March.

It was decided that the local Institute would like to take it in May, and Mrs. L. Sutton was appointed to take the "leaders' course," in connection with it.

Group VII, whose convenor is Mrs. Melville Carr, will be in charge of the February meeting. The roll call will be answered by a health hint or exercise.

Mesdames Byers, Kennedy and Carr were named as a committee to arrange for a social evening under the auspices of the Women's Institute.

During the program, Mrs. Ray Syer was accompanist for community singing.

Mrs. R. S. Staples and Mrs. Perrin each read interesting and informative papers on New Zealand. Mrs. C. Smith read, "In Memory of George A. Putnam," who had been superintendent of Women's Institues for thirty years, and also a short poem, appropriate for the New Year, entitled, "Begin To-day," after which Mrs. Matchett moved that the meeting adjourn.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

CAMPBELLFORD

HE COOLS OFF IN ICY TRENT WATER

Hamilton Life - Saver Gives Campbellford Folk Thrill By January Swim

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 25.—Two hundred spectators lined the bridge early Saturday afternoon to watch a man in swimming. The "human seal" as he is called, apparently could take it because while spectators stood chilled through while they waited for him to do the swim act he lay calmly on the cement that skirts the water and seemed to enjoy an ice cream cone

The swimmer, whose real name, Krikor Hekimiam is just about as hard to pronounce as it is to spell, hails from Hamilton, where he works as a life saver in the summer. The beaches being rather deserted at this season he takes this means of drawing a crowd.

Takes Up Collection.

The collection after two performances Saturday amounted to $22.65, which should go a long way toward a new pair of swimming trunks. However, that is the way this young 23 year old Armenian life saver has chosen of making a living during the skating season.

He has numerous feats to his credit. Among them he mentions swimming across the Niagara river between Niagara Falls, Ont., and Lewiston, N.Y., a distance of 1,800 feet in five and one-half minutes. Some weeks ago he followed an ice breaker around in the Bay of Port Arthur where he says the water is much colder than in Lake Ontario. To keep in condition this 182 pound swimmer takes a dip every morning and Saturday he offered $25.00 to anyone who would go in with him. Back in 1932 he was one of the entrants in the Exhibition swim who did not finish and that was because the water was too warm.

be brought down before the budget or as part of it.

With the remarkable progress made last week when the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne was concluded in one day and the main estimates brought down that same night, the desire on all sides to facilitate business was apparent. The suggestion has been made that Thursdays henceforth be devoted to government business.

Under the House rules Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays are reserved for private members' motions for the first four weeks of the session, after which Thursdays pass over to the use of the government. Generally the debate on the address having right of way, steals a number of days set aside for private members but this session it only took one. Therefore, it is contended, private members could give up Thursdays and still have time to debate the 19 resolutions they have on the order paper.

power from a river boat. The Ohio was at 54.2 feet, more than 26 above flood point, and another two feet rise was in prospect. Louisville police were under orders to "shoot to kill" all looters as food supplies dwindled.

Mayor Neville Miller asked all citizens to evacuate who could. He estimated Louisville and suburbs had 200,000 homeless.

Officials of the state reformatory at Frankfort began evacuating prisoners by boat. The number killed in the rioting was not definitely known, although one guard estimated 16. The bodies sank in six feet of water which covered the prison floor and grounds.

Red Cross advices said the most critical flood area was between Louisville and Ballard, Ky.

Martial law was in force throughout the flood belt of Southern Indiana. Governor M. Clifford Townsend directed relief authorities to commandeer trains and trucks to transport about 55,000 refugees to cities as far north as Indianapolis.

Worst Yet to Come

Director W. J. Moxom of the United States Weather Bureau's Flood Forecasting Service, said it might be 10 days to two weeks before the Ohio's crest met the Mississippi River at Cairo, Ill. He said emergency flood conditions might continue for a month and that if lower Mississippi tributaries reached flood stage coincidentally "things would be pretty bad for the lowlands."

HASTINGS

AUXILIARY SHOWS YEAR OF PROGRESS

Annual Meeting St. George's, Hastings, W. A. Is Enthusiastic

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 25. — The annual meeting of St. George's Woman's Auxiliary was held at the home of the treasurer, Miss D. Plant, on Thursday afternoon, with the vice-president presiding. It was decided that the W.A. hold the annual afternoon tea on Thursday, February 4, at the home of Miss Plant from 4 to 6.30 p.m. Splendid reports for the past year were submitted by the secretaries and treasurers of the Junior and Senior branches.

The Junior Auxiliary annual report submitted by Misses Doreen Hazelwood and Miss Bernice Dainard was as follows: Membership 14, 26 meetings were held with an average attendance of nine; Mission study book was completed, and examinations written; five received seals and one a silver pin; a bale was sent to the Empty Stall at the annual in Toronto, containing 1 cot quilt, 2 nighties, 2 gertrudes, 2 binders, 2 vests, 7 knitted bonnets, and 6 diapers; three beautiful electric light shades were given to the church at Easter; ten members attended the Peterborough Deanery meeting; pledges were paid in full. In connection with the Senior Auxiliary bazaar, the juniors had a sale of fancy work which added financially to their success.

Senior Auxiliary.

The Senior Auxiliary reports were given by the treasurer, Miss Plant, and secretary Mrs. R. King, and were as follows: Membership 10, life members 2, average attendance 5, number of meetings 28, with 9 devotional and business meetings, 6 church calendars were sold, 7 subscribed for the Living Message, $5.00 was contributed to the Extra-Cent-a-Day Fund, and $4.10 to the Little Helpers' Fund, $4.00 was donated as a life member's offering to the Dr. Haslam Fund, $5.00 sent to the President's Jubilee Fund, $15.00 towards buying equipment for the Aklavik Hospital, and $1.00 towards the matron's salary. The treasurer gave a complete set of embroidered church linen as her Lenten offering, and a supply of baby clothes was sent to the Empty Stall. The rectory study was papered. A bale of new and second-hand clothing was sent to the Rev. Horace E. Ashmore of Paddockwood, Sask., at Christmas. Pledges were paid in full, 16 quilts were quilted, two afternoon teas and a Christmas bazaar were held, and the proceeds were most encouraging. After all obligations were met the Auxiliary was able to make a splendid donation to the church wardens.

DEBENTURE DEBT AMOUNTS TO $68,184

Municipalities Owe Hastings County $172,431 In Rates Auditor Reports

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 25.—The outstanding debenture debt of Hastings county amounted to $68,184 on Dec. 31, according to the auditor's report presented at the concluding session of Hastings county council in Shire hall. Municipalities owe the county $172,431 in rates, indigent accounts and interest charges, the report disclosed.

Accounts receivable were $55,997, and accounts payable $21,177; indigent accounts were $7,822 during the year, and cost of operating county council, $2,747.

A motion that the county pay only the cost of equalization of the assessments that were ordered by the equalization board was passed. Dr. S. S. Lumb of Bancroft stated the townships should pay their own lawyers.

The roads and bridges committee and Henry Larkin of Tyendinaga were appointed delegates to the good roads convention; and Warden Wesley Gray and Earle Denyes, county clerk, delegates to the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities convention in Toronto in February.

A grant of $200 was given for the boundary road between Lake and Wellington townships, and $100 to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. A grant of $75 was given to the Salvation Army of Toronto for care of unmarried mothers.

England's 1,152 cooperative societies now have 7,[illegible] members.

Northern Ontario's Indians Richest 'Redmen' In Canada

Dokis And Restoul Indians Get Interest On Million Dollar Sale Of Timber

LIVE LIKE WHITE MAN

By NETTIE N. MAGDER

SUDBURY, Ont., Jan. 25—Thirty years after selling their magnificent timber lands for a million dollars, the Dokis and Restoul Indians of Dokis Bay, near Sturgeon Falls, have lost the mode of living usually attributed to the red man. It might even be said that they lost the "knack" of being Indians. Said by those in authority to be the richest Indians in all Canada, they went to Sturgeon Falls from Dokis Bay in 1906 and squandered their first payment of more than $100,000 on everything upon which they set eyes.

It is 20 miles by water from Dokis Bay on the French river, to Sturgeon Falls, on Lake Nipissing. Possibly any white colony of 170 persons who lived by trapping and fishing and then suddenly were given $100,000 would act just as peculiarly. At any rate, old-timers of Sturgeon Falls have never forgotten that first payment.

Bought Useless Things.

The Indians crossed from Dokis Bay to Sturgeon Falls and bought musical instruments which they could not play, farm implements which they did not know how to use, expensive canned foods which they had always longed to taste. They purchased jewelry and trinkets of all sorts, expensive fishing and hunting equipment, rifles which they did not know how to handle, and fine clothes which they had always secretly longed to wear. Even horses were bought, although there are no roads on Dokis Bay. For months after that first distribution big boats were busy transporting freight from Sturgeon Falls to the Indian reserve at Dokis Bay.

"These Indians who used to take their muskrats for sale 125 miles by water to Penetanguishene to eke out a living just simply went wild when $100,000 was suddenly paid them," W. L. Fortier, justice of the peace of Sturgeon Falls, related. Mr. Fortier lived in Sturgeon Falls when the first distribution was made, and is the personal friend of most members of the tribe.

Now Have Modern Homes.

"Gradually the novelty of so much money wore off and they became more sensible. With a beautiful little church and a school on their property they now lead normal, happy lives but have lost the characteristics of Indians. No more paddling or trapping. Instead of birch bark canoes they own 30 and 40-foot motor launches. Instead of living in wigwams or shacks and wandering all over the country, they now own attractive two-storey frame dwellings. In the summer they earn extra money guiding the many tourists up and down the French river, in and out among its islets," Mr. Fortier continued.

The Dokis and Restoul Indians now get only the interest on the million dollars which is legally theirs. Old Chief Alex. Dokis, now dead, was a wily chief, and realized that so much money would probably prove disastrous to his flock if it was given them in a lump sum. He agreed to sign the timber contract only after it was carefully outlined that the Indians would be given the interest on their money, and that the principal would be saved in case of emergency.

Get $130 Each Half-Yearly.

As a result the mother, father, and each child on the Dokis and Restoul reserve, more commonly known as Dokis Bay Indian reserve receives from the government $130 twice a year. The head of a family of six children therefore receives $2,080 a year from treaty money alone.

Many families on the reserve receive $4,000, while it is said that the income of the present chief totals $6,000. Considering that they pay no taxes, have all the fish in the river merely for the catching and all the game they wish to shoot, their lot in life is the envy of many a white man of their area. As they ride their motor launches down the river through scenery that American tourists pay thousands of dollars to visit, they seem to be enjoying life to the utmost. Many white men of Sturgeon Falls, understanding a little of the Indian language, have caught sentences of contempt when the Dokis Indians talk amongst themselves — contempt of the white man's eternal struggle for a living.

Helps Keep Town.

The Abitibi mill town of Sturgeon Falls has fallen into sorry days since the $4,000,000 mill closed in 1929. Storekeepers say that the money the Dokis and Restoul Indians spend in Sturgeon Falls now is one of the few remaining means of maintaining the town. The biannual Indian pay-days are somewhat of a godsend.

Ex-Canadian Held

Alcido (Frenchy) Benoit, paroled ex-convict and former native of Ontario, who is held at Monroe, Mich., on a charge of kidnapping and slaying a state trooper. Benoit was captured after the greatest manhunt in Michigan history, which began with finding of the trooper's body manacled to a mail box with his own handcuffs. The trooper had been taking Benoit to headquarters for questioning when the alleged kidnapping took place.

HAVELOCK

Miss Margaret Jones is in Campbellford visiting Mrs. James Gray.

Among the many in Toronto over the week-end were Miss Donna Buchanan, Mrs. Donald Holdcroft, Miss Grace Ketchen, Miss Edna Haig, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mathison, Mr. H. H. Turner, Mr. Max Warne, Mr. Noel Lade, Mr. Wesley Clarke, Mr. Francis Voyer and Mr. Fred McKenzie.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Lancaster were home for the week-end from Toronto where the former is attending the present session of the Legislature.

Mr. Ray Moir, of Victoria was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Roberts.

Pupils of Havelock High School have entered with enthusiasm the rehearsals for their annual Commencement to be held on February 4 and 5. They will present an entirely different type of program this year, than anything previously attempted, having enlisted the services of Norman Lake, of the John B. Rogers Producing Company, world's largest producers of amateur theatricals, who will direct them in a musical comedy entitled "It's A Knockout."

At a special meeting of the Town Council the date for the nomination meeting, to fill the existing vacancies on the Public School Board and Hydro Commission, was set for Tuesday, February 2nd.

Mrs. Jack Buchanan of Toronto was visiting friends in town over the week-end.

Miss Verna Isaac was the guest of Mrs. H. G. Carleton of Norwood for a few days last week.

Mr. Harry Bush of Toronto was in town Sunday renewing old acquaintances.

Mrs. Walter Varty returned last week from England where she has been visiting her father and relatives for the past three months.

Mr. Bert Graham of Sault Ste. Marie has been visiting his brother, Mr. Angus Graham for a few weeks.

Miss Josephine Hoffman spent last week as the guest of her cousin, Miss Florence Scott of Norwood.

CAUGHT IN POLICE TRAP.

KITCHENER, Ont., Jan. 25 (CP). —A trap sprung last night by Provincial Police resulted in the arrest of an alleged blackmailer, Julius Chownyk, Freeport. He is charged with demanding a sum of money "with menaces" from a farmer whom police did not name.

HER HANDS WERE ALL OUT OF SHAPE

In Grip of Rheumatism For 15 Years

Here is a letter which shows the value of persevering with Kruschen! "For about two years I hardly went out, it was such a painful effort to walk owing to rheumatism. My hands and feet were the worst affected. I was unable to walk without a cane. I read so much about Kruschen, I decided to try it. I was three months before I felt any better, but I kept on and since then I have been fine and never used the cane. My hands were all out of shape, but they are almost normal now. Of course I could not expect to get better all at once, as I had suffered for 15 years before I started on Kruschen." — (Miss) A. L.

Rheumatism is frequently caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood. If you could see how Kruschen dulls these uric acid deposits, then dissolves them away altogether, you would agree that the Kruschen treatment should bring relief in cases of rheumatism.

OMEMEE

Dr. and Mrs. H. McPhee were visitors to Peterborough last week.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Rev. F. G. MacTavish in the death of his mother last week at Ripley, Ontario.

The many friends of Mrs. Robert Bannon, Mr. William Connell and Mr. Richard Poast, victims of Sunday night's car accident will be glad to know they are doing as well as can be expected. Miss Hilda Clarke and Dr. G. N. Earle are in attendance.

Arthur Williamsons many friends will be sorry to know he is confined to his home last week suffering from flu.

Arthur Marshall is holidaying with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Marshall at Rossmount.

The regular meeting of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. M. D. Earle with a small attendance with the President, Mrs. Rea in the chair following a brief business period. Miss Lillie Race favored the ladies with a piano solo. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Earle served dainty refreshments and a social half hour was spent.

Those Splitting Headaches A Symptom of Disease

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

The cause of headache is the accumulation of poisonous matter in the blood which spreads with it, every moment, to all parts of the body.

This poisoning of the system must be cleared up before you can get rid of the headache, which is a symptom of an unhealthy condition of the body.

JAPANESE OFFER ONLY WAR THREAT AFFECTING CANADA

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Japan offers the only direct threat to the peace of Canada, Professor A. E. Prince of the Department of History, Queen's University, told a large Open Forum audience in the Collegiate auditorium Sunday afternoon. Hostilities between Japan and Canada might easily develop out of the present world international situation, he declared.

Analyzing the world outlook, Professor Prince pointed out that Japan's alignment with the Fascist powers increases the probability of Great Britain finding Japan among her enemies in the next war in which she is engaged. In such an event, Japan would likely involve Canada, regardless of the decision of the Canadian people in the matter of assisting Great Britain, by raiding the Western Canadian coast, he said.

He drew a picture of Europe as a field of two great armed camps, with the solid bloc of Fascist countries in Central Europe flanked by Communist Russia on one side and Socialistically-inclined France on the other side. He suggested a danger of the neutral powers, Great Britain, the Scandinavian countries, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland, being crushed between the millstones of Fascism and Communism.

It was partly through pressure from Canada that England gave up its recent alliance with Japan and thus permitted the alignment of Japan with Germany, Professor Prince said. He predicted that, if Japan should attack the west coast of Canada, United States would go immediately to Canada's assistance in accordance with the principles of the Munroe Doctrine.

Speaking in general terms of the likelihood of Canada aiding Great Britain in a future war, he said Canadians are suspicious of British imperialism and definitely disinclined to fight imperialistic wars. However, if Britain gets into any defensive war outside her own control, Canada will go readily to fight with the Commonwealth, he said.

ROTARY TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY OF ROBBIE BURNS

Service Club Celebrates 178th Anniversary Of Birth Of Scottish Poet

ENJOYABLE PROGRAM

Fitting tribute to the "Immortal Memory" of Robert Burns, the Scottish poet, was paid at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club when the 178th anniversary of the birth of Burns was celebrated. There were Burns' songs contributed by Miss Marion Ralston and Rotarian John Smith, and Adrian Macdonald of the Normal School staff, the speaker of the day, voiced an eloquent tribute to the qualities and work of the poet.

Miss Ralston gave a most spirited and effective rendition of the stirring "Scots Wha Hae,' and in response to an enthusiastic encore sang in splendid voice and fine expression the favorite "Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doon." President Graham, in voicing the thanks of the club, presented Miss Ralston and her accompanist, Mrs. Searles, with boxes of chocolates as a mark of appreciation.

Rotarian John Smith gave an effective rendition of "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton."

Introduced by Rotarian Ross Dobbin, Adrian Macdonald pointed out that while there were greater poets than Burns there was never any move to celebrate their birthdays, while on the other hand even those who were not Scots realized the desirability of marking every Burns annniversary. Wordsworth and Tennyson, the speaker said, were greater poets than Burns, but it was often the case that it was possible to admire greatly some folk, and yet not to love them at all, while with others, while we deplored some of their weaknesses, we found it impossible not to love them. That, he felt, was the case with Burns.

Burns' Popularity.

Delving into the causes for this affection for the Scottish Poet, Mr. Macdonald stressed the humanness of Burns and his sturdy independence as one reason. Burns had his moments of sadness, characteristic of the Celtic race, but at other times there was a lilting gaiety in his verse that one looked for in vain in the work of Wordsworth or Tennyson. Wordsworth never made a joke and while there was a little merriment in some passages of Tennyson, it never matched the spontaneous gaiety found in Burns.

Perhaps more important than all was the fact that Burns had written songs. The important place of folk music in the life of every people was stressed by the speaker who pointed out that Burns had left a song for every occasion and for every mood.

"What would the Jewish religion be without its Psalms, what would the Christian religion be without its hymns, and what would Scotland, what would the British Empire be without the songs of Robbie Burns," asked the speaker in conclusion.

Rotarian J. Fred Reed moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

The Burns atmosphere was carried out so completely through the program that even the Grace asked by Rotarian Dr. Barr was a Burns edition.

200,000 Ontario School Children Never Hear Of Jesus, Burnham Says

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(CP). — There are 200,000 Ontario school children who never hear of Jesus or his works, J. H. Burnham, former Member of Parliament, Peterborough, told Hon. Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, to-day.

Mr. Burnham headed a deputation asking more religious instruction in Public schools.

It was asked more Biblical and religious stories be included in the school readers. Mr. Burnham objected to Robin Hood's story in school readers "because it glorifies banditry and to the story of the fall of Troy because it "glorifies the depravity of a woman."

Dr. Simpson said he would consider the representations.

POST MORTEM HELD ON KEATH BABY

Infant Died From Enlarged Thymus Gland Which Is Unusual But Not Rare

Following the death of James Keath 3 - months - old only child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keath of 179 Sherbrooke street which occurred over the week-end, a post mortem examination disclosed that the infant died from an enlarged thymus gland. The autopsy was performed by Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick and Dr. T. W. H. Young. Medical men describe the condition as being "unusual but not necessarily rare". The funeral was held from Lane and Eano's undertaking parlors this (Monday) afternoon with interment at St. Peter's Cemetery.

C. G. E. EMPLOYEE'S DEATH SAID DUE NATURAL CAUSES

WORKED DAY BEFORE

The death of Henry Gustard of 477 Albert street, who passed away with tragic suddenness early Saturday morning in his thirty-ninth year was from natural causes, a post mortem examination revealed. On receiving the report of Dr. T. W. H. Young and Dr. C. B. Waite, who performed the post mortem examination, Coroner Dr. H. N. Young decided no inquest was necessary.

Employed at the C.G.E. factory here for the past ten years since coming to Canada from North Shields, England, where he was born, Mr. Gustard was at work on Friday. In his usual apparent good health, he was bowling in the evening, but on his return home he complained of a severe attack of indigestion. The following morning he was found dead by his widowed mother.

Besides his mother, Mrs. Alma E. Gustard, he is survived by a sister, Miss Gladys Gustard, at home.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. P. W. Craik, pastor of St. James' United Church, at the family residence this afternoon, following which interment was made at Little Lake Cemetery. Pallbearers were Messrs. Jack Kennedy, Arthur McLaren, Arthur Hazlett, Benjamin Smith, Joseph Bolton, and George Allport.

C. N. HALL HEADS LIFE UNDERWRITERS

Peterborough Branch Of Life Underwriters Elects Officers For The Year

C. N. Hall of the Mutual Life Insurance Company was elected president of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Life Underwriters' Association at their noon meeting in Hooper's palm rooms today.

The other officers for 1937 are: W. C. McCreery (Metropolitan) first vice-president; W. L. Ferguson (Manufacturers) Lindsay, second vice-president; Ken Kingston (Dominion) secretary-treasurer. And the members of the executive are: Alex Sollitt (Canada Life), A. J. McClellan (Excelsior), H. P. Rowell, (Dominion), F. S. Rogers (London), E. L. Sackville (Manufacturers); T. J. Best (Prudential) and Wm. Giles (Confederation).

The association's appreciation of the leadership of A. J. McClellan and the other officers of last year was expressed in a tribute that mentioned the progress accomplished during 1936. In accepting the presidency Mr. Hall asked for "100 per cent co-operation" from the members. With that support he believed the new executive would be able to do a good job for the underwriters of Peterborough and the district this year.

Mr. McClellan gave a report of the annual meeting of the Canadian Life Underwriters' Association, and E. L. Sackville reviewed the work of the Dominion Board to which he was appointed for three years in 1936.

"We would double our membership in a very short time if all the underwriters had a real appreciation of the benefits which they derive from the Canadian association and its board," Mr. Sackville said. His summary of objectives attained included reference to the series of radio broadcasts by Grattan O'Leary on Sunday evenings at 6 p.m. The first was heard last Sunday and the series will continue for five weeks.

Formerly he was secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Ottawa Gas Company and had managed gas companies at Westchester, Pa., Worcester, Mass., Coney Island, N.Y., Louisville, Ky., and Augusta, Ga.

JAMES HALES, K.C. OLD OTONABEE BOY DIES IN TORONTO

Prominent Temperance Worker And Once Chairman Of License Commission Is Dead

PLANNED BIG PETITION

TORONTO, Jan. 25. — Widely known in law circles and in municipal and temperance affairs of the city, James Hales, K.C., LL.B., senior member of the firm Hales and Burt, barristers, and president of the A. E. Long Company, Ltd., died Saturday evening at the Wellesley Hospital. Business colleagues and friends were deeply shocked when news reached them of Mr. Hales' death, as he had been ill only a few days. He had served as chairman of the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario during the Drury regime, as an alderman for Toronto for two years, and a member of the Toronto Board of Education for six years.

Appointed Chairman.

Born in the Township of Otonabee, Peterborough County, November 4, 1863, he was the son of Thomas and Julianna (Myers) Hales of Forfar and Leeds County. He was educated at the public school and high school of Athens; the Normal School, Ottawa; Queen's University and Law School, Toronto. He read law with Cassels and Cassels, and McMurrich and Urquhart, and was called to the bar in 1891. In the same years he started practice as James Hales, the firm later becoming Irwin, Hales and Burt, and more recently Hales and Burt.

Mr. Hales succeeded J. D. Flavelle as chairman of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners in 1921. He had been active in prohibition work for many years. He was recognized as a man of action, and it is recalled that when barrooms were plentiful in Toronto it was he who moved the resolution in the City Council reducing the number of licenses to forty. The Citizens' Committee of One Hundred was formed, with James Hales as its chairman. He left the municipal arena to concentrate on the wider field of effort. It is claimed that the big petition, which required half a dozen lorries to haul to Queen's Park, was due in a large measure to the energies of James Hales, which were magnificently rewarded, in his opinion, when the Conservative Government went the committee one better by immediately enacting a prohibition law, whereas the petition had asked only for a referendum.

Was Dominion Councillor.

When appointed chairman of the Ontario License Board, and Attorney-General Raney's right hand man in a strenuous reform, he was also appointed to the position of director of prosecutions under the Ontario Temperance Act. He had been prominently identified with prohibition effort throughout the Province, having served as Dominion Councillor, the highest rank in the Royal Templars of Temperance. He had rendered invaluable service on the Social Service Council of Ontario during prohibition campaigns. He was ever ready to make sacrifices in the cause of temperance. He was a prominent Dominion Alliance worker. He was created a K.C. in 1921. In politics he was a Conservative.

Originally a Methodist, he was a valued member of Sherbourne Street United Church. He was a member of the City Club, the Granite Club, the Empire Club and Canadian Club. His hobbies were motoring and reading.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Marion Scoley, daughter of E. K. Scoley of Toronto, and one brother, Charles.

The Rambling REPORTERS

INTERRUPTS SERVICE.

Making one of its periodic flights, a bat flew blindly back and forth over the heads of the clergy, choir and congregation at St. John's Church on Sunday evening, causing general consternation. It is reported that as the bat swooped over the heads of worshippers at a dangerously low altitude, the movements of the congregation were suggestive of a heaving sea or a waving field of corn. Most of the fair members of the congregation buried their heads in coat collars, while it is stated the Rev. W. P. Robertson, the rector, took a swat at the winged rodent with his hymn book as it came within range of his seat, but failed to halt its crazy flight.

SKATES TO WORK.

While treacherous driving and walking conditions may have served many tardy workers with a first class excuse for being late at work bench or office desk, they resulted this morning in one young man arriving at his place of employment away ahead of normal schedule. Leaving his home on Antrim street, Leonard Phillips skated to his work at the Canadian Nashua Paper Company's plant, covering the two-miles distance in ten minutes. Under normal conditions it takes him half-an-hour to walk to his work.

THE DUTCH TOUCH.

Skating on the main thoroughfares is a familiar mode of travel to those who live by the Zuyder Zee and adjacent territory. It isn't so common here. That's why a lot of people cricked their necks this morning when an energetic young man on a pair of skates flashed down George Street in double-quick time at nine o'clock. He took the bumps gracefully and slid expeditiously over an icy way where motor cars inched along and pedestrians watched their steps.—C. L. M.

OVERHEATED PIPES.

Overheated pipes caused a fire scare at the home of J. E. Steadman, 440 Driscoll Terrace, at noon to-day and the Fire Department responded. No damage was done. A call to a chimney fire at the home of G. Johnston, 553 Albert street, was answered Sunday.

ABOVE is shown a likeness of Miss Ruth Hall, starry figure skater from Toronto who will perform at the Winter Sports Carnival here next Friday night. Miss Hall has won wide recognition for class and grace on the steel blades and her art on the ice will please Peterborough followers of this sport. She is a niece of Lt.-Col. Gordon Hall of this city.

Main Street Topics

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up By Examiner Reporters.

HOLE BURNED IN ROOF.

Sparks from the chimney burned a hole in the roof of Robert Cox's house north of Nassau Saturday afternoon.

PARKING AREA.

Permission to use as a parking area for automobiles the George Street wharf property was sought in a resolution by Alderman Gordon which the council endorsed Saturday night.

FRACTURES WRIST.

EXHIBITION BOARD MEETING.

Directors of the Peterborough Exhibition are meeting in A. D. Runions office at 7.30 tonight. The main business on the slate is to fix the dates for this year's exhibition. Tom Brown, president, remarked that probably many of the rural directors might not be able to travel over the icy roads.

OTHER EYE NOT AFFECTED.

The condition of Ruth Tatham, the six-year-old Lakefield girl who injured her eye when a knife slipped is reported as satisfactory, following an operation Saturday in which Dr. Buchanan removed the injured eye after considerable infection had set in. The other eye is not affected.

STUCK ON HILL.

The Court House hill proved too much for the cars of lawyers and public officials which attempted to negotiate it to-day. Several drivers were successful in getting their vehicles over half-way up the steep incline before losing traction, but none managed the entire grade from the steeper approaches.

GO TO SCHOOL ON SKATES.

A number of Collegiate students made their way to school on skates this afternoon. Using the icy surfaces of the lesser travelled thoroughfares they made the trips from their homes in record time, books under their arms and shoes for use on their arrival at school slung over their shoulders.

ENDORSE DOCK PROJECT.

A proposal for the building of a new dock off Crescent street near the end of Lock street, for which soundings have been taken this winter, was endorsed by the Council Saturday night, on Alderman Cottrell's motion, seconded by Alderman Glover. An announcement of this contemplated project was published recently in The Examiner. Mr. Duffus said that plans would be prepared for a dock large enough to accommodate cruisers and other craft which would prefer mooring in the Crescent Street Bay rather than at the George street wharf.

OVERSEAS MAIL.

Mail for Great Britain and countries via Great Britain, full mail, Belgium, parcel mail, to connect with steamer "Westernland" sailing from Halifax January 25th, mail closes at local Post Office at 7.30 p.m. January 22nd. Mail for Great Britain and countries via Great Britain to connect with steamer "Nova Scotia" sailing from Halifax January 26th, mail closes at local Post Office at 7.30 p.m. January 23rd. Mail for Great Britain and countries via Great Britain, business letters and letters addressed via New York, to connect with steamer "Aquitania" sailing from New York January 27th, mail closes at local Post Office at midnight January 25th. Mail for Great Britain and countries via Great Britain, letters addressed via New York to connect with steamer "Deutschland" sailing from New York January 27th, mail closes at local Post Office at 7.30 p.m. January 26th. Mail for Great Britain and countries via Great Britain to connect with steamer "Duchess of York" sailing from Halifax January 30th, mail closes at local Post Office at 7.30 p.m. January 29th.

NON-SKID EQUIPMENT.

A run on creepers was one of the liveliest spots of business along main street this morning. But, there was no running even when the creepers were on.

DEMAND NORMAL

The demand for auto license markers has slackened off to a normal pace, about 4,500 passenger and commercial plates, having been so far issued, according to James J. Dorris, official issuer.

ELECTED DIRECTOR.

E. L. Sackville, C.L.U., of the Manufacturers Life of Peterborough, has been elected a director of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada.

VESTRY MEETING.

The annual vestry meeting of St. John's church will be held tonight. This will be the first held under the rectorship of Rev. W. P. Robertson and it is expected there will be a large attendance of church members.

RESOLUTION ENDORSED.

A circular resolution approving the Provincial Government's action in relieving municipalities of the cost of Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowance benefits was endorsed by the County Council Saturday. The endorsation was agreed upon with little discussion.

TRAFFIC TIE-UP.

Four cars which slewed into a tangle on Highway 28 north of Port Hope, Sunday, held up traffic for a good part of an hour. The cars were straightened out with the assistance of the drivers of waiting motorists on either side of the blockade. No serious damage was sustained by any of the vehicles.

VISIT YORK BIBLE CLASS.

Thirty members of St. Andrew's young men's class of which Ken Kingston is president and G. H. Roper leader were guests at the regular meeting of the York Bible Class in Deer Park United church Sunday and were warmly welcomed by Denton Massey, leader of the class. The visit was greatly enjoyed by the Peterborough delegation.

STUART DRIVE LAPSES.

Mayor Macdonald informed the Council Saturday night, that no further correspondence regarding the proposed Stuart Drive along the Otonabee River from Hunter street to Nicholls Oval had been exchanged since last summer. This project as a means of providing employment and of beautifying the Ashburnham river front was not included in the items which Mr. Duffus will submit to the government for funding this year.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

Frank Penn, 37, of Weston, Ontario, pleaded not guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Monday) morning to theft of 137 pounds of wool, the property of Mrs. Charles Frankish of Douro township in September last. On application of the Crown, the accused was remanded for one week, bail being set in the sum of $1,000. George Crisp of Collingwood, appeared on remand and on pleading guilty to a charge of housebreaking and theft was placed on suspended sentence for one year.

PREMIUMS INCREASED.

Two heavy accident claims against the County during 1936 were responsible for a sharp increase in the premium on the county road accident insurance policy for this year. County councillors discovered Saturday, Whereas their 1936 premium was $343.70, a premium of $975 will be paid for protection in 1937. A policy with Lloyds of London, through A. E. Wilson Company of Toronto, is to be renewed according to the decision of the Council. Last year Lloyds paid out approximately $3,500 in connection with road accident claims in Peterborough County. Although the County won a suit in connection with the crash of a car into the Otonabee at the Nassau bridge, $1,200 in legal and court costs was involved. An accident at a bridge in Belmont and Methuen was another $1,200.

COMPANY SEEKS TRADE WITH CITY ON VACANT LAND

McDonald Lumber Company Offers To Trade Mill Site On George Street

NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

For its 4½ acres at the northeast corner of Lansdowne street and Monaghan Road the city council was offered Saturday night all the mill site of the McDonald Lumber Company, east of George street, except lots 1 and 2 occupied by the planing mill and box factory.

In the event of desiring to build a bridge across the river at the Point St. Charles narrows the city is also offered as an additional consideration a roadway through the Burnham's Point property. This proposed deal will be considered after an investigation of the property has been made by City Solicitor Corkery and a sketch prepared for reference to the council, for their guidance.

Accompanied by J. J. Duffus, M.P., and members of the Chamber of Commerce, the council went window-shopping Saturday night for something attractive in federal buildings, and a stray thought or two of a new city hall and possibly a market building. On Alderman Gordon's motion, seconded by Alderman Stocker, a subcommittee was appointed composed of Mayor Macdonald, Alderman Sloan, Alderman Hamilton and City Engineer Parsons to confer with J. J. Duffus and the Hon. P. A. Cardin, Minister of Public Works, regarding a suitable site for the proposed post office and customs house under the one roof, and if necessary to discuss an exchange of city property for federal property, and report back to the council.

Mr. Duffus pointed out that if an exchange of properties was involved in a deal with the government the approval of the people would have to be obtained by submitting a bylaw to the ratepayers.

Other councils have threshed this question about without any progress from the time the government bought the property at George and Sherbrooke streets for a combined postal customs office. During the years he was the riding's representative at Ottawa E. A. Peck took the position that the present location of the post office was most suitable to the city as a whole, considering the interests of the people on both sides of the river. He used to say that the corner of Hunter and Water streets was the cross roads of Peterborough, and as far as he was concerned the post office site was an ideal location.

However, business in both branches of the government has been increasing in recent years and the feeling is growing that the government is more favorable than ever to appropriating funds for a new building here.

All the members of the council were present, and the Chamber of Commerce was represented by F. J. Overend, president, and J. J. Dorris, secretary.

For Tuesday, January 26.

JUDGING BY the rather revolutionary character of the planetary configurations bearing rule on the affairs of this day, there are likely to be whirlwind developments of devastating and disintegrating force, which may have a radical and far-reaching influence on the future life. It would be well to meet these critical situations with much wise counsel and deliberation. Hasty decisions should be avoided. Also be cautious in dealing with strangers and untried propositions.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves at a place in their lives that calls for very wise decisions, for there are likely to be precipitated quite unforseen events or situations of radical influence on the future destiny and fortunes. Be wary with strangers and weigh new propositions and doubtful opportunities with calmness and discretion, if not suspicion.

FLOORED SULLIVAN WAY BACK IN 80'S ENGLISH EARL SAYS

Earl Of Lonsdale Tells Of Secret Battle When Sullivan Was World Champion

HAD BROKEN HAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune, in a copyrighted cable from London today quotes a signed statement by the Earl of Lonsdale, England's famous sporting peer, that he knocked out John L. Sullivan way back in the 80's.

Lord Lonsdale, 80 today, told the Herald Tribune in the statement which he gave the paper instead of a requested interview that he floored the Boston Strong Boy for the count in the sixth round of a secret battle while Sullivan was champion of the world.

The Peer said he had a broken hand at the time and that Sullivan injured one of Lord Lonsdale's ribs but there was not the slightest doubt about the ending of the contest.

They fought in a riding school which Sullivan owned. The sporting peer made a special trip to America for the fight, returning the next day, the Herald Tribune quotes him as saying.

Lord Lonsdale has been a noted sports figure all his life. Three years ago he revealed that in his youth he had held up a Denver, Colorado, coach in the 70's when he was Hugh Cecil Lowther.

"The others are all dead now, so there is no longer any reason why I should not reveal it, but that is all I can say," he said at the time. Denver old timers said the coach had contained a group of Londoners who were greeted by Lonsdale and other cowboys with a pretended holdup as a vivid welcome. They galloped off when they spotted sacks of United States mail, the old timers said, and did not admit their identity.

John L. Sullivan held the heavyweight championship for many years prior to 1892 when he was defeated by James Corbett.

Dominion Life Wins Cage Tilt Over C.G.E.

Dominion Life squeezed out a 20-19 Senior Basketball League verdict over C.G.E. in a thrilling tussle before a big crowd at the "Y" gym on Saturday night. A basket in the final few seconds of play gave the Insurance gang the nod. Play was fast, clever and close from start to finish. The winners had a 12-8 edge at the breathing spell and were shaded in scoring by a slight margin the second stanza. Several players on each team had three fouls called on them. White shone with nine points while Richardson of the Electrics led with five. The teams:

Wiremen Get 6-5 Win Over Induction Motors

Wire Dept. took a 6-5 victory over Induction Motors in an exciting C.G.E. Shop Hockey League game at the Brock on Saturday. It was the third of the four shop tilts run off there in the afternoon, and was full of thrills. Campbell got two of the Induction goals, aided once by Archibald. The latter scored twice also and Young got one. For the Wiremen, Pammett notched four, with Williams assisting in two and Akers and Crowe each aiding once. Akers tallied one on a lone effort while Crowe got the other, with Pammett, passing to him. Archibald and Campbell starred for the losers, while Pammett, Crowe and Williams were best for the Wire crew. Crowe drew penalties in the second and third. teams:

STUDENTS DEFEAT ST. PAUL'S OUTFIT

P.C.I. Noses Out St. Paul's With 14-12 Decision in Classy Cage Game

P.C.I. nosed out a 14-12 decision over St. Paul's in a classy Senior Basketball League contest before a full gallery Saturday evening in the Y.M.C.A. gym. It was the closest checking game of the season and quite even all through. It was tied at 8-all at halftime and the Students only won out in the dying minutes of a hard-fought second frame. St. Paul's lost Pulkinghorn via the four-foul route. Thorburn and Davern were the main scorers. The teams:

P.C.I.: Turner, Jack, Davern, Galley, Johnston, Smith, Ward, Gunsolus, Patterson.

St. Paul's: Pulkinghorn, Thorburn, Weir, Sedgewick, McIntyre, Marah, Ascott.

Knox Badmintoneers Defeated By Trinity

Trinity Badminton Club entertained the Knox Club Saturday night in a friendly tournament, and took 13 out of 16 games. Following play, lunch was served with the Misses N. Boorman, D. Pakenham and J. Matchett acting as hostesses. Following are the scores, the Knox Club players being named first in each case.

Mixed doubles—A. Davis and C. Cadd vs D. Sherin and B. Huffman, 15-10; B. Blade and P. McArthur vs Mr. and Mrs. Runions, 12-15; D. Allen and W. Ward vs D. Head and M. Gates, 1-15; A. Franks and L. Reynolds vs Mrs. Jamieson and K. Gates, 7-15; M. Ferguson and P. McArthur vs Mr. and Mrs. Steer, 17-18; H. Hamley and M. Ferguson vs M. Moore and J. Sage, 7-15; H. Banks and G. Ringer vs J. Deyell and M. Hutchinson, 7-15; D. Beattie and A. White vs L. Stewart and A. Jamieson, 9-15.

Ladies doubles—B. Blade and A. Davis vs D. Sherin and J. Deyell, 18-14; A. Davis and D. Allen vs Mrs. Runions and Mrs. Jamieson, 3-15; G. Banks and M. Ferguson vs M. Moore and A. Davis, 3-15; A. Franks and D. Beattie vs. Mrs. Steer and L. Stewart, 8-15.

Men's doubles—C. Cadd and P. McArthur vs B. Huffman and Mr. Runions, 14-17; C. Cadd and W. Ward vs M. Gates and Mr. Steer, 16-17; H. Hawley and G. Ringer vs K. Gates and A. Jamieson, 15-9; L. Reynolds and W. Ward vs J. Sage and M. Hutchinson, 6-15.

Office Gets 4-3 Nod Over The Switchgear

Office won, 4 to 3, over Switchgear in the final C.G.E. Shop Hockey League contest staged Saturday afternoon in the Brock St. arena. The losers dished up a neat checking game, with the defence playing bruising hockey. The victors showed neat combination and some fine stickhandling in close. Play was keen and quite even most of the way. Maudsley got the first goal for Switchgear with Mowry scoring next and then Leggitt. Starr whammed in the first and second for the Office outfit, with Tollington tallying next and then Williams on Tranter's pass. Starr, Tollington and Williams were especially effective, with Tranter and Rooke also going good for the Office. The husky Switchgear defence showed up well, and the whole team turned in a good performance. The teams:

Referee—Lou Lebarr.

St. Paul's Juveniles In Cage Playdowns

St. Paul's Juveniles earned the right to enter the Church Basketball League playdowns at the "Y" Saturday by beating Murray Street, 45 to 10. The losers were minus Foster, star player, and were also weakened when Pammett again drew four fouls and had to retire. They made it close in the first half, the count being 10-6 for St. Paul's, but the latter won in decisive style the second stanza. Sedgewick got 22 points with Ascott and W. Ferguson also helping a lot. C. Gillespie topped the losers with six. The teams:

St. Paul's: Sedgewick, R. Ferguson, W. Ferguson, Ascott, Dunford.

Murray Street: K. Gillespie, C. Gillespie, Scott, Loomis, Pammett.

Referee, G. Johnston; scorer R. Rogow.

St. Paul's Bantams and St. Andrew's were billed to play in the last scheduled bantam game, one with no bearing as St. John's and St. Paul's are assured of playoff berths. St. Andrew's floored only three players, so St. Paul's took on these three with others and easily won, 25 to 9.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

TWEED JUNIORS play the local Colts an O.H.A. junior "B" tussle here tonight. It'll be the final appearance of the Tweedsters this season unless a miracle happens as they are on the verge of a cliff overhanging Elimination Valley. But that doesn't mean they won't put up a smart scrap against the locals—nosuh! The last two Tweed-Colts' games—held in Tweed—were humdingers, with both teams playing wide-open, exciting hockey and plenty of scoring. They have a bolstered team and will be in there battling tooth and nail. And the Colts will be at full strength for the first time in over a week, and they ought to present a dashing appearance! If you like junior tilts, this one should be worth seeing TOMORROW P.M. at the Brock, Belleville Redmen are here to play the Petes that intermediate postponed game. And don't bet your shirts on the locals, either. The Thomasites gave the strong Fliers a terrific fight the other night in Belleville, with fist fights thrown in, before being nosed out by a 5 to 4—a better score than the Petes made against the Airmen. The old Belleville-Petes' rivalry will be there tomorrow and a swelegant scrap should result. The Petes had better be in top form this time, as they're not tackling a weakened Trenton team!

THREE GOOD School Hockey League squabbles were settled at All Saints' rink on Saturday morning. Prince of Wales blanked King George, 4-0; King Edward and Queen Mary battled to a scoreless draw; and Central took a 4-2 decision over Queen Alex. Lots of action and some good hockey by the kids. There are two postponed tussles to be run off yet in this loop, and games next Saturday a.m. are: King George vs. Queen Mary at nine, Central vs. King Edward at ten, and Prince of Wales vs. Queen Alex at eleven.

UP AT the Brock on Saturday afternoon, the C.G.E. Shop Hockey Leaguers made merry with four rousing struggles. Transportation and the Industrial Control had to leave it at a 3-all tie in the first; Fractional Motors squeezed out a 1-0 decision over Machine Shop next game; Wire Dept. defeated Induction Motors by a 6-5 count in the third setto; and ye Office outfit copped a 4-3 nod over Switchgear to wind it up a few minutes this side of supper time. Every game saw some smart hockey with plenty of rib-jolting bodychecks tossed in.

SOUTHEND HOCKEY League games for tonight at the Sacred Heart rink: Canuck Bantams vs. Leaflets at six, King Edward vs. Canuck Juveniles at seven, St. Peter's vs. P.C.I. Juveniles at eight, and Canuck Midgets vs. Beavers at nine. In the Southend Intermediate Loop, a team from C.P.C. will replace the Canucks—the latter being shorthanded on Wednesdays when some of their players take part in Junior City League games. Some of the other squads in this section have trouble, too, in getting full lineups—seeing as how some of the many puck circuits here overlap each other. However, that is a point that is hard to get around what with one thing or another.

LINDSAY SCRIBES have been dishing up a lot of good publicity for the Winter Sports Carnival here this coming weekend. Says the Warder in part: "It's to be the first venture of its kind undertaken by a ski club which is growing so rapidly that parents are thinking of naming their kids Triple Galandesprung and such. It promises to be something of a gala event, so give 'em snow, Mr. Weatherman, give 'em snow . . . . Peterborough sponsors expect the Knights of the Wooden Slippers from as far away as Ottawa and Montreal, and will also have figure skaters from Toronto, a public skating carnival, dog derby, parade, band and even peanuts and popcorn. It's something unusual and should draw many people from here if the weather is right. The skiers are not novices who buckle on their slippery elms and head down hill with a prayer. They are star Olympic and Canadian skiers; and special trains for the event have been rumored."

• • • • • •

SAYS THE Post in part: "If Old Man Winter should decide to lay a heavy coat of snow on the terrain soon he wouldn't make Peterborough folk one bit mad . . . . This is why they pray (or do they pray in that heathenish city?) that snow will fall in gosh-awful amounts. Seriously speaking, the ambitious program arranged is a doggoned good one . . . . The C.N.R. reports 100 reservations and an excursion train may be run. Ski enthusiasts will attend from Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal, etc., and the new ski jump at Nassau, near Peterborough, which is one of the finest in the country, will receive a real baptism of fire. No doubt, Lindsay will be well represented at this carnival and citizens here will wish Peterborough luck in its new venture." Thanks a lot, fellows. But where the heck is the snow?

• • • • • •

ACCORDING TO the Quinte scribe's column, the Fliers-Belleville puck squabble in Belleville on Friday was a rough affair. The teams mixed it up hard and threw in several fist fights. Seems the game got sort of out of hand for Referee Holway. But didn't the Fliers-Petes' affair prove too much for Referee Joe Smith, also? Yeah, those battling Airmen are going to keep any arbiter humping to hold 'em in check, especially if the rival teams refuse to take all the bangs without banging back a bit. The real clash of the season will be the return game of the Fliers in Peterborough on February 1st. Meantime, the Petes play in Belleville this Friday.

• • • • • •

HITHER AND yawn: Our junior Colts don't play on Quinte ice again till February 10th . . . . City 5-Pin Bowling League officers and team captains have an important meeting in Duffus' tomorrow eve at 7.15 . . . . Knox Badminton Club were defeated by Trinity in a friendly tourney Sat'day e'en . . . . Two Church Cage Loop games were played Saturday night; tilts next Saturday: St. John's vs. St. Paul's at six in a bantam final, and St. John's vs. St. Andrew's Juveniles . . . . Instead of Mark St. pucksters vs. Murray St. at eight January 28th, the schedule should read St. Paul's vs. Mark St. that p.m. . . . . Senior City Basketball League results of Sat'day are listed tonight . . . . The ice at the Brock St. rink is okay for tonight's junior O.H.A. contest . . . . We'll either get snow or we won't—'sno use worrying!

Transportation Ties With Industrial Gang

In the first game played in the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League on Saturday afternoon at the Brock St. rink, Transportation and Industrial Central battled to a 3-3 tie before a fair crowd of fans. Tice turned in some fine goaltending as the Transportation team pressed toward the last and threatened to break the deadlock. Vitarelli notched the first marker for Transportation with Kearney counting the second and Vitarelli getting the third. For the other squad, Weir scored the first and third goals with Pilling sinking one in between. Kearney, McDougall and Vitarelli were outstanding for Transportation; while Weir, Hawkes and Leith shone for the Industrial gang. It was a smart scrap all through. The teams:

Industrial Control: Goal, Tice; defence, Weir, Houghton; centre, Alcock; wings, Hawkes, Cameron; alternates, O'Brien, Pilling, Armour, Leith

Referee—Red Creighton.

Queen Mary Draws With King Edward

Queen Mary and King Edward battled to a scoreless tie in overtime in the final school league game on Saturday morning at All Saints rink. The game was fast and clean from start to finish with neither team being able to produce a score. The teams battled on even terms for the first two periods. In the third canto the south-enders appeared to be in command of the play but in the overtime it was Queen Mary that forced things. Mortimer and Ackford stood out for the latter team while Jobe starred for King Edward.

The teams:

Queen Mary: Goal, McBride; defence, Morley and Weaver; centre, Mortimer; wings, Ackford and Horton; subs, Neiman and Ridyard.

King Edward: Goal, Shea; defence, Roberts and Hentherne; centre, Jamieson; wings, Self and Jobe; subs, Stanley, Cox and Reader.

Referee—H. Fisher.

Tweed And Colts Play Junior Game Tonight

Tweed will be battling to stay in the running for an O.H.A. junior 'B' group playoff berth when they play the local Colts here tonight (Monday) at 8.30 in the Brock Street rink. A loss for Tweed will definitely eliminate them from the running, while a victory will leave them still with a mathematical chance. The Colts are practically assured now of being in the district group playoffs—probably with Belleville. The ice is in good shape for tonight's junior joust, and it should be another exciting scrap, as Tweed has made the Colts step plenty hard in the last two tangles. A good crowd of fans will likely turn out to see the Colts.

All the locals are in shape and the strongest team will take the ice. With Harding in goal, A. Clark and Webb will likely form one defence, with Brady, Connelly and Jopling available for the second defence. Starr, Heal and Wright will be the starting forwards; while Kingdon, Crowe and G. Clark should make up the second front line. Tweed has a number of good district pucksters now and the team will make it a real fight here this evening.

King George Loses To Prince Of Wales

Prince of Wales handed King George a 4-0 drubbing in a school league fixture at All Saints' rink on Saturday morning. The winners looked good in most departments and outplayed their opponents all the way. King George looked weak in clearing the puck inside their blue line. Lacheur, Jackson, Todd and Mosley did the scoring for Prince of Wales. Bucknell and Lacheur went well both ways for the winners while Ralph shone in goal for the losers, although handicapped by a weak defence. The teams:

Prince of Wales: Goal, Spooner; defence, Lacheur and Todd; centre, Gardner; wings, Gladman and Jackson; subs, Bucknell, Mosley, Doubty.

Referee—A. Beauclare.

BOY SCOUTS OPEN HOCKEY LEAGUE

Three Good Games Are Played At Opener Of Scout League

The Boy Scouts Hockey League opened its schedule Saturday at the Sacred Heart rink with three good games. St. Luke's took an 11-3 nod over St. Andrew's; St. James nosed out a 6-5 win over St. Peter's; and Immaculate Conception copped a 3-2 decision over Sacred Heart. District Commissioner J. T. Hornsby spoke a few words and opened the league by dropping the first puck. Games called for two o'clock in the schedule should be listed in future for three o'clock.

In the first game, the East City gang proved too good for St. Andrew's. With G. Northcott and A. Northcott as sharpshooters with six and four respectively, and A. Mason getting one, the winners had a good edge. Scorers for the losers were Gamble with two and Graham with one. The teams:

St. Luke's: Goal, Clarke; defence, G. Northcott, Mason; centre, Cooper; wings, A. Northcott, Gracie; subs, S. Joyes, J. Forbes, D. Forbes, Joyes.

St. Andrew's: Goal, Williamson; defence, McDonald, Green; centre, Gamble; wings, Beggs, Hamilton; alternates, Harrison, Wall.

Fast Game

The second game was fast with St. James getting an early lead, but their rivals finishing stronger. Gillespie got the winning goal, with Campbell, Anderson, Stanley, Leggitt and B. Lawson other scorers for the team. For St. Peter's, Huard got two and Griffin, Creighton and Plumton one each. The teams:

St. James: Goal, Leether; defence, Leggitt, Thorne; centre, Gillespie; wings, Campbell, Anderson; subs, B. Lawson, F. Lawson, Stanley, Dafoe, Meeks, Welch.

St. Peter's: Goal, Guerin; defence, Creighton, Griffin; centre, Ryan; wings, Huard, Plumpton; subs, Cupoli, Dangelantio.

The last game was speedy and quite even most of the way, with Immaculate Conception outscoring their rivals 1-0 in the second to take the lead after R. Hallihan and Brioux had tallied for the south-enders. Some neat hockey was shown by both sides. The winners' snipers were Baldwin with two and Gracie. The teams:

Sacred Heart: Goal, Corrin; defence, Collins, Amyott; centre, Brioux, wings, R. Hallihan, B. Hallihan; subs, Marsden, Hardwick and Willis.

Central Gains 4-2 Win Over Queen Alexandra

Central defeated Queen Alexandra 4-2, in the first of three school league games, on Saturday morning at All Saints rink. The winners played good hockey throughout and on their play deserved to win. Clark and Manbeck accounted for all the goals scored by Central, each having a pair. Lewis and Saunders each tallied for the north-enders.

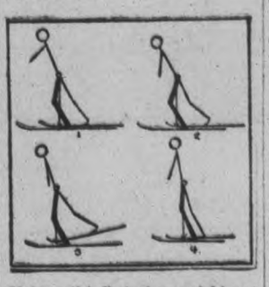
KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Ski-ing By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

25—WALKING ON THE LEVEL.

Great importance must be attached to the development of a good style in level ski-ing for it is the basis of other ski-ing movements. How to make the first step is shown here and explained below.



Making the first step—weight on darkened leg.

Keeping skis close together and parallel, slide the right foot forward, bend the knee well (you can remember here lessons on correct bent knee positions) incline the body forward and place the weight on this ski.

Before the sliding motion stops, bring the left ski forward in the same manner, with a smooth flowing motion, keeping the leg relaxed, and slide on it in the same way.

Advance the left stick with the right ski, and vice versa. Ground the points of the sticks close to the skis and not too far ahead.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Well, last week was not a good week for curling but still it was the best we've had for sometime. Bonspiel Tuesday, tankard Wednesday, Schedule games Thursday and Friday, Bonspiel on Saturday afternoon, and a mixed one at night.

A good bunch were out on Saturday afternoon, with the honors going to Jimmy Richmond, Doug Carlisle, and Wallace Harvey winning the third prize from George Green in a toss of the coin—and by the way that is two Saturdays George has lost the toss.

Nelson Routley called us by phone and wanted to know if it was true what we said about Walter Oke being first on the ice . . . Absolutely correct and true, Nelson; absolutely so.

The games tonight will be played according to schedule.

Machine Shop Loses To Fractionals, 1-0

Fractional Motors nosed out a 1-0 verdict over Machine Shop in a nifty C.G.E. Hockey League contest Saturday afternoon at the Brock St. rink. It was a close-checking, bitterly-fought affair with both sides muffing some nice chances and the rival goalies kicking aside a flock of hot slabs. Coursey counted the only marker of the game, this player and Clarke being outstanding for the victors. Magee and Langton looked best for the Machine Shop, the whole team battling hard from start to finish. Neat stickhandling and some fair combination were displayed by either team in every period.

LEAFS DIVIDE 2 HARD GAMES WITH RANGERS

Win Saturday 4-0 But Lose Sunday 4-2—Wings Tie With Maroons 1-1, Then Win 2-1

BRUINS, AMERKS 6-6

Boston Steps Out In Final Period And Slams Home Six Goals

By A. E. Fulford
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—Only Chicago Black Hawks were left out in the cold when points were divided up among the National Hockey League teams over the week-end. The seven other teams got from one to three of the 12 points at stake but the hopeless Hawks went hungry.

The world champion Detroit Red Wings took the largest share of any team. They played Maroons to a 1-1 tie in Montreal Saturday night and defeated Tommy Gorman's team 2-1 in Detroit Sunday.

Toronto Maple Leafs, New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens each had a clean victory. Leafs defeated Rangers 4-0 in Toronto Saturday night and then took a 4-2 trimming from the Patrickmen at Madison Square Gardens last night. Canadiens beat Hawks 4-1 in Chicago last night.

Boston Bruins and New York Americans provided the week-end's freak contest. Leading 4-0 at the end of the second period, Americans were tied 6-6 by Bruins in Boston last night, Art Ross' men scoring six goals in a wild third period.

Tied Game With 6 Seconds to Go.

Fifteen thousand persons, largest crowd in the six games, saw Bruins stage the wild scoring spree and cheered Hooley Smith as he scored the tying goal with only 12 seconds of the third period to play. Ross had just pulled Tiny Thompson out of the Boston goal to send on six forwards, but his substitute couldn't get over the boards before Smith smacked the puck home. It was the highest scoring game of the season, beating out Montreal Maroons 7-3 defeat of Chicago on January 14 for that honor. Amerks went into the lead in the second on goals by Art Chapman, Sweeney Schriner, Nels Stewart and Eddie Wiseman.

Dit Clapper got the first Bruin goal early in the third and there was no further scoring till the period was half over, when Tommy Anderson made it 5-1 for the New Yorkers. Then Jack Portland, Joe Jerwa and Charlie Sands beat Lorne Chabot and Stewart got Amerks another to make it 6-4. Clapper scored his second goal with three minutes to play and set the stage for Smith's tying counter.

Getliffe a Daddy.

There were sidelights to the eccentric contest. While Ray Getliffe was playing for Bruins his wife gave birth to a seven-pound son in London, Ont., hospital, and American's injured goalie, Roy Worters, went into a New York hospital while the game was going on. He will be operated on to-day for hernia.

The 1-1 tie between Wings and Maroons was a lively game despite the few goals. Hec Kilrea passed to Syd Howe to give Detroit a first period lead that Herb Cain wiped out midway through the second.

At Detroit Maroons took a lead on Gus Marker's second period goal, but Gordon Pettinger tied it up in the same period and Marty Barry won the game for Wings with his goal early in the third from Ebbie Goodfellow's assist.

Canadiens' win at Chicago lengthened their lead over Maroons at the top of the Canadian division standing to eight points. The Habitants were always in control of the game. Howie Morenz gave them a lead in the first period and when Pete Palangio tied it in the second Red Lorrain shoved Canadiens ahead again in 45 seconds. Aurel Joliat got another goal in that same period and Rod Lorrain scored again in the third.

Fight Livens Things Up.

A fist fight broke out with only a few minutes to play. Players were piled up around one end of the rink with fists flying. When the officials calmed down Red Horner and Bill Thoms of the Leafs and Art Coulter, Ranger defence man, got majors.

Coulter was in another fight in the New York game. When Conny Smythe, Leaf manager, rushed across the ice in the last minute of play after Butch Keeling had scored his second goal, Coulter evidently thought Smythe was protesting that it had been scored after the final gong.

Rangers scored two goals before Leafs got into the picture. Neil Colville got one in the first and Keeling made it 2-0 in the second. Bob Davidson scored for Toronto in the third, but Cecil Dillon got it back in less than two minutes. Art Jackson scored for Toronto before Keeling got his second goal with only one second to play.

The win gave Rangers undisputed possession of second place in the American division, one point up on Boston Bruins.

N.H.L. All-Stars

(By The Canadian Press)

Harvey Jackson, Toronto, who scored three goals when Leafs defeated New York Rangers, 4-0 Saturday night.

Butch Keeling, Rangers, whose two goals last night helped whip Leafs, 4-2, splitting the teams' double-header.

Rod Lorrain, Canadiens, who fired two goals, his first of the season, to lead Canadiens to a 4-1 victory over Chicago.

Marty Barry, Detroit, who scored the winning tally as Wings licked Montreal Maroons, 2-1, Sunday night.

Ready For Action

Big Henry "Hank" Greenberg of Detroit Tigers, is confident his arm is once again in good shape. He was out of action for most of the 1936 season due to a compound fracture. The great first baseman gave an exhibition at Miami Beach, Fla., to show his throwing arm is ready for the 1937 campaign.

McGILL REDMEN TAKE QUEEN'S 11-2

Yale Bulldogs Tame Princeton Tigers By 5 To 3 Score

TORONTO, Jan. 25 — (C.P.) — Hockey fans who like to name their champions before the season is half over were counting McGill's Redmen "in" to-day as far as the International Intercollegiate League is concerned.

And there seemed to be some justice for their choice, for with four games under their belt, the flying raiders from Montreal still were looking for a team to stop them. Added to that they had the imposing record of 40 goals with only four against them.

McGill pulled two points ahead of Harvard, University of Toronto and University of Montreal Saturday with an 11-2 win over Queen's Tricolor. At the same time Yale Bulldogs tamed the Princeton Tigers 5-3, and moved into a tie with Queen's for third place, with four points.

Playing at home McGill took 10 minutes to fathom Queen's style, but once they did they never let up. They scored three goals in the final half of the first period, added three in the second and completed the rout with five in the third. Queen's goals came in the middle session.

Cagey Paul Pidcock, who has been placed on Toronto Maple Leafs negotiation list, led the Red snipers with three goals and two assists. He was followed by Russ McConnell with a goal and three assists, and Rolly Lamb with two goals and two assists.

The other McGill marksmen were Bing Crosby, two goals; and Gordie Meiklejohn, Gordie Crutchfield and Alex Duff, one each; Mitch Hepburn and Joe Catlin scored Queen's points.

Yale appeared headed for a rout in the first 25 minutes of the game at Princeton as Captain Bill Moore and Dud Humphrey each tallied twice, but the Tigers came back strongly and Goalie Dave Pearce had to kick out 25 shots to keep them from scoring in the second period.

Ells got the fifth goal, however, before Princeton scored, and when the rally came it was too late. Ollie Stonington fired two goals and Bill Barrett one, but the game ended before the home team could start another drive.

Bancroft High School Defeats L.O.L. Team

BANCROFT, Jan. 25 — High School Pirates lived up to their reputation on Friday evening, January 22nd, by defeating the L.O.L. 5-3, before a small but enthusiastic crowd of hockey fans. Poor ice prevented what might have been a disastrous defeat to the L.O.L.

The first period ended with the Pirates maintaining a 1-goal lead, with the score 2-1. The second was a rough-and-tumble period with plenty of action, and a showing of poorly controlled temper on the part of two players from each team. Both teams battled hard for the puck. The end of the period showed three scores for the Pirates against two for the L.O.L. The third period proved more fatal to L.O.L., with the school team netting two goals and L.O.L. one.

Summary:

First Period
School—K. Sprung, R. Conlin.
L.O.L.—I. Stringer.
Second Period
Pirates—C. Munro.
L.O.L.—H. Watson.
Third Period
Pirates—K. Sprung, B. Hills.
L.O.L.—H. Watson.
Goalies—Art Towle, Doug Moxam.
Referee—C. Crawford.

Hockey Schedule

The following hockey schedule for 1937 has been drawn up.
Feb. 1—L.O.L. vs Pirates.
Feb. 5—Pirates vs L.O.L.
Feb. 8—L.O.L. vs Pirates.
Feb. 12—Pirates vs L.O.L.
Feb. 17—L.O.O.L. vs Pirates.
Feb. 19—Pirates vs L.O.L.
Feb. 22—L.O.L. vs Pirates.

A silver cup for a trophy has been put up by Dr. S. S. Lumb. The teams must hold the cup for two-out-of-three years before it is held permanently.

FALCONS WAKE UP TOO LATE IN RACE

Tie Reds, Down Hornets For 4 Points But Are Still 15 Under Pirates

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (C.P.). — Cleveland Falcons came to life with a bang at the week-end, but most experts fear the possible spurt is too late to land the Birds in the International - American League playoffs. Secretary Maurice Podoloff has announced the battles in quest of the look title will start on March 23.

Although Falcons snared three of a four points possible in week-end duelling, they still trailed the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates by 15 points in the Western division. Only the first two teams in the group enter the charmed circle and Cleveland's hopes look pretty dim.

After holding Providence Reds to a 2-2 tie at Cleveland, Falcons staged a third-period scoring spree in Pittsburgh on Sunday to down the Hornets 3-1. There was less than five minutes to go when Tommy Cook, former Chicago Black Hawks player, started Falcons on their three-goal splurge.

Eagles Lose Two.

Less fortunate were the cellar-dwellers of the Eastern section. New Haven Eagles. Normie Himes' men bowed to Springfield Indians 2-1 on Saturday and took a 6-2 pasting from Philadelphia Ramblers on Sunday. Ramblers made a clean sweep, having drubbed Syracuse Stars 4-2 the previous night.

Muzz Patrick, a noted amateur boxer before he turned pro in hockey, found opposition in the ice game were as tough or tougher than in the ring. He tangled in two bouts in the New Haven game. The fans voted his bout with Goupille a draw and gave Beisler the nod in the second go. The referee ruled major penalties in both cases.

Syracuse Stars made amends for their Saturday defeat by scoring a 3-2 home-ice victory over Providence. After Stars had taken a three-goal lead only the fine goal-tending of Phil Stein saved the victory for them as Reds staged a continued power attack.

QUEEN'S CAGERS WIN IN OPENER

Take McGill's Senior Outfit Down To Tune Of 24-20

MONTREAL, Jan. 25 (C.P.). — Queen's University cagers won the opening game in the Canadian Intercollegiate Basketball League on Saturday downing McGill's senior team 24-20.

Johnny Edwards, Queen's captain, and Spence, sharp-eyed forward, starred for the visitors, accounting for 17 points between them. Hunter, with 8 points, was McGill's best scorer.

Queen's outplayed the Montrealers from start to finish, but marksmanship of both teams was generally poor. Only McGill's outstanding defence work kept down the score against them, however.

The Kingston team stepping out in front early in the match ran up a six-point lead, with the score at 15-9, in the first half, and in the final period stood off McGill's strong bid to get on even terms.

The line-ups:

Queen's — Forwards, Spence 9, Edwards 8, Cunningham 2; guards, Rooke 2, Hova 3; subs., Sonshine, Davis, Vessie.

McGill — Forwards, Scriver 2, Rutherford 2, Schofield; guards, Hunter 8, Bowes 3; subs., Shipley 2, Wykes 3, Wigdor.

Golfers Worried

Latest news from the golf officials has the caddies jubilant and some of the golfers worried. Commencing in 1938, the maximum amount of clubs allowed to one golfer by U.S. golf authorities will be 14. Here is Charles Whitehead, amateur champion of New Jersey, who has the biggest bagful of clubs of any first-rank golfer, 26 in all.

B.C.A. BASKETBALL GROUP SUSPENDED

Besides Officials 1,500 Players Disqualified Over Amateur Cards

VANCOUVER, Jan. 25 (CP). — Officials of the British Columbia Amateur Basketball Association were under suspension of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, B.C. branch, today, while some 1,200 minor league cage players faced technical disqualification.

The action was taken by the amateur body yesterday because, according to President Norman Porter, the basketball officials "failed to co-operate with the Amateur Union Registration Committee in seeing their athletes obtained amateur cards in the proper manner and time."

Walter Hardwick, president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association and treasurer of the B.C. cage body until his resignation last week, stated in commenting on the action that the B.C. branch had not the power to order the suspensions which, he claimed, rested with the A.A.U. of C. executive only.

Hardwick denied charges B.C.A.B.A. officials had not co-operated with amateur officials in card registration. He was supported in his statements by President McTaggart Cowan of the Provincial cage organization.

The amateur ruling disqualified league and team officials and all players taking part in games since November 1, at which gate receipts or collections were taken in which players competed without having taken out registration cards. Porter said they would be barred from sports under A.A.U. of C. control until their applications for amateur cards were accepted.

Senior "A" teams, including the famous Victoria Dominoes, had taken out cards and were not affected by the ruling.

Keene Cops Contest Over Canadiens, 5-3

KEENE, Jan. 25.—Keene took a second straight win in the West-end league, defeating Canadiens 5-3 on their home ice. It was a lively tussle with Keene having a slight edge throughout.

B. Campbell notched three of his team's goals with O. McCarthy notching the other two. Wood and Nelson played a fine game on defence and J. Richardson turned in a neat game in goal. Sproat played a fine game for the losers, notching two of his team's goals, Hunter tallying the other. Rennie and Spencely also looked good. The first few minutes were livened by players exchanging some lusty punches. There were nine penalties, Keene drawing seven. Teams:

Keene: Goal, Richardson; defence, Wood and Nelson; centre, Campbell; wings, D. McCarthy and Shearer; alternates, Gall, Joyce, Fletcher, O. McCarthy, G. Nelson.

Trent River Wins From Donegal 4 To 3

Donegal opened the scoring early in the first period. George Brown evened it up a few minutes later when Ruttan slipped him a pass. Brown ran in two more by the same process before the period ended, giving Trent River what looked like a nice safe lead. Donegal stepped out in the second period and evened it up again. Trent River then began turning on a series of long shots which made it hot for the Donegal goalie. Ruttan stickhandled his way across the Donegal line, let go a terrific shot, and the winning goal dented the twine.

Weather permitting Trent River house games start this week.

Grimm Signs

CHARLIE GRIMM

Rumors that Chicago Cubs would boast a new pilot next season following their failure to retain the National League title in 1936 were shattered when Charles John Grimm, genial Cub boss and first sacker, signed his 1937 contract to again hold the reins. Owner Phil K. Wrigley explained that he had not contemplated a new pilot but that the signing was merely delayed.

FIVE CITIES APPLY IN 'C' BALL LEAGUE

Directors Agree To Add Two Teams To Make Club 8-Team Circuit

OGDENSBURG, N., Jan. 25 (A.P.). — Application from five cities for franchises in the Canadian-American Class C Baseball League were received on Sunday at a meeting of league directors here.

Applications received from William I. Graf, Watertown, N.Y., High School Athletic; Arthur Knight for Rome, N., William J. Buckley for Utica, N., Edward McCullen for Smith's Falls, Ont., and Jess Spring for Cornwall, Ont., were referred to a committee for consideration.

The directors agreed to add two teams to make the club an eight-team circuit.

Mr. Knight said he had been assured of the backing of a major league team if Rome was given a league franchise.

Rev. Harold J. Martin, Ogdensburg priest, president of the league, announced the guarantee for road trips had been raised from $60 to $75.

Directors at the meeting were Father Martin, George Lee, Ogdensburg; Turk Reilly of Columbus, O., voting by proxy for Oswego; Louis Gorsky and Admiral Martin of Gloversville; Dr. Hayard of Perth, Ont.; Claire Forster and Sidney Hooper of Ottawa, and Ray Stewart and E. A. Mackenzie of Brockville.

Teams in the league last season, the first year the league operated were Watertown, Oswego, Ogdensburg, Ottawa, Perth, and Brockville.

Belleville Redmen Play Here Tuesday

Intermediate hockey standing to date:

Team	P.	W.	L.
Fliers	3	3	0
Petes	3	2	1
Belleville	4	2	2
Trenton	4	0	4

Belleville Redmen play the Petes here tomorrow (Tuesday) night at 8.30 in the Brock St. rink in an O.H.A. intermediate scheduled game. It will be Belleville's only appearance here this season and the second home showing this year of the Petes.

The Redmen have shown their power by crowding the Fliers hard all the way last Friday night before losing by a 5-4 count. The Petes will have to hustle from start to finish to gain a decision over the Quinte crowd. However, the Petes showed class in swamping Trenton here last week and they hope to knock over the cocky Belleville gang. It should be a fine hockey game and deserves a big crowd of rooters.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Calgary's Dave Schriner of New York Americans, holder of the National Hockey League scoring championship, gained another point on this season's leader, Larry Aurie of Detroit, by scoring one goal, while Aurie went scoreless during the week-end. Schriner wound up with 28 points, just one behind the Detroit winner.

Meanwhile Harvey Jackson of Toronto, performing the hat trick Saturday night, moved into fifth place, three points behind Schriner.

Manver's Station Women's Association Holds Annual Election Of Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MANVERS STATION, Jan. 25. — On Tuesday afternoon the monthly meeting of the Woman's Association of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Norman Porter, with the president in the chair and a good attendance of members, as well as two visitors. The secretary's report was read and adopted. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $31.44. The sum of $14.34 was paid as a balance on the budget. A wool cushion was presented to the ladies by a former member, Mrs. Robert Wheelans (nee Vera Kellett), who is residing in Toronto. It was decided to dispose of it by guessing on a gem of beans. A second prize was donated by Mrs. Thomas Malcolmson, a fancy guest towel. Other means of raising money were discussed.

At this meeting the election of officers took place, the results being as follows:

President, Mrs. W. D. Cavano; vice-president, Mrs. Edward Kellett; secretary, Mrs. H. Muir; treasurer, Mrs. W. N. Porter; organist, Mrs. Norman Porter; Board representative, Mrs. William Johnston.

A duet was sung by Mrs. Wilder and Rev. Mr. Riding, with Mrs. N. Porter at the piano, "Let the lower lights be burning." A recitation by little Miss M. Cavano was enjoyed. The next meeting is to be held at home of Mrs. William Johnston.

A dainty lunch was served at the close by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Harold Thompson and Mrs. Cavano.

BURRAGE PLAYING DEFENCE ONE TEAM COACHING ANOTHER

English Fans Warm Up Over Outcome When Two Squads Meet March 2

SUGGEST HE REFEREE

LONDON, Jan. 25 —(CP) — This won't sound possible to Canadian hockey fans but it is a fact that Len Burrage, former Winnipeg and Moncton star, plays defence for Harringay Racers and coaches Manchester Rapids—another team in the same league.

Because there are 11 clubs in the National League Burrage's Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde act won't reach the embarrassing stage until March 2. The schedule doesn't get around to bring the teams together until then.

Just what decision the British Ice Hockey Association will reach about Burrage's activities on that evening has the English fans practically excited. Burrage won't be asked whether he'd rather be a coach or a player. It's strictly up to the Association because it recently endorsed his taking over the coach's job.

But the fans are sending in all sorts of suggestions. Some think he should play a period on defence for each team and then coach the Rapids for the third. Others think h should be put on the spot as a referee.

Stay Home and Read?

Whatever happens, even the naive English fans are sure Burrage can't play defence for Rangers and coach Rapids at the same time. There would always be the danger of his going haywire under the strain and bodychecking his own forwards. Perhaps he'll stay home and read a good book.

Since his appointment recently Burrage has done a good job coaching Rapids. Under his direction they defeated Harringay Greyhounds, the favorites, in the semi-final round of the Natoinal knockout tournament.

Rapids, formerly the Paris Rapids, took the first game of the total-goal series with Greyhounds 4-3, and held them to a 2-2 tie in the return battle. Their win sent them into the finals for the British Ice Hockey Association trophy against Earl's Court Rangers, who reached the final by beating Streatham 4-2 and 6-4.

Apart from Burrage's coaching, much of the success of Rapids in the elimination tournament was due to the smart net-minding of Johnny Lascelle of Montreal, who is ranked second to Roy Musgrove of Wembley Monarchs among National League goalies. Musgrove, probably the only goalie in the game who wears glasses, is a Winnipeg product.

Baron Richard Bon Trauttenberg, who plays regularly for Streatham, is finding himself in much the same predicament Burrage will soon face. Streatham's team is on a tour of the continent and when they play in Vienna the Baron will desert the English team to play for Austria. He is captain of the Austrian National team.

Sport Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—(A.P.). — It's a good trick even if Don Lash doesn't do it. . . . The enduring Indiana racer wants to take both the mile and two-mile at the Boston Prout Memorial Games Saturday. . . . With Glenn Cunningham and Gene Venzke in the shorter one, and Ray Sears and Joe McCloskey, in the big fella, no less. . . .

Add Life's little Jokes: Christy Mathewson rated $10,000 per from the Giants in his prime. . . . Now Carl Hubbell is getting in the neighborhood of $25,000 (and the Hub is no Big Six). . . . And that feller Feller will draw better than 10 grand from the Indians for his first full season in the majors. . . .

Jim Tobin, U.S. representative on the International Basketball Federation, just stopped in to tell us he's back from last Summer's Olympics. . . . Jim is probably the last man of the American Olympic outfit to get home, because of the basketball rules meetings over there. He says Germany spent $8,000,000 on the games and took in only $7,000,000. . . . "But what publicity for Mr. Hitler!" adds Jim. The banquet season is agreeing with Joe Dimaggio. . . . Word from the coast says his poundage is up considerably.

Wonder if Tommy Loughran's current "world tour" will wind up with his accepting that London offer. . . . A set of British sportsmen with plenty of the do-re-mi wanted to back him in a gymnasium venture there on his last trip over. . . . Like father, like son. . . . Old Mike Gibbons is sending son Jackie back to the ring wars again any day now. . . . And Buck Boucher of Ottawa, who did a lot of big-league hockeying in his day, is having son Frankie win his spurs with the Ottawa Senators.

Some Think That Bob Pastor Is The Man To Beat Joe Louis

So Here Is Some Dope On Ring Career Of This Would-Be Magician

FINE RECORD IN RING

By Central Press Canadian

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — A few of our more astute connoisseurs of the science of clout have emerged from the laboratory during the last few days with the declaration that Bob Pastor will do things to Joe Louis when they meet in this man's metropolis, Jan. 29.

Bob Pastor

Benny Leonard is one of the experts who so predicts, and the other is Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden. Having Prof. Leonard pick a man usually is a handicap, because Bennah is generally wrong, but his findings are more than outweighed by the canny judgment of Johnston, who calls most of them in the right pocket

It might help a little to know who Pastor, the party of the first part, is, Well—

Robert was born 23 years ago in Washington Heights, which in 1914 was a pleasant residential district, not far from Columbia university. He is a nephew of Rose Pastor, noted welfare crusader who campaigned against slums, and whose writings in a Jewish newspaper won national attention. She married the socialistic millionaire, J. G. Phelps Stokes, and continued her work valiantly for many years.

Football and Journalism

Pastor had the usual youthful background of a middle class New York boy. Graduating at George Washington high school, he went to New York U., where he starred as a half-back. Bob studied journalism at the university, but did not finish his course.

Joe Louis

Six years ago he was attracted by the opportunities offered for ring experience in the Golden Gloves amateur tournaments, but until that time had taken no great interest in boxing. Entering the 1931 tournament as a middleweight he won three fights by knockouts, but was eliminated in the quarter-finals.

In the following year Pastor punched his way to both the light heavyweight and heavyweight titles and repeated in 1933. He won the heavyweight title again in 1934, and decided to turn professional.

Pastor can point to a fine record for his years in the ring. As an amateur he won 84 out of 87 fights, knocking out 44 of his opponents. As a pro he has won 21 fights, lost but one and battled to two draws. The man who beat him was Steve Dudas, but in a return engagement Pastor beat Steve in six rounds. In his most recent fight Bob brought down big Ray Impellitiere in seven heats.

He Can Get Up

Pastor gave plenty of evidence of courage, persistence and ability to take it and get up when he fought Eddie Simms. The Cleveland puncher, who carries dynamite in his right hand, had Bob on the floor six times in their six-round struggle, but Pastor got up and fought his way to a draw.

Bob has studied slow movies of Joe Louis in action and says he believes he knows how to beat him. Further, he has a low opinion of the Bomber's ability to think for himself when he meets a man who does not go down under his first punches, pointing out how Schmeling outsmarted him.

Pastor will spot Louis more than ten pounds, as he weighs only about 185, but he says he will be able to move faster than the Bomber.

By permission of the Australian Government four Japanese experts will spend a year in analyzing and grading the deposits of ore on Koolan Island, off the coast of Western Australia.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ICE BOAT RIDE

"Are you all ready, Uncle Wiggily?"

"My goodness! Who is that?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. She became so excited she dropped a dish of carrot sauce and it went "plop" on the floor of the hollow stump bungalow.

Again came the call from outside: "Hurry, Wiggy! Are you ready? I'm waiting for you!"

"Oh, it must be one of the Bad Chaps!" squeaked Nurse Jane. The muskrat lady housekeeper always spoke in a squeaky voice when she was excited. "Uncle Wiggily! Uncle Wiggily!" This time Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy screamed: "Don't come downstairs."

She knew Uncle Wiggily was upstairs for only a little while before she had heard him hop in.

Once more shouted the voice outside:

"Come on out, Wiggy!"

"How impolite of those Bad Chaps to call Mr. Longears by the name 'Wiggy'," thought Nurse Jane. And she screamed: "Don't you go out there and be caught! I'll call the Police Dog!"

Slid Down Banister

"No need for that!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, and he came sliding down the stair banister railing like a Christmas electric train running away from a dry battery. "What's the matter, Nurse Jane?" he asked, as he saw his muskrat lady housekeeper all excited-like and sanitary. For she was cleaning from the floor the ploppy carrot sauce she had spilled.

"Oh, the Bad Chaps are after you," squeaked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "I heard them calling you to come out."

"Nonsense!" laughed Mr. Longears. "That's only my Polar Bear friend, Mr. Whitewash, who is calling me. Look from the window and see."

Nurse Jane looked and saw Mr. Whitewash, pretending to throw snowballs at himself as he waited outside the bungalow.

"That's never Mr. Whitewash," said Nurse Jane. "He is a white bear and this bear is spotted black and white."

"I know," said Uncle Wiggily. "But Mr. Whitewash had an accident. He was under his auto when it backfired. He was covered with oil and carbon and that's how he got spotted black. He stopped here, on his way to the Duck Pond to take a bath, and he said he'd give me a ride on an ice boat. So I hopped upstairs to put on some warm fur underwear and I suppose I was a bit long. That's why Mr. Whitewash has been calling me."

Leave for Adventure Ride

"Thank you," said Uncle Wiggily. Out he hopped to join Mr. Whitewash and soon the two friends were at the Duck Pond.

"It will be here in a moment," growled Mr. Whitewash. "First let me take a bath and get clean." He jumped through a hole in the ice, near shore, and began splashing about. Just then, out in the middle of the pond, Uncle Wiggily saw floating a large cake of ice.

"That must be the boat," he said "I'll get aboard."

Before Mr. Whitewash could stop him Uncle Wiggily hopped on the cake of ice and away he went sailing and having an adventure ride.

And very soon something happened. I'll tell you about it in the next story, which will be about Uncle Wiggily and the snow jumper. But please don't let the dog biscuit enter the pussy cat show or it might learn to go "Mew! Mew!"

AB COX' HELMET IN DEMAND AGAIN

Now Being Used By Oshawa Junior—Brantfordite Needs It For Playoffs

TORONTO, Jan. 25—(CP)—That historic relic of Ontario playing fields, the much-travelled special helmet of Ab Box, Balmy Beach rugby player, was in demand again today.

Informed that its use will be sought for Thomas Ivanoff, Brantford hockey player, who received a fractured jaw in a game at Galt, Box said he was quite willing to lend it, if its present user is through with it in time.

The helmet, fashioned especially for Box when he suffered a head injury while a member of Toronto Argonauts, was designed by George Stockwell, Argo trainer. The headgear, made of duraluminum, covered with white doeskin, had travelled all over the Province since then, used by basketball, rugby and hockey players, both professional and amateur.

It bears the autographs of each member of the Argonaut rugby team of 1933, which won the Dominion championship, and also signatures of other leading Canadian athletes.

Box himself hasn't seen the helmet since the rugby season, when it was lent to a Toronto high school rugby player who had a broken jaw. Now it is being used by an Oshawa junior hockey player who broke a facial bone in a Junior Ontario Hockey Association game Saturday.

He will be using it for at least two weeks, George Stockwell said tonight. So that makes it look bad for Ivanoff, who is anxious to be in the playoffs for Brantford Kriegerites at the end of this month. Doctors have informed him he will be out of the game for at least three weeks.

COUNCILLORS HAND IN RESIGNATIONS

Three Members Of Bancroft Body Have Quit—Fair Board Meets

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Jan. 25.—Following the recent proceedings to unset the reeve and certain members of the village council, Dr. R. Harryett, D. E. Hawley and T. W. Tryon have forwarded their resignations.

Dr. S. S. Lumb is among the reeves from North Hastings who are attending the January session of Hastings County Council in Belleville this week.

The hockey club has arranged to have the Barry's Bay team in Bancroft on January 27, to play an exhibition game.

Church Annual

The annual meeting of St. Paul's United Church was held on Wednesday evening. Favorable reports were received from the different branches of the church work. Rev. A. W. Harding occupied the chair and in the absence of the secretary, Mr. J. M. Joynt acted. The same board of stewards was elected for 1937. At the close of the meeting a social hour was spent.

Officers Re-elected

The annual meeting of the Bancroft Agricultural Society was held in the Council Chamber recently. The association was shown to be in a satisfactory condition, all accounts having been paid and a reduction of principal on mortgage and interest having been made. The same president, secretary and board of directors will act in 1937. The society proposes that the 1937 Fair will be held on September 16 and 17.

The manager of the Bancroft Skating Rink has made arrangements for a carnival, to be held on January 25, with prizes given for various classes of costume. Music, amplified by means of a loudspeaker, will add to the attractions.

Mr. G. E. Towle recently received word of having been successful in examinations set by the Ontario board of examiners for funeral directors' and embalmers' licenses.

Mr. Harold Giles has recently accepted a position as service station attendant with Mr. James Maxwell, local Dodge and DeSoto dealer.

Shower Is Held

A shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jack White (nee Myrtle Thompson) was held in the Council Chamber on Friday evening. The bride and groom were the recipients of numerous beautiful and useful gifts.

Following the hockey match on Friday evening, a number of young people of Bancroft enjoyed skating, and then spent an evening of frolic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Sprung.

Mrs. F. Smith of Madoc spent last week-end in Bancroft, visiting her brother-in-law, Mr. Harry Smith, who has been ill, and other relatives in town.

Mr. F. A. Towle is holidaying for a short time with friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Frank Wiggins is making fair recovery after a major operation in Kingston General Hospital last week.

The lucky winner of the quilt, which was raffled at the bridge and euchre on Wednesday evening was Mrs. Frank Askey of this village. The entertainment was under the auspices of the L.O.B.A.

Mr. George Woodcock, who recently moved from Peterborough County, was on Thursday obliged to leave Coe Hill, where he had taken up residence in a small cottage owned by Mr. C. Rollins.

Mrs. Albert Reynolds is confined to her home, having contracted mumps. An epidemic of this disease is apparent in the village.

Mrs. M. J. McAlpine is spending this week visiting relatives and friends in Toronto.

WESTWOOD CHURCH VESTRY MEETING

W. Elmhurst And W. Thompson Are Chosen As Wardens

The annual vestry meeting of St. Michael's Anglican church, Westwood, was held in the church on Wednesday, with the rector, Rev. R. E. Lemon, in the chair.

The following appointments were made: W. Emhurst, vicar's warden; W. Thompson, people's warden; A. Reed as head sidesman and envelope secretary; L. Elmhurst to sit on the cemetery board. A committee of F. E. Birdsall and W. Elmhurst was appointed to make a plan of St. Michael's cemetery. The sidesmen are as follows: Vicar sidesmen, L. Elmhurst, G. Elmhurst, J. Clarke, G. Lancaster, A. Reed and F. Cooper; vestry sidesmen, F. Godfrey, B. Godfrey, J. Thompson, J. Lancaster, S. Elmhurst and C. Bray.

An excellent report from the A.Y.P.A. was read by the secretary. The rector presented his report for the year.

LADIES' AID PLANS PLAY AND EUCHRE

Future Program Decided Upon At Enjoyable Meeting Of Society

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FOWLER'S Corners, Jan. 25.—Mrs. J. Hunter entertained the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Lakevale Presbyterian church, together with a number of friends at her home on Thursday evening.

The president, Mrs. George Tully, was in charge of the business period. Mrs. M. Deyell read the Scripture reading and Mrs. M. Moncrieff acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. R. McAdam. Ten ladies paid their dues and a further enrollment is anticipated. It was decided to produce a play, Mrs. M. Moncrieff, Mrs. G. Tully and Mrs. M. Deyell being appointed a committee to select a suitable one. The society is also sponsoring a progressive euchre party to be held in the Temple, Lindsay Highway, on February 17.

Mrs. Harvy Fowler, Sr., thanked the ladies for the gift of a basket of fruit at Christmas.

Following the business period, crokinole and contests were enjoyed as well as Hawaiian guitar selections played by Miss Dorothy Rowland.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by a number of the ladies.

Hastings Women's Church Organizations Enjoy Programs At Regular Sessions

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 25. — Thursday was meeting day for the various women's organizations of the village, as three meetings were held on the same day. Miss L. Kelly extended the hospitality of her home to the members of Trinity United Church Woman's Association on Thursday afternoon, when 22 ladies and their pastor, Rev. F. W. Newell, were present. The pastor read the Scripture reading before the usual monthly business was transacted. Following an interesting contest, lunch was served.

On the same evening the W.M.S. sponsored a recital at the church when Miss Mildred Connerty, elocutionist, of Perth, Ontario, gave six of Nellie McClung's numbers, Miss Carrie Doxsee contributed an organ solo, and Mrs. J. B. Scriver and Mrs. E. Hess a very pleasing duet.

St. Andrew's W.M.S.

Mrs. William McEachnie was hostess to the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Thursday afternoon, when they had as their guests, the new minister, Rev. D. K. Perrie, also the Home Helpers. Mrs. William Hill, the president, presided. The roll-call was New Year Thoughts. Rev. Mr. Perrie gave a wonderful description of his experiences in the Peace River district. Mrs. Charles Dodd contributed a beautiful missionary reading entitled "The Prison Pillow." A pleasing duet "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" was rendered by Mrs. Stewart Whitred and Mrs. R. Johnson. At the close of the meeting Mrs. McEachnie assisted by her little son Billie, served a very dainty luncheon.

STEVE CHELIADKO

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 25.—Following an operation for internal trouble, Steve Cheliadko of Deloro passed away in Belleville Hospital early on Saturday morning at the age of 49. Deceased was born in the province of Minsk, South Russia and came to this country about twenty-five years ago. For over eighteen years he had resided at Deloro where he was employed by the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. His quiet ways and genial manner made him popular with his fellow workmen who will regret his passing. As far as is known, he had no relatives in Canada.

The funeral took place on Sunday from F. N. Marett and Company's undertaking parlors to St. Andrew's United Church where service was conducted at 1.15 p.m. by the pastor, Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth. The hymns were "Rock of Ages" and "Abide With Me." The choir also sang "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Peace, Perfect Peace."

Interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

ALEXANDER ROBERTS

DUMBARTON, Scotland, Jan. 25.—The death occurred at St. Andrews recently of Alexander Roberts, solicitor, and senior Town Clerk of Dumbarton. Mr. Roberts was born in 1857 at Dunnichen, Forfarshire, and educated at Forfar Academy. He served his legal apprenticeship with the firm of Messrs. J. and W. MacDonald, Arbroath, and came to Dumbarton in 1878 as managing clerk with Messrs. Denny and Allan. In the 'eighties he was assumed as a partner by the late Mr. Alexander Allan, Town Clerk. On the death of Mr. Allan he was appointed Town Clerk of Dumbarton, and clerk and treasurer to Dumbarton School Board.

Other appointments held were assessor in the Police Court, clerk to Dumbarton Harbour Board, clerk to Dumbarton Joint Hospital, and secretary of the Library Committee.

In his younger days Mr. Roberts was an enthusiastic Volunteer, and retired as a captain in the local Artillery unit. He was also well known in the county of Dumbarton, having acted for a period as secretary to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons. Mr. Roberts was just approaching his jubilee as Town Clerk, and during his long term served under nine Provosts of the burgh.

Mr. Roberts is the father of Mr. Alexander Roberts, son-in-law of Dr. W. D. Scott of Peterborough, Ontario. Some years ago the late Mr. Roberts paid several visits to Canada. He was a cousin of Mrs. Mark Burnham and Miss Erskine also of Peterborough, Ontario.

The large crowd of young people present danced to the merry strains of the violin and guitar played by Messrs. Bob Marshall, Arnold Whitney, Art Anderson, Lloyd and Winston Petherick. The older people enjoyed cards and the popular songs given by young people.

Mr. Isaac Anderson contributed several of his readings for the entertainment of the crowd.

The happy dancers paused at midnight long enough to enjoy a hearty lunch.

WOOLER

On Wednesday noon, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rowe entertained Rev. and Mrs. Poulter, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. A. Brundage.

Edith Austin has opened a beauty parlor for permanent waving and finger waving, and is meeting with success.

The "Austin" orchestra played in Frankford on Friday evening.

Mrs. Wm. Montgomery entertained her Sunday School class at her home on Friday evening. A splendid program was arranged and Mrs. Montgomery served refreshments.

On Thursday at the noon hour, the A's and B's lunch committee served. Quilting was done. The president, Mrs. A. G. Austin, presided at 2.30 p.m. over the meeting with a splendid program.

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott and Mrs. E. McConnell were hostesses to Mr. and Mrs. E. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. C. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McColl, Mr. and Mrs. N. Haggarty, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Austin, Mr. and Mrs George Adams, Rev. and Mrs. Poulter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crews, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill, Mr. and Mrs C. F. Wessels.

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Terrill were at home to a birthday anniversary in honor of Mrs. C. R. Terrill and S. L. Terrill.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Tackaberry held a reception at their home in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Whitney (nee Helen Tackaberry) on Friday evening. A large party and many useful gifts were received by the bridal couple.

A sawmill is being built on the "Rowe" farm to cut the logs from the woods on the Mangan estate. Operations are to begin in a few days.

Convict and Officer Are Slain In Quebec Gun Battle

Dead Desperado's Pal Hunted In Underworld To Climax Jail Break

Detective In Serious Condition Of Shot In Face During Cellar Duel

SIX SUSPECTS HELD

Cool Gunman Gets Shave, Vanishes As Police Arrive—2 Prison Officials Suspended

QUEBEC, Jan. 26 (C.P.).—Searching police combed Quebec's underworld haunts to-day for the wounded survivor of a gunman pair whose armed jailbreak came to a dramatic climax with two deaths in a cellar gun battle.

A jump ahead of the pursuers, elusive Honorat Bernard, 28, retained his stolen freedom more than 12 hours after he had dashed from the St. John Street cellar while his pal, Arthur Fontaine, 32, was being riddled with police bullets after shooting down Provincial Detective Leopold Chateauneuf.

The gunfight came as the pair were cornered by 20 officers in a rooming-house 24 hours after they had suddenly produced revolvers in the City Jail and gained the outside by forcing a guard to hand over his keys.

Armed with five guns, some taken from the jail office, the fugitives launched a fusillade as Detective Chateauneuf and fellow-officers came into the celar where they lay hidden in darkness. Struck once in the head, the officer continued to fire until Fontaine dropped with three bullets in his body.

Ex-Foreign Legionnaire.

Then Chateauneuf fell as a second shot hit his side. He died in hospital. Fontaine, a one-time soldier in the French Foreign Legion, died on the spot.

In the brief moments that the gun battle raged, Bernard slipped out through a little side door and somehow slipped through the police cordon. His nerve unshaken, he turned up in a barber shop three hours later and had a shave. He escaped again just before police rushed down on the barber shop.

Six Suspects Picked Up

To-day, while the search for the gunman went on, police held six persons whom they picked up at the rooming house. Wilfrid Darveau, lessee of the two small rooms where the escaped pair were found, was charged with complicity in their escape from the jail, where they were held on hold-up charges.

Five others, taken into custody as material witnesses, were: Joseph and Roland Derron, sons of the rooming house proprietress; Romeo Dubuc, a barber working next door to the house at 847 St. John street; Cyrille Emond, wanted for questioning in connection with the jail escape, and H. Descrochers, found in the same cellar room as the fugitives when the police arrived.

Police looked for others, possibly a woman. Amedee Delisle, the barber at whose shop Bernard came for his shave after the fight, told of seeing him signal to a man and woman in the street while he was being shaved.

Also, the manhunters were checking a report that Fontaine and Bernard, dressed in women's clothing,

NEW POSTAL LISTS.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—(CP).—New eligible lists for postal employees will shortly be compiled as a result of examinations being held in several centres throughout Canada, post office officials said to-day.

Besides the usual employment turnover in the service, which necessitates holding examinations to select men eligible for vacancies, provision has to be made for some increase in staffs due to the Government's decision to provide regular deliveries on holidays.

CHANGE FACTORY SITE

LONDON, Jan. 26 (CP Cable)—Amid genera cheers, Prime Minister Baldwin told the House of Commons today that the air ministry, "in view of the wider considerations involved," had abandoned the proposal to build an aircraft factory at Maidenhead and that a site would be found in Lancashire.

Hitler Is Barred From Coronation

London, Jan. 25. (CP Cable)

CHANCELLOR Hitler cannot come to the coronation. He is barred by a curious convention. Invitations have already gone from the British government to other governments, inviting them to send representatives. But it is understood that the invitation does not include heads of states. Therefore, although Hitler as head of the German state can nominate the German representatives, he cannot nominate himself.

It all arises from an old custom. It has never been the practice, it is stated, for heads of states to be invited to the coronation, for if they were invited questions of precedence would immediately arise.

Hangman Joins Move To Save Murderer

Vienna, Jan. 26 (AP)

Illetschko was sentenced to be hanged after he confessed slaying a wealthy Vienna pharmacist in the course of a robbery.

HOTEL, SIX STORES SWEPT BY $300,000 NORTH BAY BLAZE

Forty-Five Guests Escape City's Worst Fire As Night Clerk Raises Alarm

SEVERAL ARE INJURED

NORTH BAY, Ont., Jan. 26—(C.P.).—Fire which chased guests from the Queen's Hotel and destroyed the structure, a cafe building and damaged three other blocks early to-day was estimated to have caused $300,000 loss when it was brought under control several hours after daybreak.

Worst fire in North Bay's history, it started in the hotel basement and raged through the building as Night Clerk Arthur Cutts aroused 45 guests, including members of the Sault Ste. Marie Junior hockey team and sent them scurrying to safety by fire escapes and ropes strung from windows.

Cutts, who did not leave the hotel until every guest had left, was assisted in his rescue work by Marcel Filiatrault, hotel fireman, who first reported the blaze, and Emile Giroux. It was definitely established that no lives were lost, though several were injured.

Six Stores Damaged

Business establishments which suffered total loss of stock and furnishings were McDivitt's drug store, Royal cafe, Canadian cafe, Silverstein's men's wear, Lovell's music and novelty shop, and an untenanted store furnished.

The fire was checked by city firemen, assisted by hundreds of volunteers, after reaching a brick wall which separated it from Woolworth's store. Apartment dwellers in the Woolworth building, however, had removed all their furniture to the street before they were assured the blaze was under control.

Hundreds of persons awakened in the early morning by Canadian Pacific Railway whistles which were blown for 15 minutes, rushed to the spectacular scene. Part of the crowd narrowly escaped injury when a hotel wall collapsed, scattered bricks over the street.

A woman who jumped from a first floor window suffered a broken ankle and other guests were treated for minor cuts and bruises.

Work of the firemen was hampered when failing transmission lines threw the section of the street in which the fire occurred in darkness.

The fire was still burning at dawn as hundreds of spectators jammed their way into the narrow street.

Hotel Fireman Marcel Filiatrault attempted to put out the fire which originated in the cellar, but he soon discovered the task was hopeless as the flames spread quickly along the beams and up the stairway into the main section of the hotel.

Aerial View of Cincinnati As River Flood Broke All Records

Aerial view of Cincinnati waterfront viewed from elevation of approximately 1,000 feet as Ohio river rose to highest stage in history of city. Skyscrapers in background indicate main business section. The river gauge showed a depth of 72.8 feet when this picture was taken. Even river transportation ceased as steamers could not get under bridges. The death toll from floods has risen to 135.

COST OF DAMAGE IN GUELPH RIOTING SET AT $22,489

Head Of Reformatories Claims Log Book Showed No Advance Signs Of Trouble

GAVE ORDER FOR GAS

GUELPH, Jan. 26 (CP).—A "liberal" estimate for repairing damage done to the Ontario Reformatory at the riot January 27 is $22,489, William McJannet, inspector for prisons, told Judge James E. Madden when an inquiry into the disturbance opened here today. This estimate took into account the fact that much of the reconditioning work was by prison labor, he said.

"Damage to glass and sash was the greatest," he said. "There were 11,090 pieces of glass replaced, 202 new sash, 14 complete window frames and sash, and 77 sash were repaired in our own workshop.

"Plumbing cost $1,000 just for purchase of new materials. They included lavatory and wash-room equipment damaged by violence, not by fire. The fire did little damage to the plumbing. Total plumbing and heating cost was $1,815.39.

Other Damage.

"Damage to the school was $2,000, to the church $1,000, mostly by fire; guards' quarters $200, mostly by smoke; the offices, $600; guards' recreation room, $300; $500.68 for grill work in the corridors. These were smashed by a battering ram and

Flood Briefs

LOUISVILLE. — A reporter vouches for this story. A stranger asked a patrolman at Fourth and Walnut Streets here: "Which way is the Ohio River?"

LOUISVILLE, — John Cowens, 24, rowing an expectant mother to a power boat waiting to rush her to a hospital, unexpectedly became a midwife when the baby was born in the boat. Mother and child were said to be doing fine. Another baby was born in a truck carrying refugees to a train.

CINCINNATI, O. — A wry smile from the flood zone: Cincinnati, where there is plenty of water but little to drink and none in which to bathe, is generally credited with origin of the bath tub.

The first tub, built by Adam Thompson of mahogany and sheet lead, was installed in his home in 1842. It is recorded that the first day Thompson took two baths in it, and on Christmas Day invited in 40 guests, all of whom tried a plunge.

PADUCAH, Ky.— Fourteen persons drowned to-day when a rescue barge loaded with refugees capsized in the muddy flood waters coursing the city's streets, Red Cross officials announced.

CHICAGO—Howard O. Hunter, assistant work progress administrator, estimated today 580,000 persons were homeless in five flood area states. He said the number would be increased to more than 626,000 by nightfall. The homeless were distributed as follows: Ohio, 120,000; Indiana, 85,000; Kentucky, 316,000 (250,000 in Louisville area); Illinois, 35,000; and Missouri, 25,000.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Martial law was ordered for Eastern Arkansas and troops patrolled weakening Tennessee levees today for the south's fight against all-time high flood waters.

Twenty-eight persons were known dead in Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi.

INDIANAPOLIS — State Representative Claude I. Baylor of Speed just back from flood-ravaged Jeffersonville, reported to Governor Townsend today that "people are dying like flies" there.

CINCINNATI — With faltering power, by hand, and by mimeograph newspaper editors in the flood area struggled today to continue publications.

In some cities and towns, presses capable of printing thousands of copies an hour were under water—but the newspapers still appeared as little handbills.

King George Requests Regent Be Appointed By Commons

Would Act In Event Of His Death Before Elizabeth of Age, His Illness, or Absence From Kingdom

BEFORE HOUSE WEDNESDAY

LONDON, Jan. 26—(C.P. Cable).—Prime Minister Baldwin to-morrow will submit a Regency Bill to Parliament. The bill will make permanent provision to meet three contingencies:

1.—Appointment of a Regent to act in the event of the King's death before Princess Elizabeth becomes of age. The majority age of a member of the Royal Family is 18. Princess Elizabeth is now 11.

2.—The Sovereign's incapacity through illness to exercise the royal functions, as in the case of George V's serious illness in 1928 and his last illness in 1936.

3.—The sovereign's inability to attend to urgent public business owing to his absence for a substantial time from the United Kingdom.

Act Parallels Abdication

The need for a Regency Bill was submitted to Parliament in a message from the King. The procedure paralleled that of the dramatic day when the House was called to consider the abdication of King Edward VIII.

The question hour had just closed. Speaker E. A. Fitzroy announced a message from the King, "signed by his own hand."

Prime Minister Baldwin rose and walked quickly down the chamber to the bar. He turned, bearing the royal message in his hand, and proceeded, bowing, to the clerk's table.

Then, in measured, resonant tone, the Speaker read the royal message. Mr. Baldwin immediately moved the thanks of the House be returned to His Majesty, thanking him for the message and assuring the King that the House would without delay proceed to consideration of the question. The House concurred without discussion.

Mr. Baldwin will introduce the bill. Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, will have charge of it on second reading and in subsequent stages.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Jan. 26 (C.P. Cable).—The Royal Bank of Canada announced to-day it has decided to close its Costa Rican branch as result of Republic's new banking regulations.

MDIVANI NABBED AS CONSPIRATOR NEW RUSSIAN PLOT

17 HELD FOR TREASON

MOSCOW, Jan. 25—(A.P.).—Bydy Mdivani, identified by Soviet officials as a brother of the "Marrying Mdivanis," was arrested to-day after having been implicated as a co-conspirator with 17 ousted Communist officials on trial on treason charges.

Mdivani, a former Soviet commercial attache in Paris and known as a disciple of Leon Trotsky before his banishment, was said to be a prisoner at Tiflis, Georgia.

(Georgia is a republic in the Union of Soviet Socialist republics where, in Czarist days, the Mdivani family were princes of the realm.)

His arrest was ordered, officials said on the strength of testimony yesterday by Karl Radek, former editor of Izvestia, who linked the famous Mdivani family with the alleged conspiracy to overthrown Communism by helping Germany and Japan defeat Russia at war.

Radek said the Tiflis bloc was known as the Mdivani bloc, presumably because one of the Mdivanis headed it.

(Bydy Mdivani is a brother of the famous Princes Mdivani—Alexis, David and Serge. He was a brother-in-law of Countess Barbara Hutton Mdivani Haudwitz - Reventlow through the Woolworth heiress' marriage to the late Princes Alexis; of Mae Murray, movie actress, through her marriage to Prince David; of socially prominent Louise Van Alen through her marriage to the late Prince Serge. She also had been Alexis' wife).

(He is a brother of Mrs. Jose Maria Sert, wife of the painter. She was Princess Isabel Mdivani.)

Jailed With Score of Henchmen

L. Serebryakoff, another defendant, linked Mdivani to the sabotage plot, testifying in court the prisoner had come to Moscow to join the intrigue and help work out the details.

The former Georgian Prince was jailed together with more than a score of henchmen on charges of plotting to separate Georgia—the home province of Joseph Stalin—from the Soviet Union.

Official sources said there was little doubt Mdivani and the others would be tried soon and probably sentenced to death.

Serebryakoff said Mdivani wanted immediately to kill Laurentius Beria, a close friend of Stalin and a high Soviet official in Georgia, but was dissuaded by pleas to wait until Stalin himself was killed.

He also related Mdivani's alleged efforts to consolidate malcontents throughout Soviet Russia including opponents of Communism in Armenia and Azerbaidjan in order to build a strong centre for the so-called "Tiflis Parallel."

The plot to overthrow the Communist State in Russia was laid to Leon Trotsky's ambition to create

Quaint Jap English To Vanish In Ads

Tokio, Jan. 26 (CP)

THE English-speaking colony here is a bit sad about a move inspired by some of the "intelligentsia" to improve the standard of English used by Japanese business houses seeking tourist business. The campaign would get rid of such advertisements as, in their eyes, constitute "a national shame."

The daily newspaper Hochi Shimbun lists some of the brighter ones A milk hall is advertised as a milk hole, a barber boasts of head cutting, and a fashion tailor announces "foreign laides has fits upstairs."

GOING TO CORONATION

President Roosevelt Names Special Commission to Represent United States.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt appointed a special commission last night to represent the United States at the Coronation of King George VI. of Great Britain in May.

James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, will head the commission as "Special Ambassador." General John J. Pershing and Admiral Hugh Rodman will be other members.

Civilization Doomed Unless Self-Sufficiency Policy Ends

Strangling Germany And Italy —And Will Get U.S. Warns Sir George Paish

HITLER MERE "PUPPET"

DETROIT, Jan. 26—(C.P.).—Civilization is doomed unless the world-wide policy of national self-sufficiency is immediately abandoned, Sir George Paish of London, England, who foretold the Great War and the great depression, said in an address here to-day.

Former head of the London School of Economics and financial advisor to the British Treasury during the Great War, Sir George urged the United States to join with the British Empire in a concerted effort to extend credit where it was needed and open the dormant channels of international trade. He urged extension of credit to China and Russia.

"The last century was your century," he told his American audience. "Let this century be Russia's century."

Sir George stressed the need for thorough economic study.

"The whole situation is so grave," he said, "I am compelled to tell people about it, so I can shift the responsibility of my knowledge to their shoulders.

Unless prompt action is taken the world is in for the greatest distress it has ever been in in its entire history," he contended. "Civilization itself is in danger. For that reason I beg you to get the facts."

School Burns Down Jail Takes Its Place

Montreal, Jan. 26 (CP)

THE juvenile's dream — fire sweeping through that old schoolhouse—has come true for junior pupils of Cote des Neiges School. But, instead of getting holidays because the fire scarred several classrooms late Saturday night, the children are going to the district lockup. Police and school officials decided classes would be held in the police station until repairs to the school are completed Wednesday.

MAN WHO ORDERED CZAR'S EXECUTION FALLS FROM GRACE

President Of Ural Republic Is Arrested, Held For Trial As Trotzkyist

GERMAN ENGINEER TALKS

MOSCOW, Jan. 26 (A.P.). — M. Beloborodoff, president of the Ural Soviet Republic, reputed to have ordered the execution of Czar Nicholas and his family in 1918, was arrested to-day at Rostoff-on-the-Don, and held for trial as a Trotzkyist.

Engineer Confesses.

MOSCOW, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Alexander Stein, German mining engineer, testified to-day at the trial of 17 confessed Trotzkyist plotters he engaged in Siberian sabotage to help "Germany recover her former power" in the Soviet Union.

The 55-year-old engineer, first foreign witness in the trial, declared through an interpreter he received his instruction through another German named Flesser who told him:

"Germany had to recover her former power so Germans in the Soviet Union had to engage in wreckage so as to increase German strength and give her a free hand."

Flesser relayed the wreckage orders, Stein testified, after receiving them from "a person in an official position in the U.S.S.R. who would help us in case of failure."

Stein testified his activities were regulated by A. A. Shestoff, one of the Russian defendants who has confessed to plotting overthrow of the Stalin Government. Shestoff confirmed the German statement.

At least 100 Communists, foreign observers estimated, have been jailed as suspected counter-revolutionaries in the four days since the ring of confessed traitors went on trial.

Whole Towns, Villages Show Only Rooftops With Worst To Come

Over One Million Acres Are Under Water, Forcing the Greatest Mass Exodus in the History of the United States—125 Reported Dead

LOOTERS ORDERED SHOT—MISSISSIPPI WAITS GREATEST TEST OF ITS IMMENSE DAM SYSTEM

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—(AP)—Fear stricken Americans by the tens of thousands cowered behind weakening levees or fled to higher levels today as the monstrous yellow tide of the Ohio River swelled to record-breaking flood heights on its sweep to the Mississippi.

Eddying in muddy, slow-rising torrents, the waters spread over an area of more than 1,000,000 acres, taking a toll of at least 132 known dead, driving 550,000 from their homes and leaving many thousands more marooned in precarious straits. Whole towns and villages showed only rooftops.

With property damage estimated far in excess of $10,000,000 in Cincinnati alone, officials predicted total loss so far in the 11 states over $300,000,000.

Wholesale evaculations of flood-sieged towns in Tennessee, Western Kentucky, Southeastern Missouri, Arkansas and Mississippi signaled the greatest mass flood exodus in history.

Mile On Mile of Water.

From Pittsburgh in the north, where anxious crowds watched the flood relentlessly spread over the edge of the $1,000,000,000 business district, to the crest of the deluge sweeping into the Mississippi River beyond Cairo, Ill., a panorama of watery desolation extended mile on mile.

In the lower Mississippi Valley, where 600,000 were made homeless in 1927, authorities awaited the big test of the great system of dikes and levees built along a 300-mile stretch of the Mississippi after the 1927 disaster.

Red Cross officials renewed their urgent appeal for contributions to a $4,000,000 relief fund. The first day's receipts at national headquarters totalled $55,630.

Many Prefer Their Homes.

Lieut. A. Burton of the U. S. Air Corps, after a boat inspection of Louisville's west end, reported 2,000 persons were marooned on second floors or rooftops. Many refused to move.

American Promoters Decide Cost Of Ocean Trip For Hockey Squad Too High

CANADIANS DISAPPOINTED

LONDON, Jan. 26 (CP) — The proposed trip of a selected English hockey team to the eastern United States next month has been cancelled. American promoters of the tour decided the cost of ocean transportation would be prohibitive.

The tour was to have been staged while the world tournament was on in England. Exhibition games would have been played with U.S. amateur teams.

Many Canadians who hoped to make the team and get in a short holiday at their homes in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa were disappointed when the negotiations collapsed.

THAMES FLOOD HOLDS.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (C.P. Cable).—The level of the River Thames, six feet above normal in places, remained fairly stationary to-day and no new damage was reported.

Large tracts of land in the Thames Valley and in the Midlands were under water.

Rampaging Ohio Already Taken 111 Lives, Left 550,000 Without Homes

PESTILENCE REARS HEAD

Militia Rule Louisville, Series Of Cities, Towns Deserted With Worst Yet To Come

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(AP). — A 'super flood" in the Mississippi Valley threatened to-day as the rampaging Ohio cut a wide swath of destruction through United States' Middle Western States. At least 111 were dead and 550,000 homeless.

The danger to the Lower Mississippi Valley, where 600,000 were made homeless in 1927, loomed as the rain-swollen Ohio began to pour a great tide of water into the Mississippi at Cairo, Ill.

The warning a "super flood is on its way" came from Lieut.-Col. Eugene Reybold, District Chief of U. S. Army Engineers, at Memphis, Tenn. He predicted general stages along the Mississippi some ten feet beyond records set in the disastrous 1913 and 1927 floods.

Famine, Disease Threaten.

The companions of disaster — panic, famine, pestilence and fire—constantly menaced cities and towns in the 11-State flood area which holds more than a third of the nation's population. Added to these were the prospects of water and power shortages.

In the flood-besieged city of Cincinnati the water supply for its 500,000 residents became more serious hourly. The city was on strict water rations and the health department warned all drinking water must be boiled.

With property damage already estimated in excess of $10,000,000 and a growing army of homeless, 1,000 National Guardsmen moved into the city to help combat the disaster. Martial law was debated after city manager Dykstra was given dictatorial powers to meet the emergency.

Troops Take Charge

United States troops moved into Louisville to complete the evacuation of more than two-thirds of the city's 330,000 residents. The city was under military rule, clamped down by Governor A. B. Chandler who said he acted despite the fact he did not have such authority under the state constitution.

As the flood waters drummed an ominous crescendo on southern levees and conditons grew worse along the Ohio, army engineers watched the effect of their first major thrust at the "watery octopus" as one observer described the flood.

Thousands of gallons of water poured from the turbulent stream into a 131,000-acre basin—the Birds Point-New Madrid floodway "fuse plug" levee, below Cairo. An opening was dynamited last night by army engineers to save the Illinois city of 15,000 from inundation.

Engineers said the floodway would fill up in 48 hours and that then the great system of dikes and levees built along a 300-mile stretch of the Mississippi after the 1927 disaster would face its big test.

Already more than 1,000,000 acres in the Mississippi basi second largest river basin in the world, were inundated and 100,000 were homeless.

Ohio Moves Steadily Higher

The Ohio moved toward higher levels on its long stretch of nearly 1,000 miles from Pittsburgh to the farm country around Cairo. Along the whole stretch the story was one of deserted cities, hardship and suffering.

In Indiana the record-shattering high waters forced thousands of refugees on a 250-mile front to seek safety in dry territory.

In Evansville, city of 102,000, business was at a standstill, and 8,000 residents headed northward overnight as officials contemplated evacuation.

Most of Lawrenceburg, Ind., was under water and New Albany, Jeffersonville, Madison, and Aurora reported grave conditions as the flooded area expanded.

Forty Prisoners Missing

Frankfort, Kentucky's capital, gained a brief respite when flood waters of the Kentucky River began receding after forcing abandonment of the old State Reformatory. Conflicting reports of the number of prisoners killed in rioting that followed panic had not been cleared up by officials. One state official said 40 to 45 prisoners were missing.

National Guardsmen estimate 12 bodies lay beneath the waters. County Judge Boone Hamilton estimated the property loss in Frank-

MARMORA CHURCH REVIEWS YEAR '36 WITH SATISFACTION

St. Paul's Reports Show $3,172 Raised With All Branches Flourishing

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 26.—The annual vestry meeting of St. Paul's Church was held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening, under presidency of Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. The attendance was the largest in some years.

R. J. Scott was asked to perform the duties of vestry clerk and read the minutes of the last annual vestry and a special vestry which were confirmed by motion.

In the absence of the parish treasurer, G. Kerr, L. R. Rundle, people's warden, presented the financial statement for St. Paul's, which showed receipts to be $2,773.42. The liabilities at the end of 1936 were shown to be $352.14 less than at the end of the previous year.

W. J. Cottrell gave the report of the special canvass made in 1936 for Diocesan and Parochial funds. The receipts were: Diocesan, $158.79; Parochial, $365.38. As Missions treasurer, Mr. Cottrell also reported for the missionary work in the parish. The sum of $99.55 was raised and expended in that connection.

Guild Raises $1,025

Mrs. J. Nichol, retiring secretary-treasurer of the Ladies' Guild, gave an encouraging report of the year's finances. The goodly amount of $1,025.30 was raised by the ladies and $839.90 was devoted to parish funds.

Rural Dean Caldwell, as honorary president, gave the financial statement of St. Paul's Men's Club, which raised and expended $65.36. Also reporting for the A.Y.P.A., the rector gave the amount raised as $102.46. Rural Dean Caldwell, reporting for the Sunday School, mentioned that it had raised $143.62.

The Rector's report of services for 1936, as given by him, was as follows:

Services. — Morning, 52; average attendance, 32. Evening, 43; average attendance, 31. Mid-day celebrations: average attendance, 33. Early celebrations, 6; average attendance, 17. Mid-week, 10; average attendance, 30. Private celebrations, 6. Easter Communicants: St. Paul's, 71; Holy Trinity, 7. Baptisms, 17. Marriages, 3. Persons confirmed, 18. Burials, 10.

Sunday School sessions, 51; average attendance, 56.

Parish Raises, $3,172

In referring to the financial condition of the whole parish, Rural Dean Caldwell showed that with the inclusion of the Men's Club, A.Y.P.A., St. Paul's Sunday School and Holy Trinity contributions, the parish as a whole had raised $3,172.94. All reports were adopted, upon motion.

The election of the various officers of the church for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Rector's Warden (rector's appointment), H. J. Mumby. People's Warden, A. G. Gordier, B.A. Lay delegates to Synod: 3 years, C. H. Buskard; 2 years, W. J. Cottrell; 1 year, R. E. Bonter. Missions treasurer, W. J. Cottrell. Parochial council: Rural Dean Caldwell, Messrs. S. B. Wright, A. G. Gordier, H. J. Mumby, R. E. Bonter, A. B. Smith, W. R. Reynolds, R. J. Scott and W. J. Cottrell, and Mesdames S. B. Wright, A. B. Caldwell, H. Crawford, S. C. Boyd, R. Phillips, A. G. Gordier and J. Jones. C. H. Buskard and H. R. Pearce were re-elected as auditors.

Votes of thanks to the Ladies' Guild, Mesdames H. R. Pearce, L. R. Rundle and I. Nichol for duties as organists, and to the retiring officers of the church were followed by a hearty vote of appreciation to Rural Dean and Mrs. A. B. Caldwell for their work in the parish.

CANADA ARMING ONLY TO GUARD HER NEUTRALITY

Premier King States No Request Has Been Made By Great Britain

NO COMMITMENTS

Assures Woodsworth War Would Be Entered Only If Parliament Decided

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—(CP).—Canadians were enlightened to-day by a further elucidation of the Administration's attitude toward war, several suggestions for a definite foreign policy and a declaration that there was no unified voice in the Dominion to say what that policy should be.

The House of Commons devoted yesterday to private members' resolutions. One, advanced by A. W. Neill (Ind., Comox-Alberni), called for the discontinuance of licenses for trap fishing in British Columbia waters. It was withdrawn after considerable non-party debate and after Fisheries Minister Michaud assured the mover its subject matter would be laid before a House committee.

James S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F. group, then moved his resolution calling on Canada to state now, when there was no immediate war emergency, a national policy on foreign affairs. It was still under debate when the House adjourned.

For the first time since the estimates came down with an enlarged vote for defence there was an expression on this question from the government. Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared the increases were based on what appeared to the government as Canada's need to defend her neutrality. There had been no commitment to any other government nor any request for such commitments, he said.

Move to Keep Canada Neutral

The resolution sought a declaration Canada would remain neutral in any war regardless of who the belligerents might be. Mr. Mackenzie King could not agree to this, but he agreed with the third point, that the Canadian Government should use all its influence to remove causes of international friction and social injustice. He said the government was doing this.

The second point was that no Canadian at any time should be permitted to make profit out of munitions of war. Mr. Mackenzie King agreed with the principle but thought it impracticable. It would involve nationalization of practically all industry and the country was not prepared for this.

"The increases in the estimates for defence," said Mr. King, "are proposed only and solely because of what the Government believes necessary for the defence of Canada. They are not presented with any thought of participation in a

MICHAEL GARVEY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, Jan. 26. — Th funeral of the late Michael Garvey took place on Friday morning from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Vincent Moher, to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery. A very large crowd of relatives, friends and neighbors was present to pay their last tribute of respect and love. Members of the Holy Name Society, of which deceased was a member, marched in a body, making an impressive sight. The Solemn Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. J. J. Garvey of Lakefield, a nephew of deceased. Rev. E. Welsh of Douro was deacon, and Rev. K. Molone of Lakefield was sub-deacon. Also present in the sanctuary were Rev. M. J. McGuire, pastor, and Rev. J. Walsh of Peterborough. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Father E. Welsh.

Pall-bearers were: Joseph Garvey, Peterborough, and David Garvey, Douro (nephews), William Garvey, Asphodel (a grand-nephew), Leo and Emmett Garvey, Peterborough, and Clemens Garvey, Douro (grandsons). Seven of the children of deceased were present at the funeral, and one son, Robert of Edmonton, was unable to be present. Besides eight children he is survived by forty-one grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral or visited the house were: Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Garvey, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Garvey, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Garvey, Irene, Emmett, Helen, James, Robert and Vincent Garvey, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Collins, Joseph Garvey, James Garvey, Joseph Collins, Joseph Clancy, John Devlin, Mrs. A. O'Grady, Thomas McMurray, Roger Torpey, Miss Anne O'Reilly, Charles Quinlan, William Cavanagh, Sr. M. St. Bridget, Sr. Petronilla, Mother M. Perpetua, Mother St. Robert, and Sr. M. Josephine, all of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Corkery, Vincent Corkery, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holland, and Mrs. James O'Brien, all of Ennismore, Mrs. A. LeGrander, and Fred Garvey of Toronto, Mrs. D. Garvey, William Garvey, Miss Eleanor Garvey, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hefferman, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hefferman and son William, Michael English, Harry English, Mrs. Edward English, Alexis English, Michael Herr, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Crowley, James Crowley, Mr. and Mrs. William Cavanagh, son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Quinlan, son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred English, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Quinlan and sons Vincent and Ambrose, and Thomas Roche, all of Asphodel, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bell of Dummer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hurley, John Torpey, son Joseph and daughter Rita, Miss Loretto Devlin, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Toole and son Victor, all of Otonabee, Mrs. Dennis Garvey, Misses Martha and Laura Garvey, Tim Garvey, Mrs. M. THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

CHAPTER 46

SELDEN turned the car round in the direction of Grinfold, and proceeded up the road at a good pace. After going for about half a mile to the astonishment of the occupants, Selden steered the car under a large overhanging tree and switched off all the lights. He waited in the dark, listening intently, and the others held their breath in tense excitement. They heard the sound of a car coming from the village, approaching rapidly at a cracking pace on such a night, and the great headlights swept the road. It passed them in a whirl of mud and water from the sopping road, the rain showing in a myriad tints before the headlights. Selden laughed heartily, and quietly switched on the lights, turning leisurely back in the direction they had come, and into a side road that led to the Abbey. Away to the left on the high ground the lights of Graham's Manor gleamed from the upper windows, but all the ground floor was in pitch darkness.

And then out of the night they heard the ominous sound of the deep baying of the bloodhounds; and the twins clung to Sylvia in sudden terror.

Reid got out to open a gate, and the car bumped its way down a mere track to the main drive, and drew up at the desolate unlighted pile of the Abbey, silent and deserted. Once inside, and the door shut, a sense of security came to the party, and Selden switched on the lights and led the way to the library. He had brought a big basket from the inn filled with provisions which would obviate going to the servants' part of the house, and soon the fire was alight and the kettle simmering.

"Won't the Colonel be annoyed?" Reid asked, looking up from the fireplace where he was attending to the fire.

"Colonel Graham!" Selden laughed softly. "That message never came from him, I saw him at the inn, and he had just returned from Grinfold. It was a clumsy ruse, but only shows, Jack, that my irksome precautions are not useless."

The time passed pleasantly enough, though there was an atmosphere of expectancy which could not be banished. Selden looked at his watch, and rose quickly. "Time I was going," he said. "Don't be frightened, children, you are quite safe, and can go to bed. Tomorrow night you will be safe in your own rooms."

"You are going to leave us?" Reid said, none too pleased.

"It is absolutely necessary. But I can assure you of this, no one shall interfere with you tonight, and I shan't be far away."

"But I suppose it's no good asking you questions?" Reid said almost petulantly. "I should have thought that with this huge place entirely empty, and the fact that the attack last night showed that the hiding place is known, the danger would have been more real."

Selden clapped Reid heartily on the back. "My dear Jack, some little time ago you were complaining to me, with some heat, that you were not going to allow our young friends to be used as a bait to catch the fish. Now I have set my trap instead. That alters matters, doesn't it?"

A sudden misgiving came into Reid's mind—he took the other by the shoulder almost roughly. "You are going into danger."

"It's my trade," Selden said, smiling still. "From being the hunter(and I hope to have my beasts caught before to morrow."

"Good luck to you—I wish I could come with you."

A whimsical smile crossed Selden's face. "You will be more useful here, and will be able to keep Miss Lawrence company when the children have gone to bed."

He went out without waiting for any comment.

The Bull Inn was doing a roaring trade in the last hour before closing time. Reports of the strange happenings at the Abbey had brought strangers from Grinfold and places further afield, and there were newshawks come to get a "story" for their papers. Selden drew his car up a short distance from the front entrance and walked round to the back, going in from the garden. A babel of talk sounded from the bar, and Selden caught a brief glimpse of the ex-pugilist in his shirtsleeves, his mighty arms bared, serving out drinks, with the sweat of his labor covering his face.

Turning from this busy scene, Selden entered the exclusive smoking room where he had first met Colonel Graham. Here were a few of the most regular customers, who looked up with annoyance at the entry of anyone to their sanctum, but Selden was known by sight, and they were satisfied.

The maid was busy here, as the potman and even the chauffeur had been roped in to serve at the main bar and the billiards room.

The girl approached Selden, who, to establish his footing, requested her to take orders all around. The talk was all of the Abbey, and of James the butler, who had suddenly become a huge and monstrous figure of crime, for arrest is invariably taken for a proof of guilt with such people. It appeared that most of those present had always thought he was a "wrong un," and expected that this was not the first time that he had been in the hands of the police. In fact, not a shred of good was left to James when they had finished with him.

The girl returned with a huge tray, far too heavy for her, and Selden took it and passed the drinks round. The girl was standing at the doorway waiting, and the detective gave her the tray, and held out a 10-shilling note. His back was to the room, and the door was half open.

"Have you any news for me?" he whispered.

"Mrs. Thornton has gone up to Paynton Manor. Colonel Graham asked her to come to make a statement," the girl told him.

"Good heavens!" Selden muttered under his breath. "When did she go?"

"About half an hour ago."

"She is staying here, tonight?"

"Yes, sir, Mr. Hucks is expecting her back, and I have some supper waiting for her in the dining room."

"It's now a quarter to 10—you close at 10?"

"Yes, sir," she smiled at him. "I expect it'll take 10 minutes or so to get them all out tonight, and the village constable is over at Grinfold."

"When you bring my change, my

I'm wanted on the phone," he whispered.

Selden turned back into the room, where tankards and glasses were raised to wish him luck. He raised his own, and waited with what patience he could for the girl to return. With the congested state of the bar, it took some minutes, during which Selden had to exchange courtesies with the farmers.

"Your change, Mr. Selden, and you are wanted on the phone."

"Thank you," he said quietly, leaving her tip on the tray and rising with apologies. He would not be long, he said.

The telephone was in the hall, and Selden very carefully shut the door leading to the bar and took down the receiver.

He called up Paynton Manor, and heard the slow slick tones of the native servant.

"Can I speak to Colonel Graham, please—Mr. Selden is my name."

"I am sorry, sar, the Colonel has gone to bed in his room in the roof, and we have orders not to disturb him."

"But this is very urgent," Selden insisted.

"I am sorry, sir, but he will not be disturbed when he has gone to bed, I could not possibly do it."

"There was a lady who came to see him this evening—has she gone?"

"A Mrs. Thornton, sar; yes, she talked with the Colonel in his study, and left about an hour ago. The Colonel saw her off himself, and then retired, as I have said."

"She went in a car?" Selden asked again, for the man was evidently reluctant to give any information, and only Selden's name had prevented him from ringing off.

"No, she preferred to walk, though the Colonel, my master, offered her the use of his car."

The clock in the hall struck 10 o'clock as Selden put up the receiver. From the bar he heard voices calling, "Closing time," and from the road outside talking was going on as the patrons of the inn took their way home.

JAP MILITARISTS DEADLOCK CABINET

Refuse To Name Minister To Group Formed By General Ugaki

TOKYO, Jan. 26—(A.P.).—Efforts of General Kazushige Ugaki to form a new cabinet and end Japan's grave political situation were reported to-day to be blocked by army opposition.

The Japanese press declared the army has refused to name a war minister for the Ugaki government, automatically creating a deadlock. Japanese law requires a general officer on the active list must hald that cabient post.

The 68-year old former Governor General of Korea accepted his Emperor's command to form a government after a dramatic midnight ride from his home at Nagaoka.

Once a peddler of vegetables, Ugaki is now regarded as one of empire's ablest administrators. He always has been understood to be friendly toward the political parties whose bitter attacks on the army brought the present crisis to a head.

Ugaki, striving to avert failure, arranged a meeting with General Count Juichi Terauchi, Minister of War in the outgoing cabinet of Premier Koki Hirota. Terauchi led the militarist attack against the parliamentary parties in the heated diet debate that finally force dthe downfall of the Hirota government.

RURAL TRUSTEES STATUTE WILL GO

Legislature To Repeal Law Requiring Election By Ballot At Municipal Elections

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (C.P.).—Statute passed in 1936 requiring the election by ballot at regular municipal elections of school trustees in rural school sections where there are more than 200 electors will be repealed at the present session of the Ontario Legislature, it was learned today.

The statute operative for the first time at elections held recently has brought protests from county councils. It was the first move in a plan to set up township school boards, long a controversial subject.

Until the statute amending the Public School Act was passed in 1936 all rural school trustees were elected at meetings of the ratepayers by open ballot or by entries in a poll book, if a poll were demanded.

One hour was given for elections. The 1936 statute did not affect school sections where there were fewer than 200 electors. They stayed under the meeting system.

Present government will have nothing to do with plans for setting up township school boards, it was officially stated.

NIGHT SESSIONS LOOM AS POWER DEBATE DRAGS ON

Ellis Predicts Dominion Officials "Will Have To Consider Disallowing Legislation"

DIVISION FAR OFF

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (CP)—Members of the Ontario Legislature today faced a long session as night sittings of the House got underway. Acting Premier Harry Nixon announced the night sessions yesterday, making it plain the government is determined to drive through its Hydro legislation with all possible speed.

In five days of debate on the first of three measures there have been only five speakers. Division is nowhere near on second reading of Attorney General Arthur Roebuck's bill to nullify the effect of court judgments against Hydro.

M. M. MacBride (Lib. Brantford) led off debate yesterday. Today Leopold Macaulay (Cons. York South) will be given the floor when the House meets at three o'clock.

New Deal On In 1930

George Henry, Conservative House leader, revealed yesterday in a passage with Dr. George McQuibban (Lib. Wellington North) that the Conservative government in 1930 had initiated negotiations with Beauharnois Company for revision of its contract to supply Ontario with power.

Negotiations ended when the Henry administration was defeated.

Mr. MacBride told the House the bill to protect Hydro from judg-

TEACH PUBLIC HEALTH

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 26.—(AP). —As the result of action taken by the city council last night, the city, in co-operation with Queen's University, has an opportunity of making Kingston an important centre for public health instruction. The council passed a report of the special committee on civic services to engage a full time officer of health, who shall also serve as food and milk inspector.

The University had written council saying that if the city will allow the officer appointed to give part time work in the Faculty of Medicine, under the direction of the Departments of Preventive Medicine and Public Health, the University will pay $1,000 a year toward his salary. Dr. S. J. Keyes has been Medical Health Officer, but the council decided at the end of the year to make a new appointment this year.

The officer to be appointed will carry the annual salary of from $2,000 to $3,500.

Finds Death Peaceful Aberdonian Relates

Aberdeen, Wash., Jan. 26 (AP) A description of death as a place of "great peacefulness and rich contentment" was given today by Theodore Prinz of Aberdeen, who was pronounced clinically dead for five minutes Wednesday.

His heart had stopped, his lungs collapsed and his body sagged as he lay in a hospital bed after an automobile accident.

"When I went under," he said today, "I seemed to float into a soft darkness. There was great peacefulness and rich contentment.

"There didn't seem to be any light, just wonderful peaceful darkness.

"I floated in this warm friendly new place without a worry. Then all of a sudden I was on the hospital bed again."

TWO ENTER BY-ELECTION

Laborite And Conservative To Contest North St. Pancras.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (CP Cable)—Robert Grand-Ferris, Conservative, and H. M. Tibbles Labor, filed nomination papers today for the North St. Pancras by-election Feb. 4. The seat has been vacated by Sir Ian Fraser, Conservative, upon his appointment as a governor of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Keeping a step ahead of trouble

These men are guarding the talk tracks, "plugging-in" on threatened localities whenever sleet or snow or wind endanger—arranging alternate routes to maintain service under all conditions.

Like every telephone employee—linemen, installers, operators, supervisors, engineers, clerical forces—their watchword is—"The call must go through!"

Telephone employees appreciate the intimate quality of a telephone call . . . how vastly important it may be . . . the need for accuracy, speed, courtesy, helpfulness.

Their concern for the high character of telephone service accounts as much as anything else for the leadership of this Dominion in telephone usage. Telephone calls per capita in Canada exceed the usage of any other country.

Users are continually voicing their appreciation of the service of telephone workers. They tell us of lives saved, of disasters averted, of emergencies surmounted.

There is no service of which public appreciation is so freely expressed, so gratefully acknowledged. The long record of testimony is one of the prized rewards of an exacting occupation.

We pay this public tribute to our telephone workers of all ranks—everywhere.

DENTISTRY PLAYS IMPORTANT ROLE IN PUBLIC HEALTH

Dr. Hugh R. McLaren Tells Service Club Members Of His Profession

GOOD TEETH ASSET

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26. —"It has been conclusively proved that the child suffering with unhealthy teeth is not nearly so efficient or receptive as the boy or girl possessing sparkling healthy teeth and gums," Dr. Hugh R. McLaren told fellow-members of the Rotary Club in an address dealing with "The Relation of Dentistry to the Health of the Community."

As late as the middle of last century scientific care of the teeth was practically unknown, said Dr. McLaren. "The only possible solution for dental complaints was the extraction of the tooth that was causing the pain. Usually the operation was performed by a local barber, but it was sometimes entrusted to the blacksmith. At this time teeth were not considered to be part of the body, nor was it believed that they played any part in the primary cause of so many bodily ills. The first Dental College in the world was the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, which was formed by Hayden and Harris in 1837. These two made strenuous efforts to have it associated with the medical college, but the medical faculty laughed at them, however, as a knowledge of anatomy increased the intimate relations of the teeth to other parts of the body were quickly recognized.

Preventing Infection.

The ailments of the body have been classified under two headings. A comparatively few functional disorders and a very much larger number of systematic diseases caused by invasion of the tissues by bacteria. These ailments that can be classified under the second heading are almost always preceded by the establishment in the body tissues of colonies of bacteria and the first thought in the prevention of infection is to attempt to close any means of entrance that the bacteria might have.

"Of course," continued Dr. McLaren, "the most common source of infection is a break in the epithelial layers of the body and if any such lesions can be successfully closed the chance of infection setting in becomes very small. Since this is not always possible, other means must be devised to combat the bacteria. One is to raise the body resistance to disease thus lessening severity of the results of bacterial infection. Vaccination is an example of this method. Both of these methods are rather limited, so it is necessary that we find yet another means of protection. Immediately the old saying, 'An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure' springs before our eyes. Thus what we have come to call 'preventive medicine' has taken an important place in the field of medicine.

It concerns the adoption of such measures as reducing to a minimum the exposure of the individual to disease producing bacteria. It is in short a method of invasion. Dentistry has attached tremendous importance to the preventive side of medicine, but at the same time has not forgotten the value of the maintenance of an unbroken epidermal layer which will offer resistance to invading bacteria.

Have Serious Results.

Dental diseases are not only painful themselves, but very often they lead to systemic diseases having far more serious results. It has been estimated that no fewer than 64 systemic diseases can be traced to the lack of mouth hygiene. Dental defects if not corrected may seriously impair the proper growth and development of the body. A recent survey made in one of the larger cities in the United States has shown us that a great deal of the undernourishment of children is due to dental decay since defective teeth tend to bring about imperfect mastication of food. We know too that poisons absorbed from decaying teeth and diseased gums are detrimental to the child's nutrition.

Dentists of today are not only correcting dental defects but are also playing an important part in the branch of preventive medicine particularly related to oral hygiene. We have been told that about 90 per cent of all local infection in our bodies occurs above our shoulders, so it is easily seen that the dentist by educating his patients in the matter of mouth hygiene can easily help them to safeguard themselves against a great many of the common bodily ills.

Would Help Doctors.

So important has the preventive branch of dentistry become that it has been said that, "if the teeth of a nation were kept in perfect condition from childhood on for one or two generations the necessary preventive measures of our physicians in combatting disease would be to a large degree eliminated."

Even when the mouth and the teeth are in a normal state there are bacteria present but they are seen to be much more numerous in a mouth containing diseased teeth and gums, consequently when there is an unhealthy mouth condition which has not been quickly corrected the individual will in addition to becoming ill himself become a menace to the health of others in the community.

Functionally the teeth as a masticatory apparatus are quite invaluable because it has been shown that defective or diseased teeth tend to make the proper mastication of food an unpleasant and difficult task. The child with good healthy teeth is not nearly so prone to the bolting of his food without proper chewing as is the child whose teeth are unhealthy. When one compares the enormous pressure that a normal set of teeth can exert with the maximum of 25 pounds pressure than can be exerted by a good set of artificial dentures one can readily understand the significance of "artificial teeth are a wonderful invention, but keep your own as long as you can."

The dental profession is conducting a campaign to educate both children and parents in the proper care of the child's deciduous teeth. If these teeth are lost too early before permanent teeth are ready to take their place, the growth of muscles and bony structure of the child's face will in all probability be either impaired or seriously retarded.

"The great mission of the profession is service. Dentistry has shouldered the tremendous responsibility of safeguarding the physical well-being of the community by disseminating the principals of preventive dentistry, mouth hygiene and dietetic knowledge," concluded Dr. McLaren.

Fire, Hunger and Disaster Add to U. S. Flood Horrors on Mississippi River

With over half a million persons homeless in the flood wrecked valleys of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, with 111 dead already known, and flood-gorged rivers still rising to carry threat of even greater catastrophe, disease, crime, hunger, cold and fires were adding to the horror of the greatest flood disaster in United States' history. Along an 1,800-mile front, which included 12 states, wartime relief forces were operating in an effort to alleviate the destitution and death threatened by the flood ravages. These scenes from the devastated areas graphically tell the story of disaster. ABOVE, LEFT, is the crest of a roaring wall of water that swept down on Portsmouth, Ohio, when a million-dollar flood wall, built to withstand all expected pressure of water, collapsed. Cincinnati's gasoline fire is pictured CENTRE. It was started when a broken "live" wire fell into the floating gasoline. At the RIGHT a Wheeling, W. Virginia, policeman rescues a tiny tot from its marooned home by boat, the mother handing her child down from her water-lapped veranda. Part of the army of refugees is pictured LOWER LEFT. Racing from their homes with nothing but the clothing they wore, this family and hundreds like them fled to higher ground as the swollen Ohio river menaced their lives. The hungry children were fed as they ran. The thrilling rescue on the RIGHT occurred in a Portsmouth, Ohio, street. Plunged into the flood waters, the young man was saved when watchers on a partially marooned house tossed him a rope and pulled him to safety. In the background is the flood wall over which the river poured into this city of 70,000 people.

BURY POLITICAL HATCHET IS PLEA FROM BENNETT

Urges Canada Tackle Problems In Spirit Of South African Leaders

BANQUET IN OTTAWA

Laments Scarcity Of Population In Dominions As Shown By His Tour

OTTAWA, Jan. 26—(C.P.)—A call to Canada to tackle its problems in the spirit of the South African leaders and to bury political hatchets was made here Saturday night by Conservative Leader Bennett in his first public address since his return from a round-the-Empire cruise.

Mr. Bennett, speaking at a banquet in his honor, declared this nation's problems were not such as could be met by expanding trade or saying the country was prosperous. They must be met with the spirit of Premier J. B. M. Hertzog of South Africa and his Vice-Premier, Jan Christiaan Smuts.

(The two South African leaders and their followers four years ago formed a coalition government in an effort to grapple better with depression problems affecting their dominion).

The former Prime Minister declared two basic ideas had formed in his mind as a result of his journeys: How few people the dominions had, and how necessary it was they should have more; How well they were handling the defence problem.

"If democracy cannot provide for the cultivatio nand inhabitation of vast areas which Providence has given man in trust," he cautioned, "then that democracy must give way to peoples who require those spaces for their own mind."

If The League Should Fail

Turning to defence, the Conservative leader declared if the League of Nations should fail, other means must be found to defend the integrity of the Dominion's peoples. "Above all else," he said, "has developed a realization of the value of that collective security which is that commonwealth of nations called the British Empire."

The other Dominions, he said, had learned lessons from Canada and had been able to avoid some of its mistakes in government.

"They have been able to escape the pitfalls of our constitutional difficulties, the sharp conflicts between provinces and dominion." They offered this country a lesson, he concluded, the uniting of divided groups in an effort to resolve national problems.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

I feel that the Company's progress during 1936 as outlined in the annual report is a definite indication of the generally improved business conditions. The addition of over $8,500,000 of insurance in force justifies, I think, an optimistic outlook for 1937.

I am sure that the following diversification of the Company's assets will receive the commendation of policyholders and the public generally.

Mortgages and Sale Agreements	38.79%
Bonds (30.80% of Bonds are Dominion and Provincial)	32.36%
Stocks (Preferred 2.12%; Common 1.39%)	3.51%
Real Estate, including Head Office	4.77%
Loans to Policyholders	14.38%
Interest due and accrued	2.70%
Premiums Receivable	2.29%
Cash and other assets	1.20%
	100.00%

The assets of the Company, $33,758,945, with the exception of $430,136, belong to the policyholders. This $430,136 (which is but 1.3% of the assets) represents the shareholders' capital and surplus account which is an added security to policyholders, and is available to them if required.

The items, "Policy, and Annuity Reserves", $27,640,537, is the amount required along with future premiums, to pay all of our 60,000 policies when they become due, either through death or maturity of the contracts.

I think the policyholders can view with pride, as do the Directors, the enviable position which the Company continues to hold, and the excellent progress made during the past year.

USE PEPSODENT POWDER!

it alone contains IRIUM, which thrillingly steps-up luster on teeth!

DOUBLE THE THRILL, OR DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK

if Pepsodent Powder doesn't show-up any other tooth powder you ever used . . . Bar None!

PEPSODENT Powder comes closer than any other to matching your dentist's polish!

No more can be said for a dentifrice.

You can't hope to get the same results with powder or paste that your dentist gets when he cleans your teeth. So we say, see your dentist twice a year, but use Pepsodent twice a day.

It thrillingly steps-up luster on teeth, yet is DOUBLY safe because it contains NO PUMICE, NO GRIT! DOUBLY delightful because it contains NO CHALK, NO SOAP!

Because the first powder to contain IRIUM would make old-fashioned even the best known brands, many tried to get this wonderful discovery.

But Pepsodent alone contains IRIUM!

How else could it happen that 6,000,000 users already have switched to Pepsodent Powder almost entirely on the say-so of friends!

To introduce Pepsodent Powder containing IRIUM, we make this offer.

Try it. And if in your opinion, Pepsodent Powder does not give you DOUBLE the thrill, DOUBLE the safety, and DOUBLE the delight of any tooth powder you have ever used—bar none—we will give you DOUBLE your money back.

Just mail the partially used can to The Pepsodent Co., Toronto, and we will send you our cheque for DOUBLE what you paid plus postage.

VERIFY EVERYTHING WITH YOUR DENTIST!

The Price of War Is Known

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., used interesting figures when he spoke to the Women's Canadian Club at Bowmanville on the purpose and work of the League of Nations. From that address as reported by the Bowmanville Statesman we quote:

The Great War left behind it a record of 10 million dead, 20 million wounded, 3 million prisoners of war, 24 million widows and orphans, and 13 million civilian dead, in addition to millions whose health was impaired by the disease and hardship occasioned by the war.

Nicholas Murray Butler, noted U. S. educationist, pointed out, the speaker said, that with the money spent in the Great War it would be possible to take the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Germany, France, Italy, Russia, Belgium and other smaller nations and build every family in these countries a $2500 home, fill it with $1,000 worth of furniture, and with the money that was still left over, provide every community in these countries with a million dollar library, a university in every large centre, pay 125,000 teachers a salary of $1000 per year, and still have enough left over to purchase every bit of property in Germany and Belgium.

There are those today who talk glibly of the "next war," and for that reason alone it is opportune that such facts and figures as are exhibited above should be brought often and forcibly to the attention of the world. It is not possible to rush into war blindfolded because the cost in life and treasure is known. It is of equal significance that the profits of makers of armament and munitions of war increased as much as 700 to 800 per cent. in war years when compared to the period prior to the war. It forces that blunt question wide open: When soldiers go to battle are they making the sacrifice for reasons of patriotism or for the glory of the makers of armament?

Example of Purchasing Power

A good deal of debating in the Commons at Ottawa has turned on the question of purchasing power. The points most remote have been that purchasing power is something which can be regulated or increased by the freer circulation of money, and the claim that purchasing power comes as the result of production and in no other way.

If instead of arguing about the matter members of the House were to read some of the reports in newspapers they might get more light on the subject. A despatch from Flint, Mich., has a direct bearing on it. That city is dependent on General Motors as a place of major occupation. There are 165,000 people in Flint, and 38,000 of them work at General Motors. Their daily earnings are stated to be $308,000.

But they are not working now because the plant is closed due to the strike, and business in Flint is suffering. One merchant in his advertising says he must have cash and his prices have been slashed to meet an empty purse. Another says it is all right for workers at General Motors to ask for credit at his store no matter whether they are laid off or not. "Simply show your badge and your account is quickly opened."

That is a plain picture showing the difference between production and non-production. When there is no production there is no wage list, and when there is no wage list there is no purchasing power, and when there is no purchasing power the community sags at once.

In Poverty and Simplicity

It would probably be impossible to determine how many gatherings are held on the evening of January 25 the world over. Wherever Scots live—and that takes in wide territory—they come together to honor the memory of Bobby Burns, the idealist who died when he was but 38.

An idealist he was; likewise a revolutionist; contemptuous of that fixed severity which passed under the cloak of religion, and undoubtedly at war with the unyielding Calvanism of his day. He was poor as his folk before him were, and in early years he became acutely aware of the injustice of the age and conditions under which he lived. Within a week after his birth Lockhart records that a portion of the rude house which his father had built was carried away by storm and the mother and child found refuge with a neighbor. That place of abode was rebuilt and from such humble surroundings was the world given "The Cottar's Saturday Night." Several years ago the Burns Society paid £4,000 for that old house. Near it is the Burns museum, and among other things there is the Bible from which Burns' father read to the family and imparted to them religious training. The Burns Society paid £1,700 to secure that one copy of the Bible.

One can better understand Burns and his writings after seeing the place where he was born and knowing the struggle for an existence which was the common lot of the family. Given that understanding it is not difficult to see why he would write about a field mouse and a daisy. We doubt if Burns (if he could) would not express surprise if he found that today many of the world's big-wigs attend the annual dinners in his honor. Poverty and realization of injustice planted the seed which fell fortunately into fertile ground in the heart of Bobby Burns.

Because Mussolini Did It

There was a short item on the wire a few days ago from Terminillo, Italy, telling about Premier Benito Mussolini. He was out with a number of skiiers when he pulled off his sweater and away he went bare to the waist, and it is said that others at the resort were soon following his example. Mussolini is a man now in his 54th year, and in splendid physical condition. It may be he can stand to go romping about bare to the waist when out in the snow, but the danger is in these other folk who were bent on following his example.

Within recent years we have had quite a school of young folk who started scoffing at the old plan of wearing heavier underwear in winter than in summer. They pooh-hooed rather successfully too, and a good many male adults have been content to follow in their path. They say they feel fine in their new and lighter garments.

Now and then we hear of one whose enthusiasm for such form of draping has run riot with his common sense. In the making of his calculations he has eliminated such things as years and has overlooked the frailties which accumulate and the existence of which cannot with safety be denied. Nor yet snubbed or ignored. Finally he shivers and inquiry at his place of business brings the reply that he is home—with a cold. Within short time it is noticed that the shorts which used to flutter lightly on the Monday wash line have been replaced by longer and greater garments which dangle as though to proclaim their victory over the shorter and more popular competitor.

The great Mussolini may find it possible to go scampering about in snow weather with nothing but his hide from the waist up, but we hesitate to think of what may happen to others who shed their garments in exuberant imitation of their leader.

The Fisher Will Not Return

A naturalist in Toronto was explaining to a writer on the Globe and Mail that fur-bearing animals used to be plentiful enough in Toronto area before the city started to expand and before the woods were cut down in the district. The list given includes virtually all the residents of the woods of other days. The Toronto writer was taken with the suggestion that it would be profitable to have the fisher return because the trapper had been receiving, according to market prices, $40 for a fisher pelt.

But the fisher will not return. That animal is getting so scarce that the word extinct can well be used in many districts. We have been told by trappers and bushmen that a few have been seen well north of here in Haliburton. Some time ago there was a report in the Examiner from Marmora Township of wolves having been seen eating a porcupine, and the question was asked how wolves could kill a porcupine, as it was believed the array of protective quills would be too formidable. It was then a woodsman came forward with the explanation that the porcupine had probably been killed by a fisher and after that the wolves had driven the fisher off and were finishing the meal. The fisher is credited with being the one animal fast enough to attack and kill the porcupine with no injury to itself. It strikes at the porcupine from below and grabs its stomach, and then turns it over. The fisher is also reputed to have an extra layer of hide or skin through which the quill of the porcupine does not penetrate. But the fisher is not common and he will not move toward Toronto with all its movement and noise. Several trappers and guides have informed us they have never seen one although some of them work in the trapping season at points well removed from settlement of any kind. That is the reason why the fisher pelt has been quoted at $40.

When a Duke Steps Out

Members of the Royal family in Britain receive no preferred treatment from members of the press when it comes to recording all things which they are doing, and the Duke of Kent hit the headlines in a way which set tongues wagging. Only a few days previously the news came that he was father of a healthy daughter.

At the foot of Ludgate Hill a newspaper photographer was out to see what he could find. Ted Bacon was the name of the photographer, and he noticed two black sports cars from which emerged George, Duke of Kent, and a woman whom reporters described as a beauteous blonde. Bacon's camera clicked. They went to one of those places where heads are read. The head readers were not unprepared because earlier in the day some Mrs. Allen had made an appointment for herself and friend. It is recorded that when the gentleman's name was asked the reply given was "Mr. Allen."

We learn too that press photographer Ted Bacon had a full day's sale for his picture. The Evening Standard had it first, and in order nearly all the papers grabbed for it. Not however the Times, the Daily Telegraph or the respectable Daily Herald. They used no pictures.

It is recorded that newspaper editors the country over were busy for a day and a night turning filing cabinets inside out seeking to learn the standing of Mrs. Allen. After a long search it was finally discovered she was the former Paula Gillebrand, later Marquise de Casa Maury. In 1930 the Marquis divorced her. In 1933 she was married to Mr. Allen, former M.P. for West Belfast, (Allen himself having been divorced a short time before.)

So those in London who love to talk of the doings of the Royal family had another innings. Apparently a Duke of the Royal house is considered fair game for the photographers and the writers when he begins to step out.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mrs. Simpson has been advised by Scotland Yard detectives not to return to England. It was advice that scarcely seemed necessary.

With all the horror of the floods in the United States the death list so far is not as long as that set up by week-end motor accidents.

Siam is spending $628,000 to modernize her air force. That is an appropriation that makes Canada's defence program seem moderate to the point of parsimony.

Police broke up a cock-fight near Burlington the other night and 150 fans got their first spot of exercise out of the pastime when they dived from the windows and staged a cross-country run.

1937 was predicted as a year of progress but it seems that everything has been sliding more or less ever since New Year's day—and that in spite of the sand on the sidewalks.

It is estimated that visitors to Southern California last year spent over $188,000,000. And yet there are folk who will endeavor to prove that tourist business means little or nothing to a district.

New Jersey's state traffic engineer has arrived at the conclusion that the wider the road the greater the peril. In other words the safer the conditions the more chances the drivers take.

"Eliminate politics from Hydro" pleads the St. Catharines Standard, blithely oblivious to the fact that that is a trick that even Houdini could not have done.

Electrical men say that dry snow is a fair insulator against electrical shock. In that case it will have to be admitted that Ontario has had to get along this month without much insulation.

If Chicago has to get along without street lights because of the electrical workers' strike it is to be imagined the shooting of the bandit squads will deteriorate until the boys get accustomed to blazing away in the dark.

Instead of issuing orders how to dodge the flu Hon. Dr. Faulkner, Ontario's minister of Health caught the disease himself and then demonstrated the proper thing to do under the circumstances by promptly going to bed.

The British people spend $1,250,000,000 every year in drink and $750,000,000 in tobacco, amounts which disappear in headaches and smoke while the total expenditure on furniture amounts to only $60,000,000.

Always is there a great deal of discussion about the elimination of middle and upper school examinations, and always is it followed by an announcement from Toronto giving the dates on which the examinations will be held.

Stalinists and Trotskyists battled in Toronto the other night and the police promptly broke up the battle. Both organizations profess to believe in freedom of speech but not when their own theories are being attacked.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus brings his problems home, and has to work them out alone, for I'm small help to him; there's been such changes here and there, it all seems such a strange affair, to me it's rather dim.

¶ When I lived on Concession Ten, and studied with the little men, we pondered maps and stuff; the capitals of lands we knew, though we were puzzled by a few, we found them rather tough.

¶ But in a way we knew each land, so most of us could understand, and memorized each name; but in the books Wee Angus brings, these names are unfamiliar things, and they are not the same.

¶ Wee Angus says that war's the cause, that's why I have to stop and pause, to get the thing part straight; they cut some countries most in two, and changed line fences right clean through, and chanted hymns of hate.

¶ When he is through and gone to bed, I sometimes sit and scratch my head, it leaves me rather flat; and I sit there until it's late, just trying to learn what's up-to-date, just looking at the map.

¶ And if they go to war once more, carve nations like they did before, and kill a lot of men; the things Wee Angus learns today, will all be scrapped and put away—he'll have to start again.

This Pest Comes From The States!

From Parliamentary Report, Jan. 22

Mr. BENNETT: I was wondering if any action had been taken to prevent grasshoppers or locusts going from our country into the United States, or coming from the United States into Canada. It is a question not so much of general cooperation as of the actual taking of steps to deal with the matter.

Mr. GARDINER: It is very difficult to do that. I am quite sure that the leader of the opposition (Mr. Bennett), like myself, has noticed from time to time in the west that when the grasshoppers are moving they can be seen at almost any height. Even when they are not traveling thick enough to darken the skies, as they sometimes do, they can be seen at great heights. I think it was only two years ago that an aeroplane in North Dakota to the south of the Saskatchewan boundary was forced to land because of grasshoppers. It would be really very difficult to control the movement of grasshoppers between the two countries.

Mr. BENNETT: Any action that was contemplated would have to be taken before they reached that stage of development.

Mr. GARDINER: I think it has always been recognized that the grasshoppers start in the central prairie section of the United States and move north. We have always some little warning of their approach. I am not aware of any serious movement from the north to the south, although at times there has been some movement.

Mr. BENNETT: That happened two or three summers ago.

Mr. GARDINER: There is cooperation in the methods used to fight the grasshoppers at a certain stage in their life, rather than in trying to deal with them after they start moving.

Mr. TOLMIE: Has there been any evidence in Canada of the Mexican pin worm affecting tomatoes?

Mr. GARDINER: I am told that the pin worm is a new pest of southern range. It has not as yet become established in Canada. It is under investigation by the department.

Mr. TOLMIE: Is the minister referring to the Mexican pin worm?

Mr. GARDINER: Yes. It is not really a pest in the sense in which we use that term, but it is being investigated with the idea of preventing its becoming a pest.

Mr. TOLMIE: What progress has been made in protecting the spruce trees of New Brunswick and other places from the sawfly pest?

Mr. GARDINER: The fight against that pest is being carried on in the same way as the fight against the pea moth, that is by introducing parasites. Some 20,000,000 of these parasites were introduced into areas in eastern Canada last year. We have an army of 20,000,000 parasites fighting the sawfly pest.

Mr. TOLMIE: Is there any evidence that your army has been victorious?

Mr. GARDINER: These parasites feed only on the pest and we have recovered numbers of the parasite which was imported. This would indicate that the parasites are becoming established and we hope they will assist in a decrease of the sawfly pest.

Mr. TOLMIE: Do they appear to be in as good condition as when they were sent out to capture the enemy?

Mr. GRAYDON: According to the last report of the Department of Agriculture mosquito control projects would come under this item. Can the minister indicate what progress has been made in the last year in this connection?

Mr. GARDINER: All our work along these lines is advisory. We carry on research work and advise the different municipalities how mosquitoes may be destroyed. The actual work of destruction is carried on by the municipalities.

Mr. TOLMIE: Has any progress been made in connection with handling the jumping flea beetle?

Mr. GARDINER: As a result of research in the department there has been developed a nicotine dust which has given good control. I think they are found mostly in British Columbia.

Mr. BARBER: Another pest found in British Columbia is the earwig, in connection with which I believe the minister was questioned last session by the late former member for Victoria, Mr. Plunkett. Can the minister give the committee any information?

Mr. GARDINER: This pest is now being fought the same way as the other two I mentioned, that is by the introduction of parasites.

LINDSAY'S WATER.

(Lindsay Post)

WHILE every Lindsay citizen rightly desires that the town should be provided with clear, sparkling, palatable water, citizens and Water Board should keep in mind that the quality of Lindsay water from a health standpoint is unquestioned. Let us not be stampeded into too hasty action in connection with further expenditures. We can afford to await the decision of the Supreme Court in the pending case before laying a definite future course.

Should, for any reason, the quality of the water become questionable or the Provincial Board of Health demand some change in the system, some effective measure that will require a minimum of expenditure should be considered until the present unsettled state of affairs are concluded.

A HORSE ON THEM.

(Trenton Courier Advocate)

THE best story of the week has nothing to do with the war in Spain, the state of affairs in China or the wheat situation in Italy, but to an occurance in South-Western Ontario.

Three Detroiters motored over to "the wilds of Canada" to have a little hunt for rabbits or whatever they might find in a certain farmer's woodlot. One of the men approached the farmer for permission to hunt over his grounds and this was readily given. At the same time the farmer informed the hunter on the quiet that he had a horse in the back field that should be destroyed but that he didn't have the heart to do it himself.

The three nimrods ran the car down the lane, got out and started across the fields towards the bush.

Standing in the shadow of the woods was a horse, an old decrepit looking animal.

"Let's start at the big game first," announced the hunter in the know, and with that he pointed his gun at the horse. Next moment he pulled the trigger and the animal went down.

He watched the animal for a moment then turned to his companions to see how they were taking it, but they weren't having any. Completely panic-stricken by the sudden trend of events they were racing madly for the car.

"Hey!" the hunter yelled after them "where are you goin'? Wait for me."

"Wait for yourself," they chorused over their shoulders, "and walk home. You've gone nuts."

More Grasshoppers In 1937.

(Minister of Agriculture Recorded in Hansard.)

Mr. PERLEY (Qu'Appelle): Could the minister report on the situation in the western provinces, particularly Saskatchewan, in respect to possible outbreaks of cutworms and grasshoppers this year?

Mr. GARDINER: Perhaps I might read a short review I have before me of the conditions existing:

Re grasshopper situation on the Canadian Prairies, 1937

From egg surveys during the autumn of 1936, following the widespread drought of the year, the general grasshopper situation for 1937 is much more serious than that for 1936, and an increase of approximately 9,800,000 acres of infested territory was shown to be present, making a total area threatened with grasshoppers in one intensity or other of some 53,000,000 acres.

Increases occurred in all categories, there being some 280 square miles increase in the "very severe" zones, 6,600 square miles increase in the "severe," 6,800 square miles increase in the "moderately infested" and 1,000 square miles increase in the "lightly infested," taking the three provinces together.

The outbreak threatened in Manitoba is extremely slight compared with former years, and it is not expected that a control campaign will be necessary.

In Saskatchewan the increase is very material both in intensity and in area, and a widespread control campaign will be necessary, particularly in the northwestern part of the province, in which heretofore severe outbreaks have not been suffered.

In Alberta the promise is, if the weather is favourable for grasshoppers over a large area, that outbreaks will be as severe as any suffered during the last five years, and a widespread control campaign will be necessitated.

The prospect is that definite organized control campaigns will be necessary throughout some 12,000 square miles — 7,680,000 acres — of country.

I do not think it would be fair to read this statement without comment, because it might be taken as a pessimistic prophecy as to what the crop this year might be. Those of us who have lived in western Canada and attempted to grow crops there realize fairly well that our grasshopper infestations have not invariably started their ravages in the southeastern part of the prairie sections, usually starting in the first year in the southern sections and gradually moving northward and westward. The present movement of grasshoppers started in 1931. It has been going on ever since. As this report indicates, the most difficult infestations to handle are now up in the northwestern part of Saskatchewan and on into the northern part of Alberta. Therefore, looking back over the years it would seem that we are at the end rather than the beginning of a movement against grasshoppers. However, it is most important that people be informed as to the dangers. There is always the possibility that weather conditions may help the farmer in his fight against the grasshoppers, while on the other hand they may assist the grasshoppers. We are in no position to prophesy as to what future conditions may be.

Killing Off the "Vermin."

(From the Eastern Ontario Fish and Game Protection Association Bulletin.)

THE outcry against the crow as a destroyer of duck eggs and young birds is of recent development. Ducks have become scarce, not because the crow takes the eggs and nestlings, but because the hunters have killed too many. A closed season for ducks for the next two or three years would do more to restore the wild-fowl than all the advertisements of ammunition companies against the crow could accomplish in the next hundred. Of course, a close season would spoil sales of guns and cartridges and so is out of the question. Make the crow the scapegoat. He has a bad reputation so let him take the blame for the duck shortage. Then our wildfowl can be completely exterminater without embarrassing anyone.

"The horned owl kills rabbits and game birds to some extent. In the spring of 1936 we watched a pair that had a nest nearby and collected a great number of pellets, the bones and fur or feathers of its victims that it ejects from its stomach. We failed to find any traces of game for the pellets were almost entirely remains of mice and chipmunks. Other observers in other regions have found similar results. Probably this is another case where superficial observation has tended to obscure the facts.

"We have three common hawks that kill game and poultry. But the average sportsman lumps the beneficial hawks and the poultry killers all together and shoots every one he sees. He is encouraged in this by the editorials and advertisements in outdoor magazines. Yet, recent studies by ornithologists, working on game management problems would suggest that even the game killers are beneficial to the sportsmen. We refer our readers to recent work by Errington in Iowa and Leopold in Wisconsin in this connection.

"The Ontario Game and Fisheries Department now protects the eagles and ospreys. The killing of these magnificient birds by sportsmen was blatant stupidity for they lived almost entirely on fish, and, in the case of the eagle, some carrion. They are large birds and make splendid targets so they are almost gone. A recent report from Toronto says that this law will be rigidly enforced in future and anyone killing an eagle or an osprey will be prosecuted in the courts. Nature lovers and true sportsmen can thank the Federation of Ontario Naturalists whose protests to the government gave these birds their much-needed protection.

"The latest victims to fall under the ire of the killers are the mergansers. They have been accused of taking too many fish. Uninformed individuals, and even fish and game clubs, have asked for a bounty on these fish ducks or sawbills. We would suggest placing a bounty on human fishhogs who kill more game fish in one lake than all the sawbills could kill in any one country. Make it big enough and we could get some cash as well as sport. One proposal is as logical as the other.

"Birds and other animals at times become so plentiful that control is needed. It is probable that all creatures follow a cyclic curve in their populations. This periodic fluctuations in number is nature's method of reducing a species to the capacity of its environment. However, in certain cases in limited areas, man must control the birds or animals that are destroying his crops or domestic stock. In such cases traps are most efficient methods to use in control."

The Slaughter Goes On

(From the Chatham Daily News.)

IF RECORDS were available for all the fatalities caused by or through the operation of motor vehicles the total would unquestionably be appalling.

Statistics for one year in Canada show a string of deaths of alarming proportions, which for the whole of the continent have mounted to many thousands.

A recent compilation of the fatalities in sixty-nine of the larger cities in the United States, for a period of one month only, disclosed the fact that over 700 deaths were due to automobile operations alone. That in itself is sufficient to startle the most cynical. If the total of those seriously injured were added there might be such an awakening that many who now indulge in the use of the motor as a means of pleasure would be frightened to use them.

So great are the figures for the whole year that compilers of statistics are acknowledgedly averse to publishing them, because of the bad effect on the public mind.

If there is any remedy for the evil it has not been put into general circulation. People talk of taking care, but the toll of death grows as rapidly as before. The juggernauts of old were tame compared with the new conveyance that has established new records in killing and is likely to cause more with the passing of the years.

That most of the accidents are preventable will scarcely be disputed any where. The craze for speed takes possession of every man or woman in possession of a vehicle capable of developing speed, and though accidents happen every day, none is deterred from experiencing the thrill for himself.

Speed is the fiend responsible, yet none will consent to any limitation of the power or capacity of motor vehicles to make speed. That quality furnishes the chief selling point of every machine. To get speed at minimum of gas consumed advertises the car, and the most speed with least gas wins the greater number of sales.

The juggernaut still rolls on and will continue. The best cure is for a sense of responsibility to possess all drivers and a consciousness that safety is a greater consideration than speed.

A PLEA FOR BREVITY.

(St. Catharines Standard)

SPEECHES, short and to the point, will provide a welcome sauce to the best of dinners. In fact, we can think of nothing better unless it be no speeches at all.

A recipe for after-dinner speaking has been prepared by a man prominent in academic circles and will bring hearty approval from those who have undergone the horrors of listening to—or making—an after-dinner address.

First of all the speech must be short. Those who have squirmed beneath the never-ending wanderings of an absorbed speaker can fully appreciate the charms of brevity. Then it must be within the knowledge of the audience. Those who have been made to feel like nitwits beneath the mental onslaughts of some technical bigwig will squeal with delight at this innovation. No old jokes—and no new ones that are not related to the subject.

An address following these rules would prove a sure cure for the mental indigestion suffered by audiences following many after-dinner addresses. The recipe is based on the fact that brevity is the soul of wit.

BLAMING WIVES.

(Niagara Falls Review)

ONE can point straight from an accident in factory or on the highway to the wife at home, is the opinion of George S. Thompson, safety expert of Detroit, and he is plausible in support of his idea. The expert, who has investigated many accidents, says he has discovered that when many accidents have occurred, the man did not have his mind on his work, still thinking of a poor breakfast or of a quarrel at home, instead of his work or his car.

So there you are ladies. Always be sweet and kind to friend husband if you do not want him to become involved in an accident for, of course, now you have heard Mr. Thompson, you would immediately realize that you, not George, are responsible and actually caused the accident, while, actually, you were at home, far away.

CANADA'S CREDIT.

(Windsor Star)

MR. DUNNING makes the interesting and highly satisfactory announcement to Parliament that an issue of $85,000,000 of Canadian Government bonds has been sold to a syndicate headed by the New York firm of Morgan, Stanley and Company, at the lowest rate on record.

Canada's credit remains at the highest level, due not only to the sound financing principles of Mr. Dunning himself, but to the equally high standard maintained by former Prime Minister Bennett during his five years of depression period control. Many attempts were made to lead Mr. Bennett into the highways and byways of weird financial theories, but he resisted them successfully. The good results of safe and sound money practice are now seen in Canada's ability to borrow abroad.

WORKERS' LOANS.

(St. Thomas Times Journal)

DURING the depression years thousands of working people got into a bad way financially and resorted to raising loans where they could get them. Many, unfortunately, got "stung," and their last state was worse than their first, being saddled with interest rates which left them still in debt after they had paid the principal several times over. Last year the subject of small loan service was investigated by the Senate and Banking Committee with the view of ascertaining what legislation was desirable. Parliament did not have time, however, to introduce legislation and it is doubtful if there will be time in the short session now opened to do so.

"pure Fascism" in the Soviet Union.

Karl Radek, bewhiskered publicist of Communism, testified to Trotzky's part. Radek is one of the 17 confessed conspirators on trial on charges of having plotted with Germany and Japan to dismember Russia and overthrow its government.

He said the Bolshevist leader, once a guiding force in the Russian state and now banished from the country, directed the plot in a series of secret letters.

JOLLY POND PARTY AT NORTH SCHOOL

Young People Enjoy Skate And Are Hospitably Entertained Afterward

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORTH SCHOOL, Jan. 26.— The young folks of the North School district gathered Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Buchanan, where an enjoyable skating party was held. The fine moonlight night and perfect ice left nothing further to be desired, for those who were enthusiastic over this healthy outdoor sport. About 10.30 they gratefully accepted a kind invitation to enjoy the freedom of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan and family, where the older folks were playing cards and crokinole. Later in the evening a dainty lunch was served by the host and hostess.

Personals.

Friends and neighbors of Mr. Philip Fitzpatrick are sorry to hear he is confined to his bed with the flu.

Miss Annie Elliott was a visitor with Miss L. McLaughlin last Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vansickle, Mrs. S. Miles, Miss Phyllis and Gordon Miles of Havelock were Thursday evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. McLaughlin and family.

Miss Gena McNeely was unable to perform her duties as teacher at Old Havelock School on account of a severe cold.

Mrs. Charles McConnell spent last Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. E. McLaughlin.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

We've started off the week O.K. and if we can get in one full week it will be something new.

In Monday night's games James Skinner came through with a win and still leads his group with three wins.

Jimmy Richmond celebrated Burns' night by trimming Ira Moore's rink...and it was Jimmy's first schedule win and Ira's first loss...so it worked both ways.

Rinks skipped by R. F. Downey, Walter Oke and J. Sedgewick are taking in the bonspiel at Oshawa on Wednesday.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 26. — Upheld by moderate export sales of wheat, futures prices ruled higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, as floods in the United States attracted attention on world commodity markets. Values at the close of a dull session were ¾-1¼ cents advanced. With little incentive to sell apparent, 250,000-bushel export sales sufficed to take care of light offerings.

Largely discounted last week, world wheat shipments totalled 16,806,000 bushels, the heaviest in four years, and compared with 12,354,000 the previous week and 10,723,000 a year ago. On-passage supplies increased from 41,576,000 to 49,896,000 bushels.

Cash grains were quiet. Coarse grains prices moved up with wheat.

VESTRY MEETING ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Pew Rentals Are Abolished At Annual Meeting Of Congregation

The system of pew rentals, as old a system as the historic church itself, was on Monday evening abandoned at the annual vestry meeting of St. John's Church at which the rector the Rev. W. P. Robertson, presided.

Action was taken by the vestry in its adoption of a resolution introduced by Fred L. Roy, people's warden, seconded by W. C. Ackerman.

The general feeling of the meeting was that the time had come in the best interests of the parish to abandon the system of pew rentals, but there was a distinct understanding that members of the congregation shall be permitted to keep their accustomed seats and that name cards shall remain on the pews for the present.

Officiating as chairman at the first vestry meeting since his induction as rector of the parish, the Rev. Mr. Robertson thanked the officers and members of the church for their helpful cooperation. "As I get to know you better my satisfaction in the parish and my own personal happiness increases daily".

Good Congregations.

The rector asserted he had been particularly impressed by the good congregations morning and evening, and thought the clergy of larger centres such as Toronto and Hamilton would be similarly impressed by the splendid church attendances in Peterborough.

Special mention was made by the rector to the support he had received from Frederick G. Mann, L.Mus. and his choir; also from Fred Ford, sexton and the leaders of the various church organizations.

R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, rector's warden, presented the annual financial statement. Observing that expenses were higher than that of a year ago, he declared increased expenditure was chiefly caused by salaries and needed repairs to the church and rectory. It was with satisfaction, he reported that the Synod allotment was paid up in full.

Serving Fifth Term.

Mr. Hicks-Lyne was reappointed by the rector as his warden for the fifth successive year, while Mr. Roy was given an acclamation as people's warden.

Other officers of the church were elected as follows:

Sidesmen: Messrs Walter Blackwell, J. F. Strickland, K.C., D. J. Lawrie, Fred Hills, W. F. Turner, B. D. Hall, J. D. Patterson, M. E. Shaver, S. H. Parks, E. J. Davies, R. E. Clarke, C. E. Coleman, H. A. Lemmings, Joseph S. Bell, D. E. Yarnold, Fred Ford, Alex Chivas, Gordon Clegg, George Groombridge, Jack Marshall, H. H. P. Johnston, W. H. Ashby, B. Ottewell.

Lay Delegates to Synod: Dr. G. S. Cameron, P. D. Kerr, K.C., W. R. Thompson. (Substitutes): W. C. Ackerman, Colonel A. Stevenson, F. M. delaFosse.

Finance and Envelope Committee: D. G. H. Melton, convenor; W. C. Ackerman, Mrs. Fred Hooper, together with the wardens and vestry clerk.

Lay Delegates to Parochial Tribunal: P. D. Kerr, K.C., and J. F. Strickland, K.C.

Advisory Board: The wardens together with S. T. Medd, Dr. G. S. Cameron, W. J. Kent, E. S. Martin, W. C. Ackerman, Colonel A. Stevenson, Fred Hills, J. J. Howden, A. L. Killaly, W. Sangster, F. D.Kerr,K.C., George Boucher, A. J. Morrow, R. N. Stuart, Dr. W. T. Holloway, F. M. delaFosse, W. R. Thompson, D. B. Falkner, H. W. Morphet, Dr. A. G. Howson, C. G. Graham, D. G. H. Melton, H. C. Sootheran, H. Chate, John Comstock, Gordon Clegg, Arthur Bacon.

Representative to Anson House Board: Miss Emma Denne.

Representative to Nicholls Hospital Board: S. T. Medd.

Nominating Committee: The rector and the wardens together with W. C. Ackerman, F. M. delaFosse, Colonel A. Stevenson, W. R. Thompson.

Representatives of Upper Canada Bible Society: R. N. Stuart and Mrs. H. Howell.

Reports bearing on a very successful and fruitful year of activity in all departments of the church were presented by the officers of the various organizations as follows: Sunday School, Church Women's Association, Women's Friendly Bible Class, Women's Auxiliary (afternoon, evening and teen age branches); Junior Auxiliary, Choir, A.Y.P.A., Chancel Chapter, Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs.

Tribute to the work of the Rev. Mr. Robertson and his assistant, the Rev. R. T. P. Brain was paid by Mr. Hicks-Lyne and other officials of the vestry.

Neeland's Story.

C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary since September 1, 1931, and Superintendent of the Reformatory for 10 years preceding, was the first witness called:

"There is accommodation in the Ontario Reformatory here for 750," Mr. Neelands said. "There were 706 prisoners at the time of the disturbance.

"The percentage of escapes from this 'open prison' has been greater than from closed prisons, but the rehabilitation advantages outweigh this high custodial risk.

"Prisoners brought here are those under 21, regardless of their past record, and men over that age who are first offenders," said Mr. Neelands.

"Dr. Heaslip telephoned me in Toronto about four o'clock Sunday afternoon and told me of the disturbances, but did not think it was serious," said Mr. Neelands. "He phoned again at 4.45, asking me to hurry to Guelph, that the men were breaking windows and making a noise.

"The prisoners were quite evidently in charge of the institution. They were custodians of the prison when I arrived here about 6.30 to 7 o'clock," said Mr. Neelands.

"There was plenty of evidence of smashing, noise and damage.

"Dr. Heaslip informed me conditions in the institution were very bad, that the prisoners were out of control. He said many had escaped.

"A guard told me the prisoners were trying to smash through the auditorium, but when we went in we found they were not breaking through.

"Dr. Heaslip and I continued our circle of the buildings, returning to the administration building. I saw no prisoners escaping, but saw some in the yard.

"Small fires were burning in various parts of the buildings. They were in darkness, the lights having been broken. There was plenty of noise of breaking and smashing but I saw none of it.

Suggests Arms, Gas.

"I suggested to Inspector Jordan and other police officers in the administration building that we round up the prisoners. I suggested that from my knowledge of prisoners the showing of firearms would quickly subdue them.

"There have been only two firearms in the institution in its history. Both were revolvers in the keeping of Sergt. A. T. Maguire. Guards do not have firearms, except in case of special emergencies. We regarded them as dangerous.

"I telephoned Inspector Jordan at Toronto and told him to bring tear gas as quickly as possible," he said.

Gas Arrives at 9.30.

"Gas equipment arrived about 9.30 and police officers went into B Area where there are three floors of cells and three floors of equipment.

"We found smashed windows, smashed equipment, and small fires of blankets along the corridors," said Mr. Neelands. "We placed the prisoners in the cells."

"Was there any objection by prisoners, any trouble?" asked Mr. Gillanders.

"I understand there was on one floor, but I was not there," he replied.

"Have you any suggestions or complaints you might make regarding the institution, any suggestions as to cause of riot?" asked Mr. Gillanders.

"I have no knowledge of causes, except what I have been told," was the reply.

"Have you any suggestions to make regarding changes in institution?" asked Mr. Gillanders.

"I would prefer to leave them until the close of investigation," said Mr. Neelands.

DOMINION LIFE REVEALS PROGRESS

Assets Increase Over $2,600,000 in 1936 Managing Director Reports

The Annual Statement of the Dominion Life Assurance Company, released to-day, indicates that excellent progress has been made during the year 1936. The report, covering the Company's operations for its 46th year, reveals an increase in assets of over $2,660,000, making a total in excess of $33,758,000. The market value of the securities is $429,460 more than the book value taken in the statement.

Mr. Fred S. Kumpf, President and Managing Director of the Company, pointed out that assurance issued and revived during 1936 amounted to $23,495,796. The actual amount shown in the 1935 statement was $23,160,974. But, in 1935 all insurance issued was shown whether it was taken by the applicant or not. In 1936 only such business was shown as was actually taken up and paid for.

It is a matter of gratification to the Board that the gain of insurance in force in 1936 amounted to $6,740,784, bringing the total for the Company up to $164,019,813.

The amount paid by the Company in death claims was $919,294, while the total payments to beneficiaries and policyholders amounted to $2,960,511.

HASTINGS WOMAN IS 81 YEARS OLD

Mrs. James Johnston Is Surprised By Friends On Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 26.—Mrs. James Johnston, who for twenty-five years has resided in the village of Hastings, celebrated her 81st birthday c. January 15th and her wide circle of friends will be delighted to learn that a surprise supper was held at her home in honor of her birthday.

Mrs Johnston, who is one of Hastings' oldest women, lives alone, in spite of her 81 years, does her own housework, answers her telephone which she exceptionally delights to talk over, knits, loves to read and takes great interest in reading The Examiner, then telling her friends about happenings in and around her district, which they have omitted reading. The correspondent regrets that Mrs. Johnston's name did not appear in the item which appeared recently on "People in Hastings Over 80 Years." Mrs. Johnston took a keen interest in the account and proudly remarked to her friends that she was over 80.

This fine old lady who retains her faculties to a remarkable degree was the recipient of a number of dainty gifts, plants, etc., as well as telephone messages of congratulation from relatives and friends.

Mrs. Johnston, formerly Margaret Orr and her husband, the late James Johnston who passed away February 3, 1932, were pioneer farmers of Percy township and lived on the farm now operated by their only son, Gordon. During the period they spent together they had seen wonderful changes in the community and had always kept abreast of the changing conditions and were among the most prosperous farmers of Percy township. When their only son Gordon was married twenty-five years ago they moved to the village to retire from hard labour, content to bask in the sunshine of their declining years. After the death of her husband, her brother, the late Wm. Orr, resided with her until his death. Since then she has lived alone.

Mrs. Johnston has three children, one son Gordon, and two daughters, Mrs. Alley (Mabel) of Grandview, Manitoba, and Mrs. Wm. Hedger (Minnie) of Percy township, also a sister, Mrs. L. Stevenson of British Columbia and three brothers, Harry Orr of Percy, John of Peterborough and a brother in Winnipeg.

More About Ferde and His Band.

Evidently Ferde Mowry, whose home is in the city and who, besides conducting an orchestra for many years in Peterborough was also a member of the advertising staff of The Examiner, has attained much popularity in Toronto, where for the past five years he has been leading his band at the Embassy Club. One of the nicest things about Ferde is the fact that he is a consistent rooter for his own home town. He lets all and sundry know that he and his boys hail from Peterborough, even though they have been living in Toronto for quite some time. Here's a bit about them that illustrates that attribute of loyalty to the place that gave him his start and rounded up the musicians who play with him. It is from the "Passing Show" column of the Toronto press:

"Perhaps you've wondered, too, I mean about band-leaders. What do they think about when they stand up there bowing to this or that debutante, flashing a smile at some guy who won't come back unless the maestro makes a big shot of him? It may even surprise you to know that band-leaders think at all—like the lass who quipped about one of our baton-tossers: 'A guy who's that good-looking doesn't have to think. He plays by ear—and I don't mean music either.' Your informer put the question to Ferde Mowry, who has been the maestro at the Embassy for five years now and has built up a local following that is fanatical in its devotion. Perhaps you don't known Ferde. So if you want to see a perfect cross between the facial beauty of Charlie Conacher and Joe Primeau—take a peek at Mr. Mowry. (You guys in the front row can quit your tittering at once—bacause half my custmers are women and it's for them—and them only—that I say a lad is handsome when he is).

"So what does Ferde think about? He thinks about marriage—for one thing. 'You know, it's a funny thing, but I can tell in a minute when two of the customers get married. How? Well, it's like this. For a year, mebbe more, they come to the Embassy every week as regular as clockwork. Then they start coming once a month. You can lay odds that they've been married. And I want to tell you something. When young people in Toronto start going together, they really go together. Ninety per cent. of them wind up at that there altar.'

"FERDE thinks a lot about his music, too. For example—as a night-spot-goer you may not know that you like your music soft and sweet in the early part of the evening, and hot and lowdown toward midnight. But Ferde knows it—and that's the way he gives it to you. He figures it takes you a couple of hours to warm up before you are really ready to go to town with the ragtime? Yes, it's still the too-Ferde figures that 'Alexander's Ragtime Band' is the most lasting of all the dance numbers. 'Sophisticated Lady' is running it a close second, though. His band has played it every night, except three, since it was published in 1934. 'The Merry Widow' is the most popular of the waltzes, and 'De-lovely' is tops of the current hits. 'They used to say,' Ferde observes, 'that only the older people know how to dance properly, because the youngsters were too taken up with love-making on the floor. But it isn't that way any more. The oldesters are at it now. I mean the love-making.'

"Ferde is a Peterborough boy, and seven of the nine Mowry bandsters are from the old home town. The foreigners are the piano-player from Hamilton, and one Toronto boy. Ferde has been in the Embassy since 1932 with the exception of a five-month break when he was being groomed by Chicago bookers for a shot at the big-time. But the U.S. immigration people said 'No' more times than the bookers said 'Yes,' and the trip was off."

Fashion Service

You can wear this darling little crepe print short sleeved dress in town or for the South.

The high neckline has such a becoming roll-over collar. Shirring squares the shoulders and adds fulness to the bodice. The fitted Empire effect will give you lovely slimness through the waist line area.

The swing skirt is tricky. You'll note the length—giving flat front and back panel. It is flared at both sides below the snugly fitted hipline.

It's an exceptionally simple dress to sew. The sleeve and bodice cut in one!

Style No. 3481 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with 3¾ yards of binding.

APPEARANCES to the mind are of four kinds. Things are what they appear to be, or they neither are, nor appear to be; or they are, and do not appear to be; or they are not; and yet appear to be; rightly to aim in all these cases is the wise man's task.—Epictetus.

Dear Friends:

Did you ever have a friend or relative who took every little word you dropped as a slam against them? So many go around looking for slights and hurts, and you have to be all the time explaining that you did not mean them, you were just talking in general, just passing an opinion.

There is a saying that fits in a measure, people like that. "If the cap fits, put it on and wear it." But some of those who are forever thinking you are referring to them, must have a great stock of these same caps, and what a darned nuisance they can be.

You are afraid to drop a word, in case so-and-so takes it to herself, or planks it on some of your friends. I had an amusing sample of that kind of thing one day, not so long ago.

I was talking to a woman, and she said, "did you read Roberta's column last night?" (She didn't know she was talking to Roberta). I said without a smile, that I had read it. She then told me confidentially, that she knew who I had meant when I said a certain thing, and I had never heard the person's name before, far less knowing them.

Another one told me that when she went to church, (this was in the West), every time the minister scolded them for anything, she always thought he was hitting at her.

She asked if I never felt like that, and I said if I felt that I had the fault he mentioned, it made me think about mending my ways, but to think that any man would be so despicable as to stand in a pulpit and hit me with the words he hadn't the courage to say to my face, oh no, I couldn't believe that.

I also said that if he seemed to hit anyone, it was always the man behind me he might be aiming at, or candidly just talking in general. And I too, would be despicable if I were to use the medium of my column to hit at any of the faults of my friends. I might tell of the good side but never never mention the bad. That is why I more often speak of myself, and my experiences.

After all, we are all human. Temper and selfishness, and all the rest of it is common to us all, and it really shows that we think ourselves much more important than we really are, when we think every little thing that is uttered or written, is meant for us.

Human nature is the same thousands of miles from here, in large cities or small hamlets, and to think you stand out like a sore thumb so that every person means you when they pass an opinion, shows that you must have a collosal conceit of yourself.

So get the chip off your shoulder. Stop thinking inward so much. Remember that the world is wide, and there are a great many people in it, and many of them with the same faults and good points that you possess.

Instead of thinking that folks are slamming you, just think if you deserve the slam, before you fly in a temper. Just think also if what is written is meant for your friends, whom probably the writer never met, and never will meet. When you read or hear of someone being praised do you ever think they mean you? Oh no, it is only the other things you take to yourself, never the good ones.

Read the quotation over and keep it in mind. Do not disparage yourself so much. Think of your good qualities more, and then people will be able to speak without thinking so much about how you will take it. It isn't being sensitive, it's conceit.

Your Friend
ROBERTA.

Historic Old Residence

The old Baxter home in Pittsburg Township near Kingston. It was in this stately residence that William Lyon Mackenzie, "The Little Rebel", spent much of his time following the Upper Canada Rebellion 100-years ago. The picture has local interest as being the old home of Mrs. Herbert N. Young (the former Flornie Baxter). George Baxter founder of the family in Canada and builder of the old home came to this country in 1818, and in later years became principal of the Royal Grammar School.

LANDMARK BURNS AT LARKIN STATION

Invalid Is Carried To Safety—Owner Mrs. E. Badgley Fractures Hip

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 26.—Known to residents of the district as one of the oldest residences in the Township of Hungerford, and for many years a landmark, a large frame house owned by Mrs. E. Badgley, of Larkin Station, was completely destroyed by fire on Friday night. Fire was believed to have originated through defective flues, or a spark which lodged in the shingles.

Carried from the blazing home by Mr. William Larkin, station master at Larkin, Miss Rachel Purvis, 68, invalid, who had been cared for by Mrs. Badgley, is at present a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, as is Mrs. Badgley, owner of the home, who slipped accidentally in the excitement and fractured her hip.

OBITUARY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MRS. DOROTHY DOUGLAS.

On Saturday morning, January 23, the death occurred in Cobourg General Hospital, of Mrs. Dorothy Douglas of Alnwick township.

Early in January, Mrs. Douglas fell on the ice, suffering a fractured thigh. She was removed to Cobourg General Hospital, where she passed on.

Mrs. Douglas was born on November 16, 1856 in Asphodel township and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McColl. Most of her married life was lived in Alnwick township.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Thohas Hle of Westwood and three sons, Joseph and Andrew of Alnwick and Alexander of Kingston.

The funeral service was held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock in Merrill's church with interment in Merrill's cemetery.

The service was conducted by Rev. L. W. Scott of Roseneath.

CANADIAN WOMAN HELD IN EXTORTION PLOT UPON GABLE

Claims Actor Father Of Her Daughter Born 13 Years Ago In England

POLICE TAKE HAND

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Violet Wells Norton, 47-year-old Canadian, was under arrest here to-day, charged with attempting to obtain money from Clark Gable, film actor, by claiming he is the father of her 13-year-old daughter.

Officials of the United States' Department of Justice said Mrs. Norton declared she engaged a man named Frank Billings as a tutor for her son in Long Shorewood, Billericky, England, in 1922, and that he became the father of her daughter, Gwendolyn Edith.

Later she asserted, Billings left for the United States. She married and moved to Winnipeg. She said five years ago she saw Gable on the screen and recognized him as Billings.

Gable's comment was,

"I have never been in England and do not know the woman in question, and have no knowledge whatever of the circumstances involved.

"I first heard of these claims almost two years ago. At that time I did not consider the matter worthy of serious action. Now that the authorities have decided to prosecute, as a citizen I can only offer my fullest cooperation."

During 1922 and 1923, Gable was employed in a Portland department store and working as a lumberjack in the Oreogn woods, he said.

"RACKET" WORRIES POLICE

When the man of the house answers the door bell he is confronted by a youngster who asks: "Is this your license plate, mister? I found it near that car outside." Follows a tip. Then the automobile owner finds the plate has been taken from his own machine.

EVERY WOMAN FACES THIS QUESTION

How do I look to other people? So many women risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, poor complexions.

Yet common constipation can be ended so easily. Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or fruits every day, three times daily in severe cases. This delicious ready-to-eat cereal supplies the "bulk" needed to exercise the system—and vitamin B to help tone up the intestinal tract.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs more than twice its weight in water, gently sponging out the intestines. It never causes the artificial action of pills and drugs, that often prove ineffective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you see, is a food—not a medicine. It relieves common constipation the way Nature intended—so its results are safe. Buy it at your grocer's. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

THE familiar oak leaf illustrates a point: You're not going to make tea from oak leaves, but if you had to, you would naturally select the young leaves, tender and fragrant, picked in the spring . . .

You can have choice, young leaves, filled with fragrance and flavor—these are what you get in every package of Tender Leaf Tea.

Scientific tests of 14 leading brands of tea showed that only one other brand (considerably more expensive) equaled Tender Leaf Tea in aroma. Other brands had as little as ONE-SIXTH the aroma. Certainly the tea with the most aroma gives the most enjoyment.

Your grocer has Tender Leaf Tea in two convenient sizes, reasonable in price. Remember "Tender Leaf Tea."

Luncheon And Supper Dishes Give You A Chance To Expand

Casserole Dish Has Chance To Shine In The Winter Season

CRAB MEAT URSULA

THAT meal that is not dinner, is not breakfast, but that just cannot be assembled out of the ice box bread drawer and cookie crock—because it is winter and we want hot food.

It is at this meal,—whether you call it lunch or supper—that the casserole dish,—the one-piece main course—has a chance to shine as a "piece de resistance"—and as a vehicle for the imagination of the cook who loves her job.

The price of heat-proof glass is bound to come down if you all buy it in the quantities I do. I think every one should own a very large glass casserole—if it is not glass it can be white earthen and still presentable on the table.

It should be large enough to contain enough food to replace a meat course and one vegetable course—because most of these that I suggest are one-piece main courses.

The first recipe using crab meat is one of those pets that is on hand when you have been so busy you have not had time to order fresh supplies or you are later than you expected in returning from an afternoon out.

Crab Meat Ursula

Three tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour; ¾ cup milk; ¾ cup cream (or 1½ cups in all rich milk), ¾ teaspoon pepper and salt mixed, ½ lb. fresh crab meat OR 8 oz. tin of canned crabmeat, ¼ lb. fresh green beans OR small tin of canned yellow string beans, 1 canned pimiento. Melt butter, add flour, and stir until well mixed, then pour while stirring milk and cream. Bring to boiling point, season with salt and pepper, add crab meat and vegetables. Pour into buttered casserole and cover with 2/3 cup buttered very fine cracker crumbs and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes.

Muahrooms may be used in place of beans, and green pepper used in place of canned pimiento. Other canned fish such as tuna, or lobster or shrimp may be used in place of crab.

Macedoine Loaf

Excellent for using leftover chicken, veal, ham or roast fresh pork or turkey.

One-half tablespoon each flour and butter, ½ cup milk, ½ cup bread crumbs, yolks 2 eggs, 1 cup cooked macaroni, ½ cup cooked chicken, etc., cut in strips, ½ cup mushrooms, tablespoon chopped canned pimiento, ½ cup heavy cream, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon finely-chopped parsley, whites 2 eggs.

Melt butter, add flour, and stir until blended; then pour on gradually while stirring constantly the milk. Bring to boiling point and add bread crumbs, yolks beaten thick, macaroni cut small, chicken, mushrooms cut in strips, pimiento, the cream beaten until stiff and salt and parsley. Stir just enough to mix without stirring air out of the cream, then fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Turn into well-buttered mould and cover with buttered paper, and bake in oven of 300 deg. Fahr. until firm. Remove from mould to hot platter (preferably round), and garnish generously with parsley. Serve with tomato sauce, adding a few fried muchrooms to it if possible. With this serve hard small rolls and a generous green salad.

If you have one of those large hungry families that almost demands meat every meal you can make a limited budget stretch a long way with

Emem's Creole Casserole

(Serves 6 generously)

Order 2 lbs. lean lamb from the forequarter put through the butcher's meat grinder—my butcher stews it to me for 2 lbs. for 25 cents. Cook ½ cup unpolished rice in rapidly-boiling salted water until it is tender.

Saute the minced lamb in 1 tablespoon butter—it will probably contain enough fat to render out and make it sufficiently moist without adding more butter—for about 3 minutes. Add the drained, cooked rice to it. 1 tablespoon chopped capers and 1 tablespoon liquor from caper bottle, 2 teaspoons chopped canned pimiento, 1 cup peas and liquid, and 1 tablespoon either chopped pimiento or green pepper or parsley. Pour all into buttered casserole, sprinkle top with ½ cup fine cracker crumbs mixed with ½ cup finely-grated old cheese, sprinkle this with paprika and add just enough more boiling water (or hot stock either meat or vegetable) pouring it in carefully at one side to come about one inch up the dish. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until heated through and crust is an attratcive gold.

You will probably still remember Litta's Scalloped Potatoes that I suggested to you a month or so ago?—using ½ or 1 lb. of hamburg or ground beef to put in layers in a large dish of scalloped potatoes—having top layer of ground beef mixed with a ground onion and sprinkled with crumbs and paprika Truly an economical and nourishing supper—superb flavor, too.

Pork Chop Suey en Casserole

It is preferable to use leftover roast pork for this dish.

Cut leftover roast pork (chicken or veal will do) into strips one inch long and ¼-inch square. Saute one large onion sliced very finely in 2 tablespoons olive oil or butter until transparent with 2 tablespoons green pepper if easy to procure, and 2 cups celery sliced diagonally in ¼-inch pieces; stir these over medium heat for about 5 minutes. Then add the meat, there should be about 2½ or 3 cups. The following are not necessary, but one of them is desirable—1 cup sliced mushrooms or bamboo shoots or water chestnuts—all of which can be procured in tins. Add one or all of these ingredients with 2 tablespoons La Choy or Shoyu Sauce, and enough clear gravy or stock or boiling water to barely submerge. Line a large buttered casserole with a one-inch layer of cooked rice—sides and bottom—pour in the chop suey mixture, sprinkle top with salt and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until heated through. Pass Le Choy sauce at table. Casserole may be garnished with rings of green pepper when taken to table.

Eggs a la Tripe (a la Emem!)

Hard cook six eggs and peel them and slice thinly—using one of those 15-cent slicers if you have one. Saute in two tablespoons oil or butter, ½ lb. honeycomb tripe cut in ½-inch cubes, for 3 minutes, then add 1 tablespoon flour and stir around, and add 1½ cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt and stir until flour thickens. Put a layer of egg slices in buttered casserole, cover with layer of tripe and gravy, cover with layer of buttered fine cracker-crumbs (using 1 cup in all)—repeat 3 layers until all is used, having crumbs on top. Sprinkle with paprika and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until heated through.

"THE MILK-BLOWER"

I like to blow my milk
And make it bubble-bubble;
Not where there's comp'ny
Or there'd be trouble

I like to sing in my milk
High-ho hum-de-dummie,
It makes a noise just like
A choo-choo in a tunnel.

Little Jackie has to drink
His milk in his crib,
But I like to blow my milk
And spill it on my bib!

WOMAN, FOUR MEN INJURED IN FIGHT AT DETROIT PLANT

Police Swing Clubs When Pickets Attempt To Upset Officials' Car

SIX AUTOS GET THROUGH

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(AP). — A woman and four men were injured to-day when police and pickets clashed at one entrance to the Cadillac Motor Car Company plant here. Union leader said police swung their clubs on the pickets surrounding the plant.

Six automobiles got through the picket lines into the plant. Police said they carried executives of the company.

The five persons, suffering head injuries, were taken by union workers in private cars to receive medical attention.

Fighting broke out between police and pickets when an automobile containing two men attempted to pass through a line of pickets at a gate leading to the executives' garage. A group of men, aided by a few women, attempted to overturn the car, but police charged with clubs.

While the picket line was in disorder, three more automobiles went through the gate. Two had gone in before the violence started. Each car was occupied by several men, apparently foremen and officials.

Picket lines assembling marched for a time in a closed circle, as a loud speaker on a motor truck nearby urged them to "let nobody in."

At the Fleetwood unit of Cadillac, there was no violence as about 200 employees of the Ternstedt division, part of the Fleetwood plant, went back to work. No picket line was established there.

Tested Favorite Recipe

By MARY MOORE.

THERE are more ways than one of baking an apple.

Baked Apple a la Lehigh.

Gravenstein or Spitzenberg apples are best for this because they are large. Wash apples and core them and peel only one-third way down from the top. Fill with soaked currants or raisins and pour in corn syrup—about two teaspoons to fill in crevices around fruit. Sprinkle peeled portion of apple with brown sugar. Bake on glass or enamel dish holding ½ inch boiling water at 400 deg. Fahr. basting apples often, until quite tender. Serve with heavy cream.

French Baked Apples.

Peel small apples such as Baldwins or select small Spys, and core them. Place in individual buttered custard cups and fill with sugar topping sugar with butter. Bake in oven of 300 deg. Fahr. for about 2 hours. Serve with heavy cream in cups in which they were baked. The flavor is rich.

Apple Ginger.

Wipe, quarter, core, pare and cut sour apples into ½-inch cubes—there should be 2½ lbs. Put in baking dish 1½ lbs. light brown sugar, the juice and rind of 1½ lemons, ½ oz. ginger root, few grains salt, and 1 cup water. Cover and cook slowly at 275 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours, adding more water if necessary. This will keep well.

BRIDGENORTH

MRS. JAMES GRANT FRACTURES LEG

Bridgenorth Woman Painfully Injured When She Slips On Ice

BRIDGENORTH, January 26. — Last Wednesday afternoon while returning from down street, Mrs. James Grant steped on an icy spot in the road which was covered with a light fall of snow. She slipped and fell, breaking her leg. Her injuries were such she had to be removed to Nicholls hospital, where she is reported to be doing as well as can be expected.

Next Friday night a card party will be given at the home of Mrs. James Jopling for the benefit of the Rink Co.

Mr. Max Fowler spent the week-end with friends at Omemee.

Mr. Peter Nicholls of the village, was taken suddenly ill the past week at Lakefield, where he is spending the winter.

The oyster supper given by the W. A on Friday night was quite a success. The night being a favorable one a large crowd was in attendance.

The play 'Here Comes Charlie' following the supper, given by the Knox Dramatic Club of Peterborough, was much appreciated. Those taking part did their work very creditably. All seemed to live the parts they portrayed.

Miss Meta Thom, a former teacher at Selwyn, now teaching at Lindsay, will give a travelogue on her trip to Vimy the past summer, at Selwyn church, Friday night this week.

Mr. Harry Jopling was in Montreal the past week on a business trip.

Mr. G. D. Mann began his duties as assessor of Smith township the past week.

Miss Olive Bell of Fairview was a guest at the manse a few days the past week.

Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's church, Peterborough, was in Bridgenorth and vicinity on Friday calling on some of his parishioners.

Mr. Albert White and sons are busy filling their ice houses. The ice is of a fair quality and thickness.

YOUTH MOLESTED GIRLS

ST. BONIFACE, Man.—(C.P.). — A two-week "reign of terror" in this cathedral city across the Red River from Winnipeg is over. A 16-year-old youth, six feet, four inches in height, confessed to police he was responsible for frightening several women and girls. He was turned over to juvenile court authorities for punishment.

Dinners of The Week

By MARY MOORE

All These Meals Have Been Served, Eaten and Approved

Sunday.

Fricassee of Boiling Chicken (See note)
Steamed Rice or Paking Powder Biscuits
Buttered String Beans (Canned or fresh)
Celery Hearts Cranberry or Apple Jelly
Steamed Carrot Pudding Spice Sauce Coffee

NOTE.—As you know, if a boiling fowl is cut up in pieces for serving and dipped in flour and seared in hot butter or frying oil for about 5 or 6 minutes, before boiling it is called chicken fricassee instead of stewed chicken and has a much nicer flavor. The larger your boiling fowl the more economical it is to buy—for you still have only one bony carcase—the increase in weight comes in the edible meaty parts. A large fowl weighing 6 or 7 pounds requires about 3 hours gentle simmering to make it tender in water to cover, to which 1½ teaspoon salt has been added during the last hour. When done, remove chicken to hot platter, stir flour in cold water to make a paste, and stir into chicken gravy until it thickens, then add a little cream and paprika. As much as a teaspoon of paprika may be added—gives good color and a mild spicy flavor. Serve rice or baking powder biscuits in a border around the chicken platter, and pour flavored gravy over chicken.

Monday.

Chicken Rissoles (see note)
Scalloped Tomatoes and Onions
Creamed Carrots
Apricot Jelly Plain Cookies or Cake Coffee.

NOTE. — To make Chicken Rissoles, roll thin some rich plain paste and cut into large rounds with cookie cutter. Put leftover chicken (some skin is permissible) through food chopper, moisten with gravy and flavor with 1 tablespoon grated onion or juice, and put about 1 tablespoon on each pastry round and fold over as in making turnovers, moistening edges to make them stick. Dip each one in beaten egg diluted with a little water, and fry in deep fat at 395 degrees Fahr. for about 5 or 6 minutes. Pass a sauce such as tomato, or mushroom or caper. Very select.

Tuesday.

(A choice vegetarian meal)
Cream of Potato Soup

Spinach Buttered
Mashed Parsnips
Peach Fruit Salad Cinnamon Toast Coffee.

Wednesday.

Minced Veal and Pork Patties
Creamed Cubed Potatoes with Parsley
Parboiled Shredded Cabbage
Date Blanc Mange Cream Coffee.

Thursday.

Creamed Mushrooms on Toast Points
Diced Beets Buttered
Sliced Tomato and Potato Salad
Orange Layer Cake Coffee.

Friday.

Clam Chowder (main course dish)
Celery Hearts Head Lettuce Salad with Russian Dressing
Peach Betty Pudding Cream Coffee.

Saturday.

Lamb Chops with Caper Gravy (see note)
Mashed Potatoes Cole Slaw
Pineapple and Banana Fruit Cup
Cookies Coffee.

NOTE. — To make Caper Gravy melt 2 tablespoons butter and to it add 2 tablespoons flour, and blend together, then stir in 1½ cups water from cooking the potatoes (which will have been salted, hence the sauce needs no more), stir until thick. Then add 2 tablespoons of chopped capers and juice covering them and stir; keep hot over boiling water before serving. Most delicious with lamb or boiled mutton.

FRESH NEW DRESSES BRIGHTEN WARDROBES

Smart-Looking Frocks Can Be Made at Home

Two frocks you can make yourself, left, shirtwaist dress with multiplied pockets; right, high-waisted dress in widely-spaced print

Dresses you can make yourself will occupy some of the dull days of January or February, and brighten up your wardrobe now when you need something new and fresh in clothes.

The two dresses sketched can be made at home, will be alright to wear at home or on a cruise or a trip south, and may be worn all summer.

At the left is the shirt-waist dress with apparently a multitude of pockets. They are just buttoned flaps, piped in contrast to the rest of the dress and set one on top of the other. It can be worn at home, in the office or for sports, and is not hard to make. Make it of practically any informal fabric.

The high-waisted dress, right, has a soft bodice, and is perfect in widely spaced or tiny scattered prints, or if you like black, in black silk jersey. Ties looped through the deep collar, twisted at back, then around again in a crushed girdle, and tied in center front, are charming. For these use self or contrasting material.

One Dress, Two Jackets

An interesting costume being promoted for spring wear is one dress with two jackets, one coming just above the waist and one half way down the skirt. A dress of soft gray heavy sheer crepe with the jackets braided all over in color matching the dress was most effective in this styling.

In washable day time dresses dots and dark linens are gaining favor. There are flock dot voiles, dotted swisses and peasant prints. Broadcloths are also arriving for the new summer season. The peasant prints are made with full skirts, short, puffed sleves and a generally quaint old-world air that is very fetching, especially for the slim young thing.

White grounds seem to be the best liked in the prints, with garden scenes in the designs, in strong, true colors.

200 ORPHANS FLEE BURNING BUILDING ONLY TWO INJURED

All Available Montreal Brigades Are Unable To Save Structure

CAUSE IS UNKNOWN

MONTREAL, Jan. 26 (CP).—Two firemen and two children were injured, while 200 orphans were marshalled to safety as flames spread swiftly through an old wing of the St. Francois d'Assises Orphanage here early today.

The children, ranging in age from two to six years, were dressed by nuns of the congregation of Filles Consolatrices du Divin Coeur, when the flames first broke out in the assembly hall of the old, two-storey building, facing Belmont Street.

First alarm brought from the down town area all available equipment and firemen, who carried the children from the smoke-filled building to other buildings and neighboring homes. Most of the children were prepared to evacuate by the time the firemen arrived, but many of the smaller ones were bundled into blankets and other bedding and carried by firemen to safety.

The flames, from unknown origin, were making swift headway before the last of the orphans were carried outside, and Capt. Hugh Nolan, in charge of the district fire brigade, said iron supports in one section of the building were "red-hot when we got in."

Groups of firemen concentrated on blocking the blaze from spreading to the long dormitories where the children and nuns were first aroused by smoke. Six hours after the outbreak firemen still played water on some sections of the old grey-stone building, once a schoolhouse and later a refuge for unemployed men.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have taken a great interest in your cookery section and would like very much if you could give me a few ideas on Supper Dishes that would be suitable for a hospital. If you have a book on these would you be so kind as to send it to Mrs. R. S. ..... She would pay C.O.D. charges. Thanking you. — E.A.W.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

Luncheon and Supper Dishes seem to be required by a great number of readers. Consequently we have made them the main topic on the Cookery Page this week.

Some of the recipes are new—others are old favorites with a few changes in them to make them interesting. We hope you find some that will be adaptable to hospital needs. There is no reason why any of them could not be doubled or tripled for serving large numbers of people. All of them, following our principles, are nourishing and easily digested.

We have not published a cook book. However, it is our hope to do so sometime in the not too distant future. A great many recipes that have proven favorites are in the 'Cook Book File' and when they are put in book form we will announce it.

QUESTION: Just a line to say how I enjoy your cookery columns and look forward to the paper. I am a shut in owing to illness — I cannot go around in beautiful sunshine out of doors. I am doing my cooking which I enjoy, and your white fruit cake was grand—also the Cherry Cake.

I would like your peach or dried apricot brandy recipe that a reader requested and said was grand. It was in December 12.

Do you make a yearly book? If so, I would surely like to buy one.

Thank you for all your helpful hints. I pass them along to others.

With best of New Year Happiness and do continue the Key to a Man's Heart. Yours for better meals, Mrs. E. B.

ANSWER: Your letter is charming.

You flatter us regarding the cook book. A yearly Cook Book. By reading the preceding letter you will see that we haven't even one per century yet! But we will and will surely announce when we do.

Peach Brandy

Use ripe and sound peaches. Cut them in slices without peeling with silver knife and remove the stones. Half fill glass jars with the fruit and fill up with brandy. Add 3 oz. of fine sugar to each pint and 6 peach stones. Close very tightly, with screw lids, and let stand for a month, shaking occasionally. Then strain or filter, and bottle and cork securely. Let stand 1 year at least before using.

Apricot Brandy

If dried fruit is used it must be soaked overnight and in the morning cooked until tender in the same water in which it was soaked.

To two quarts of fresh raw apricots (use 1 lbs. choice quality of dried) allow 1½ lbs. sugar, 1 quart French Brandy, and water.

Use very ripe apricots, wash well, and put them in enamel dish with just enough water to cover. Cook slowly until soft, stirring occasionally. (At this point start treating soaked and cooked dried apricots in the same way.) Then add the sugar and when it is dissolved and the fruit is cold add the brandy. Put all into a jar, cover closely, and leave for two months, shaking the mixture now and again. Then filter through 2 thicknesses of flannel, bottle and cork.

We hope you find these suitable and shall be glad to hear from you any time. We hope we continue to be friends.

MILLBROOK

SHOW HOW SALADS SHOULD BE MADE

Members of Supper Club Stage Demonstration At Regular Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—The Supper Club composed of girl members and sponsored by the local branch of the Women's Institute under the leadership of Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, convenor, held its regular fortnightly meeting at the home of Mrs. Allen Mitchell Saturday afternoon. Miss Beatrice Fallis, president, opened the meeting assisted by the secretary, Miss Marian Belch. The roll call was answered by an exchange of recipes.

A demonstration on the making of salads was presented by Misses Wilma Armstrong, Dorothy Smith and Marian Belch. Miss Kathleen Smith was the housekeeper and Misses Audrey Nill and Margaret Smith, kitchen helpers.

The homework assignment was a request to plan a menu with a salad as the main dish and to compose an article entitled "Salads for Health." The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, Saturday, February 6.

Supper is Success

The Waverley Club was the scene of gay activity when the Sunday School of St. Thomas Anglican church sponsored their annual hot supper, Saturday evening. A bounteous repast was served on daintily laid tables and a goodly number of village and community folk assembled for the event, which has always proven an especial treat.

Miss B. M. Turner was the efficient convenor assisted by Mrs. Geo. Raper, Misses Ella Grandy and Margaret Simpson as table conveners. Misses Laura Crocker, Bella McCorry, Wanda Bristow, Mary Smith, Maud Raper, Loreen Handley, Helen Ellsworth and Meegan Abbott catered to the wants of the many incoming guests and others assisting included Mrs. L. Morton, Mrs. M. Fallis, Misses K. Donnelly and Mary Nattress and Mr. A. A. Needler, cashier. Proceeds amounted to approximately twenty-five dollars.

Enjoyable Party

Approximately fifty pupils attended the gay party held in the Assembly Hall of the Millbrook Continuation School, Friday evening at 7.30 p.m. Interesting indoor games were played under the direction of Kenneth Kidd and at 8.30 p.m. Orville Wainman, president of the Literary Society, introduced a program, which continued throughout the evening, interspersed by games and dancing.

The various numbers of the program included a shadow play, "Dr. Cuttem and his patient", enacted by Orville Wainman and Jack Arundell; folk dancing, by Misses Mary Smith, Loreen Handley, Ada Peers, and Joan Deyell; violin solo, Billy Kerr; reading Hugh Williams; violin duet, Misses Jean Fisher and Lenore Davis; reading, Miss Leatha Rowland; whistling solo, Miss Beatrice McDowell; vocal trio, Kenneth Kidd, Orville Wainman and Jack Arundel; vocal solo, Orville Wainman and the month's edition of the school paper was read by Miss Marjorie McDowell. Music for dancing was supplied by Bill Edworthy.

Delicious refreshments were served during the evening and plans are being made for a similar event when ex-students will be included among the guests.

ments under the contract was necessary to prevent the utility being burdened to the extent rate increases that would handicap Ontario industry would be necessary.

The Brantford member paid his respects to the court but thought they might have misinterpreted the meaning of the legislature in its power, contract legislation.

"If so, let us put it on the statute books in unmistakable terms," he said. "It is an act of justice."

"Legalized Thievery"

Terms of the bill were so drastic as to be "nothing more nor less than legalized thievery," Arthur Ellis (Con., Ottawa South) told the legislature. He predicted the Dominion government would have to consider disallowing the legislation.

"It is the duty of the Dominion government to exercise its power in an extraordinary case such as this," he said.

Mr. McQuibban contended that before the change in Hydro policy effected by the present administration, the utility was becoming a distributor for power generated by private corporations. In 1928, he said, the ratio of generated power distributed to purchased power distributed was 40 to 1. By 1932 this had declined to 1½ to one. By 1933 it was back to six to one.

Germany Conserves Food – And Buys Bullets

Here's a peek behind the scenes in Germany. In line with the national program to conserve foodstuffs, the country celebrates one 'one dish' day per week. The gentleman gazing pensively at his bowl of soup is Chief of Staff Lutze of the German army, who joins with his family in doing their share. "Bullets or Butter" was Air Minister Goering's challenge. The Reich has apparently chosen bullets.

CANADA ARMING ONLY TO GUARD HER NEUTRALITY

European war nor with any thought of a co-operative effort between the British and Canadian authorities."

No request of any kind had come from the British Government regarding a single item in the estimates. There were no commitments, and there was no co-operation beyond the advantage to be gained from the exchange of expert information.

Only Parliament To Decide.

Mr. Woodsworth said Canada should claim the right to declare war and peace and said if Great Britain went to war Canada was at war. The Prime Minister said this was not so. Only the parliament of Canada could commit Canada to war and the government took the stand it was for parliament to decide in a particular case, having regard to all conditions both within and without Canada.

The decision, in Mr. Mackenzie King's opinion, should be made on the basis of Canada's interest. It was well to desire to live at peace with the world but in the present condition of the world it might not be possible.

"How far we remain neutral will depend upon ourselves and to some extent on the enemy," he said when questioned by Mr. Woodsworth as to whether the question of neutrality as well as of participation in war would be left to parliament.

"There is no part of the world today that is not menaced by danger from without and few parts that are not menaced by danger from within," he added.

There were times and reasons for all things and a declaration of neutrality that would tie the hands of parliament under all conditions could not find a more inappropriate time than the present. It would simply offer succor to all the forces "that are ready to oppose us and that have the hand out against democracy."

The great need at the present time was for unity, first within Canada, then within the British Empire, among the English-speaking nations and among the nations that cherished democracy.

The British Empire was the greatest single influence for peace and no step should be taken to lessen its influence. Great Britain had been the great pacifier and too much credit could not be given it for preventing the spread of the Spanish civil war to the rest of Europe and other parts of the world.

Christian Doctrines Ignored.

World affairs were in a critical condition, said the Prime Minister. No one could predict when a war might break out or what mad act might be done under the stress of present conditions. The doctrines of christianity were ignored.

Forces of good and evil were contending not merely between nations but within nations and within the hearts of individuals. No nations was free from the menace of evil forces within its own borders.

Mr. Mackenzie King described the government's policy as a middle course between imperialism and nationalism, between the view that the Empire should act as a unit and have one foreign policy and the view that there should be no ties between the parts of the Empire.

"The imperialists ought to be thoroughly well satisfied" with Mr. Mackenzie King's speech, said Miss Agnes Macphail (U.F.O. Lab, Grey-Bruce). The Prime Minister had completed "the circumference of the circle." He had spoken of fighting for democracy just as the last war was fought "to make the world safe for democracy." He was getting back to the old war slogans.

The tendency today was towards a thoroughly Canadian policy which recognized Canada's geographical situation, said Miss MacPhail. The Canadian people more and more favored it. It was opposed to the imperialistic attitude on the one hand and the collectivist or League of Nations attitude on the other.

Doesn't Like the Speech.

Miss Macphail said she was pleased with Mr. Mackenzie King's speech at the League of Nations Assembly last September, but not so well with his speech last night.

The great powers had used the league for their own purposes and brought about its failure, she said. The ideals of the league were good. Miss Macphail said she had once been an enthusiastic collectivist and placed great hope in the league but had now changed her allegiance. She had turned to a North American or isolationist point of view, though she still hoped the world would come back to an improved League of Nations.

Isolation was only a 'stop-gap." It was not a permanent solution, but it was the sensible thing at present.

"I have very little confidence in the ruling class of Britain," he said. "I think they will sacrifice the masses of Great Britain and Canada, too, for themselves."

Canada should be isolationist, in order to avoid being dragged into a European war by Great Britain.

Miss Macphail wanted to know what the real purpose of increased expenditure on defence was. Mr. Mackenzie King might think it was not for a European expedition, but she wondered if the "military caste" not preparing for that.

"If we leave it to the last moment to make our decision we will not maintain neutrality," she said. The pull of imperialist sentiment and the influence of the military class would load the dice in favor of war unless a reasoned decision were made in advance of an outbreak.

Wants An Ideal Country

"If in Canada we could create an ideal place, furnishing opportunities for all," said Miss MacPhail, "we would be making a great contribution to world peace.

"I think we ought to say now to Great Britain that Canada is not of the same mind as in 1914 and that the mind of the people is not to plunge into a European war," she concluded.

Denton Massey (Cons. Toronto-Greenwood) declared that whatever place Canada holds today in the family of nations "Was dearly bought for her at a ghastly and noble price from 1914 to 1918."

Canada could, if she would, have a powerful voice among the nations of the world, Mr. Massey said. "But there is no single voice. There is a cacophony of sounds within our borders and we are in the paradoxical position of having a voice among the nations at a terrible price, but no determination of what that voice will say."

"The possibility of war has brought us face to face with the necessity of solving this great national problem, and with despatch.

"It is a situation of extreme gravity, this determination of our national policy for Canada. What sort of Canada do we want? Do we want a United Canada or do we want a Canada at all? These questions must be answered if we are to keep our place in the family of nations."

DEAD DESPERADO'S PAL IS HUNTED

Another unanswered puzzle was in the circumstances surrounding the two prisoners' possession of guns in the jail. On the pretext that they had important information to impart, they had themselves brought into an ante-room to meet Lawyer Paul Lesage Sunday night. As they entered, both whipped out revolvers and ordered the lawyer and turnkey aside. Then they ransacked the jail office for more guns and ammunition and fled the prison after locking the jailors inside to stall off pursuit.

Two Officials Suspended

As an outcome of the escape, Assistant Jail Governor Leonce Charbeoneau and Sergeant Alphone Vezina, in charge of the guard at the time, are under suspension pending investigation.

A flood of tips, meanwhile, poured in on the police as to Bernard's whereabouts. From one end of town to the other, squads dashed back and forth ,tracking down fruitless clues.

But about the only thing known with certainty about the fugitive was that he was wounded, a factor that might give the pursuers a break. Officers after the gunfight had been sure he was struck, and later Delisle confirmed this belief by telling them the man who came into his barber shop had a wounded arm.

Police refused to disclose the source that sent them armed to the hideout of the gun-carrying pals, but Col. Leon Lambert, head of the Provincial Police, disclosed the information had come to Sergeant Phileas Cloutier, chief of the jail guards. On getting the tip, Chateauneuf led 20 policemen to the old three-storey wooden building, where the pair lay hidden.

EAST EMILY

ANNUAL BANQUET OF W.A. AT BETHEL

Guests Numbering 125 Sit Down To Most Enjoyable Dinner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

EAST EMILY, Jan 26.—The members of the W.A. of Bethel United church held their annual banquet in the basement of the church on Tuesday evening when everything turned out to be a huge success. At seven o'clock about one hundred and twenty-five people sat down to a bountiful supper.

Community singing lead by R. Hanbridge; toast, "The King and Country," Mr. H. Jackson; God Save the King; toastmaster's remarks, Mr. Harry Jackson; solo, Miss Mildred Magee; instrumental solo, Lloyd Rowland; toast, "The Church," Rev. Mr. Conn; reply, Rev. F. G. MacTavish; solo, Miss Mildred Magee; toast, "The Ladies," Mr. Ira Switzer; reply, Mrs. E. Storey; instrumental solo, Lloyd Rowland; toast, "The Guests," Mrs. W. Howden; reply, Rev. E. W. Rowland; address, Rev. F. W. Craik of Peterborough, taking for his subject, "Friendship in Action."

Mrs. Ira Switzer moved a vote of thanks to all those who kindly helped with the program. Mr. Harry Jackson seconded the motion.

Entertain A.Y.P.A.

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Clark entertained the members of the A.Y.P.A. of St. James Anglican church at a skating party when the young folk thoroughly enjoyed good skating on Mr. Clark's bay. Everyone came up to the house where a real good pot luck supper was prepared by some of the ladies who stayed at the house.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howden and Mr. and Mrs. Richard James were guests at their sister's, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stokes' thirty-fifth wedding anniversary at their home in Mariposa on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Jackson and children of Orillia were visitors at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Jackson on Saturday.

Messrs. Walter Moncrief and Esmond Storey were visitors to Millbrook on Thursday.

Miss Grace Franks has secured a position in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cullis and Mr. Ben McCarrell attended the funeral of the late Mr. Holmes of Reaboro on Thursday.

On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Franks entertained a large number of their friends at their home, it being the occasion of their wedding anniversary. The evening was spent in cards and dancing until the wee small hours of the morning, with refreshments served at midnight.

Misses Beth and Jean Moncrief of South Monaghan spent this week visiting with Mrs. Jos. Moncrief.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Nurse of Quebec are visiting at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Nurse and other relatives in this district.

WEST IS GRATEFUL FOR AID RECEIVED

Letters Are Read At Meeting Of St. Andrew's Young People, Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—Thoughts pertaining to the continuance of the study of the new project "The Christian and the Home" being studied by members of the Young People's Union of St. Andrew's church were expressed by Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Siscoe, guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Y.P.U., who addressed the gathering on the subject "The Family at Work and Play."

Oliver Brock, president, presided during the business period and the devotional session was conducted by Miss Phyllis Kidd. Christian cultural convener, assisted by Miss Ruby Fallis.

Interesting letters were read from folk in Saskatchewan who were the recipients of Christmas packages out of a splendid bale packed by the Y.P.U. during the festive season. Expressions of gratitude were received by Messrs. Kenneth Kidd and Gordon Might and Miss Phyllis Kidd.

fert and adjoining Franklin County would approximate $4,000,000.

From Portsmouth, Ohio, a mass exodus was underway. Wholesale evacuations of beleaguered towns in Tennessee, Western Kentucky, Southeastern Missouri, Arkansas and Mississippi burdened refugee centres.

Memphis Threatened

As the flood crawled above the record height of 67 feet at Huntingdon, W.Va., residents fled to safety in increasing numbers. The principal business streets were covered and the water plant was threatened.

Pittsburgh, encouraged by reports of an approaching drop in temperature and clearing skies, watched the flood waters move slowly up a half dozen street toward its "Golden Triangle" district.

As cities and states called upon the Federal Government for help, President Roosevelt told his special relief committee to "step on it," and General Malin Craig, United States Army Chief, responded to calls for more troops to assist the work of life saving and relief.

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administration Administrator, estimated between 650,000 and 700,000 would be homeless by Wednesday or Thursday, and assured officials the Government was doing everything possible.

DONEGAL

Messrs. John and Carman Kingsley of Dummer spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. George Humphries.

Mr. Learl Humphries, also Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brown of Seymour visited Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. William Waters.

Tuesday evening visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McKay and family were Mr. and Mrs. William Waters, Miss Dorothy Waters, and Mr. Learl Humphries, Miss Waters remaining for a few days with Miss Helen McKay.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Humphries, Mr. Learl Humphries, Miss Dorothy Waters and Miss Helen McKay spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Buchanan and family.

THE FAVORITE BEAUTY SOAP OF CANADA'S LOVELIEST MOTHERS

EDWARD, DIANE AND I USE Palmolive EVERY DAY TO KEEP OUR SKINS SMOOTH AND FRESH"

SAYS Iris Gardner

Prominent Winnipeg Socialite

"No wonder so many people compliment us on Edward's and Diane's lovely complexions," adds Mrs. Gardner. "They use Palmolive just as eagerly, and just as often as I do."

Clever little children. To keep their skin as soft and smooth as their lovely mother's, they follow her advice, and use Palmolive, the one leading soap made with gentle Olive Oil.

Olive Oil is Important

Remember, costly Olive Oil, so good for delicate skin, is the reason Palmolive cleanses deeply, and at the same time soothes and refreshes your skin. Use Palmolive regularly. Get some today and start your skin on the way to real, all-over loveliness.

DR. DAFOE Says:

"At the time of the birth of the Dionne Quintuplets, and for some time afterward, they were bathed in Olive Oil...When the time arrived for soap and water baths, we selected Palmolive Soap exclusively for daily use in bathing these famous babies."

Married By Proxy In Holland

EDMONTON — Miss Wilhemina Roolert, 29, of Bodegraven, Holland, is here enroute to Bluberry Mountain in the Peace River district where she is to marry Thomas Mollinga. Her gold ring is a symbol of a marriage by proxy in Holland. Another ceremony will be performed at her new Canadian home.

Counterfeit Coin Failed To Work

SAULTE STE. MARIE, Ont.—A youth walked into Joe Vannini's store, slapped a coin on the counter and asked for a package of cigarettes. Joe picked up the piece of money, smiled a little and handed the boy one cigarette. The coin was a small penny deftly coated with silver paper.

TARIFFS AID SMALL SECTION OF COMMUNITY

Free Trade And Tariffs Are Discussed By Gordon Price Of Toronto

MACDONALD FREE TRADER

In his lecture to the Workers' Educational Association at the Collegiate Institute Monday night, Gordon Price of the University of Toronto discussed the topic of free trade and tariffs in his course of economics.

From the point of view of the economist, free trade was the rational policy, but in elections the consideration of it was affected by appeals to the emotions. Mr. Price said that tariffs tend to support a small section of a nation at the expense of the majority. Giving a historical review of Canadian tariffs he related a story to the effect that Sir John A. Macdonald had prepared two speeches on a tariff involving tariffs, one for and the other against. When the government took a stand against tariffs, he gave the speech in favor of them although at heart he was a free trader.

JUDGE ACQUITTED ROGER McMILLAN

John Callaghan, 19, Given Term In Reformatory For Breaking Terms Of Bond

Judge Sheldon L. Smoke to-day acquitted Roger McMillan of Norwood of a charge of having converted to his own use $5 out of $10 he collected on behalf of William A. Richardson, Norwood insurance agent, as he rendered his decision from a trial earlier this month. Trial of McMillan on a second charge of a similar nature is proceeding.

Announcing his decision, Judge Smoke said the Crown evidence tendered in the case was not sufficient to remove from his mind a reasonable doubt. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., acted for the Crown and T. J. Carley, K.C., for McMillan.

The second charge which is being pressed to-day alleges that McMillan converted to his own use $10 collected from Allan Hayes of Dummer township between August 24 and September 4

Given Reformatory Term.

Brought back before Judge Smoke by reason of the fact he had broken the terms of a two-year suspended sentence under which he was at liberty by breaking and entering and committing thefts from Schneider Brothers and the Childerhose Radio Shop, John Callaghan, 19, was sentenced to two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory. The sentence will run concurrently with a sentence of one year determinate and one year indeterminate he received when he pleaded guilty to the Schneider and Childerhose robberies.

The two year suspended sentence had been given when Callaghan was found guilty of being armed by night with intent to break and enter the F. and G. store at Rubidge and Dalhousie streets.

DRIVERS MUST PAY OR LOSE LICENSES

Ontario Act Covers Judgments In Canada And Six States Across Border

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (CP)—Failure of Ontario motorists to satisfy judgments against them resulting from motor accidents in six states and the District of Columbia will henceforth mean suspension of drivers' licenses and motor car permits.

Ontario Motor Vehicles Act provides that any motorist who fails to satisfy a judgment against him for more than $100 within 15 days of the judgment becoming final, or who fails to make arrangements to pay such judgment, is subject to suspension of licenses. The act since its enactment in 1935 has applied to judgments in other provinces in Canada.

The Ontario Gazette carries a proclamation today extending the provisions of the act to Colorado, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Oregan, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. Reciprocal legislation is in effect in those places.

The Rambling REPORTERS

THE LONESOME BROWNIE.

Brownie, who lives on Water street, is very lonesome. That isn't extraordinary, perhaps, because lots of people, as well as dogs, are lonesome. But the fact that his master has gone to Texas has affected Brownie's tail. It formerly was a tail that wagged most of the time. You might see Brownie walking alone in the rain or proceeding solo, as it were, somewhere on a dark night and the tail would always be wagging pleasantly. Now it is not so energetic, and there isn't any way of letting Brownie know that the much-loved personage will be back shortly. It would be interesting to see Brownie when that moment comes, even though as a dog, he is a misogynist and hasn't much use for ladies. He turns a rather cold eye on passing femmes, and reserves most of his jolly response for men. —C.L.M.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH VESTRY MEETING

Alex. Butcher and Neil Gemmell Are Named Wardens At Meeting

Alex Butcher and Neil Gemmell were named church wardens for St. Luke's Anglican Church at the annual vestry meeting Monday evening. They will succeed Gordon Maniece and Morgan Perry to the offices.

A successful and progressive year in the church activities was reported at the meeting. Rev. G. J. Bousfield, rector, presided.

J. J. Turner, J. S. Mason and J. E. Parson were chosen lay delegates to the synod by the meeting. Mrs. R. H. Parsons was named the church's representative to the Anson House.

The meeting named a committee consisting of the rector and the two church wardens to act in the choice of two young men to serve as church warden assistants. An offer of the Men's Club members to act as church sidesmen was accepted.

R. H. Parsons was re-appointed vestry clerk and James Parsons was chosen for the post of envelope secretary, succeeding Frank Adams.

VISIBLE CONTAINER GAS PUMP DOOMED

Department Bans All In Ontario Owing To Danger Of Accidents, Fires

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (CP).—Ontario will abolish the "visible container" type of gasoline pump because of its dangers, it was announced today. An Order-in-Council has been passed and copies of the new regulations will be distributed to all gasoline stations.

Department of Highways will not require gasoline stations to change their pumps immediately. In the future no installations of the 'visible' pumps will be permitted. It is hoped in several years there will be none of the old type left.

Many gasoline pumps now have glass containers, filled with fuel, surmounting them. Accident hazard is increased by the danger of the globe's being broken and the gasoline spilled. Fires have often resulted.

A bevy of beauties from Toronto who will perform in figure skating at the Peterborough Winter Sports Carnival on Friday night. These starry skaters hold many records and titles gained on their flashing steel blades. They have performed at Olympic and other international competitions. Mary Jane Halsted is 1936 Junior Canadian doubles champion; Miss Margaret Leslie, Junior Canadian champion, 1934; and Miss Ruth Hall, outstanding figure skating exponent of the past year.

CHILD ON SLEIGH IS STRUCK BY CAR

Raymond Fowler, Aged Six, Narrowly Escapes Serious Injuries While Sleigh Riding

Quick action on the part of William J. McLaren of 534 Chamberlain street as he was driving his car south on Rubidge street on Monday afternoon in all probability averted a fatality.

Proceeding along in the vicinity of Sherbrooke street, the motorist swerved his car sharply to the left on the surface of glare ice with which the roadway was covered in an unsuccessful attempt to avoid striking 6-year-old Raymond Fowler of 195 Rubidge street who slid across the pathway of the car on a hand-sleigh.

The front of the car missed the child by inches but the rear end slewed around and sent the child and the sleigh crashing over to the opposite side of the street to come to a halt against the west curb.

Picked up and carried into a nearby house the child was attended by Dr. S. Y. Walsh. Fortunately he escaped with cuts and abrasions to his head and face, which are not believed to be of a serious nature.

Earlier in the same afternoon Alfred Johnston, R.R. 5, Peterborough was driving a motor truck south on Rubidge street, when his vehicle skidded between Dalhousie and Wolfe streets, striking a car owned by Kenneth Young of Oshawa. Damages were slight.

Other minor accidents attributed to the icy condition of the roads, included collision between a car owned by F. G. Bailey, 709 Water street and Herbert Withers, and also a mix up between three autos owned by J. A. Robinson, H. W. Moore and Roy Sedgewick.

PETERBOROUGH AID IS APPRECIATED BY WESTERN FOLK

Supplies Sent By Local Red Cross Distributed in Saskatchewan

A LETTER OF THANKS

The gratitude of Western folk for the help sent them from the East is attested to in a letter received by the local Red Cross Society from Rev. Horace E. Ashmore of the Mission House at Paddockwood, Sask., acknowledging the receipt of assistance sent from Peterborough. Mr. Ashmore's letter is as follows:

Mission House,
Paddockwood, Sask.,
Jan. 16, 1937.

Mrs. R. H. Turner,
President, Peterborough Red Cross Society.

Dear Madam.—If it is possible through your good offices I would like to express my personal thanks to the Peterborough Red Cross Society for the help they have generously given to their brothers in the West.

It was a great surprise and joy to me when the other day I got two cases of new and used clothing and materials from Regina and found that they came from the Red Cross of Peterborough.

The goods they contained were for distribution among the needy settlers of the West and especially in the northern district which is largely bush and heavy timber country and during the last few years has seen a great movement of settlers from the south and the cities into its once virgin forests and hay lands.

These people came in here to re-establish themselves in the face of many obstacles, to once more build up Homes for themselves and their families, many leaving behind good homes having been driven out by years of drought and depression.

True Pioneer Spirit

In true pioneer spirit they carried on, but without the help given from outside they could not have been able long to face the great odds against them. The government of our land helped but they could not do everything and so help came from the East and elsewhere to sustain these needy settlers. The materials are given out to all classes and creeds, no distinction is made between one and the other, the only claim being the great need, in this which is a national calamity and not a local matter.

If it were possible I would like to tell you of some of the cases to which your help went but it would not be in keeping with the work. Here are a couple of extracts from letters received.

Mrs. S.—"I was sure thankful for what I got as I needed them real bad. I always figure there is another day coming. But God bless you, you do help out wonderful." She is the mother of six small children.

Help Was Needed

Mrs. J. writes: "I do not know just what I would have done if it had not been for the dresses that we got from you and the overcoats for the family. The children would not have been able to attend school this winter only for the help you got for us. Please thank those who made it possible for such help. Thank you very much." And another writes: "I hated to take help from the government but I was afraid when the cold weather came and my pride would not let me ask for help. The clothing and underwear were a Godsend to us, especially as the boys can now go out and cut wood without freezing and we shall, I trust, be able to carry on once more without help. And so we thank you for the help."

I extend to you all in Peterborough my best wishes and thanks for whatever help has come into this part of the country.

Yours for a brighter and better New Year,

Horace E. Ashmore.

OBITUARY

HENRY GIDDINGS

COBOURG, Ont., Jan. 26—(C.P.)—Funeral took place here of Henry Giddings, life-long resident of Cobourg who died at the age of 88. He was born and educated in Cobourg. He is survived by his widow and two sisters Annie, of Rochester and Mrs. Charles Ayer, of Toronto.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up By an Examiner Reporter.

CARS HIT THE DITCH.

Eleven cars were reported in the ditch between Bewdley and Scott's corners, four miles west of the city, around eleven o'clock Monday. Ice on the paved highway made motoring dangerous.

BOUGHT HEREFORD BULL.

W. W. Dawson of Otonabee has purchased a polled Hereford bull, fourteen months old, from Mossom Boyd of Bobcaygeon. It is a pure-bred, registered young male of striking lines, and an outstanding specimen of the Boyd Herefords.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

George Selmes of 536 Patterson street, was arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Tuesday) morning and was remanded until February 2 on a charge of a serious nature.

NOT SAFE FOR VEHICLES.

Word from the Rice Lake area is that the ice on the lake is not safe for motor cars and horse-drawn vehicles, and is rather treacherous even for pedestrians because of the many air-holes. Crossing Rice Lake on the ice from Gore's Landing was a very convenient short cut for farmers bound for Peterborough, but this has been impossible recently.

CHECKING-UP ON GAMES.

Fearing a check-up on pin ball games by the police, many shop proprietors in the city who have the games on their premises are reported to have legalized their positions by substituting slugs for the five-cent pieces regularly doled out through the coin slots of the machines. Placards have been placed on the machines warning those who play them that all slugs must be played back into the macine.

PLAN BIG NIGHT.

On Thursday night at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, the members of Peterborough Kinsmen Club are to be hosts to the national and district executives of the National Association of Kinsmen Clubs. It is expected that the Cobourg Kinsmen will be present in full force with a strong delegation from the Oshawa club. Ladies have been invited to the meeting, and a dance is to follow dinner. President Don Loucks will preside.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

With the city streets a sheet of ice it is not surprising that young Peterborough has been taking to the skates, and boys and girls were seen on the blades in all parts of Peterborough last night. It was glorious fun, but in these days of motor traffic not without its element of danger, especially for the smaller youngsters who have not completely mastered the technique of skating. It is suggested that motorists realize this aspect of the situation and drive with unusual care.

CITY OF SILVER.

An unusual experience of winter Monday night was to have walked along the Street of the Silver Shingles. And if you had gone up onto Armour's Hill you would have looked down upon the city of five thousand silver roofs shining in the moonlight. Probably you didn't for the same ice that transformed prosaic housetops into a glimpse of fairyland took all the poetry out of the scene that became a trap for automobiles and pedestrians.

ICE WAS UNSAFE.

Felix Brownscombe, veteran member of the Stoney Lake Colony, who rarely lets a month of the year go by without a visit of inspection to his summer cottage in the Burleigh channel, and who has made many January trips in much more severe weather than this, found himself balked by the mildness of the present month when he tried to visit his island a short time ago. He discovered that the ice below Burleigh Falls was not safe enough to warrant the risk of a passage across it.

ERECTING NEW SECTION.

Workers were busy in the Brock street rink to-day erecting a new section of reserve theatre seats on east side of rink in answer to the public demand for accommodation at the grand Skating Carnival this Friday evening. Many choice theatre seats will be available as a result of the expansion of the reserve seat plan. Peterborough Winter Sports Committee members are urging the public to get their seats at the Chamber of Commerce immediately and avoid any last minute rush. The spectacle to be presented by the Toronto Skating Club is expected to surpass anything of the nature yet staged in this city.

IMMORTAL POET'S MEMORY HONORED BY LOCAL SCOTS

Caledonian Club Celebrates 178th Anniversary Of Burns' Birth

SCOTS ADOPTED CANADA

"There are only two classes of people in the world—those who are Scots and those who would like to be Scots," declared Rev. George S. Easton of Trinity United Church boldly as the memory of Scotland's Immortal Poet, Robert Burns, was celebrated in speech and song by the Caledonian Club here last evening. More than 150 Peterborough Scots joined in "A Nicht wi' Burns," celebrating the 178th anniversary of the Bard's birth.

Skirl of the bagpipes, played by the Caledonian Club's veteran official piper, Alex. Milne, brought the banqueters to their feet when the haggis was borne into the hall with traditional ceremony by the bearer, Robert French. William Petrie made the "Address to the Haggis," and led off the main portion of the jolly celebration.

James Miller served ably as chairman, and was supported by an able array of speakers and musical entertainers. The toast to "The Twa Countries' was proposed by Adrian Macdonald of the Normal School staff, and Robert Hendry spoke to the toast to "Our Club." With his toast to "The Immortal Memory," Rev. Mr. Easton was the principal speaker of the evening. Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean toasted "The Absent Ones," and Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr spoke to "The Lassies."

Defence of Poet.

Among highlights of addresses centered on the subject of the great poet and the Scottish race was a plea by Rev. Mr. Easton that too much stress has been placed on the biographical as the world looks back on Burns. "After all, the world is not so interested in the physical frailties— the workshop in which Burns worked—as the spirit in that workshop,' he suggested.

"I don't know of any two countries which have a greater right to be coupled in one toast than Scotland and Canada," Mr. Macdonald said. "Of all the British colonies, Canada is the one the Scot has taken as his own." Crediting other peoples with their share in the building of Canada, he declared the contribution of Scotland has been second to none.

Started In 1912.

Mr. Hendry told of the organization of the Caledonian Club in Peterborough in 1912. John Moyes was the first president, he said. The club was first solely a men's club, the ladies being guests once a month, he recalled.

"A good many of our men heard the call and left to do their share in 1914," he continued. As the war continued, 85 per cent. of the membership went to the Front, and the club activities died, to be re-organized after the War.

"I feel the club has justified its existence in the city," Mr. Hendry said. "We have passed through lean years, but times are turning now, and there's no reason why we should not get greater support. We need you up here; there is room for you, and the membership is small."

Soloists during the program were Miss Jessie Pattison, Mrs. W. J. Davies, and John Donaldson. Miss Pearl Smith served at accompanist.

MALE VOICE CHOIR.

The Peterborough Male Voice Choir will practice tonight at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. A full attendance of members is requested.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

Fod Wednesday, January 27

ACCORDING TO the aspects of the moon to certain planets, this may prove to be a doubtful and variable day, with much depending on individual effort, sound decisions and conservative management. Definite incitements to rash, hasty, quarrelsome and impetuous actions may jeopardize possible benefits or progress.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year in which much depends upon their own well-thought-out programs and their own restrained and well-governed action. Strife, haste and reckless and impetuous behavior would prove disastrous.

A child born on this day may be inclined to be hasty, impulsive and passionate, unless it is given early training and discipline. It should however, make friends easily, and be popular and well liked.

300 TONS OF SAND PUT ON STREETS

Five Trucks Busy Sanding Streets All Day Monday And Throughout Night

Making the sidewalks safe for the city's democracy required 300 tons of sand to start the last week in January, Alderman Sloan told the Examiner today. And 300 tons of it conjure an image of a substantial pile. Five trucks were busy all Monday and throughout the night until nearly daybreak. Street intersections got their share of the liberal sprinkling for the benefit of automobiles that had a common tendency to skid on the glare surface of the streets. Three hundred tons are 600,000 pounds, 120,000 pounds per truck in the overtime operations which seem to have completely displaced the usual snowplowing which so far has been nearly all velvet for the contractors. Probably the Board of Works crews felt when they got to bed this morning that they had dumped a township or two on the city's streets.

At any rate the estimate is official, 300 tons, to say nothing of the other fabulous quantities that have been scattered on the sidewalks since the autumn fled before the first frosts. It seems like a conclusive answer to any citizen who might slip on a bare spot. If these open winters continue, Alderman Sloan intimated, there may have to be an expedition sent into the adjoining townships to locate new resources of sand. Three hundred tons in one day have left a big hole somewhere in the landscape.

With the Boy Scouts

Not many reports received this week.

But, first of all, we are going to have a Scout Craft Show. Get that straight—a Scout Craft Show, not a hobby show. This will be for Cubs and Scouts and will be confined to badge work. A committee is working on this now and full details will be published later. In the meantime, get going, boys; start to work at once.

Next; St. John's are holding their annual Father and Son banquet on Friday, February 5. Field Secretary Edgar T. Jones will be guest speaker. A camp fire program will be held. All Scouts and fathers or those interested in Scouting are cordially invited.

All Saints', please note, the meeting is being held as usual on Friday. Make it a good meeting.

All Saints' Scouts and Cubs acted as guard of honor at the Girl Guide church parade at All Saints on Sunday last.

We are glad to see the hockey group going off with a good start, and congratulate the winners. The losers: remember the 8th law. A Scout smiles and whistles.

And now, for the Cubs.

Do you find it hard to skip. I hope not, because its good exercise and good fun.

Some boys think it's silly; but it is not. Famous boxers and footballers all include skipping in their training. You have to skip backwards. It's much harder than skipping forward. That's why Cubs have to do it.

Two new Chums were accepted into St. Paul's pack last Friday in Jerry Brown and Henry Doughty.

And, Cubs, prick up those ears; for St. Paul's Cubs have got a hockey team and challenge any other pack in the city to a friendly game of shinny. What about it? Phone Miss Lily Bull for arrangements.

Dropped in on the Second Armour Troop Friday night, and found a bunch of industrial workers.

AT THE EMPRESS.

Among the guests registered at the Empress Hotel are: Lieut.-Col. L. C. Sherman and Major H. A. Campbell of Kingston, W. H. Hartwell of Ottawa, P. Slater of Montreal, J. A. Hall of Kingston and Joe Hughes of New York City.

Sacred Heart Y.P.S. Elects Frank Cairns

Officers of the Young People's Society of the Sacred Heart Church, elected at a meeting held on Monday night in their club house, are as follows: Frank Cairns, president; Miss Edith Matiucci, vice-president; William Grady, secretary; Miss Dorothey Hatton, treasurer.

The Rev. J. C. Maloney acted as returning officer for the election, with scrutineers in Harold O'Toole, Paul Heffernan, Mark Collins and Ovila Rivard.

The society has been divided into four groups, each having two convenors, as follows: Group One, Charles Willis and Miss Loretta Giardino; Group Two, Gordon LaPlante and Miss Alice Collins; Group Three, Gerald Fleming and Miss Alda Brioux; Group Four, C. Collins and Miss Blanche Allen.

Group One will be responsible for the activities of next Monday night's meeting, and will hold a meeting on Wednesday night to perfect their plans.

AUGUST 17 TO 21 DATES SELECTED FOR EXHIBITION

Board Votes To Retain Early Date For Annual Fall Show

CONKLIN MIDWAY

Directors of the Peterborough Exhibition, projecting their plans to the end of another summer, decided Monday night to retain their August dates from the 17th to the 21st, actually opening on Wednesday the 18th, children's day.

They also renewed their contract with Conklin Brothers for the midway feature of this year's Exhibition, and wound up their first general meeting of the new fair year with instructions to the various committees to complete the prize list as early as possible. Another suggestion that will be considered is the judging at night of a few classes of horses.

R. M. Glover's committee on attractions went into immediate action with the representative of a vaudeville booking agency, and it was expected that the general outline of the attractions program would be arranged at once.

Frank Conklin informed the directors that Conklin Brothers' shows were already engaged for fifteen western exhibitions during the summer, and were then coming east to the Toronto and London exhibitions. They have reserved the week preceding Canadian National Exhibition for either Peterborough or Fort William.

There was an advantage in rail costs in accepting the Fort William engagement, "but we like Peterborough," Mr. Conklin said. "Even if I have to say it to your face we have found the Peterborough directors just about the finest bunch in Canada, and we have kept the week preceding Toronto open for you if you want us. If you make some other decision there will be no hard feelings on our part, and we will be glad to come here any time our dates fit."

Mr. Conklin said the shows would include new features for their long Canadian tour.

R. M. Glover reported that he had been in communication with a midway from the United States who were seeking bookings in Canada, but they had finally decided Saturday night that they could not cross the border for the simple reason that they had failed to make any other engagements in this country and they could not consider the Canadian trip for only one exhibition. Another midway company was booked for Ottawa only, and were returning at once to the United States. They could not be considered any way because Ottawa and Peterborough dates conflict.

About forty of the directors were present, and they agreed that they needed a midway for essential attraction purposes. They had made the experiment of cancelling the midway feature a few years ago, and nobody was satisfied, especially the treasurry department of the Exhibition Board.

Several of the members said they would prefer the dates set by the C.N.E., and that opinion was generally endorsed if it were possible to carry on in opposition to the Toronto Exhibition. The only other alternative would be to return to September dates.

"I don't think anyone would want to go back to that tragic experience when we were either rained out or frozen out," R. M. Glover remarked.

Lindsay Citizens Take To Skates In Big Way On Ice-Coated Streets

LINDSAY, Ont., Jan. 26.—(CP).—The Lindsay skating rink was deserted last night. Nature intervened and made one grand outdoor skating rink of the entire town. A glassy sheet of ice— covering lawns, sidewalks, boulevards and streets—made walking almost impossible.

Workers going to factories and places of business yesterday looked out, saw the situation and donned skates. Hundreds skated to work down the main streets. Delivery men gave up their horses and motor-propelled vehicles and made their rounds on skates.

Paper boys appeared on skates to pick up their papers for their routes and made their trips in record time. School children and some teachers skated to and from school.

Last night the streets were alive with skaters. Many older persons who have not donned the blades for years were out on the streets, found they could do better than they expected, extended their skating parties into social calls and were visiting their friends in remote sections of the town and in the adjoining municipals.

AURIE RETAINS LEAGUE'S LEAD WITH 29 POINTS

Dave Schriner Has Moved Up From Fourth Place To Second

JACKSON IN FIFTH

MONTREAL, Jan. 26 (CP)—Detroit's Larry Aurie is undisputed top man of the National Hockey League scorers. Official league statistics last night credited him with twenty-nine points, one up on Dave Schriner of New York Amerks, who has moved up from fourth place to second.

Sweeney's six-point splurge during the last week shot him ahead of Marty Barry, another Red Wing, who had been tied with Aurie for first at the last count. Schriner's point-getting was bettered only by Toronto's Harvey Jackson, whose seven points sent him up into fifth place.

One of Finest

DOUGLAS MANN

Toronto Ski Club and member of the University of Toronto ski team, who is considered by experts to be one of the finest skiers among the younger competitors in Ontario, Quebec and Dominion meets. Doug carried off the combined downhill and slalom events during the Dominion Championships held at Flecherton last year and also turned in a brilliant performance at the Quebec Kandahar championships of 1936. He has consented to add his name to the long list of nationally known competitors who will be in Peterborough this week-end to compete in the Peterborough Winter Sports Carnival Invitation Ski meet.

Murray St. Seniors Defeat St. George's

Murray Street Seniors blanked St. George's 2-0 in the first shut-out in the senior section of the Church Hockey League this season. It was a rough game on bad ice with the puck rolling to make teamplay and stickhandling almost impossible. The Baptists were the best batters and after the first frame when they were on the defensive, had a good edge. Foster scored in the second and Johnston in the third. There were no particular stars in this game, both goalies going good, however. The win leaves Murray Street in second place. The teams:

St. George's — Goal, I. Pearson; defence, Houghton, Holden; centre, R. Pearson; wings, Adamson, Gibson; alternates, McBride.

Murray Street — Goal, McNabb; defence, F. Spencely, Mann; centre, Pammett; wings, Johnston, Whatman; alternates, E. Spencely, Foster.

Referee—G. Beauclerc.

MATCH ENDS IN DRAW

SYDNEY, Australia—A Sheffield shield cricket match between Victoria and New South Wales ended in a draw today. The Victorians compiled 337 and 340, their opponents replying with 305 and 209 for five wickets.

"It's worth walking a couple of miles for," one hockey player said of our lengthwise skate grind, and the majority of Peterborough's skaters agree with him.

VOLLEYBALL TILTS KEENLY CONTESTED

Business Men's Games Produce Action And Some Close Scores In "Y" Gym

A crowded gallery witnessed the Business Men's Volleyball games at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday. In the first set of games the Pumas tangled with the Kangaroos. The Pumas too an early lead in the first game garnering 7 points before the Kangaroos started to jump and won 15-3. The second game was productive of real volleyball with some nice defensive and odefnsive work by both teams. This went to the Pumas 15-7. The last game went to the Pumas again 15-3 after some nice spiking by Stan Payne.

Pumas: Gord Langhorne, Chas. Quinlan, Stan Payne, Dick Williams, Len Bearne, Chas Cummer.

Kangaroos: Ed Shortt, Bill Ferguson, Gord Matthews, Harold McClelland, Jack Cameron.

In the second set the Gorillas took the first tussle 15-11 after piling up an early lead 10 to 2. The Lions staged a comeback with some nice serving by Fred Roy and Nelson Stanger spiking the excellent set-ups by Cec. Richardson, tying the game up at 10 all. The oGrillas finally won out. The second game was eevn more closely contested with both teams battling point by point. The tables were turned this time and the Lions took the long end of 15-10. In the third game Walter Kidd made some brilliant saves for the Gorillas. Bob Abbot made a nice come-back after being away from the game for several years, getting some neat points. The Lions took the last fixture 15 to 5.

Lions: Nels Stanger, Cec Richardson, Fred Roy, Bob Abbott, Vern Foster, Herb Cranford, Jack Thexton.

Gorillas: George Nicholls, Lawrence Gould, Walter Kidd, Chris Graham, Steve Puttenham.

Overtime Game

The Tigers tangled with the Bears and fur flew. The first game went to the eBars in overtime 16-14. There was plenty of excitement as the gallery cheered the brilliant playing of both teams. The second game was nip and tuck with the score going to 7-all. The Tigers went on to win 15 to 8. The third battle went to the Bears after some very hard playing 11 to 10. These three games proved to be the most closely contested of the P. M.

Tigers: Ab. Dryland, Fred Potter, Jack Gillespie, Jack Girven, Harry Northrop, Frank Randle.

Bears: Pete Kink, Eric Vincent, Gord Monkman, Ernie Smith, Max Rishor, Vern Morphet.

The Leopards then proceeded to work on the Beavers but the Beavers decided to change the Leopards' spots and took the first game 15 to 8. In the second tussle the tables were reversed with some nice steady playing by both teams. The Leopards took this game by the same score—15 to 8. In the third contest the Leopards faded and the Beavers gnawed off their spots 14 to 9.

Leopards: Don Crawford, Stan Adamson, Russ Kitchen, G. H. Roper, Walker Jones, Gord Maniece.

Beavers: Art Rhodes, Harry Tudhope, Stan Peryer, Alex Fitzgerald, Dr. J. C. Smith, George Scott.

The last set of games saw an exhibition fixture after the Wildcats defaulted three to the Bisons. The Wildcats were unable to floor a team. The teams were as follows:

Doug Loomis, Don Loucks, Max Farr, Harry Tudhope.

The scores were 10-15, 15-9, and 13-15.

The present standing of the teams is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Pumas	21	0
Tigers	17	4
Gorillas	16	5
Bears	11	10
Beavers	11	10
Lions	7	14
Leopards	6	15
Wildcats	5	16
Kangaroos	4	14
Bisons	4	14

Games next Saturday: Lions vs. Bears at two; Tigers vs. Pumas at 2.45; Wildcats vs. Gorillas at 3.30; Bisons vs. Beavers at 4.15; and Leopards vs. Kangaroos at five.

St. John's Juveniles Win From All Saints'

St. John's Juveniles took a 2-0 decision over All Saints in a Church League puck contest last night. The winners were much faster and quite a bit better—Wade being the only loser to keep up with them—but a good goalie and a puck hard to control kept the score fairly even. One of the goals scored appeared to be an offside. Lewis and R. Clark were the goal getters. St. John's had more experience than their rivals. The teams:

St. John's — Goal; Castle, Turner; defence, Morley, Dyer; centre, R. Clark; wings, Lewis, L. Clark; alternate, Forsythe.

Referee—D. Charlton.

All Saints' Seniors Win Over George St.

All Saints' Seniors of the Church Hockey League were much too well-balanced for George Street last night, and took a 5-1 win on a poor sheet of ice. They led by frames 1-0, 3-1, and 5-1. Fisher, Watson, McDougall, Alton and Quirt got the Anglicans' goals; with Heard scoring for the losers. R. Parnall and Sproat went best for the Uniteds; while Watson, Fisher and Williams stood out for the winners. This was All Saints' third straight win and the third loss in as many starts for George Street. The teams:

George Street — Goal, Townsend; defence, Heard, Rennie; centre, R. Parnall; wings, Sproat, Akers; alternates, B. Parnall, Henderson, Mealey.

Referee—D. Charlton.

Football Star Loses Standing

Two members of the Santa Clare University football team who rose to national prominence in 1936 were dismissed from the university. Don de Rosa, ace passing star halfback, and Dick Bassi, ranked as one of America's best guards, were found ineligible to attend classes the rest of the year. "Failing to attend 80 per cent. of their classes, they became ineligible for final mid-term examinations," explained Coach Lawrence T. "Buck" Shaw, mentor of the Bronchos. Both are seniors and not eligible for further football play. Bassi is shown.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

TONIGHT, LOCAL fans can point their noses in the general direction of the rink on the Rue Brock and follow said schnozzles. For 'tis the eve when Belleville Redmen clash with the intermediate Petes. And what a clash it should be! We haven't seen the Quinte crew in action this year but have no hesitancy in saying they are strong. The reason for that remark is the way Belleville held the high-flying Aviators from Trenton to a 5-4 score last Friday. Whilst the best the Petes could get from the Fliers was the sour side of a 7-3 score. But the Petes will bust their necks in an attempt to knock off Belleville tonight. It'll be a grand game.

* * * * * *

THE RIVALRY this season is intense between these teams. It started in a committee room two months ago when the Quinte pilot juggled the alphabetic slips in the hat around and drew out a "B" rating, though the team is just as strong as the Petes who play in an "A" class. The Redmen represent Greater Belleville, taking in a flock of suburbs some of 'em 35 miles or so distant! We have no fight with Campbellford, Nor with Napanee, Nor Deseronto, either. But put 'em altogether and they spell "Belleville"—and how we'd like to see that puck squad slapped silly! So, folks, give the Bellevillains a nice cheer tonight—a Bronx cheer.

* * * * * *

OUR JUNIOR O.H.A. schedule is well on the wane, but the intermediate list is not half over yet—what with postponements and everything. Belleville Juniors play in Tweed tomorrow, and then have Tweed back home again. The Quinte kids play here again February 5th and the Colts repay the visit five nights later. Trenton intermediate team tackles the Fliers in Belleville tomorrow, while the Petes go to the town of Pegney Mills this coming Friday night. The Fliers play here on February 1st.

* * * * * *

GETTING AWAY from hockey for a moment, there is a story in elsewhere tonight on Knotty Lee. It's clipped from the Ogdensburg paper which someone (probably Knotty) sent us yesterday. The Petes' ex-coach is beginning to hit the headlines again as he organizes the Canadian-American Baseball League. Some of the cracks in the Ogdensburg sports column have a slightly sarcastic tinge but that wouldn't bother Knotty a bit. He always said: "If you can't get boosts from the paper, let 'em knock you—but don't let 'em ignore you!" And a gent who has made his living—a good one, too—out of baseball for 40 years gets to expect bumps as well as boosts in the sports columns. But mostly they've been kind to him.

* * * * * *

OUR JUNIOR Colts clinched themselves a group playoff berth and eliminated Tweed here last e'en by a 9-5 score practically in privacy—as far as fans went, which wasn't very far. No doubt, most of the customers were waiting for the intermediate embroglio this evening here, but there are fans who would sooner miss a meal than pass up a junior joust. At that, the tilt last p.m. wasn't much in the way of good hockey. It's the old story of a close-checking, scrappy team disorganizing the opposition and making a better squad look bad. Tweed made the Colts look terrible most of the game, checking them dizzy, balling up their combination attempts and nearly driving them screwy. Tweed hasn't won a game this season but it isn't for want of trying.

* * * * * *

OF COURSE, the Colts—after a bad first frame—always looked superior but not by too big a margin. Our goalie and defence looked good last eve but our forwards failed to produce their best hockey. Most effective two were Starr and Heal with a bunch of goals—but none of the forwards really shone. They were bothered by the persistent and pestering checking of the visitors and seldom got going right. Prettiest goal of the night was that of Bun Kingdon in the first. All the boys kept trying but the squad did not look like a well-oiled machine. More like a Model T car—it covered the ground but did a lot of rattling and creaking.

* * * * * *

WE ARE not panning the boys for the fun of it—but, after all, they shouldn't have had much trouble with Tweed on their own ice. The Colts have the makings of a fine junior puck outfit and they ought to travel quite a distance this year. But they're not clicking just right yet, and they'll have to be in top form for the smart Belleville bunch in group playoffs. On the other hand, against a team that plays good orthodox hockey like the Quinte crew, the locals should show some real system and get away from this shinny stuff. They have plenty of time now for practising before it's money time and, no doubt, will make the most of it. If they don't, it's a fin against a last year's model straw skimmer that Coach Buckland will strain a ligament in his vocal mechanism!

ORVILLE ROULSTON, Toronto defenceman playing his first season with Detroit Red Wings in the N.H.L., suffered a broken leg last night in a game against Montreal Maroons. He will be out for the rest of the season and is the second of Jack Adams' crew to be so laid up—Doug Young having a leg broken several weeks ago. It's quite a blow to the world's champions and leaves the bouncing Bucko MacDonald to carry the burden of smearing rival forwards. Roulston spends his summers in the Stoney Lake district at his parents' cottage near Crowe's Landing and has friends here.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

26—THE TWO-STEP

The two-step is used on a slight down grade and the two sticks are swung together instead of alternately.

Slide one ski forward, knee well bent, body inclined forward and weight on this ski. Without hesitating start the rear ski forward, keeping the leg relaxed. Slightly straighten the forward knee and bring the body slightly more upright. As the rear ski comes into the lead, bend the knees and ankles well and incline the body forward as though about to dive over a knee-high obstacle.

Bring both sticks forward with the rear ski and ground them well out in front and just far enough apart to permit the body to pass between them. Take all the weight possible on the sticks and, first by pulling, then by pushing, increase the slide. As soon as the rear ski has been brought forward and weighted, slide the other up so that the feet are in running position for the slide. Before the slide has finished repeat the movements in the same order.

In fig. 1 the sticks have just been grounded, and the slide started; in fig. 2 the final thrust has been given on the sticks.

The two-step is a welcome aid to the touring skier and serves to raise the speed on flat or nearly flat ground.

WARKWORTH JUVENILES DEFEAT CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26.—Warkworth Juveniles defeated Campbellford by a score of 3-2 in an exhibition game before a fair crowd in the local arena Monday night. For the home team Joe Kelly did the scoring with counters in the first and last periods, while Greenly of Warkworth gave the visitors two, with Buchanan getting credit for the assist in the first, while the second was a solo effort. Fowler scored in the third on an assist from Edgar.

Referee—Ed. Bush.

All Saints' Bantams Lose To Park St. 3-0

Park St. Bantams earned a 3-0 Church Hockey League win last night over All Saints, having most of the play in a lively number. Briscoe, R. Ainslie and Martin got a goal a period in that order. Campbell was best for the Baptists with Morley being equally valuable to the losers. The victors played better combination and had fewer penalties than All Saints. The teams:

Park St.: Goal, J. Ainslie; defence, Campbell, Drury; centre, Briscoe; wings, Smith, R. Ainslie; alternates, Martin, Reader, Crowe, Taylor and Anderson.

Referee—D. Charlton.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Roy Worters, Goalie of Americans, is Operated On.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(CP)—Roy Worters, veteran New York American goalkeeper, was operated on at St. Luke's Hospital Monday for hernia. It was reported the courageous netminder survived the ordeal splendidly and an hour afterwards was said to be in "fine condition."

Dr. Alexander Ada, member of the great Queen's University football squads that boasted of Dr. Harry Lee Batstone and Pep Ledley, performed the operation with the assistance of Dr. Vincent Nardiello, the Americans' club doctor.

OSHAWA JUNIORS BEAT U. T. S. 8-2

1,200 Fans See Motor Outfit Upset Dope On Ace Bailey's Crew

OSHAWA, Jan. 26—Oshawa Generals vindicated themselves in the eyes of some 1,200 fans here last night for the 10-4 defeat they suffered at the hands of "Ace" Bailey's University of Toronto Juniors a week ago when they handed the fifth-place Blues team an 8-2 drubbing in a scheduled "Big Seven" junior game.

The free-scoring last period produced the best hockey of the night. Cassells scored early in the period on a pass out from Jack Simpson to put the Collegians in the game for a few minutes. Hastie came back fast to tally twice before Simpson gathered U. of T.s second and last goal on a brilliant solo effort.

Boddington received a gash on the scalp from a high stick by Calhoun, but received a big hand from the crowd a few minutes later when he returned with his head bandaged. No penalty was meted out for the offense. In the closing minutes the fiery Ken Sanders drew blood when he started throwing punches at Ross, but the threatened free-for-all was quickly stopped. Ross refused to leave the ice, talking himself into a misconduct penalty before order could be restored, while Sanders received his second major penalty of the game.

Tweed Is Eliminated From O.H.A. Playoffs By Local Colts 9-5

Visitors Disorganize Local Juniors With Close Checking But Homesters Have Enough Punch To Cop The Nod

POOR BRAND OF HOCKEY

The local Colts eliminated Tweed from the O.H.A. junior "B" running by a 9-5 score last night before a small crowd at the Brock St. rink. It was a poor exhibition of hockey, the Colts looking below form and being checked almost to a standstill by a battling Tweed team. The homesters had only a 2-1 lead in the first frame and were in front by 6 to 4 going into the third.

Tweed players disorganized the locals' passing attack most of the game, poke-checking them in centre ice, backchecking along the boards and clearing into the corners to befuddle the Colts in every game. The home crew had a little edge on play the last two periods but were outplayed in the first. Though play was clean most of the way, 12 penalties were drawn—mostly for minor infractions—with the visitors drawing six.

DEFENCE GOOD

Harding looked good in the home stage, kicking out a bunch of hard shots. The local defence turned in a strong bodychecking game, A Clark, Connelly and Webb banging incoming forwards around all evening. The two forward lines failed to show much going either way. They looked smart in spots but reverted to shinny at other times against the clustering Tweed crew. Starr and Heal were the most effective, each going in on six of the counters. Simpson looked classy in goal for Tweed on some of the shots but muffed others. His defence was only fair while the forwards played an aggressive, tireless checking game and frequently worked in close on the net thrusts. Cournyea, Voyer, Brunton and Embury showed up exceptionally well.

Play opened fast on a good sheet of ice but it quickly turned into a mess of shinny game with Tweed checking the Colts up closely and both sides missing passes. Wright was chased for boarding and Voyer followed in a scramble. Tweed continued to press for several minutes but Kingdon evened the count on a lovely lone rush with tricky stickhandling. Alexander was gated for tripping and Starr scored on Heal's rebound as the Colts ganged up. Tweed dominated play later and had hard luck around the net the rest of the frame.

Colts Have Edge.

Early in the second, Starr took Heal's passout and batted it by Simpson, but Voyer got it back within two minutes on Brunton's pass in close. The latter got the nod for tripping, followed by Cournyea for tripping and the Colts finished up with Tweed short two players. Brady went around the net for a nice goal and then Brady was forced off for hooking, Brunton got back in time to break away clear and score. The Colts had a slight edge in this period but were checking up closely and made to look bad. Heal took Wright's passout to bulge the hemp, and then Heal took Starr's pass to tally two minutes before the close. Harding made several smart saves before the bell ended.

Heal opened the scoring early in the third, assisted by Starr. Tweed kept battling away and checking for all they were worth. Crowe climbed the boards for charging and Embury pinched one in a scramble as Tweed sent four men up. Kingdon was off for tripping, leaving the Colts short two for a brief space, but T. Tummon got the thumb for tripping. A. Clark tried a penalty shot but missed the net. Cournyea got in close to blast the rubber into the hemp and then Wright notched a nice one on assists from Starr and Heal. Long went off for slashing and T. Tummon followed for holding, leaving Tweed again shy two men. Webb got the next for high-sticking but the Colts counted one more when G. Clark rapped it in, aided by Starr and Brady. A minute before the finish, A. Clark was chased for charging.

The teams:

Tweed: Goal, Simpson; defence, T. Tummon and T. Tummon; centre, Cournyea; wings, Long and Embury; alternates, Voyer, Brunton, Embury, Alexander and Leonard.

Colts: Goal, Harding; defence, A. Clark and Webb; centre, Starr; wings, Heal and Wright; alternates, Kingdon, G. Clark, Crowe, Brady and Connelly.

Referee, Herb Payne.

Right now Jack shies from political conversation, but in a modest and remarkably effective way he's campaigning for Farley to succeed President Roosevelt in 1940.

Meanwhile Gene Tunney burrows deeper in seclusion....He hobnobs with Christopher Morley, the author, passed up Dempsey's restaurant in favor of an East Side dungeon, corresponds with famed George Bernard Shaw, and reads the nights away in his Stamford, Conn., home.

Story by Lou Gehrig: At Joe McCarthy's dinner to the New York ball scribes, Gehrig told about the time McCarthy called members of his Chicago Cubs team together for a talk about the bad effects of liquor....Joe was very calm and brief about the whole thing.

When the players, angry about being dragged out early in the morning, arrived in McCarthy's room, Joe displayed two glasses, one half filled with gin, the other with water....He then displayed a long, live angleworm....First he dropped the worm in the glass of water....It wriggled and Joe beamed....Then he pulled it out and dropped it in the gin....The worm curled up and died....."Do you know the moral of that?" piped McCarthy....."Sure," yelled back Hack Wilson, "it proves that if you drink gin, you won't have worms."

Tip: "Zeke Bonura may be yelling for $12,000, but he'll sign for less and like it.....Fred Perry has been invited to play an exhibition match in London in the spring during the Coronation ceremonies.

Football coaches right now are hallooing over "D.X." Bible's stroke in getting $15,000 a year and a 10-year contract to coach football at Texas....Ordinarily a 10-year contract shouldn't come up for discussion again for 10 years, but this one will be unearthed and waved before the coaches at every charge of over-emphasis....And since the Texas president gets $7,500, the argument will be hard to beat.

Morrow Trophy Stays With Peterborough Club

Pecking away at the Morrow Trophy for more than a decade John H. Sedgwick was rewarded this year in carrying off the major trophy of the Peterborough Curling club. Mr. Sedgwick and his rink of "colts" made a most outstanding showing at the bonspiel when they won their three games with a total of 42 points (15 being maximum for win) and a plus of 12 to tide them over in case of a tie. BLACK HAWK CHIEF PLANS OUTFIT MINUS CANUCKS

Hopes To Turn Out All U.S.-Born Squad From Hockey Factory

RENAME TEAM YANKEES

CHICAGO, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—United States boys will be fighting all of Chicago's National Hockey League battles within the next two years the man who pays the bills of the city's present N.H.L. team said last night.

Starting by announcing his club, the Black Hawks, will become Chicago "Yankees" next season, Major Frederick McLaughlin, stirred by the team's poor showing this season, made known plans for throwing off the traditional Canadian influence over the ice game as it is played in Chicago.

By the time the 1938-39 season rolls around, McLaughlin said, there will be only native-born Americans on the Yankee battlefront.

Another "Hockey Factory."

These puck-chasing Yankees will be developed in a "hockey factory" which already is in operation, to displace the Canadian-born and trained players who now dominate the club, he added.

Major McLaughlin realizes he has taken on a huge task. Canada, birthplace of the game, has supplied practically all of the talent for National League and minor league teams. But, he believes United States boys' athletic ability, exemplified in football, baseball and basketball, can also be developed into hockey greatness.

"If men can be developed into star football and baseball players, why can't they be made into hockey players?" he asked. "If they are equipped with the necessary physique, possess a medicum of ability, and are willing to submit themselves to the teaching of a qualified instructor, I think there is a place in hockey for our own boys.

"Where Canadian clubs have their amateur ranks and natural farm clubs from which to obtain reinforcements," he added, "we'll go ahead and develop our own sources."

Has Four Youngsters Now.

The "factory" under the direction of Emil Iverson, veteran coach and teacher, is working on four youngsters now. Iverson has Phil La Batte, former University of Minnesota star and a member of the United States Olympic hockey team, and Milton Brink, Bernard La Prairie and Paul Schaefer, former players in the defunct Chicago Amateur Association. They get out each day for drills.

This scheme, said the Major, means the departure of such stars as Paul Thompson, Mush March, Johnny Gottselig, and Earl Seibert. They will be moved gradually out of the Chicago picture to make way for the native-born hopes. Of the present squad, four, Goaler Mike Karakas, Defenceman Alex. Levinsky, and Forwards Elwyn ("Doc.") Romnes, and Louis Trudell, are United States-born.

PORT HOPE DOWNS BOWMANVILLE 7-4

Junior B Match Is Lively Affair After First Goal Is Scored In Nine Minutes

PORT HOPE, Jan. 26. — In an exciting Junior B League game here last night, the Young Ontarios defeated Bowmanville by 7 to 4. Rowden, for the locals, tallied the first goal of the evening, after nine minutes of play. Pemberton and Edwardson raised the count and the period ended 3-0 for the Ontario youngsters. After fifteen seconds of play in the second frame Hallman scored for the visitors on a rebound off Dawley's pads. Walsh, Zealand and Bennett scored for homesters in quick succession, and Bowmanville, not to be outdone, ran in two, Freeman and Wiseman doing the trick.

Strong Quinte Crew To Play Petes Here

A rousing intermediate O.H.A. game is booked for the Brock St. rink tonight at 8.30 o'clock when the Belleville Redmen tangle with the local Petes in a scheduled fixture. It will be the Petes' second home appearance this season and the only showing in Peterborough of the Quinte squad. Both teams will be at full strength, the ice is fast, and a big crowd of fans is expected to see the best game of the season to date. All the local players are available and a strong lineup will be iced. Skipper Thomas of Belleville has a good team, picked from half a dozen towns of the district and they are in fine condition.

The Petes will have to hustle every minute tonight to yank out a win. In two games against the strong Trenton Fliers, Belleville each time made the scores closer than the Petes did against the Airmen. The last game saw the Fliers nose out a 5-4 win after a terrific tussle. For this reason, it looks as if the Belleville squad — which should be in an "A" classification, but hid behind a "B" rating—is just about as strong as the Petes. No doubt, this contest here tonight will be full of action and hard feelings are likely to creep in.

TWO MASTER MINDS POUR COLD WATER McLAUGHLIN'S PLAN

Ross And Patrick Think Hawks' Boss "Optimistic" In All-American Idea

"CAN'T BE DONE, 2 YEARS"

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.— (CP).—Two master minds of the National Hockey League poured cold water today on Major Frederic McLaughlin's plans for replacing Canadian-born players on his Chicago Black Hawks' lineup and using only native Americans two years hence. McLaughlin would call the revamped outfit "The Yankees."

But, while Art Ross of Boston Bruins and Boss Lester Patrick of New York Rangers placed little faith in the success of the Major's scheme, both termed it "highly commendable."

"It is a very worthy thought," said Ross, "but if he thinks he can do it in two years, well..He's optimistic."

"Monsieur Lestaire" thought it might be done in 10 years." He added Major McLaughlin would have to "round up a likely lot of material and keep them on a hockey diet, day in day out" to be able to acomplish his desire in that time.

The Bruin chieftain held McLaughlin's plan was "not feasible for some considerable time." He compared it to a team entering Major League baseball for a year or two and then deciding to use only Canadian players.

Weather An Aid.

"Of course," he pointed out, "Major McLaughlin is in a district where weather conditions are more favorable for development of players, but if he draws from that area alone, he won't have enough players for many years."

When United States' babies take unto themselves the Canadian habit of cutting teeth on a hockey stick, then the Chicago scheme might work out, Patrick believed. Years of preparation are virtually a necessity to all N.H.L. competitors, he said.

Still, Monsieur Lestaire said nothing of his two sons, Murray and Lynn, the latter a Ranger forward and the former with Philadelphia Ramblers of the International-American League. Some experts have characterized both of them as "synthetic hockey players" who made good.

The younger Patricks, both versatile athletes—the type McLaughlin says he hopes to find and develop for the Yankees—were long past school age in balmy Victoria when they turned to hockey.

They moved east, took their hockey seriously, and advanced step by step from wobbly ankled bush leaguers to high powered professional puck snipers.

14 NATIONS ENTER TEAMS IN TOURNEY SET FOR LONDON

Only U.S. To Be Absent—Cost Expected To Run $50,000 During Ten Days

ALL EXPENSES PAID

LONDON, Jan. 26 (CP)—Fourteen countries have entered the world championship amateur hockey tournament to be held in London from February 17 to 27. Of the nations with any hockey pretensions only the United States will be missing.

Competing with Canada, represented by the touring Kimberley Dynamiters, and Great Britain will be Germany, France, Belgium, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Poland, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Roumania, Switzerland and Hungary. Belgium and Hungary are new entrants.

British Ice Hockey Association officials who are staging the tournament estimate it will cost $50,000. Most of the sum will be used for the transportation of nearly 200 players to and from England and their expenses here.

In an effort to make the first world tournament held in England a success association officials have made a number of trips to the continent recently to iron out matters of contention. They have received the endorsation of the International Ice Hockey Union to a proposal to pay players full travelling and hotel expenses and any salary they may lose through taking part in the games.

Split In 4 Groups

The 14 competing nations will be divided into four groups. Teams finishing first and second in the preliminary play in each round will go into the semi-finals and the surviving four will move into the final bracket. Group winners and world champions will be decided on a point basis with two points for a win and one for a tie.

Each team will be permitted to carry 11 players, including a reserve goalkeeper. Games will be of three 15-minute periods instead of the usual 20.

Canada's Dynamiters, Allan Cup winners in 1936, will have to play exceptionally fine hockey if they hope to capture the title. With the United States not entered, Britain's team seems the one for them to beat. Most of England's winning Olympic team is expected to be on the British lineup.

Harry Brown and Jack Forsey, with Dynamiters last year but now playing for Earl's Court Rangers in the National League, may be granted permission to play with the Kimberley team. Both are playing brilliant hockey for Rangers and would furnish much needed strength to the Canadians.

—Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

LANG.—In loving memory of Thos A. Lang, who passed away January 26, 1928.

How joyful is the thought that lingers
When loved ones cross death's sea,
That when our labors here are ended,
With them we'll ever be.

—Ever remembered by Hazel, Ernie and Children.

LAW BREAKERS FEWER IN COBOURG

J. C. Ruse For 40 Years Chief Of Police Tenders His Final Report

COBOURG, Ont., Jan. 26.—(CP)—Annual report of the Chief of Police for the year 1936 was presented at Monday night's meeting of the town council. The report was tendered by J. C. Ruse, who retires the first of the year after 40 years' service as Chief of Police. In 1936 law breakers were fewer in number, the total appearing before the magistrate amounting to 238 as compared with 268 in 1935.

Fines and costs were smaller in 1936, amounting to $804.02 while in the year before the total was $1,070.70. Income from licenses was about $100 less than the year before stated the report. Transients shelltered last year numbered 4,222 and in 1935 the number was about 20 less. Theft cases jumped slightly in 1936 over 1935 but most of them were cleared up and those responsible convicted.

RAIN HOLDS UP PLAY

Englishmen Scored 301 In First Innings Against South Australia.

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 26 (CP Cable)—Only two days' play was possible in the cricket match between the touring Marylebone Cricket Club team and South Australia, the game being declared drawn. Heavy rain fell yesterday and today, the players keeping to the pavilion.

When play closed Saturday, the home team had carried its first innings' total to 194 for four wickets in reply to the Englishmen's score of 301.

PROPHESY GROWTH YOUTH MOVEMENT IN COMING YEAR

Europe Will Continue To Be Checker-Board For Game Of Pretensions

NEW ROMAN EMPIRE

The 1937 Preview is out. It is the latest issue of the little but very interesting brochure which is issued each year by the AMORC, the Ancient and Mystical Order of the Rosy Cross, or the Rosicrucian Brotherhood, as it is more commonly known.

Anyone who perused the pamphlet of last year will recall with what verity the various social disturbances, the unexpected and hazardous upheavals in the physical world, in the form of cyclones, cloudbursts and earthquakes, even the strange upset in the life of Prince Edward of England, were foreshadowed.

For the little book makes claim to nothing more than a general forecast of the trend of events for the ensuing twelve months, and it makes that forecast by means of a careful study and analysis of charts and diagrams of world conditions with definite curves and lines indicative of trends and tendencies in all human affairs.

In this year's Preview, "the average amount of military activity throughout the world" is forecast, with many changes taking form in governments of Europe, Asia and Africa.

"Despite the statements of newspapers, political schemers and alarmists, the Spirit of Warfare is badly weakened and is in declining power in most—if not all—of the European and Asiatic countries and especially in those whose present leaders or representatives are most bombastic in their threatening speeches and military activities... "Back of the grandiose poses and bravado of most of Europe's dictators and potentates is an attitude of pretentious bluffing ... Europe will continue through 1937 to be the checker-board for the game of pretensions!"

Although the forecast for the United States shows a peaceful and neutral trend with regard to world wars, the same is not true with regard to domestic matters and local civil strifes. So says the little booklet, which goes on to prophesy that the majority of the people of the United States will conform to the principles of the New Deal and that the Republican Party will proceed at once to modify its principles in consequence.

Control of Youth

In the United States also is prophesied a growth of the Youth movement, with a word of warning as to its protection and control; strifes in labor circles and an attempt by "so-called Communists" to maintain unrest in all circles, "in order to give a semblance of truth to their unsound claims."

This year of 1937, if the booklet is to be believed, will be dotted from coast to coast with "numerous strikes, protests, battles, riots, and mysterious fires and dynamiting. Ships, harbors, bridges, railroad tracks and terminals, factories, warehouses and large dairies should be carefully guarded and protected. Large unfinished constructural contracts should be heavily insured...

"Yet economic conditions will improve. Labor employment will increase slightly, health will improve nationally, sales of luxuries will begin a new upward curve, and crime will take many defeats due to a new system of secret co-operation between state, city and federal police."

Curtailment of over-production of young professionals in certain overcrowded fields is forecast, with a system of controlled-vocation selection of young people.

The uprisings, systematic attacks and national disapproval of various forms of religion will continue through 1937 with increasing vehemence and all forms of organized religion will suffer defeat. Christians, Jews, Buddhists, Mohammedans, and others will be sorely tempted to unite in one wail, "My God, why has Thou forsaken us?"

"But the cause of religion will not be lost. The end of sectarian religious worship will not come, but will be made more impossible by the 1937 crusade of persecution. The very intensity of the fire will purge nations and divisions of peoples of their religious differences and unhappy distinctions, and before 1937 ends its twelfth month a unified movement, more or less secret in some countries, will sweep over Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Americas, with the slogan, "One God, the Father of All!" The fundamentals of a universal religion will be preached and adopted slowly at first..."

A New Roman Empire

The booklet prophesies Italy's rise to power of greater magnitude; "Britain's boast of 'ruling the waves' will become a sad and empty tradition of the past," but, "on the other hand, the alliance of Italy, Germany and France in the new campaign against Communism will do more to aid Great Britain and other countries of Europe than any secret pacts of the past, though it will lead to wars, civil and otherwise, in 1938 and later. Italy's protection of the Mediterranean, the Suez, and even of the Black Sea will be a paramount benefit to Europe—if not the whole world.

The book praises the qualities of the new King of England and says he will find 1937 a trying year in adjusting his personal views (and excellent foresight) to the demands of his advisory body. It says also "Great Britain is moving headlong toward a form of 'Fascist' rule that will have the support of a larger number of the intelligent Britons than she now publicly acknowledges, though in secret conferences she is trying to avoid the inevitable."

Among other things prophesied in the vivacious little booklet are several breakdowns for President Roosevelt in the coming year, with traitors to his cause revealed in the carrying out of many of his plans and hopes. One of America's foremost capitalists and humanitarians will pass away; Washington will be disturbed by scandal and a removal of one of its prominent statesmen; the building trades and real estate, the automobile and radio industries, will improve largely; Belgium will face many problems and establish a new form of administration, with Mexico in line for a similar experience that will start her on a new cycle of peace and prosperity; China, Japan and Russia will continue to quarrel and Palestine will continue to be a problem to Great Britain.

"There is a secret power and a secret movement at work in Palestine and though the present warfare may end soon, still the secret, diplomatic difficulties will not end for several years."

MILLBROOK BOARD THANKS BURNHAM

Retiring Secretary Praised For Excellent Service For Seven Years

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—The annual statutory meeting of the school board was held Wednesday evening January 20, in the library of the Millbrook Continuation School.

Members present included W. H. Coombe, W. A. O'Brian, J. W. Wright, G. E. Ellsworth, T. J. Deyell and J. E. Allen and elections resulted in: Chairman of the board, W. H. Coombe; secretary treasurer, W. R. Howard.

General Business

The financial statement for the year 1936 was read and filed. The minutes of the previous meeting, December 15, read and adopted.

Miss Maud Fee was again elected attendance officer.

On motion of T. J. Deyell and G. C. Ellsworth the secretary was instructed to convey to George E. Burnham, retiring secretary treasurer, the appreciation and gratitude of the entire board for faithful services rendered during the past seven years.

On motion of J. W. Wright and J. E. Allen it was decided that all cheques issued by the board be signed by the chairman as well as the secretary.

UP TO HIS CHILDREN

Jobless Man Who Spent Savings Educating Family, wants Them to Support Him

EDINBURGH, Jan. 26 (CP).—Alexander Hope, 59, wants his children to support him. And he has gone to court to try make them do so.

From Albert Edward Hope, M.B., B.Sc., of Forbes Academy, he seeks 25 shilling (about $6.25) weekly; from Norman Victor Hope, M.A., B.D., of Busby, Lanark, 15 shillings, and from Margaret Vera Hope of Edinburgh, five shillings.

The father said he had been out of work since July, 1934, and declared his wages and savings had been spent on educating his children.

The court is deliberating.

DENTAL STRATEGY

Cape Town Veteran Recalls Quack Who Used Band To Drown Victim's Howls

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 26 (CP-Reuter's).—The story of how a quack dentist here used to have a band in attendance to drown the howls of his patients is one of the reminiscences of the oldest dentist in South Africa, G. N. Lindup of Rondesbosch, now 84 years old.

Lindup writes that when he first came to Cape Town more than 60 years ago, there was a circus quack on the parade who used to break off and drag out teeth. He had a band in attendance in which the trombones and drums made the loudest noise, presumably to drown the yells and howls of his patients.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SNOW JUMPER

"Come back, Wiggy! Come back!" Mr. Whitewash, the Polar Bear gentleman, jumped out of his bath in the Duck Pond and shouted at Mr. Longears who was riding away on an ice boat.

"Why should I come back?" asked Uncle Wiggily who was going faster and faster. Though the edges of the pond were frozen over, the middle part was open water, and it flowed like a brook or little river. "I'm having a fine ride on your ice boat, Whitey!" laughed Mr. Longears. "I'm not coming back."

"That isn't the ice boat I invited you to go riding in," said the big shaggy, white bear shaking himself to get the water out of his fur. "An ice boat has sails and runners like a sled and it skims over the ice. You're not on an ice boat. I didn't even get it out of the house yet."

On a Cake of Ice

"Then if I'm not on a boat what am I on?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he balanced himself on the piece of ice floating fast down the Duck Pond.

"You're on a cake of ice, not a boat," said the Bear.

"Well, it's too bad I can't eat my cake," laughed the rabbit. "But I'm afraid I'd freeze my teeth. I'm having a lot of fun, just the same, Whitey. And I'll be seeing you when I get back!"

With that Uncle Wiggily on the cake of ice which, just for fun, he pretended was an ice boat, went around a corner and the white bear couldn't see him.

"Bless my claws!" growled Mr. Whitewash as he finished shaking the water from his fur coat. "This is too bad! If anything happens to Wiggy, his wife will say it is my fault for inviting him for an ice boat ride. And we haven't even been aboard the boat, Wiggy was too quick for me."

Mr. Whitewash looked at a thin chink of ice that he used for a mirror. He found he was clean again. The black spots on his white fur, caused when his automobile back fired as he was under it, were washed off now.

"I'll have to run along after Wiggy and see he comes to no harm," thought Mr. Whitewash. "I don't want his wife blaming me. But wait I have a better thought. I am a Polar Bear I should be able to ride on a cake of ice like a boat as well as my rabbit friend, I'll do it!"

Quickly Mr. Whitewash found another cake of ice, a large thick one, for he was much heavier than the rabbit. He jumped aboard this cake and away he went swirling down the Duck Pond.

When I "Was a Boy."

"Hi, Hi," shouted Mr. Whitewash. "This reminds me of the North Pole where I used to ride on ice cakes as a boy bear."

Meanwhile, as they say in stories, Uncle Wiggily was going faster and faster on his cake of ice. He was having much fun, but was rather lonesome for he was all alone and there were no skaters on the pond. "This isn't much of an adventure yet," thought the bunny, "I could almost wish I was being chased by one of the Bad Chaps. There is no excitement here." Just then, all of a sudden, as his cake boat swerved near shore, Mr. Longears heard some one call:

"Help! Help! Please take me aboard!"

"Who are you?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I'm a snow jumper and I'm late," was the answer. "Please take me to the jumping place. Please!" With that a funny little animal waved its tail to Mr. Longears from the bank. And, all of a sudden, the ice cake began to tip over. Something was going to happen.

"I'll tell you about it in the next story, to be called Uncle Wiggily and the race. And I hope the door doesn't take the ring out of the bell and put it on the glove's finger.

VETERANS LAUNCH NEW ORGANIZATION

William Theobald Is President Of Millbrook Ex-Service Men's Club

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan 26.—Members of the Millbrook Ex Service Men's Club have chosen the second Tuesday of each month as the date for regular meetings, which will be held in the local armouries. This society just recently organized, is composed of members who have actually taken part in some theatre of war, although three honorary members may be chosen outside of the service rank. Funds derived from $1 membership fees and other sources will be retained for the sole purpose of building up a substantial fund toward aid for needy brethren.

The officers include: President, William Theobald, R.S.M.; vice-president, J. Peers; secretary-treasurer, F. J. Deyell; honorary member, Captain D. R. Fowler

Respectable Pioneer Is Don Valley Hobo

Toronto, Jan. 25.—(CP)—A "respectable pioneer" of the Don Valley hobo jungle, 67-year-old Fred Delaney, said today he figured his home was so much superior to hostels where unemployed men lived that he never would go back and live off the government."

"I've sailed the seven seas and lived on all the continents, but you can't tell me there's a better place to live than right here," said the roamer, whose home he dug out of the side of the ravine on the north outskirts of Toronto.

When Delaney moved in five years ago, dozens of other workless men built shacks in the valley. That's all been cleared away—unsanitary, police called the settlement. But Delaney remains. "I'm a respectable pioneer," he grinned.

HALL'S BRIDGE

VESTRY MEETING AT HALL'S BRIDGE

Wardens Are Reappointed And Reports Of Year's Work Received

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HALLS BRIDGE, Jan. 26—The annual vestry meeting of St. Matthew's Anglican Church was held in the hall on Monday, January 18. The Rev. E. C. Moore, rural dean, presiding. The financial report for the year 1936 was presented by the treasurer, Mrs. R. Fawcett, showing a deficit of $25. On the motion of Mrs. A. Felton and Mrs. Barr, the report was adopted without discussion. The report of the Sunday School was also presented and adopted on the motion of Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. H. McIlmoyle. A short summary of the financial state of the church league was given by the treasurer, Mr. Frank Edwards. Dr. Willis was re-appointed incumbents' warden and upon the motion of Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Barr, Mr. Richard Fawcett was re-elected peoples' warden for 1937.

On the motion of Mr. McIlmoyle and Mr. Barr, Mr. Bruce McKintry was requested to act once again as the lay representative at the next meeting of the Synod in Toronto. Mr. McKintry kindly consented. At the request of the wardens, Mrs. R. Fawcett accepted the post of treasurer.

Rector's Address

After expressing his thanks to the wardens and the lay representative, the organist, Mrs. Fulton, the Sunday School teachers, Mrs. Barr and Miss Margaret Rail, Miss Maye McCaffrey for her activity in raising funds for the practical equipment of the hall and to Mr. Edwards for his generosity in bearing the cost of wiring the hall for electric lighting, Rev. E. C. Moore gave a short address upon the work of the past and the needs of the future. Referring particularly to the following subjects: The sale of the mission house and the erection of the hall; the presentation of the stone fire place; last year's deficit and the cause thereof; allotments and assessments and the benefit of the envelope system in increasing offertories. Mr. Moore then thanked the Dorcas Society for the gift of a new altar frontal, Mrs. Barr and Mrs. Willis being specially mentioned for their work. There was a large attendance.

Euchre and Dance

On Friday, January 22nd, a progressive euchre and a dance was held at the new hall and in spite of the slippery state of the roads, there was a large attendance, visitors being present from Peterborough, Lakefield, Young's Point, Selwyn, Lakehurst and Rockcroft. Prizes—Ladies' 1st being taken by Mrs. Moore, the consolation going to Miss Ruth Edwards; gentlemen, 1st to Mr. Grant Gillespie, consolation, Glen Hall. The lucky number admission ticket prize was won by Mrs. Melville Hall and the cushion, donated by Mrs. Willis, was won by Miss Eleanor Irwin. The music was supplied by Mr. Jim Irwin's orchestra. Between the euchre and the dance refreshments supplied by the members of the league were enjoyed by all. The callers for the dances were, Mr. Bert Easson, Mr. Bruce Hall and Mr. Allan. The thanks of the committee of management are extended to all who so kindly helped.

On Sunday, January 17, to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gillespie, Oregon Trail, a son.

Crown Prince Michael Gravely Ill

Suffering a relapse after an emergency operation for appendicitis, Crown Prince Michael of Roumania is reported in a serious condition. His mother, Princess Helene, has telephoned King Carol, his father, and asked him to come to the boy's bedside. Should King Carol respond to the appeal of his wife and go to Florence, Italy, where the boy is ill, it will probably be the first time he has met his estranged wife since the separation. This photograph shows Michael and his father King Carol in one of the latest poses, showing them together.

Helps END A COLD Quicker

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat and chest.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets

This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Now White—Stainless

Thanks to a new process, VapoRub now comes to you in white stainless form. Only the color is removed; it is the same VapoRub—the same formula and the same effective double action.

VICKS VAPORUB

Mothers! Look in your VapoRub package for full details of Vicks Plan—a practical home guide to greater freedom from colds. In clinic tests among 17,353 people, this Plan cut sickness from colds more than half!

Respectable Pioneer Is Don Valley Hobo

Toronto, Jan. 25.—(CP).—A "respectable pioneer" of the Don Valley hobo jungle, 67-year-old Fred Delaney, said today he figured his home was so much superior to hostels where unemployed men lived that he never would go back and live off the government."

"I've sailed the seven seas and lived on all the continents, but you can't tell me there's a better place to live than right here," said the roamer, whose home he dug out of the side of the ravine on the north outskirts of Toronto.

When Delaney moved in five years ago, dozens of other workless men built shacks in the valley. That's all been cleared away—unsanitary, police called the settlement. But Delaney remains. "I'm a respectable pioneer," he grinned.

HALL'S BRIDGE

VESTRY MEETING AT HALL'S BRIDGE

Wardens Are Reappointed And Reports Of Year's Work Received

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HALLS BRIDGE, Jan. 26—The annual vestry meeting of St. Matthew's Anglican Church was held in the hall on Monday, January 18. The Rev. E. C. Moore, rural dean, presiding. The financial report for the year 1936 was presented by the treasurer, Mrs. R. Fawcett, showing a deficit of $25. On the motion of Mrs. A. Felton and Mrs. Barr, the report was adopted without discussion. The report of the Sunday School was also presented and adopted on the motion of Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. H. McIlmoyle. A short summary of the financial state of the church league was given by the treasurer, Mr. Frank Edwards. Dr. Willis was re-appointed incumbents' warden and upon the motion of Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Barr, Mr. Richard Fawcett was re-elected peoples' warden for 1937.

On the motion of Mr. McIlmoyle and Mr. Barr, Mr. Bruce McKintry was requested to act once again as the lay representative at the next meeting of the Synod in Toronto. Mr. McKintry kindly consented. At the request of the wardens, Mrs. R. Fawcett accepted the post of treasurer.

Rector's Address

After expressing his thanks to the wardens and the lay representative, the organist, Mrs. Fulton, the Sunday School teachers, Mrs. Barr and Miss Margaret Rail, Miss Maye McCaffrey for her activity in raising funds for the practical equipment of the hall and to Mr. Edwards for his generosity in bearing the cost of wiring the hall for electric lighting, Rev. E. C. Moore gave a short address upon the work of the past and the needs of the future. Referring particularly to the following subjects: The sale of the mission house and the erection of the hall; the presentation of the stone fire place; last year's deficit and the cause thereof; allotments and assessments and the benefit of the envelope system in increasing offertories. Mr. Moore then thanked the Dorcas Society for the gift of a new altar frontal, Mrs. Barr and Mrs. Willis being specially mentioned for their work. There was a large attendance.

Euchre and Dance

On Friday, January 22nd, a progressive euchre and a dance was held at the new hall and in spite of the slippery state of the roads, there was a large attendance, visitors being present from Peterborough, Lakefield, Young's Point, Selwyn, Lakehurst and Rockcroft. Prizes—Ladies' 1st being taken by Mrs. Moore, the consolation going to Miss Ruth Edwards; gentlemen, 1st to Mr. Grant Gillespie, consolation, Glen Hall. The lucky number admission ticket prize was won by Mrs. Melville Hall and the cushion, donated by Mrs Willis, was won by Miss Eleanor Irwin. The music was supplied by Mr. Jim Irwin's orchestra. Between the euchre and the dance refreshments supplied by the members of the league were enjoyed by all. The callers for the dances were, Mr. Bert Easson, Mr. Bruce Hall and Mr. Allan. The thanks of the committee of management are extended to all who so kindly helped.

On Sunday, January 17, to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gillespie, Oregon Trail, a son.

WARKWORTH.

Mrs. W. B. Baker spent Thursday with her mother, Mrs. Mary Arkell, Castleton.

Crown Prince Michael Gravely Ill

Suffering a relapse after an emergency operation for appendicitis, Crown Prince Michael of Roumania is reported in a serious condition. His mother, Princess Helene, has telephoned King Carol, his father, and asked him to come to the boy's bedside. Should King Carol respond to the appeal of his wife and go to Florence, Italy, where the boy is ill, it will probably be the first time he has met his estranged wife since the separation. This photograph shows Michael and his father King Carol in one of the latest poses, showing them together.

Helps END A COLD Quicker

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat and chest.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets

This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Now White—Stainless

Thanks to a new process, VapoRub now comes to you in white stainless form. Only the color is removed; it is the same VapoRub—the same formula and the same effective double action.

VICKS VAPORUB

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK — by R. J. SCOTT

WANT ADS. BRING REAL RESULTS AT SMALL COST

PROPHESY GROWTH YOUTH MOVEMENT IN COMING YEAR

Europe Will Continue To Be Checker-Board For Game Of Pretensions

NEW ROMAN EMPIRE

The 1937 Preview is out. It is the latest issue of the little but very interesting brochure which is issued each year by the AMORC, the Ancient and Mystical Order of the Rosy Cross, or the Rosicrucian Brotherhood, as it is more commonly known.

Anyone who perused the pamphlet of last year will recall with what verity the various social disturbances, the unexpected and hazardous upheavals in the physical world, in the form of cyclones, cloudbursts and earthquakes, even the strange upset in the life of Prince Edward of England, were foreshadowed.

For the little book makes claim to nothing more than a general forecast of the trend of events for the ensuing twelve months, and it makes that forecast by means of a careful study and analysis of charts and diagrams of world conditions with definite curves and lines indicative of trends and tendencies in all human affairs.

In this year's Preview, "the average amount of military activity throughout the world" is forecast, with many changes taking form in governments of Europe, Asia and Africa.

"Despite the statements of newspapers, political schemers and alarmists, the spirit of Warfare is badly weakened and is in declining power in most—if not all—of the European and Asiatic countries and especially in those whose present leaders or representatives are most bombastic in their threatening speeches and military activities... "Back of the grandiose poses and bravado of most of Europe's dictators and potentates is an attitude of pretentious bluffing ... Europe will continue through 1937 to be the checker-board for the game of pretensions!"

Although the forecast for the United States shows a peaceful and neutral trend with regard to world wars, the same is not true with regard to domestic matters and local civil strifes. So says the little booklet, which goes on to prophesy that the majority of the people of the United States will conform to the principles of the New Deal and that the Republican Party will proceed at once to modify its principles in consequence.

Control of Youth

In the United States also is prophesied a growth of the Youth movement, with a word of warning as to its protection and control; strifes in labor circles and an attempt by "so-called Communists" to maintain unrest in all circles, "in order to give a semblance of truth to their unsound claims."

This year of 1937, if the booklet is to be believed, will be dotted from coast to coast with "numerous strikes, protests, battles, riots, and mysterious fires and dynamiting. Ships, harbors, bridges, railroad tracks and terminals, factories, warehouses and large dairies should be carefully guarded and protected. Large unfinished constructural contracts should be heavily insured...

"Yet economic conditions will improve. Labor employment will increase slightly, health will improve nationally, sales of luxuries will begin a new upward curve, and crime will take many defeats due to a new system of secret co-operation between state, city and federal police."

Curtailment of over-production of young professionals in certain overcrowded fields is forecast, with a system of controlled-vocation selection of young people.

The uprisings, systematic attacks and national disapproval of various forms of religion will continue through 1937 with increasing vehemence and all forms of organized religion will suffer defeat. Christians, Jews, Buddhists, Mohammedans, and others will be sorely tempted to unite in one wail, "My God, why has Thou forsaken us?"

"But the cause of religion will not be lost. The end of sectarian religious worship will not come, but will be made more impossible by the 1937 crusade of persecution. The very intensity of the fire will purge nations and divisions of peoples of their religious differences and unhappy distinctions, and before 1937 ends its twelfth month a unified movement, more or less secret in some countries, will sweep over Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Americas, with the slogan, "One God, the Father of All!" The fundamentals of a universal religion will be preached and adopted slowly at first..."

A New Roman Empire

The booklet prophesies Italy's rise to power of greater magnitude; "Britain's boast of 'ruling the waves' will become a sad and empty tradition of the past," but, "on the other hand, the alliance of Italy, Germany and France in the new campaign against Communism will do more to aid Great Britain and other countries of Europe than any secret pacts of the past, though it will lead to wars, civil and otherwise, in 1938 and later. Italy's protection of the Mediterranean, the Suez, and even of the Black Sea will be a paramount benefit to Europe—if not the whole world.

The book praises the qualities of the new King of England and says he will find 1937 a trying year in adjusting his personal views (and excellent foresight) to the demands of his advisory body. It says also "Great Britain is moving headlong toward a form of 'Fascist' rule that will have the support of a larger number of the intelligent Britons than she now publicly acknowledges, though in secret conferences she is trying to avoid the inevitable."

Among other things prophesied in the vivacious little booklet are several breakdowns for President Roosevelt in the coming year, with traitors to his cause revealed in the carrying out of many of his plans and hopes. One of America's foremost capitalists and humanitarians will pass away; Washington will be disturbed by scandal and a removal of one of its prominent statesmen; the building trades and real estate, the automobile and radio industries will improve largely; Belgium will face many problems and establish a new form of administration, with Mexico in line for a similar experience that will start her on a new cycle of peace and prosperity; China, Japan and Russia will continue to quarrel and Palestine will continue to be a problem to Great Britain.

"There is a secret power and a secret movement at work in Palestine and though the present warfare may end soon, still the secret, diplomatic difficulties will not end for several years."

UP TO HIS CHILDREN

Jobless Man Who Spent Savings Educating Family, wants Them to Support Him

EDINBURGH, Jan. 26 (CP).—Alexander Hope, 59, wants his children to support him. And he has gone to court to try make them do so.

From Albert Edward Hope, M.B., B.Sc., of Forbes Academy, he seeks 25 shilling (about $6.25) weekly; from Norman Victor Hope, M.A., B.D., of Busby, Lanark, 15 shillings, and from Margaret Vera Hope of Edinburgh, five shillings.

The father said he had been out of work since July, 1934, and declared his wages and savings had been spent on educating his children.

The court is deliberating.

DENTAL STRATEGY

Cape Town Veteran Recalls Quack Who Used Band To Drown Victim's Howls

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 26 (CP-Reuter's).—The story of how a quack dentist here used to have a band in attendance to drown the howls of his patients is one of the reminiscences of the oldest dentist in South Africa, G. N. Lindup of Rondesbosch, now 84 years old.

Lindup writes that when he first came to Cape Town more than 60 years ago, there was a circus quack on the parade who used to break off and drag out teeth. He had a band in attendance in which the trombones and drums made the loudest noise, presumably to drown the yells and howls of his patients.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SNOW JUMPER

"Come back, Wiggy! Come back!" Mr. Whitewash, the Polar Bear gentleman, jumped out of his bath in the Duck Pond and shouted at Mr. Longears who was riding away on an ice boat.

"Why should I come back?" asked Uncle Wiggily who was going faster and faster. Though the edges of the pond were frozen over, the middle part was open water, and it flowed like a brook or little river. "I'm having a fine ride on your ice boat, Whitey!" laughed Mr. Longears. "I'm not coming back."

"That isn't the ice boat I invited you to go riding in," said the big shaggy, white bear shaking himself to get the water out of his fur. "An ice boat has sails and runners like a sled and it skims over the ice. You're not on an ice boat. I didn't even get it out of the house yet."

On a Cake of Ice

"Then if I'm not on a boat what am I on?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he balanced himself on the piece of ice floating fast down the Duck Pond.

"You're on a cake of ice, not a boat," said the Bear.

"Well, it's too bad I can't eat my cake," laughed the rabbit. "But I'm afraid I'd freeze my teeth. I'm having a lot of fun, just the same, Whitey. And I'll be seeing you when I get back!"

With that Uncle Wiggily on the cake of ice which, just for fun, he pretended was an ice boat, went around a corner and the white bear couldn't see him.

"Bless my claws!" growled Mr. Whitewash as he finished shaking the water from his fur coat. "This is too bad! If anything happens to Wiggy, his wife will say it is my fault for inviting him for an ice boat ride. And we haven't even been aboard the boat, Wiggy was too quick for me."

Mr. Whitewash looked at a thin chink of ice that he used for a mirror. He found he was clean again. The black spots on his white fur, caused when his automobile back fired as he was under it, were washed off now.

"I'll have to run along after Wiggy and see he comes to no harm," thought Mr. Whitewash. "I don't want his wife blaming me. But wait I have a better thought. I am a Polar Bear I should be able to ride on a cake of ice like a boat as well as my rabbit friend, I'll do it!"

Quickly Mr. Whitewash found another cake of ice, a large thick one, for he was much heavier than the rabbit. He jumped aboard this cake and away he went swirling down the Duck Pond.

When I "Was a Boy."

"Hi, Hi," shouted Mr. Whitewash. "This reminds me of the North Pole where I used to ride on ice cakes as a boy bear."

Meanwhile, as they say in stories, Uncle Wiggily was going faster and faster on his cake of ice. He was having much fun, but was rather lonesome for he was all alone and there were no skaters on the pond. "This isn't much of an adventure yet," thought the bunny. "I could almost wish I was being chased by one of the Bad Chaps. There is no excitement here." Just then, all of a sudden, as his cake boat swerved near shore, Mr. Longears heard some one call:

"Help! Help! Please take me aboard!"

"Who are you?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I'm a snow jumper and I'm late," was the answer. "Please take me to the jumping place. Please!" With that a funny little animal waved its tail to Mr. Longears from the bank. And, all of a sudden, the ice cake began to tip over. Something was going to happen.

I'll tell you about it in the next story, to be called Uncle Wiggily and the race. And I hope the door doesn't take the ring out of the bell and put it on the glove's finger.

A special prize for highest standing in G.B.R.E. examinations was presented to Miss Maud Raper by the Religious Tract Society.

Gets Life Membership

The recent meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Grace Presbyterian Church was featured by a special devotional session and the presentation of a life membership certificate to Mrs. R. McMahon, a faithful member of the W.M.S. for many years. An accompanying address was read by Mrs. J. R. Thompson and gracious response was made by the recipient.

Mrs. Z. Seaton, vice-president, occupied the chair in the absence of Mrs. S. E. Eakins, and was assisted by Mrs. J. Kennedy and Mrs. J. R. Thompson, who presided at special worship periods which were conducted under group headings.

Mrs. H. C. Lord, Mrs. (Rev.) H. R. Williams and Mrs. R McMahon were appointed a committee to arrange a quilting and tea and two travelling aprons started their rounds under the care of Mrs J. Kennedy and Mrs. R. M. McMahon. The idea was introduced as a means of adding necessary funds to the expense treasury.

Joint Meetings Held

Recent meetings of the joint societies of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas Church and the Y.P.S. of Grace church have been well attended and featured by splendid programs Last week's session was favored by addresses on "Use" and "Politics" by Ed. Williams and Henry Gray, respectively.

VOL. LXXVIII, No. 22 — PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 27, 1937 — PRICE THREE CENTS

ORDER ENTIRE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY EVACUATED

GUARDS ADVISE SPRING-LOCKING CORRIDOR DOOR

Claim If They Could Have Been Shut Riots Might Have Been Averted

NO KEYS AVAILABLE

One States Hints Of Trouble Rife Several Weeks Before Outbreak

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 27—(C.P.)—If steel bar gates at each end of corridors had been closed when prisoners first showed hostility, the riot at Guelph Reformatory, January 17, would have been averted, two guards to-day told the inquiry conducted by Judge James Madden.

The guards said they had no keys to lock the grill gates, declared gates with spring locks would be superior to those used.

"The excitement was general among them and I had a hard time keeping them under control," said Guard Cunningham.

"They were saying they wanted to go downstairs, or to the tower, or to see Nixon. (Presumably Acting Premier Nixon of Ontario). They said the meals were bad."

Cunningham said that when he had gone to the dining room and 26 men had refused their food, he had not noticed the food served.

He named one prisoner as a leader, said "I had trouble with him before when he took some meat out of the abatteir."

Relating developments in the dormitory after dinner, Cunningham said the men were quickly becoming hostile.

"If you had closed the grill gates at that time, would it have kept the men confined there?" asked Gillanders, commission counsel.

"Yes. It would have kept them there, but I had no keys," was the reply.

"Would it have helped if the gate had a spring lock so you could lock it without a key?" asked Gillanders.

"Yes, it would," was the reply.

STABBED IN HAND OPERA SINGER DIES

Officials Believe Dagger-Swinging Committed By Lawrence Tibbett an Accident

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Assistant District Attorney Sylvester Cosentino today announced that an autopsy on the body of Joseph Sterzini, Metropolitan Opera chorus singer, had shown he died of natural causes and that Lawrence Tibbett, famed opera and movie baritone, had been cleared of any part in his death.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Deeply upset by the death of a fellow opera singer he accidentally stabbed, Lawrence Tibbett today awaited the results of an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death.

Since the singer, Giuseppe Sterzini, 52 years old and for 28 years a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, suffered from high blood pressure, it was regarded as likely this condition was an important factor in his death.

Lawrence Tibbett

Harold Fowler, acting police commissioner in the absence of Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, absolved Tibbett from blame, but will question him anew today.

"Sterzini was a good friend of mine," Tibbett said. "I've known him many years."

Wound Only Superficial.

Physicians who attended Sterzini said the wound in his hand, inflicted yesterday during a dress rehearsal of Richard Hageman's new American opera "Caponsacchi", was superficial.

The opera is to have its premiere, February 4.

"I'm really quite distraught over this," Tibbett said. "It was a most unfortunate occurrence."

Among those to be questioned today at Tibbett's home will be Helen Jepson, opera star, who was on the stage when the stabbing occurred.

The scene in the opera, which ended fatally for Sterzini five hours after it was played, had been rehearsed many times and had always gone off well. Nevertheless, because this was a dress rehearsal and the opera must be letter perfect, it was decided to have Tibbett go through the bit again.

Playing Part of Villain

Tibbett, playing the part of Quido Franceschini, villain of the opera, was to stab John Gurney, playing Pietro, while two henchmen of Franceschini's held him.

Tibbett said he held the dagger, a real one, as always, point in towards his wrist, as he made the swift lunge. But as he stepped back he saw blood on Sterzini's hand. The singer protested the cut was slight. He was treated by two physicians, then still protesting that he was all right, was taken to a hospital. There he died.

Last night half the opera cast, Tibbett among them, went to Newark, N.J. to sing "La Traviata," and just before he went on the stage Tibbett was told of Sterzini's death.

Farmer Gives Tip-off When Desperado, Discovered In Barn, Takes Possession Of Home

ST. AUGUSTIN, Que., Jan. 27 (C.P.). — Frostbitten and his trigger finger numbed by sub-zero weather, Honorat Bernard, 28-year-old jailbreaker, was captured to-day in an isolated farmhouse near Neuville after a half-hundred officers had fired rounds of ammunition, tossed tear-gas bombs and firemen had played hoses through windows shattered by bullet fusillades.

Bernard, who escaped from jail on Sunday night and later shot his way to freedom as a companion and a detective died in a wild gun-battle, said he would surrender after he had talked through a broken window with the parish priest, Rev. Alphonse Doucet.

Deputy Police Chief Tremblay, however, said when he and his men entered the little farm home of Arthur Noreau where Bernard had taken refuge early to-day, they found their quarry had run out of ammunition.

Priest Is Sent For.

The priest was summoned from the village of Neuville after officers and Bernard had exchanged several volleys from revolvers and rifles. Police spokesmen had shouted several times to the fugitive to surrender. At first he met the demand with derision.

Then he became more talkative. Between exchanges of bullets he asked if "Chaun," Arthur Fontaine, who escaped with him from Jail, had died from the wounds he suffered when police surprised the pair in a St. John Street basement in Quebec City.

Bernard was told Fontaine had been killed almost instantly and that Detective Leopold Chateauncuf had died from wounds received in the duel. He asked questions about his family and wanted to know what would become of him if he surrendered.

Informed he would be given a fair trial in court and that he would be permitted to see his parents, Bernard disappeared from view for a while.

When he failed to reappear the order was given to resume flooding of the house by firemen manning five hoses. They had been brought from the village after officers, warned by their superior to avoid unnecessary shooting, had tossed a gas bomb into the house. Opposing wind apparently carried off the fumes, and Bernard was able to keep up his spasmodic shooting, as if to warn officers not to close in.

Then came Father Doucet. He went close to a broken window and appealed to Bernard to cease shooting and to "listen to reason." It was not known what Bernard replied but the Cure disappeared inside, talked for a few minutes and then reappeared at the door. A half-dozen policemen with drawn guns, entered the frame house where they said they met with a "brief scuffle."

Drops Gun in Scuffle.

From unofficial sources it was reported Bernard, his hands numbed from the strange hose attack, dropped his gun during the scuffle and policemen handcuffed him.

Youth Robs Bulls Of Their Nose Rings

Toronto, Jan. 27.—(CP)

NORMAN Dowds, 19, devised a novel method of picking some loose change, according to Detective Lister Sullivan, who said he found 12 rings taken from the noses of bulls at the Union Stock Yards on Dowds' person when he arrested him.

Dowds is alleged to have had a stick with a metal hook at one end with which he caught his victim and hauled him to the pen railing, and then, with a jeweler's screwdriver, unfastened the ring.

FIVE CANADIANS ON WAY TO AID MADRID ARMY

Mixed Contingent Of Thirty Land From Berengaria At Cherbourg

INCLUDES 12 AMERICANS

CHERBOURG, France, Jan. 27 (CP)—Five Canadians, members of an international contingent of 30 headed for Spain to support the Madrid government in the civil war, landed here today from the liner Berengaria.

The group proceeded immediately to Le Havre to take another ship from there to Barcelona, Spain.

Besides the Canadians, there were 13 Americans, six Spaniards, two Englishmen, two Germans, an Ecuadorean, a Cuban and a Swiss.

Battle For Malaga Near

MALAGA, Spain, Jan. 27 (CP-Havas) — The pincer-like drive on Malaga tightened in the northeast today with an insurgent flying column advancing at Alhama as this near-isolated government seaport threw its defence preparations into high gear.

The 5,000-man insurgent column was led by the veteran commander, General Jose Varela. Striking southwestward through Granada province toward the Mediterranean coastline, the insurgents drove back the militia to Ventas De Zafarroya after a lively engagement at Alhama, about 30 miles northeast of Malaga, government sources admitted. Ventas De Zafarroya is about eight miles southwest of Alhama.

KAISER 78 TODAY

Heavy Snow Keeps Former Monarch Confined.

DOORN, The Netherlands, Jan. 27 (AP).—Former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany celebrated his 78th birthday today, alone with his memories.

The heaviest snowfall in many years confined the former ruler to his retreat in exile, under doctor's orders to remain indoors until fully recovered from a recent influenza attack.

The Amsterdam Telegraph reported Wilhelm so feared recurrent illness that no member of the household with any symptom of the ailment was allowed near him.

Soviet Railroader Confesses Engineering 3,500 Wrecks

Cost 63 Lives, Injured 164 In 1935-36—Reveals Plot To Infect Troop Trains

CLAIMS JAP BEHIND IT

MOSCOW, Jan. 27 (AP).—Ivan Alexandrovich Kniazeff, former Soviet Southern Railway chief, on trial as a confessed Trotzkyist plotter, testified today 63 persons had been killed in "thousands" of train wrecks which he organized, and accused a Japanese, "Mr. X," of planning to infect Russian troop trains with deadly germs.

Kniazeff twice identified "Mr. X" as a Japanese agent, one Hiroshima, who he said was a transport expert in Moscow and who formerly served in London.

The witness, on trial with the commentator, Karl Radek, and 15 other men for a conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet regime through sabotage and even war, sprang surprise after surprise.

Confessing abjectly to some 3,500 train wrecks during 1935 and 1936, he said they had killed 63 persons and injured 164.

Identifies Jap's Letters.

He identified photostatic copies of two letters which he said he received in December of 1935 to burn military stores, Kniazeff declared:

"When I met 'Mr. X' later he reproached me for doing nothing. He said people had to be trained to commit wrecking in wartime.

"He also told me to burn food trains, and in October (presumably in 1935) 'Mr. X' told me we might have to poison military trains with bacteria so as to infect the troops."

Flood Briefs

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—A rescue boat was despatched to pick up three expectant mothers and rush them to a hospital. One baby arrived while the boat was returning to dry ground.

JACKSON, O. — State Highway Patrolmen F. E. Radcliffe and F. D. Bolis appealed to superiors to-day for some more dangerous and thrilling assignments in the flood area. Assigned to a relief camp here, they reported they had spent the night walking the floor with crying refugee babies.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.— Two bathing caps and a bathing suit were among articles received here in response to a plea for flood refugee clothing. After examining the contributions, relief workers finally decided the bathing suit could be used as underwear.

INDIANAPOLIS.— Two tiny girls, Mary Margaret and Dorothy Sullivan, walked into a hospital with notes attached to them saying, "Our name is Sullivan. Pease take care of us."

Thousands of Homes Ruined By Swirling Waters

A residential street in Portsmouth, O., where highest Ohio river flood ever recorded drove thousands from homes and isolated other thousands. It is believed that at least 900,000 were driven from homes in the Ohio river valley. Water to a depth of 10 to 20 feet roared through Portsmouth streets after flood topped 62-foot seawall.

BRITISH WARSHIPS DAMAGED BY ORDER ENEMY PLOTTERS

Admiralty's Charge "Superior Organization" Behind Sabotage Startles Nation

CENSURE MOTION IS LOST

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(CP).— An account of the First Lord of the Admiralty of "premeditated and malicious damage" to British warships "done at the instigation of some superior organization" startled Great Britain to-day.

Defending, in the House of Commons, the Admiralty's action in summarily dismissing five workers in naval dockyards without giving reasons, Sir Samuel Hoare cited instances of sabotage spread over the last four years. The latest he recalled was that at Chatham a year ago when a needle was found driven into an electric cable in the cruiser Cumberland.

A Labor motion censuring the government for the dismisals was defeated by 330 votes to 145.

"Investigation established the damage was premeditated and malicious," said Sir Samuel. "Having regard to other instances of the type, the damage was done at the instigation of some superior organization and was not the work of a practical joker or isolated malcontent."

Full Cabinet Inquiry.

The government's action in dismissing the men had been adopted only after the fullest consideration by the whole cabinet, he said, when enquiries after the sabotage had established there were men in the dockyards whose actions and associations raised a doubt of their loyalty.

The First Lord recalled the cases of sabotage were preceded about 10 years ago by a "concentrated attempt to spread disaffection in the dockyards and even mutiny among naval ratings." This had resulted in special care being taken by the dockyard authorities to keep a close check on the types and conduct of men employed there.

Action Termed Highhanded.

Arthur Greenwood, introducing the motion of censure, said he had

2 DEVIL'S ISLAND FUGITIVES NABBED

Held As Stowaways After Reaching England In Their Flight

LONDON, Jan. 27 (AP). — Two fugitives from "Devil's Island" fled all the way to England—only to be detained on their arrival today as stowaways.

The prisoners, escaped from the French penal colony, created a unique problem for the Home Office. Unless France requests their extradition, the men can be held only as stowaways.

After their escape from the tropical island to the mainland of French Guiana, the men hid in the steamer Patrician. Scotland Yard officers boarded the vessel last night off Gravesend, and when the vessel docked at London the men were taken to the aliens' office to be held until authorities determine what action should be taken.

JUDGMENT ON THURSDAY

Privy Council Will Pass On "Bennett Acts."

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP). — The Privy Council in London will render judgment tomorrow on social legislation passed by the Canadian Parliament when the Government of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett was in power, according to information received here. After the Supreme Court of Canada passed on the constitutionality of the group of eight statutes, the decisions were appealed to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Newsboy Writes Best Broadcasting Drama

Belgrade, Jan. 27 (CP)

DURING a competition at Belgrade for dramas suitable for broadcasting, it was found that the chief prize-winner was a newspaper seller who had his pitch in front of the Cafe Moscow in Central Belgrade.

The man, Dusha Stevovitch, said he intended to continue selling papers for a living—while writing for pleasure. The judges considered his drama to be of a very high level of literary achievement.

POLICE HOLD TEN QUEBEC MANHUNT

Three Women Among Suspects —Chase Swings West Into Country Areas

QUEBEC, Jan. 27—(C.P.).—Manhunters combed the snow-covered country west of here to-day for a fleeing gunman, while in Quebec three women and seven men were questioned on his jail escape and the subsequent gun battle that ended in death for a detective and the fugitive's companion.

As police posses combed the countryside, officers here announced they were holding the ten in the hope of learning how Arthur Fontaine, 32, and Honorat Bernard, 28, got the guns for the Sunday jail break that brought on the fatal revolver encounter with 20 detectives.

Bernard, icy-nerved young survivor of the Monday night police trap that left Fontaine and Detective Leopold Chateauneuf dead, was last spotted near the village of St. Augustin, 12 miles west of here. And it was there that the pursuit converged early to-day.

Village Surrounded

In the morning darkness, automobiles threw squad after squad of armed officers into the village and its environs as authorities determined to give Bernard no chance of shooting his way through a second cordon.

In Quebec, where police had been holding five "material witnesses" since Monday night, they announced the five latest persons to be picked up included Jeanne Bernard, Simone Bernier and Simone Bacon, Quebec city girls.

The trio's possible association with the case was not revealed. They were taken into custody late last night with Cyril Emond and Fernand Bernard. Previously, headquarters had been holding five men found in the St. John street rooming house where the outlaws shot it out with the police.

Escapes In Melee.

From the cellar of the house, while bullets were cutting down his pal and the detectives, Bernard escaped through a side door into an alleyway. His flight from there brought reports of him from dozens of places in Quebec, including a barber shop where he dropped in for a shave.

Then, early today, a government snowplow operator telephoned the provincial police to say Bernard had accosted him near Champigny, seven miles west of here, to ask for his shoes. Fearing a bullet, the operator said, he handed them over to Bernard, who slipped them on apparently frozen feet and set off toward St. Augustin.

STUDENT RESCUES INVALID

Seventy-Eight-Year-Old Woman Is Moved From Burning Home.

TORONTO, Jan. 27 (CP).—A 78-year-old invalid was carried to safety as five persons were forced to flee from a Rosemount Avenue residence when fire broke out in the cellar of the building early today.

John Arthup, Oakwood Collegiate football player, who resided in the neighboring house, groped his way through the smoke-filled house and reached the second storey, where the invalid, Mrs. E. McKillop, was sleeping, and carried her to the street.

IF HYDRO DEBATE OVER, HOUSE WILL ADJOURN FRIDAY

Up To Opposition Says Nixon—Likely Reopen When Premier Returns

ONLY BUSINESS LISTED

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—(CP)—Ontario legislature may adjourn for an indefinite recess Friday night, Acting Premier Harry Nixon said today after Liberal caucus.

"It depends on the Hydro bills", he said. "If they are through Friday night there will be an adjournment. It is up to the opposition. We do not know what they will do."

Mr. Nixon did not say for how long the recess would be. It was presumed it would be until Premier Mitchell Hepburn returns from Arizona.

There is no government business other than the three power bills on the order paper of the legislature now. Premier Nixon said opening day of the session Premier Hepburn wished to take part in the throne speech debate and intimated it would be adjourned until his return.

Last Minute News Flashes

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Cummings said today that President Roosevelt had commuted the 15 year mail fraud sentences of Wilbur Foshay and H. H. Henley of Minneapolis, Minn., making them eligible for parole at once. They have served five.

BURNLEY, Lancashire — County authorities today sought an explanation of the deaths of three men and a girl in the lonely Moor country behind Wortshorne. The dead are Sarah Wilkinson, 18, daughter of a tenant farmer, A. Pickup, a farmer's father-in-law, Joe Scriven, farmhand whose bodies were found in a field; and Harry Blackburn, whose body was discovered in the farmhouse, with a shotgun nearby.

Everyone In 50-Mile Area Both Sides River Cairo-Orleans To Move

35,000 Motor Trucks, Under U.S Army High Command, Mobilized to Carry Out Greatest Exodus —Many Tragic Scenes

BILLION DOLLAR LEVEES BUILT IN 1927 NOT EXPECTED TO WITHSTAND ASSAULT

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Compulsory evacuation of hundreds of thousands—embracing all persons living within 50 miles on both sides of the Mississippi river from Cairo, Ill., to New Orleans—was prepared today by the U. S. Army high command as the mighty, flood-gorged waters of the Ohio river swept on to threatened new heights of disaster.

Thirty-five thousand motor trucks were mobilized to carry out the greatest exodus in history.

Secretary of War Harry Woodring, acting swiftly in the United States' greatest emergency since the Great War, announced headquarters for the mass evacuation would be established at Jackson, Miss.

The sudden drastic step followed a report from army engineers emphasizing the imminent danger of vastly increased floods along the Mississippi once the swollen torrents of the Ohio spills its flood crest into the "Father of Waters".

Army engineers said the billion-dollar new levees flung up along the lower Mississippi after 1927—and not since tested by severe floods — could handle only 2,400,000 cubic feet of water per second.

The raging Ohio it was pointed out, will dump a minimum of 3,000,000 cubic feet into the Mississippi when the flood crest hits Cairo, Ill.

Cities, Towns, To Be Deserted.

Whole cities and towns, along the 1,000-mile stretch from Cairo to the Gulf of Mexico, fall under the mandatory program of flight from the path of invasion.

The rest—and the start of the "super flood" predicted by Lieut.-Col. Eugene Reybold, District Chief of U.S. Army Engineers in the region below Cairo—is expected to break within a week.

From Army Headquarters at Washington, D.C., telegraphic orders clicked out to crop area commanders to have complete evacuation plans in readiness by 6 p.m., January 29.

Secretary of War Woodring ordered them to prepare to evacuate a minimum of 500,000 persons along the 2,000 miles of levees on both sides of the river. Scores of railroad flatcars were mobilized to carry out the wholesale exodus.

As the far South prepared to flee, another day of watery terror gripped the 1,000-mile graveyard of almost buried towns, villages and farmlands in the once pleasant Ohio River Valley to the north.

Further elaborating the extraordinary precautions when reached by newsmen, General Malin Craig, Chief of Staff, said his engineers thought the chances now are that a general evacuation will not be necessary."

Hundreds Are Missing.

With the army of homeless swelled to 750,000, the toll of known dead by drowning reached 141—hundreds more were missing—and estimates of property damage soared far beyond the $300,000,000 mark, completely overshadowing the havoc of the 1927 Mississippi River disaster.

Snow, hunger, and pestilence wrote a black picture of human misery. At Louisville, Ky., Health Commissioner Dr. Hugh R. Leavell said at least 200 victims had died of diseases attributed directly to flood conditions.

PLAN TO SHIP CAR OF FOOD TO FLOOD VICTIMS

Car Under Kiwanis Auspices Be Loaded In Peterborough This Week

CITIZENS BACK PLAN

An urgent appeal on behalf of the destitute refugees in flood-stricken areas of the United States is being made to the people of Peterborough city and county by the Kiwanis Club here.

Immediate objective of the appeal which is endorsed by all kindred organizations in the city and by His Worship Mayor George A. Macdonald and Warden Roy Brown, is to raise a freight car load of canned goods, vegetables, new clothing, blankets and medical supplies.

So imminent is the need of the sufferers that it is hoped to get a freight car ready for consignment by Friday. School children of the city are asked to donate one tin of canned goods each, which may be deposited at their respective schools Thursday morning, while other residents of the city and district are requested to send their donations to the receiving depots enumerated below as soon as possible

Gesture of Goodwill.

Moved to action as a result of widespread distress in the flood areas, and as a gesture of international goodwill, President Al Sharpe of the local Kiwanis Club despatched a wire to the president of Cincinnati Kiwanis Club following an emergent meeting of the executive Tuesday afternoon.

He asked if assistance was needed, and this morning the reply came back saying: "Yes. Ship as soon as possible." Behind the terse message, one can read the urgency of the situation and know that any assistance will be deeply appreciated.

As chairman of the Kiwanis Public Affairs Committee who are working out the details of the campaign along with the club executive, P. J. Giffen this morning received assurance through Canadian Red Cross headquarters that a car load of goods for relief of distress can be consigned to Cincinnati Kiwanis Club free of duty and freight charges.

New Clothing Only.

Those who wish to donate clothing are please urged to bear in mind that new clothing and new blankets only can be accepted, because of United States' Public Health regulations prohibiting import of used clothing on account of the possible danger of communicating disease. In addition to foodstuffs and clothing, medical supplies are much

OPEN DOOR TO WOMEN

New Factories Bill Would Give Them Equal Rights

LONDON, Jan. 27—(C.P.)—If the Open Door Council has its way, the projected Factories Bill, to be considered by Parliament at this session, will impose no restrictions on women that do not apply equally to men.

The O.D.C. complains that "the adult industrial woman wage-earner remains the eternal minor, classed in industrial legislation with the young person . . . and paid at rates below the level of unskilled male labor. . . .

"What is needed is a revolution in the status of the woman wage-earner, and in our attitude towards her, her work, and her worth."

TORONTO—Acting Premier Harry Nixon said today the Ontario Government was not considering purchase of power from the Ottawa Valley Power Co. for reserve purposes. Contracts between the company and Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission were cancelled in 1936.

Wallaceburg Man Claims Pig He Bought Proved Boar Too Badly Beaten To Walk

DIDN'T LIKE TO QUIT HOME

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Jan. 27—(C.P.).—Andrew Ritchie, Wallaceburg, claiming a pig he bought from George Rabideau, Dover township farmer, for butchering purposes turned out to be a boar unsuitable for pork, sued in Division Court yesterday for recovery of $20 the price of the animal.

During the course of the hearing, it was testified Ritchie did not learn until after he had made the purchase the difference between a pig and a boar. Judge Uriah McFadden remarked he could not conceive of anyone with any knowledge of pigs not knowing the difference.

The plaintiff testified the pig refused to leave the farm and Rabideau struck it with a club, injuring it so badly it was unable to walk.

Judge McFadden found both parties equally responsible for the pig's injuries. He ordered Rabideau to return half the purchase price and permitted him to retain possession of the animal.

KINGSTON—Charles Waller was killed at the plant of the Canadian Locomotive Company today when a cylinder flask fell on him crushing him beneath its heavy weight. An investigation is being made. J. Tisdale, standing close by, was seriously injured and was taken to the Kingston General Hospital.

Ontario To Continue Two-Lane Highways

Toronto, Jan. 27.—(CP)

ONTARIO will continue to favor two-lane highways instead of four-lane ones, Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten announced today. Investigation by highway engineers revealed the four-lane plan provided greater motoring hazards and are the scene of more serious accidents said the Minister.

Yesterday's maximum temperature failed to reach as high as freezing point—only the sixth time during present months this has occurred; average number of January days above 32-degree mark is 18. Similar mild January temperatures in recent years were registered in 1933 (with only one zero day) and in 1932; in latter year there was no zero registered and a record high of 56 on the 14th of the month.—A.O.F.

Lower Lake Region — Easterly winds; mostly fair and cold. Thursday—Easterly to southerly winds, mostly cloudy and milder; probably some light snow or part rain.

Georgian Bay — Fresh east and south-west winds; partly cloudy and cold. Thursday—Easterly to southerly winds; cloudy and milder, with some snow; probably part sleet.

Northern Ontario — Partly cloudy and cold, followed by some snow late to-night and on Thursday.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley — Fair and cold. Thursday—South-east winds, with slowly rising temperature and probably light snow.

Lake Superior — Cloudy and not quite so cold, with some snow to-night and Thursday; increasing easterly winds to-night, shifting to north-west on Thursday.

Thousands Race Time To Reinforce Levees In Mississippi Basin

Pestilence Feared In Cincinnati, Louisville, Huntington, Egansville, Portsmouth

750,000 HOMELESS

City Hospitals Are Filled — Federal Troops Take Hand Lending Aid

CHICAGO, Jan. 27 (A.P.). — Flood-stricken cities in the United States Middle West struggling valiantly with the worst disaster in their history, to-day strove to avert water famine and disease as the Ohio River flood surged southward where an army worked feverishly to reinforce the Mississippi's defences.

The known death-toll in the 11 flooded states mounted to 137, and Louisville's Health Commissioner estimated at least 200 had died of diseases attributed directly to the floods.

Rationing of water supplies and impaired sanitary conditions caused fear of pestilence in Cincinnati, Louisville, Huntington, W. Va., Evansville, Ind., Portsmouth, O., and several other cities.

Estimates of property damage were boosted past the $300,000,000 mark, and the army of homeless swelled to 750,000. It was as though the whole population of Boston were on the road as refugees.

Louisville fought flood, fire, and disease with three-fourths of the city under water. Three separate fires added about $750,000 to the damage already placed in excess of $100,000,000 in unofficial estimates.

Hospitals Full.

Twenty bodies were found floating in the streets. The hospitals were filled with patients, indirect victims of the flood, and Mayor Neville Miller said "there is the constant threat of disease and epidemic"

Louisville's exhausted police force gained a respite to-day when Mayor Miller announced the conflict over jurisdiction between local and federal authorities had been settled. He said 200 Federal troops who arrived yesterday would share police duties with patrolmen sent to Louisville by airplane and special train from other cities in response to his hurried radio appeal last night.

Cincinnati watched hopefully as the river inched downward from the high stages which had halted its power and water plants, spread fire, privation and the threat of disease.

The water supply was rationed and citizens carried it from "water stations" in pails, jars and bottles. Some drinking water came from other cities by tank car.

Crest Expected in 2 Days.

Mass movements of refugees from flood stricken cities in Indiana gained impetus as Evansville and other cities prepared for the crest of the waters, expected within 48 hours.

More than 75,000 had been driven from their homes. Already the estimates of homeless and property damage exceeded the figures for the 1927 Mississippi river disaster and lent credence to the statement of Dr. Cary Grayson, Red Cross chairman, who described the present flood as "the greatest emergency the nation and the Red Cross have faced since the World War."

As the waters in the lower Ohio Valley paused in their rise to new record heights, an army of 2,000 men directed by United States' engineers, worked feverishly against time along the 300 mile Mississippi river front.

The Mississippi Test.

In a week or 10 days the flood crest from the Ohio emptying into the "Father of Waters", near Cairo, Ill., was expected to bring the southern states a "super flood."

With 2,000,000 acres already submerged and 125,000 homeless in the area, the engineers rushed the work

Wheat From Vimy To Grow In Gaspe

Ottawa, Jan. 27 (CP)

WHEAT produced on Vimy Ridge will this year be grown in Gaspe.

A casket of the grain was presented to Sir Eugene Fiset, Liberal M.P. for Rimouski, by Brig.-Gen. Alex. Ross, president, at a dinner tonight given by the Dominion Executive Council of the Canadian Legion. It had been given to Lieut.-Col. D. E. Macintyre, Owen Sound, by Marshal Philippe Petain, who expressed the wish that it should be planted in Gaspe, where Jacques Cartier had landed 400 years ago, as a perpetual reminder of the ties binding Canada and France.

BABY RACE APPEAL DECISION RESERVED

Validity Of "Derby" And Ruling On Illegitimate Children Protested

TORONTO, Jan. 27 (C.P.). — Ontario Court of Appeal to-day pondered the baby race clause of Charles Vance Millar's freak will as mothers hoping to share in the $500,000 left by the sportsman-lawyer waited anxiously for the court judgment.

Judgment on appeals against Mr. Justice W. E. Middleton's rulings on the will which left the fortune of the Toronto mother having the most babies in the 10 years after Millar's death, was reserved by the Appeal Court yesterday. Mr. Justice Middleton found illegitimate children were ineligible and Mrs. Pauline Mae Clarke appealed this decision.

Appeal against Mr. Justice Middleton's judgment the baby race clause was valid was made by Millar's next-of-kin, Alexander Butcher and Arabella West, Port Burwell, who claimed the derby was against common morality. The court reserved judgment on both these appeals and also on application by Mrs. Clarke's counsel for a separate inquiry into the legitimacy of her children, five of whom are said to have been born while she was estranged from her husband.

"Your Lordships must consider what would be the effect on the children in the future," I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., counsel for relatives of Millar, argued.

"Wasn't it their God-given privilege to produce these children?" interposed Mr. Justice C. A. Masten.

ELECTIONS DECEMBER 14

Toronto Will Seek to Utilize King's Birthday

TORONTO, Jan. 27 — (C.P.). — Toronto Board of Control decided to-day to apply to the Ontario Legislature for permission to hold the annual municipal elections on the King's birthday, December 14, instead of the first Monday in December, when most Ontario voting is done.

Schools will be closed on the King's birthday and Controllers said this was an advantage as the schools could be used as polling places.

PUBLIC WORKS ESTIMATES OFF BY $3,750,000

Indicate However No Reversal Of Policy Cardin Tells House

BETTER THAN CASH RELIEF

Further Outlay Hinted In Supplementary List To Come Later

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (C.P.). — Estimates totalling almost $9,000,000 were approved in the House of Commons last night for the Departments of Public Works, Fisheries and Transport.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Public Works, obtained approval for all his appropriations for public buildings.

The facts that public works estimates this year were lower than last did not mean any reversal of policy, Mr. Cardin told the House.

It was still the Government's policy that money spent on works and public undertakings was better spent than money given directly to unemployed as relief. But it was not the Government's feeling that such extraordinary expenditures should encumber the main estimates. He hoped, the minister said, that there would be supplementary estimates.

The total estimate for works chargeable to income is $11,277,500, or $3,750,000 less than a year ago. Mr. Cardin said this represented only the amount necessary for maintenance, repairs, heating, and other essential services. Whatever other projects might prove necessary would be cared for in supplementaries.

Any Buildings For Ottawa?

The minister was questioned by Hon. H. A. Stewart (Cons. Leeds), Minister of Public Works in the last Government. Mr. Stewart wanted to know if there was any proposal to erect additional public buildings in Ottawa.

Mr. Cardin said there had been a small vote last year for a Supreme Court building and considerable progress had been made, but differences of opinion over the proper site had delayed proceedings. It was intended, however, to erect a proper building for the Supreme Court and probably for the Exchequer Court.

When discussing the vote for public buildings in British Columbia, David Spence (Cons., Toronto-Markdale) objected to an item of $150,000 for Prince Rupert which, he said, was "the deadest town in British Columbia. Olof Hanson (Lib., Skeena), said he was glad of the remark, because it gave him an opportunity to say Prince Rupert was one of the greatest Pacific ports occupying a position of great strategic importance, and with railway facilities second to none.

"Come up and see us some time," Mr. Hanson suggested to Prince Rupert's critics.

B.N.A. AMENDMENT REVIVED IN HOUSE BY R. B. BENNETT

Numerous Members Including Premier King Support Conference Idea

PARTY LINES FORGOTTEN

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—(CP).— The banner of constitutional reform is again before the Canadian people, raised by former Prime Minister Bennett and waved with more or less vigor by numerous members of the House of Commons, including Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Party lines were practically forgotten in the House yesterday when Mr. Bennett, on motion to go into supply, urged steps be taken to hold a constitutional convention at which would be represented all the schools of thought in the Provincial Legislatures and the Dominion Parliament with a view to obtaining agreement on needed amendments to the British North American Act.

"I have in mind at the moment" Mr. Bennett said, "the preservation of our institutions. For unless democracy can be as efficient as dictatorship, democracy cannot survive. And democracy cannot be efficient in this country with the sharp conflict between provincial jurisdiction on the one hand and federal on the other."

There was no amendment to the motion to go into supply, and therefore no vote was taken, but it was agreed by many speakers, including the Prime Minister, that the discussion had served a good purpose in bringing the problem to the forefront.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said Canada must find a way sooner or later to revise the constitution. Mr. Bennett's proposal might be the best but there were dificulties in the way of any method. The greatest difficulty was to get the provinces to enter the scheme in the proper frame of mind.

Idea Only Practical

From his experiences with Dominion-provincial conferences and the national finance committee Finance Minister Dunning concluded Mr. Bennett's proposal was only practicable method. Provincial premiers, coming to a conference, could never forget they would have to face an angry opposition at home if they surrendered the slightest vestigate of their prerogatives.

The Dominions and Great Britain had been able to work out a soluton of the difficult constitutonal problem associated with the status of equality among the nations of the British Empire, said Mr. King. It should not be impossible for Canada

TOWN PLANNING COMMISSION.

KINGSTON.—At the meeting of the city council last night, Alderman C. A. Curtis gave "notice of motion" that at the next session of the council he would move for the establishment of a town planning commission. Ald. Stansbury seconded the "notice of motion," which will be placed on the agenda for discussion at the next meeting to be held in two weeks' time.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 49

SELDEN walked into the bar of the Bull Inn in search of the landlord, but only the potman was gently ushering the late stayers through the door.

"Where is Hucks?" he asked of the maid who had served him.

"I think he went out a few moments ago, sir," she said.

Selden sauntered slowly back to the hall and seized the telephone hastily. Grinfold 92," he called, "Urgent police call."

Almost immediately he heard Inspector Hutchins' gruff voice.

"Hutchins—this is Selden speaking." He heard a laugh at the other end of the line.

"I thought you would be calling me up. I was expecting you over this afternoon."

Selden cut him short. "Never mind that now. Listen, Hutchins. Get your car at once, and come to Reid's cotage—you know where that is. Bring a couple of your men—armed, you understand. It's a matter of the utmost importance, but I can't explain, someone may be here any moment. I shall be there to meet you."

He rang off without waiting for more than Hutchins' astonished exclamation.

He flung open the front door and went out into the rain. The groups had quickly dispersed, but the road was illuminated with a blood-red stain, where the lights from the bar showed through the red curtains.

Once clear of the front, Selden took to his heels, all deliberation changed to action, and fled up the lane to the cottage as though all the fiends were after him. The way was thick with mud, and the going slippery, but he never stopped to take breath till he saw a faint light among the trees. Then he stopped running and mopped his forehead, panting with the exertion. This latest development had upset all his careful plans. He walked towards the cottage, and suddenly came to a halt. A light was showing through a chink between the blinds, a thin line in the darkness. He walked firmly to the door and turned the handle.

Selden looked round; the light from the lamp was burning steadily, and shone on the face of Mrs. Thornton, who was sitting on the couch, in front of which was a small table on which were a bottle of whiskey and a glass.

She looked up expectantly at the visitor, and then her expression changed to blank amazement, and something like fear. She seemed to struggle for breath, and lay back with a groan.

"I am glad to see you, Mr. Selden," she said haltingly, but her eyes were fixed on the door behind him. "I must explain my presence here. I was returning from Paynton Manor where I had been to see Colonel Graham at his request. I lost my way, and stumbled over a root. I am afraid I have sprained my ankle."

"It was lucky your were able to take shelter here," Selden said sauvely.

"I thought that perhaps Mr. Reid would have been here, and he could have gone for a doctor."

"I have had some experience, can I be of assistance?"

"I am afraid not," she said with a look of pain. "I have bound it up myself with a handkerchief—if you would be so kind as to fetch the doctor. I am afraid I can't walk all the way to the village."

"I suppose you were hoping to find Miss Lawrence and the children here, and then Mr. Reid could have gone for the doctor," Selden said slowly.

"I did hear that they were stopping here, but my only thought was to get help. I would not have disturbed them otherwise."

"I think you were expecting someone else here," Selden said with a cold note in his voice that had suddenly become hard.

"What do you mean?" The woman's face had gone dead white.

"You were expecting your husband—Mr. Hucks, from the Bull Inn, Mrs. Hucks," he said deliberately and his hand clasped on his automatic in his pocket.

The pince-nez she always wore clattered from face on the floor, and the dark staring eyes gleamed venomously at him.

They remained silent, rigid, each listening for any sound from without. And then the stillness was broken by the dreadful sound of the baying of the bloodhounds. The woman half rose from her couch and a ghastly look of horror came to her face. She placed her hand on the glass that stood half full on the table, and raised it.

"Stop, put that down!" Selden shouted, and snatched the glass from her, flinging it to the floor.

"Not that way, Mrs. Hucks," he said, and the woman dropped with a moan down on the couch, covering her face with her hands.

They listened in silence, only the dreary sound of the rain pattering on the windows like leaves on a coffin broke the stillness. And then the sounds came nearer, a hideous discordant lust for blood in the bell-like notes, and Selden rushed to the door, drawing his automatic.

An awful scream split the night, and then the sound of shots. Selden wrenched the door open, and the rain blew in with a gust of sudden wind. Mrs. Thornton, with a look of unutterable horror on her face, had slipped from the couch, and ran after him, her ankle suddenly recovered. Selden rushed in the direction of the shots.

By the old oak at the corner of the little garden, his electric torch revealed a ghastly sight. A man was lying on the ground, while two enormous hounds were sprawled on his body.

Selden tugged at the dead hounds, and then even his strong nerve nearly gave way. The white gleaming teeth of a bloodhound were buried in the throat of Hucks, the landlord of the Bull Inn, and the other hound had his arm in a crushing vise, strong even in death. There was a terrible cry, and Mrs. Thornton tottered forward and flung herself on the man.

"Jim! Jim!" she screamed incoherently.

With the aid of the barrel of his pistol, Selden with difficulty opened the strong jaws of the beasts, and flung them from the man. He knelt down and examined him, while the woman, in a paroxysm of weeping, clung to the ex-prize fighter, muttering endearing words and sobbing bitterly.

Selden gazed at the scene, still focusing his powerful torch on the dead man. He spoke without a trace of sympathy in his voice.

"It was a terrible end, Mrs. Hucks, but it has saved him from the gallows. It is not as I had planned, but perhaps it is best."

There was the sound of a car drawing up outside the cottage, and Hutchins came forward briskly, followed by his two men.

"What's all this, Selden? We heard a deuce of a noise going on—pistol shots and what sounded like those infernal bloodhounds."

"It will explain everything to you, Hutchins, as is only right, but briefly, Hucks was coming here with murderous intent, with the help of his wife, who has posed as Mrs. Thornton up till now. Hucks has been killed by the bloodhounds. Mrs. Hucks is lamenting over him. You had better get your men to carry the body into the cottage."

"Hucks—Mrs. Thornton! Are you mad, Selden?"

"They are the murderers of Sir Henry Severinge, and would have murdered the Severinge children if they had been given a chance. But there is no time to lose. Leave one of your men here to take charge of this wretched woman, though I don't think she will give much trouble—she seems half demented. But handcuff her, for she has already attempted suicide."

"But what are we going to do?" Hutchins said, absolutely bewildered by these revelations and half doubting Selden's sanity.

"We are going to Paynton Manor, and I pray heaven we are not too late."

"Colonel Graham—but why?"

Selden uttered a quick ejaculation, and pointed. "Lord! We haven't a moment to lose."

Over the treetops a lurid glow lit the sky and showed through the driving rain.

"Can your man drive?" he asked quickly, running to the car.

"He drove us here," Hutchins replied, sensing something of the meaning of that ominous glow.

"Then let him get in and drive like mad to the village, and phone for fire brigades from Grinfold and Poolbridge," Selden cast a glance of anger at the miserable woman who was muttering and sobbing on the floor. "This is your doing, I expect. Come on, Hutchins, it's quicker over the fields."

Selden led the way with unerring instinct; for he had become accustomed to every inch of the terrain since he had been on the case. He cut across one field into a track that led out into the main drive, where the house was in full view. A great column of smoke and flame shot up as they approached, and the sound of shouting and running feet came to their ears.

"Heavens! Graham has dug his own grave if I am not mistaken!" Selden cried.

The Indian syce came running towards them, followed by Coats.

"My master!" the Indian panted; "he is in his private room at the top. We have tried to reach it, but the staircase is on fire."

"Get a ladder!" Selden shouted for the cracking of the fire was now loud and insistent.

"There is no ladder in the place," Coats informed them. "The Colonel would not have one here; he was afraid of attack."

One glance inside the hall door was enough; within was a raging inferno. The servants, all Indians, were gabbering excitedly in a group, making no effort to rescue even the furniture.

The fire started on the first story, near the Colonel's private stairway, to his roof sanctum, and the first thing that the Indian on duty had known was that volumes of smoke were pouring down the stairs. According to Graham's stringent orders every door was locked, and every window shuttered and padlocked.

"If ever a man compassed his own doom through over-caution, Graham is the man," Selden said bitterly.

"I don't understand a single thing of what is happening," Hutchins grumbled.

The distant sound of fire engines tearing up the drive overpowered the noise of the burning, and as they watched a window cracked and broke, and the burning shutter fell out in the flower bed below.

Selden turned to Hutchins. "Colonel Graham was in mortal dread of his life. He took every precaution he could, as an old soldier. He barred up his house from attack—he had trusty Indian servants, and bloodhounds turned loose—doubtless he felt secure enough. But he had constructed on the roof for complete security a room cut off by a sliding staircase and steel shutters. The fire started just below the room—I think we can guess who started it—and he has been caught like a rat in a trap."

HEASLIP ADMITS FOOD COMPLAINTS MADE BEFORE RIOT

Sergeant Tells Of Discontent —Claims Guns Would Have Meant More Trouble

THINKS GAS ENOUGH

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 27 (C.P.). — Evidence certain prisoners complained of the food two weeks before the January 17 riot at Ontario Reformatory was before Judge James Madden as he continued the inquiry to-day into the disturbance which wrecked the interior of the institution.

Dr. U. D. Heaslip, superintendent, said riot leaders two weeks before the outbreak attempted a "food strike." They told the superintendent the food was "rotten."

"They suggested an alley cat had been killed for food," Dr. Heaslip said. "They said good meat was taken by officers to canners and rotten meat given to prisoners."

Sergeant Alfred Maguire, chief guard, also told of the discontent a fortnight before January 17 when the 700 prisoners ran amok, smashing windows and furniture and forcing guards and police into the administration section of the Reformatory.

"Ten minutes before the dinner hour one day I heard from one inmate that the prisoners intended to refuse their food,' the sergeant guard at the institution since it was established 26 years ago, told Judge Madden. "I pulled the first two men out of line when they refused their food and locked them up in the tower. Except for four who claimed to be ill, the rest all ate their dinner.'

He told of the charges made by prisoners when he took them before Superintendent Heaslip that meat was changed for an inferior brand in the kitchen.

Heaslip Finds Food Good.

Dr. Heaslip, who said a former Kingston Penitentiary prisoner was a leader in the first food complaints, said he had tasted the food at noon the day of the riot when 25 men turned down their dinner.

"They claimed the meat was bad, but I tasted it and then I ate two slices of warm tongue," he told Judge Madden. "It was good, and some pie I tasted was very good. I did not attach much importance to it at that time, though the men probably were not hungry."

In their evidence concerning arming of guards, the superintendent and chief guard failed to agree. Dr. Heaslip maintained tear gas and guns should be available and certain offenders should serve under armed guards.

"If we'd had guns that Sunday, on the outside at least, we might have prevented 22 escaping,' he said.

Sergeant Maguire said tear gas was preferable to guns.

"If a gun had been fired inside these buildings that Sunday night, it would have caused much more trouble," he testified. He described how 40 rioting prisoners scurried to their cells when tear gas was turned on them.

Besides food complaints, Sergeant Maguire said prisoners also objected when Christmas presents were barred. He described the shouting of prisoners when the rioting got under way.

"'Wreck the place,' they shouted," the chief guard said. "It looked like

KING IN ROCHESTER

Edward VIII Still Recognized As New Rubber Stamps Fail to Reach Court In Time.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Jan. 27.—(AP)—By the grace of supreme court at the Monroe county courthouse, Edward VIII continued yesterday to be King of England.

British subjects admitted to citizenship in Rochester today renounced allegiance not to King George VI, but to his self-exiled brother. Court attaches explained the form for a new rubber stamp bearing the full title of the present king had not yet arrived from Washington, and the old stamp was the only one available for use on the official papers.

NAZIS DRILLING IN U.S.

U. S. Congress is Told 20,000 Men Are Being Given Instruction

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(A.P.)—Chairman Dickstein (D., N.Y.), of the Immigration Committee, said on the floor of the United States House of Representatives to-day that agents of the German Government were drilling 20,000 men in German uniform in the United States.

He said, too, the Nazi Government was distributing draft forms to German-Americans and had sent out 280,000 applications blanks to Americans of German birth, seeking pledges of loyalty to Germany in case of war.

TORIES MAY PRESS COMPLETE SURVEY OF POWER NEEDS

Second Reading Of Roebuck's Measure Advances Little—11 Members Speak

LIST OF RATEPAYERS

TORONTO, Jan 27.—(CP).—Ontario Legislature members to-day faced the possibility of a prolonged debate on second reading of the first of the government's three Hydro measures.

A persistent report last night said Conservatives were discussing moving for a select committee of the House to study Ontario's power needs and to investigate reports the province faces a shortage.

Appointment of such a committee would be moved as an amendment to the motion for second reading of Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck's bill. This piece of legislation would render inaffective court judgments against Hydro because of cancellation of Quebec power contracts.

An amendment of this nature would throw the whole subject open to debate again.

More Night Sessions.

The House will sit again to-night and to-morrow night. Acting Premier Harry Nixon made it plain the legislation would be pushed ahead as fast as possible. Nine members spoke up to 11 o'clock last night when the fifth day of the debate wound up.

Leopold Macaulay (Con., York South), declared yesterday the government was attempting to change the constitution of Canada by ordering officers of the courts to refuse to carry out judgments. The answer to this came from J. J. Glass (Lib., Toronto St. Andrew), in a declaration the Legislature had often acted to change statutes when courts interpreted them in a manner not satisfactory to the Legislature.

Mr. Macaulay saw a possibility of Federal Courts being set up in Ontario for the administration of criminal justice if the policy set forth in the bill was carried to a possible conclusion.

Newman Lauds Power Move

William Newman (Lib., Victoria) declared the government had a mandate for its present policy on Hydro. On behalf of his constitu-

MOTHERS

Don't Trifle With Colds

Especially During These Danger-Months When Colds Are Taking Their Heaviest Toll—Your Family Deserves This Extra Protection

1. When colds threaten . . . to help prevent them—Keep out of crowds as much as possible. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Stay in the open air as much as you can. Eat light, wholesome food and drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular.

Watch yourself and your family after any exposure likely to be followed by a cold. Then—at the first sniffle or sneeze or the slightest irritation in the nose—quick! put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is specialized medication, expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, it helps to prevent many colds or to throw off head-colds in their early stages.

2. If a cold develops . . . to relieve it sooner—Some colds, of course, strike without warning or get by even the best precautions. If that happens, go straight to bed. Eat very lightly—mainly toast, tea, and fruit juices. To relieve the distressing symptoms which tear down your resistance, use your dependable Vicks VapoRub.

Massage it briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Long after you relax into restful sleep, VapoRub's famous poultice-vapor action continues for hours to loosen phlegm, ease coughing, and help break up local congestion.

Sickness from Colds Cut in Half!

These two easy steps are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan is a simple, practical plan which any mother can easily follow in her own home. It is also a tested plan. In the most extensive colds-clinic of its kind ever conducted—among 17,353 subjects—Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds—cut down sickness from colds more than half!

Miss Lena Eakins of 664 George Street, who is the retiring president of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, was presented by the members of the North End group, of which Miss Eakins is the new leader, with a lovely bouquet of flowers and a book entitled "In the Steps of St. Paul," at a meeting of the ladies held at her home. The presentation was made by the incoming president of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. C. E. Blewett, and an appropriate acknowledgment was made by Miss Eakins, followed by the service of refreshments.

Fairy Tale Night at St. John's.

A very enjoyable Story Book night was held under auspices of the Teen Age branch of St. John's Women's Auxiliary in the parish hall, on Tuesday evening. Each one of the tables at which delicious refreshments were served represented a well-known fairy tale and the girls in charge wore appropriate costumes to carry out the story-book motive.

The Rev. W. P. Robertson presided as chairman for a pleasing program which included piano solos by Grace Marshall; songs by Buddy Groombridge and Dot Carr; tap dances by Shirley Fitzsimmons and Lynn Quinlan; guitar selections by Jean McElwain and Shirley Fitzsimmons, the latter also singing to her own accompaniment, and harmonica music by Jean McElwain.

Mrs. D. Quinlan was accompanist and also played for community singing. The affair was under the direction of Mrs. F. D. Craig and Mrs. George Groombridge.

Preparing For Carnival.

The following extract from the Toronto press is of interest, as a similar Carnival, although probably on not quite so large a scale, will be held in Peterborough on Friday night of this week:

"Graceful figures in gold, silver royal blues, purple, red and white will glide across red ice tomorrow night at the Granite Club Skating Carnival...it will be lovely to watch, but few persons know the enormous amount of work and time that have gone into the making of the smooth production...as early as last August designing was begun on the costumes, and work which was finished just today was started early in November ... Five hundred yards of maribou have been used for the sleeves of the snow ballet costume; 500 yards of tarlitan, 100 yards of lame, 70 pounds of glitter, which is finely ground-colored glass to give the effects of jewels in the other costumes, to say nothing of the many feathers and yards of satin... Thirty pounds of special powder with a cold cream base will be used to make-up the legs, arms and shoulders of the skaters, three dozen lipsticks, 20 jars of rouge, dozens and dozens of powder puffs, boxes and boxes of cleansing tissues, 10 jars of foundation cream for the faces, four dozen large jars of eye shadow in various colors, and four dozen black eyebrow pencils...and, by the way, that red ice is made by spraying the already white ice with red paint, allowing it to freeze and then flooding it with more water."

Nurses Listen To Papers On History Of Society And Famous Women

At a meeting of the local Chapter C of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, held on Tuesday evening in the class room at St. Joseph's Hospital, with a good attendance, an Outline of the History of the Registered Nurses' Association was presented by Mrs. E. M. Leeson, superintendent at Nicholls Hospital, and a paper on "Women of Achievement" was given by Miss Cathleen McCarthy, society editor of The Examiner.

Mrs. Leeson reviewed the history of the organization from the time of its inception forty-three years ago by Miss Mary Agnes Snively of Toronto, on down through the years which have been marked by signposts of difficulty, as it were, in the nurses' long battle for registration.

Miss McCarthy's paper was concerned with women, many ages who have achieved through difficulty a major prominence in many spheres of endeavor; in the fields of woman suffrage; art, poetry; authorship; adventure and missionary service.

In the absence of the president of the chapter, Miss Margaret Flynn presided over a business session concerned with various items of business. The evening was enlivened by two piano solos brilliantly played by Miss Alma Duffy, A.T.C.M., and the service of refreshments at the close. At the table, placed in the breakfast room ,Mrs. E. M. Leeson presided, assisted by Miss Margaret Flynn, Miss Margaret Moher and Miss Laura Hogan. Silver baskets filled with tulips, narcissus and daffodils gave a Spring-like air to the table and the room.

Peterborough Presbyterial Re-elects Mrs. C. M. Scott

Annual Meeting Of The W.M.S. Of The Presbytery Held In Trinity Church

WOMEN RAISED $8,592

On the occasion of their ninth anniversary, the Peterborough Presbyterial W.M.S. held their annual meeting on Tuesday with all-day sessions in Trinity United Church, and a large delegation in attendance, Mrs. C. M. Scott, president, presided throughout. The executive members met at nine o'clock, while a meeting of the nominating committee followed, after which the registration of delegates was in charge of Mrs. T. E. Gilchrist. "Thy Kingdom Come," the convention theme, was like a refrain running throughout the day's activities, and was emphasized in the opening worship conducted by members of Mark Street United Auxiliary, including Mesdames E. W. Rowland, A. J. Throop, and H. Alton. Last year's meeting with its multiplicity of details was recalled in her concise but comprehensive minutes, by the recording secretary, Mrs. B. W. McClennan. Appointment of committees was the next order of business, when the following ladies assumed these duties: Courtesy, Mesdames Leonard and Mesley; Resolution, Mesdames Seymour and Wagar.

From eleven o'clock until the noon hour the story of the year's work was told in detail by the various officers of the Presbyterial, and the secretaries of departments, the first report being that of the nominating committee, with Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge as convenor, who presented the slate of officers to be voted upon at the afternoon session.

An important phase of W.M.S work was reported by Mrs. W. H. Morton, Christian Stewardship secretary, who stated that the results in this department were most encouraging.

$8,592 Raised.

The treasurer, Mrs. William Zelhr, brought the practical side of missions before the Presbyterial, with statistics which were most promising and of vital interest to every member. The total amount raised was $8,592.50. With grateful hearts for the financial success of the society, all bowed while Mrs. A. I. Brown offered the dedicatory prayer. The Presbyterial is divided into four sections, each under the direction of a capable vice-president. The work of these sections is taken up locally in sectional fall rallies with Mesdames H. Robb, R. C. Hanbidge, W. W. Leonard, and A. Porteous presiding. Their reports showed fine progress being made in each district. The department secretaries also gave evidence of a successful year in brief, interesting reports. Mrs. Wm. Stevens, the enthusiastic leader of Associate Helpers, has brought this department to a high standard of excellence. The onerous duties of the supply secretary were outlined by Miss Helen Bannister, who told of many fine bales packed and shipped to needy areas. Mrs. A. J. Throop had charge of "the stranger within our gates," and proved the W.M.S. to be in this respect indeed "my brother's keeper," while Mrs. W. W. Leonard, as peace secretary, emphasized the grave importance for the women of this W.M.S. organization taking an active stand for peace in view of the troublous world conditions. The work of the Junior W.M.S. organizations was brought to the convention in splendid reports by Mrs. E. Meeley, representing the Mission Circles, Mrs. J. A. McKone, C.G.I.T. secretary, Mrs. Basil Tucker of Mission Bands, and Mrs. H. Alton, the superintendent of Baby Bands.

The value and importance of missionary education was exemplified in the fine array of literature on exhibition during the convention by the literature secretary, Miss F. Dixon, who also reported on this phase of the work.

Our thanks as an organization are due to the newspapers throughout the Presbyterial, for their generosity toward the work of the local auxiliaries, said the press secretary, Mrs. Wagar, in voicing her problems and encouraging features.

"The Quiet Half-Hour," a time for quiet meditation between sessions, was led by Mrs. R. M. McMullin, formerly of Korea. She based her brief talk upon Bible study and urged the inspiring benefit of a closer communion with the Master, through the Book of Books.

At noon the delegates, with one accord, accepted the invitation to dinner, served in the dining hall by the Trinity ladies, and a delightful hour of fellowship was enjoyed.

Afternoon Session.

Keene Auxiliary conducted the afternoon devotional service, with Mesdames James Gray, Comrie, Knox and Rennie taking part in song, Scripture and prayer.

Again reports were heard, when Mrs. H. P. L. Seymour gave an amazing resume of the complicated doings of a Presbyterial from the standpoint of the corresponding secretary, while the missionary monthly, as the society's magazine, was paid high tribute by its secretary, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, who reported 480 subscribers. Temperance, one of the most challenging questions of the day, was sponsored in no uncertain words by Mrs. W. W. Yale, temperance secretary.

An interesting feature of the afternoon was the presentation of the Mission Band efficiency banner by Mrs. B. Tucker., with Trinity Mission Band, the proud recipients of one of the highest honors in the giving of the Presbyterial.

A practical and wonderfully helpful worker's conference, led by Mrs. R. G Lawlor, B.A., created new inspiration in every department when the members informally took an active part in the discussion, and many knotty problems were solved by the leader.

The nominations presented earlier in the day for the 1937 executive staff were voted upon, with Mrs. B. L. Barns, branch recording secretary, presiding. The following staff of workers were also installed in a very impressive service by Mrs. Barnes:

Wearing a lovely Chinese gown, typical of the "teacher class", Miss Marion Coon, missionary-on-furlough, drew a vivid word picture of her field "West China" and by her message and attractive personality re-inspired her listeners with new zeal for the missionary cause. She told, first, of the China of the "sedan chair" and of foot-binding, tracing the rapid changes brought about through western influence during the past ten years. "In the light of this new day in China, what are we doing as a Missionary Society?" she asked and proceeded to answer the query by showing the splendid strides made, especially along educational lines. Little day schools are transformed into community centres and young workers being replaced by more experienced, better trained evangelistic leaders, with a wide sphere of activity. The latter, Miss Coon termed as "real heroines" and told of their multitudinous duties and of their great responsibility in "representing Jesus Christ in China." She spoke, too, of the fine work done by Kindergartens, Normal Schools and Boarding Schools and of the opportunities they afforded Chinese youth.

A distinctly encouraging note was sounded when the speaker referred to the new sympathetic attitude toward Christianity, "Never were the doors so wide open. It is no time for retrenchment. It's a time for a real forward movement. Let's accept the challenge. Let's do it with money if we can, but if we cannot, let's do it with prayer—with a new consecration of ourselves and our church and with a new vision of God's purpose for His world."

Memorial Service.

A note of sadness crept into the convention when a beautiful memorial service for the members who have passed on during the year was conducted by Mrs. E. W. Coon, assisted by Mrs. A. I. Brown. The latter read the names of the deceased members as follows:

Mrs. David Armstrong, Keene.

Mrs. George McDonald, Mrs. Nellie Archer, Mrs. W. G. Pendrie and Mrs. Albert Brown of Millbrook.

Mrs. Brimmacombe of Norwood.

Mrs. Wasson, Miss Richards, Mrs. George Elliott, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Flannery and Mrs. McBride of George Street Auxiliary.

Mrs. Robert Milligan of Knox.

Mrs. John Gray of St. Andrews.

Mrs. John Sanderson, Mrs. Samuel Deyell, Mrs. W. D. Sargent, Mrs. Gordon Adams and Mrs. J. Keitel of St. James.

Mrs Alex Watts, Warsaw.

Mrs. Donald Crawford, Miss Letitia Elliott and Mrs. A. Parker of Trinity.

A beautiful basket of daffodils were presented in memory of Mrs. Parker and Miss Elliott by Trinity members. The music throughout was of a missionary character and the

The Testing Time

Disaster is a powerful force in classifying human beings. Much is told in these few words from Portsmouth, Ohio, in the flooded district:

"Guardsmen patrol area with orders to kill as looting increases."

Officials try to count the homeless people there, but at best it is known their figures are but estimates; likewise they try and keep proper records of the dead, knowing also that flood waters have not yet given up their victims. The numbers of homeless have swollen until they are placed in the hundreds of thousands class.

Reports tell of brave men and fearless women who have gone to remain in the upper rooms of their homes; of others who have found it necessary to find safety on the roofs, waiting their turn to be rescued. We read of men who remained until the last refusing to leave as long as there were women and children to be placed in the boats.

And in the midst of all this we read of soldiers with orders to shoot to kill those who are bent on looting. A great crisis has faced these people, but the great crisis has aroused only one instinct in the looters, that of enriching themselves in the hour of national tragedy.

The Indian Treaty

The Examiner has received recently several unsigned letters dealing with the rights of Indians in this district, and all of them are based on the assumption that Indians have a right to trap and fish regardless of seasons and regulations. The belief seems to be they have a right to do so, and in prosecuting them for spearing rats and taking fish out of season the Indian is being denied a living which is his by right of being an Indian.

By the Indian Treaty of November, 1923 made between "His Majesty the King and the Mississauga Indians of Rice Lake, Mud Lake, Scugog Lake and Alderville" there was complete surrender made of all former rights of Indians, "such interests being the Indian title of the said tribe to fishing, hunting and trapping rights over the said lands." The lands described cover a wide area, commencing at the northeasterly shore of Georgian Bay at the mouth of the French River, to the narrows between Lake Couchiching and Lake Simcoe; another line is that between Peterborough and Hastings and the affected area runs north as far as Lake Nippissing. Part of the boundaries in this territory are described:

". . to the northwest angle of the township of Darlington; thence along the northerly boundary line of the townships of Darlington, Clarke, Hope and Hamilton to Rice Lake; thence along the southern shore of said Lake to River Trent, thence along said river to the Bay of Quinte."

Each member of the Mississauga tribe by that treaty was paid $25 in cash, and there was a sum of $233,425 set apart as well and it is from this that what is referred to as bounty money is paid. It does not amount to a large amount per capita, and on the reserve at Curve Lake we believe it is less than $10 per year. The Indians are fortunate in one way—they pay no taxes, and it costs them only the labor for their wood. Most of them work in the woods; many of them trap in season and the tourist traffic gives them opportunity to serve as guides. But it is wrong to contend that they possess rights which white people do not. These rights were signed off for a payment of $250,000, and the treaties were all signed by the accredited chiefs and members of the band in each case.

$500 a Year for a Minister

At a meeting of the Middlesex Presbytery of the United Church in London it was reported that some of the ministers were receiving as little as $500 per year, and it was proposed that a central fund should be created for the assistance of the low-paid ministers.

Middlesex is not by any means a poor section of the province. It is pretty much in the centre of things as far as Western Ontario goes. It is one of those older counties where all sections are well served by good roads, schools, and of churches there are many. And yet there are sections apparently where there is not sufficient support for a minister. We learn that some of the churches find it difficult to keep going. Years ago when the church was built there were more people in the immediate district or in some of the villages. In the rural districts the people drove to church and the church was the religious and social centre. Today, we are informed, there are fewer people living in the farm homes, and there are fewer people in the villages. But in the meantime the car has come and those who were a few miles from the church have in some cases shifted their support to some church in town which they can now readily reach.

That condition is not general. There are churches in rural areas right in this district where the attendance is better than in most of the cities, and where financial support is adequate to the demands.

But Middlesex has its problem with the ministers who are not being paid over $500 a year. The history of special funds to try and meet such a situation is not encouraging, as the average church, even in the well-to-do class finds it has sufficient outside demands at all times. The permanent solution will not come by appealing to the larger churches.

Better Wait a While

Just now Moscow is considering what it will do with 16 more plotters who are said to have been working with Leon Trotzky for the death or removal of Stalin. It is perhaps useless to use the word "are said" in regard to these gentlemen, because they seem to speak almost gladly of their part in the plot, and each word brings them just a little closer to the firing squad. Some reports hinted broadly and openly that the firing squad was under instruction before the trial commenced.

What a happy family they may have in that land! One Molotoff by name was to be removed, and the plan was to drive him in a car and over the edge of a high cliff. In case the driver of the car, who was to have died with him, changed his mind, it was arranged to have a truck follow the car and make sure it went over the cliff. The car turned at the right spot and the truck passed on. The driver of the fated car at the last moment thought of another errand which he had to perform and stopped before the long dive.

That is the sort of material being aired in the present trial at Moscow, and it makes one wonder if we would not be well advised to wait a while before concluding that we should hasten along to the point where we would govern this country on a plan similar to the one being tried in Russia.

A Great Day's Work

The death is recorded at St. Mary's in Perth county of Adolph Volker, 91. He was born on the Atlantic ocean when his parents were coming to this country.

One thing mentioned about Mr. Volker was that when a young man he was considered the best and fastest rail splitter in the district, and he held the record of 612 black ash rails in one day's work. That record is not likely to be broken because so few rails are split now and also because there is such a small supply of that straight-grained black ash left in many communities. Apart from that we doubt if there are many men today who could with similar material pile up such a quantity of rails in one day.

As we look at things now it may not seem impressive to many people to read that a man once split 612 rails in a day for making of the old zig-zag style of fence, but as effort and vitality and skill go it was a notable performance, and would have been duly regarded as such in other days.

Music For the Bagpipes

Within recent weeks there has been a fair amount of discussion on the question: Is the bagpipes a musical instrument? Musicians Union in London, Ont., tried to get that settled, because a pipe band was securing engagements which otherwise might have gone to other organizations.

Let the scoffers take note. Playing the bagpipes is not something which just runs in the family. The folk who succeed have to study just the same as the person who begins on the piano, the violin or anything else. There are books filled with notes and directions, and the music must be memorized. No one has yet seen a piper walking about at his music with a sheet of music carried in front of him.

A piper in Peterborough has brought to the office a couple of books with rules for playing, telling where to put the fingers and how to make the wind. From the David Glen (Edinburgh) Highland Pipe Tutor we quote:

> "Having learned to play a few notes on the Chanter, the learner must proceed to learn the blowing of the pipes. Begin by placing the Drones on the left shoulder, the Blowpipe in the mouth, holding the Chanter with the left hand; the thumb and the first and second fingers covering their respective holes; blow into the bag, and when full place it under the left arm with the right hand. The arm must be pressed on the bag while the breath is being drawn so as to keep up a constant supply of wind to the reeds."

So it appears as though it takes both hands, both arms and all the equipment with which man is provided to make the pipes go as they should. Even to the feet, for we read:

> "Rest on the heel and strike the ground with the ball of the large toe, just loud enough to make it audible. When doing so all movement of the body and head should be made audible."

We learn too that a certain amount of kind treatment is necessary with the bagpipes otherwise they never will go well. This way:

> "To keep the bag in good order mix two or three tablespoonfuls of treacle to one of water and pour in. Rub the bag well and hang it up in a position that the treacle will run into the chanter stock, then let it out."

Then when one plays the bagpipes it is best to have the Highland uniform, and such raiment is not to be gathered in bargain spirit. Not at all. A fair good set of pipes will cost from $150 to $300, and the uniform can quite easily account for $150. It was explained to us that a sporran alone was $15, and if silver-mounted would be $30. So the piper is not playing on a tin whistle. He has an instrument difficult to operate, into which he must feed wind and treacle; he must work his fingers, tongue, lungs, arms and one foot unless he is marching about. Likewise he must pay and pay well for the uniform he wears. So those whose only accomplishment is turning the buttons on the radio should no longer speak lightly of one who has mastered the pipes and who as well has provided himself with fit and proper raiment.

SHE TRIED IT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Poor Mary Jane is feeling blue, nor does she know what next to do, at night she stays at home; and worst of all for Mary Jane, why every night is much the same, she spends her time alone.

¶ She had a friend who used to call, he came quite often in the fall, then there was lots to do; another lad spied Mary Jane, I really never knew his name, but he was Number Two.

¶ Before the old year was all spent, she entertained another gent, was gay as she could be; she regulated nights they came, and all was swell with Mary Jane, she really juggled three.

¶ Yes, Mary Jane was smart all right, until things crossed on her one night, quite simple how 'twas done; for Mary Jane had planned to go, with Number Two to see a show, when in came Number One.

¶ Then Number One picked up and fled, I hear some angry words were said, such things were bound to be; then Number Two mixed up his dates, as though in hands of stubborn fates, and he met Number Three.

¶ They all quit Mary Jane right then, and they were angry sort of men, their hearts all turned to stone; now Mary Jane is free but sad, she juggled three which was too bad—and now she's home alone.

Culled From the Ottawa Debates

Mr. BLACKMORE: May I ask another question?

Mr. ELLIOTT (Middlesex): It is getting to be a cross-examination.

◇ ◇ ◇

Doubtful

Mr. DUNNING: They did not say that, though. What my hon. friend has just read does not say that.

Mr. TUCKER: I will read it again.

Mr. DUNNING: That will not help.

Tubercular Cattle

Mr. GARDINER: A very important reason why we are fighting tuberculosis in cattle is to prevent human beings from getting it. The whole matter is a health movement.

Mr. KINLEY: Is not that a debatable question?

Mr. GARDINER: I am not a medical authority, but most people contend that is the case.

Mr. DOUGLAS: On what basis is compensation given to the farmer whose stock must be destroyed because it shows an unfavourable reaction to the tuberculin test?

Mr. GARDINER: It is two-thirds of the maximum value. The maximum value for grades is $60 and for purebreds, $150, which makes the maximum one can obtain for a grade, $40, and the maximum one can obtain for a purebred, $100. The cattle are all valued.

Mr. DOUGLAS: Who evaluates the grade?

Mr. GARDINER: Our veterinary inspector.

All Inspected

Mr. THOMPSON: What provision has the department for supervising the sale of tubercular cattle after they have been examined and branded? We know the drovers go through the country picking up these cattle; we see them shipped off to the abattoirs, and it is stated that in many cases these diseased cattle are slaughtered and sold for human food. What supervision has the department over the slaughter and sale of these condemned animals?

Mr. GARDINER: The marked cattle spoken of are shipped only under licence to abattoirs; those abattoirs are all properly inspected, and the carcasses are properly inspected there. If it is found that the diseased parts are not detrimental to the use of the other parts of the carcass for food, probably the whole animal is not condemned. But in cases where there is any danger whatsoever the animal is condemned and no part of it is used for human food.

Militia Pension Act

Hon IAN MACKENZIE (Minister of National Defence) moved the second reading of Bill No. 5, to amend the Militia Pension Act.

Motion agreed to and the house went into committee, Mr. Sanderson in the chair.

Section 1 agreed to.

On section 2—Time of payment of pensions and compassionate allowances.

Mr. BENNETT: There is only one question I was going to ask the minister when I read this bill. At the end of section 41 there appear these words:

. . . and unless otherwise specified by this act shall continue during the lifetime of the recipient.

Such words do not appear in the section which is replaced by this section. Does any significance at all attach to these words?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): I think so. They refer to remarriage, forfeiture on conviction of certain offences, and the like.

Mr. CAHAN: Well, what is the meaning of the words "in arrear"?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): That is monthly after the pension is due and owing. It is the phrase agreed upon by the Department of Justice and the officers of this department.

Mr. STEWART: It is the opposite of "monthly in advance" I assume?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): Yes.

Mr. STEWART: I assume that under this act the pension would stop at the date of death of the pensioner.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): Yes, either at death or remarriage.

Mr. STEWART: But under the act as it was before this amendment the pension was payable in advance for the whole year?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): Yes.

Mr. STEWART: And in case of death was there any refund?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): No; that is the point. There was no statutory provision for refund in case of death or remarriage.

Mr. STEWART: And under this act the pension will stop at the date of death?

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): Yes.

TAXING CONES.

(Niagara Falls Review)

IT WILL be news to many people that Kentucky actually has a tax on ice cream cones, which lifts the price from a nickel to six cents apiece, although one does remember huge petitions, signed by children, reaching the Kentucky capital last summer, asking for abolition of the tax on ice cream cones, nuts, candy and chewing gum. The legislators have hearkened to the pleas of the children and the twenty per cent taxes will be removed on April 16, in time for the children to enjoy cheaper ones. Let's hope the Canadian legislators haven't heard of this new tax source.

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

ON PASTEURIZATION OF MILK

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Should pasteurization of milk become compulsory in our city? Why should it, at a time when everyone and especially the small farmer is striving to make ends meet? If city families cannot thrive on raw milk and must have pasteurized milk, what is to become of our rural families who often credit their good health to the use of raw milk in large quantities? Or does it matter what becomes of the farmers so long as they produce raw food under circumstances however difficult?

If the small raw milk man, who depends entirely for his living and sustenance on his milk route, is to be barred from selling his milk through the city to customers who prefer raw milk, it is just another instance of "Boost the big concern, but tramp the small individual." If it is not a case of this would our good and capable health doctor explain why diseases are no more prevalent among raw milk consumers than among pasteurized consumers? We know they are not, or they would be red-lettered in the press, as a means of denouncing the use of raw milk. Permit us to ask those so much interested in pasteurization if they themselves were not reared on raw milk. "Yes" would be the reply in many cases.

We quite agree that perfect cleanliness is absolutely necessary in the care of milk, but if raw milkmen comply with the present regulations as they do, (1) in testing herds for tuberculosis and Bang's disease; (2), in sterilizing and cleaning all utensils and; (3), in keeping all surrounding stables, milk houses etc., clean, it is impossible to expect anything but healthy consumers.

I might add that all raw milk establishments are inspected without any notice given prior to the visit of the inspector, therefore they have to comply with the regulations at all times.

The suggestion for a public pasteurization plant purchased with the combined capital of the raw milk men, deserves no attention for it is absolutely impossible here to consider such an arrangement.

We therefore trust that our good, reliable broad-minded mayor and city council will turn a deaf ear when asked to force such a measure as "compulsory pasteurization" of milk on us, your supporters and followers when the majority have always been satisfied with having the milk question an optional one. Would it not be most discouraging to the raw milk vender, who with his wife and family would be almost forced on relief, if his sole source of income were abolished after establishing a route of his own with an income sufficient to live on and pay his taxes?

A Study of Longevity.

(From the New York Sun.)

FOR 22 years C. B. Gabb has kept watch of the death notices printed on the front page of the London Times; for each of the 22 years he has submitted a note reporting the number of deaths of persons of 90 years and over.

In 1936 the number was 515, the largest ever reported by Mr. Gabb. Eight of the deaths were of centenarians, six women and two men. The two men, incidentally, were successive holders of the distinction of oldest army officer. Sir Fitzroy Maclean, chief of his clan and a Crimean veteran, died at the age of 101; a week later Colonel C. E. Theobald, who had been commissioned in the 55th Foot more than 80 years earlier, died at the age of 100.

These annual notes confirm a pretty general impression that women are better candidates for longevity than men. Of the 515 deaths recorded by the Times at the age of 90 and over, 170 were those of men and 345 were those of women. Of 8,763 nonagenarians whose death notices comprise Mr. Gabb's gleanings over the 22 years, "the large majority have been married women.

One of the most interesting lives disclosed by this study is that of William Henry Baker, of Hull, England. For 78 years Mr. Baker worked as a solicitor's clerk, working all that time in the same room, at the same desk, yet surviving this apparent monotony to reach the age of 89, still in harness.

Among the centenarians who died in 1936 were Duca Borea d'Olmo, who could look back to a friendship with Cavour; and T. Carey, who had heard from his grandfather's lips of the great battle of Trafalgar. To the student of tomorrow must be left the determination of whether Mr. Gabb's study of longevity makes for long life.

Do We Eat Too Much?

(From the Galt Reporter.)

A DISTINGUISHED doctor in London, Eng., who is so highly regarded as an authority on diet that he was commissioned to write a treatise "How to Live in War Time" for the Canadian government during the Great War, admits that he doesn't know whether the process of boiling potatoes removes the valuable vitamin C which is regarded as the most beneficial property of that vegetable.

The gentleman is Professor Mottram and he confesses that he does not know whether or not the vitamin goes out with the boiling and he is of the opinion that no one else knows, simply because no one has taken the trouble to find out.

Apparently there is the complaint concerning the numerous diets that are offered by so-called authorities. One says that proteins should not be mixed with the carbohydrates or starches. In other words that meat should not be eaten with potatoes or bread and that acid fruits should not be taken with starches. There are some authorities who will say that such discriminations as those outlined are all the bunk and that the human digestive system is capable of taking care of any kind of eatable food whether taken alone or in combination with any other.

There are authorities who say that an apple a day will keep the doctor away and others equally convincing who say that the apple has no essential food value and that a bushel or a ton of apples eaten or left, would produce no outstanding effect on the health of the individual.

From the welter of contradictory advice one course seems to stand out as pretty generally recommended and that is to eat much more sparingly than the average Canadian is in the habit of doing. It is the consensus of informed opinion that the average Canadian, following an indoor occupation, who takes three hearty meals such as are usually offered in a Canadian home, is digging his grave with his teeth, as an old saying puts it. The individual who is doing manual labor or who is getting plenty of physical exercise in some other way, can get away with food to his heart's content but the indoor man who freely satisfies his appetite is laying the foundation for much grief in the way of colds, digestive troubles and possible serious ailments. It seems to be the experience in checking many hospital cases that a great deal of illness has been traced to overeating. It is a conclusion generally endorsed by medical men that this generation of indoor workers, who ride in automobiles and get little exercise in the open air, should vary their diet with plenty of fruit and vegetables and generally try to cut down on the total intake of all kinds of food so that there is still some semblance of hunger when they quit the table. It is admitted that a regimen of that nature is difficult for the average healthy person but those who have made the experiment claim that it will pay immense profits in good health.

Indians and the Coronation.

(From the Southampton (Eng.) Southern Echo.)

IN ONTARIO there is a little chapel which will be perhaps the most romantic Canadian link with the Coronation.

This is his Majesty's Chapel of the Mohawks. It is a Royal Chapel, and it was built 152 years ago, but its associations go back long before that.

Queen Anne thought highly of her Red Indian subjects who attended the original chapel which she built for them and she sent out to them a Communion set of solid silver altar ornaments, linen, and a large calf-bound copy of the Bible.

Each silver piece had the inscription "The gift of her Majesty Anne, by the Grace of God, Great Britain, France and Ireland, and of her plantations in North America, Queen of her Indian Chappel of the Mohawks."

These gifts from Queen Anne are still treasured possessions of the chapel, but they have had some strange adventures, which are described by the Rev. H. W. Snell, incumbent of the chapel and principal of the Mohawk Institute, in the Coronation section of the official year book of the Church of England.

When the revolution came in America the original chapel was lost, but the Communion silver and the Bible were buried at the beginning of hostilities, and so were saved from destruction.

Years went by, and the war was over. By then, however, the Indians had emigrated to Ontario, where King George III built for them a new chapel to replace the lost one of Queen Anne.

This new chapel was furnished with a bell cast by Warner, of Fleet street, London, in 1796. Tablets were also sent from London, inscribed with the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments in the Mohawk language.

The Indians did not forget their long buried Queen Anne gifts, and they went all the way back to the Mohawk Valley, dug them up, and took them to the new church.

They are still in use and visitors come from all over the world to see them.

On the fly-leaf of the Bible there are now the signatures of King Edward VII, as Prince of Wales, King George V and Queen Mary, as Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Windsor, as Prince of Wales, the Duke of Kent and Lady Patricia Ramsay.

Another page has been signed by nearly all the Governors-General, from John Young, the first to Lord Willingdon.

Mr. Snell recalls that the first clergyman at the chapel was sent by the oldest missionary society in the British Empire, the Company for the Propagation of the Gospel in New England and Parts Adjacent, which was chartered in 1649.

"One marvels today," said Mr. Snell, "that at a time when men's minds were so stirred by civil strife, in the very year that King Charles I of England was beheaded, men should be moved to organise a society for the evangelisation of the Indian inhabitants of New England."

And at the coronation, in May, King George VI and his Queen will not be forgotten by those who still come to this little chapel in Ontario.

NO WORSE HERE.

(Garnia Observer)

THE manner of expressing ourselves in the spoken word has been a controversial subject for a few days. The occasion was created by C. Egerton Lowe, adjudicator for the Trinity College of Music, London, who is a visitor in Canada. That gentleman admitted a certain measure of shock when he heard some eminent Canadians linguistically falling for the Yankee expedient of pronouncing constitution "constitoosion" or the word news as "noos." However, it might as well be admitted at the outset that there is quite a lot of slovenly English shot around all over the country but not any more than there is either in England or any other part of the world where our language is spoken.

WINTER DRIVING.

(Chatham News)

IF WINTER comes—and it may yet—it would be well for motorists to be prepared for extra care in driving. Pre-season publicity in the matter of winter driving, would therefore seem to be in order. The Industrial Accident Prevention Association has drawn up five useful rules worth reading:

1. When starting on slippery pavements, accelerate slowly and gradually; when stopping, begin to slow down a safe distance from the stopping point. Avoid situations calling for quick stops.

2. In days requiring anti-skid chains, still drive as though you didn't have them.

3. Watch the road surface for very slippery spots. Try to keep out of deep ruts and street car tracks. If driving in them, bring the car to a stop before trying to turn out.

4. When two vehicles meet on a narrow, slippery roadway, one should pull to the right and stop to let the other one pass.

5. At all times drive with courtesy and consideration for the other users of the highway. This includes the pedestrians.

CRITIZING THE CRITIC

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

C. Egerton Lowe, F. S. C. L., International Examiner of the Trinity College of Music, London, visiting in Toronto, is reported as critizing Canadian speech as becoming worse, growing less English and more American. He is himself quoted, "I met an American lady while I was traveling. . ." Does he, it may be asked, prefer "lady" to "woman"?

BRITISH WARSHIPS DAMAGED BY ORDER ENEMY PLOTTERS

Comparing the dismissals with the trial for sabotage of British engineers in Moscow in 1933, Greenwood said "when democracy is being challenged by dictatorship, there is no place in this country for despotism and tyranny."

The motion declared the dismissals were "contrary to the principles of British justice and detrimental to the best interests of the national service." It urged that the men be given a full opportunity to reply and give full details of their alleged crimes.

Four of the dismissed men were at the Devonport dockyard and the other was at the Sheerness dockyard. H. G. Law, the Sheerness employee heard the debate from the visitors' gallery.

The cases enumerated by the First Lord were:

Oiler War Africa at Devonport, 1933, brass filings and sand placed in machinery;

Oiler Oleander at Devonport, 1935, bolts clogged up the engine;

Battleship Royal Oak at Devonport, 1935, pin discovered in fire control cable;

Cruiser Cumberland at Chatham, 1935-36, needle found driven in electric cable.

Wallace Ford, the British film actor, has found his mother after 32 years, at Southport, England.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Hog prices rose 25c during dealings on Montreal livestock markets yesterday to provide the only bright spot of an otherwise declining market. Cattle sold down 25 cents while calves held steady to slightly lower in spots, with sheep firm.

Receipts.—Cattle, 94; calves, 298; sheep and lambs, 33; hogs, 886.

Canners and cutters on cattle section, sold from $1.75 to $2.25 with common butcher cows around $2.50 and mediums from $3 to $3.75. Bologna bulls made $3 to $3.75, with heavy butcher bulls from $3.75 to $4.25, and lights $4 to $4.50.

Bucks on lamb section, sold from $7.50 to $7.75, while sheep went from $2.50 to $4.

Bacon hogs, fed and watered, sold at $8.75, while butchers and heavies made $8.25 and extra heavies and lights, $7.75. Sows sold from $6 to $6.75.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Butter and egg prices held generally steady on Montreal open produce markets.

Graded egg ships in carlots or less were quoted at 24c a dozen for grade A-large, 22c for A-medium and pullets. Receipts, 1,876 cases.

Butter was quoted at 25½c to 26¾c per pound for carlots or less of No. 1, while lots to retailers were 27c for solids and 27½c for prints. Receipts: 633 boxes.

Cheese was quoted at 13c to 13¼c for Ontarios, while Quebecs were unquoted. Receipts: 314 boxes.

Potatoes—P.E.I. Mountains, 90's, $1.93; N.B. Mountains, 80's, $1.48; Quebec Mountains, 80's, $1.38.

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point:

Wheat $1.20 to $1.23, oats 51c to 53c, barley 72c to 74c, corn 71c to 73c, rye 95c to $1.00, buckwheat 80c to 83c, malting barley 99c to $1.03, milling oats 53c to 54c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27. — Mildly erratic throughout a drab session, wheat prices showed no particular trend on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Fluctuations were sluggish, with the trading range limited to 1½ cents. The close was ¼ cent lower to ⅝ cent higher after a session in which most operators apparently were content to await new market developments before making commitments.

Export sales of 200,000 bushels of wheat proved sufficient to take care of the light selling, while price trends in other markets exerted only a transient influence on the local exchange.

Interesting to traders were statistics reporting another decline in Canada's visible wheat supply this week. Stocks on hand now total approximately 104,000,000 bushels, compared with 247,500,000 bushels at this time last year.

Cash-grains spreads were little changed. Coarse grains prices generally were higher.

needed, and will be very acceptable to the local committee, as well as cash donations.

"I am heartily in accord with anything that can be done by the people of this city for the relief of the unfortunate people in the flood areas of the United States,' Mayor George A. Macdonald asserted in giving his hearty endorsation to the appeal.

He said members of the local Kiwanis Club were to be congratulated on their ability to appreciate the deep need of the people in the inundated areas to the south of the border. "Too often," he said, 'we are unable to appreciate the other fellows need and to grumble unreasonably at our own lot. But we should be grateful, that situated as we are, we may enjoy many advantages and go about our daily lives without the fear of flood or famine or some of the other disasters that threaten parts of the world less fortunately located from a geographical standpoint."

Warden Endorses Appeal.

Warden Roy Brown of Apsley, speaking on behalf of the people of the county gave the assurance that the Kiwanians of Peterboro' whom he believed were to be congratulated on their leadership, could count on the sympathetic support of farmers and others.

Adjutant Neil Warrander in charge of the local Salvation Army Corps, who is himself a Kiwanian, said he felt he could speak for the entire membership of the local corps in offering sympathetic support to the campaign.

He declared that while the corps will extend all possible help to the appeal sponsored by the Kiwanis, they are also considering an independent effort to raise money for the relief of distress in the flood areas. He said it had been proposed the local Salvationists donate a retiring offering on Sunday or else stage a musical festival on Monday evening next.

Wide Support Offered.

Chris Graham, president of the Rotary Club and Don Loucks, president of the Kinsmen Club expressed themselves as both being personally in hearty accord with the appeal and declared they believed they were voicing the sentiments of the entire club memberships in offering any possible assistance.

Mrs. Reg. Turner president of Peterborough Red Cross Society announces that cash donations to the appeal being jointly made by the Red Cross organization and Peterborough Kiwanis Club may be paid to Ross Platt, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia or to Thomas McKay, manager of the Bank of Montreal (Water and Simcoe branch).

The Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, immediate past president of Peterborough Ministerial Association commenting on the appeal in the absence of the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, president, declared: "So far as the churches of the city are concerned I feel you can state with every degree of assurance that we will be back of the campaign to offer our support and co-operation in any way possible".

Depots for the receiving of donations have been located at the following points: F. and G. stores at Park and Charlotte; 599 George street and Hunter street east; The Capitol Theatre; Richard Hall Limited; and Al Sharpe's Men's Store.

It is the wish of the committee that employers provide facilities at the various manufacturing plants in the city for the collection of donations from their employees. Such donations will be collected if the committee is notified by telephone.

Never "Fired" Man

G. A. GILLESPIE.

The creamery plant he bought for less than $6,000 now represents an investment of $200,000, and as an employer since 1910 Mr. Gillespie never dismissed an employee, he recalled at a Silverwood's staff dinner in Hooper's tea rooms Tuesday evening. The business has distributed more than $1,000,000 in wages and also in excess of $2,600,000 to the producers of milk and cream in the district.

ORDERS FROM RUSSIA

$20,000,000 in Trade to Include Huge Dry Dock

LONDON, Jan. 27—(C.P.).—Soviet Russia's Trade Department has placed orders for engineering work worth £4,000,000 ($20,000,000) with British firms.

Most of the orders have gone to Manchester and northern districts. One of the largest is for a dry dock of 25,000-ton lifting capacity.

GRAND PRIZE WON BY OMEMEE ENTRY

Bill Weir, Banjo Player, First In Lakehurst Amateur Night Contest

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEHURST, Jan. 28.—Bill Weir of Omemee, banjo player, carried off the grand prize which was donated by W. J. Shearer, at the well-organized and very successful Amateur Night contest held on Thursday night in the auditorium of the United Church at Lakehurst, with arrangements in charge of Arthur Stinson of Peterborough, who teaches at the Lakehurst School, and D. Alexander as chairman.

Despite the icy condition of the roads, there was a large audience and the contest was an unqualified success, with unanimous requests for a similar amateur night in the near future.

In the Junior Division a duet by Beatrice and June Barcroft and a solo by little Caroline Clarkson, were the winning selections. Other winners included Mrs. Fred Clarkson and William Northey, in an instrumental duet; M. Meharrie, who played the harmonica, and George Hutchinson, in piano-accordion numbers.

Others taking part in the program were Miss Mae Northey, in vocal solos, accompanied by Wolsey Northey, harmonica player; Eddy Allen, vocal numbers; B. Weir, B. Thompson and C. Brown, harmonica and banjo trio; the Misses Alma Barcroft and Dorothy Coones, duet; the Misses Wilma and Shirley Hunt, duet; Miss Constance Northey, reading; Melva Faucett and Gerald Westlake, recitations.

The winner of the grand prize, Bill Weir, whose banjo playing was encored repeatedly, also sang a vocal number composed by himself.

26 EMPLOYEES ARE HONORED BY DAIRY FIRM

Silverwood's Dairy Presents Pins To Its Long Service Employees

HISTORY OF COMPANY

First Creamery In Peterboro' Was Opened By Peter Downham In 1906

More than $1,000,000 in the wages of employees and $2,600,000 to milk producers of the district have been distributed by the industry which G. A. Gillespie has directed since 1910, and during those years he has never dicharged a member of his staff.

"And if I had a million dollars I know I could leave it on the floor of the factory and not a dollar would be touched," Mr. Gillespie said at a dinner to his associates of Silverwood's Peterborough Dairy Limited in Hooper's tea rooms Tuesday night at which long service pins were presented to twenty-six of the employees.

George Buller received a twenty-five year service pin, and another for the same period was for Mr. Gillespie himself. He said that Mr. Buller had been engaged with him for thirty-four years going back to the period antedating the old Peterborough Creamery on Aylmer street, "and I hope that he will be with us for years to come," Mr. Gillespie said.

The dinner was a bright and happy affair attended by the members of Siverwood's staff and their wives, comprising a company of more than fifty. At its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Neil Bowles who were recently married were presented with a handsome electric clock by Mr. Gillespie on behalf of the employees and himself. H. Agnew conducted a group of choruses with Miss Olive Rowe as accompanist.

Mr. Gillespie recalled that the picnic for the employees and their families which had been planned last year was cancelled on account of the death of Robert Cleghorn. He explained that the company was giving service pins to all employees of five years' engagement, and those who had more recently joined the staff would be eligible for pins when they have been with the company five years.

Employees Honored

The employees who received pins were: R. A. McFadden, N. Bowles, Don Gillespie, G. Read, H. Holmes and A. Simpson five years; W. J. Faiers, Fred Clack and J. T. Miller, six years; H. Agnew and W. J. Clark, seven years; Miss Eva Fife and G. S. Harrison, eight years; L. Agnew, Grant Gillespie, F. A. McAdam W. H. Whatley, nine years; C. G. Garrison, thirteen years; M. H. Bowler, fourteen years; Miss F. V. Fqote, Isaac Elliott and J. J. McBain, sixteen years; Robert G. Allan and J. H. Rowe, twenty years.

One of the guests was Charles Kennedy, formerly butter-maker with Mr. Gillespie, who is a government inspector under the new butter grading act. Mr. Kennedy is now living in Belleville.

In presenting the service pins Mr. Gillespie paid a personal tribute to each of the employees, mentioning the special part each played in promoting the success of Silverwood's business.

First Creamery in 1906

In a mood of reminiscence Mr. Gillespie recalled that the first creamery was opened in Peterborough by the late Peter Downham in 1906.

"It was practically the first creamery east of Toronto at that time when Peterborough was the centre of a fine cheese district of thirty or forty factories, all selling on the local cheese board. I was inclined to think that Mr. Downham was miscalculating the possibilities of the industry, but he showed that he had a long vision and that he realized the day of buttermaking was coming. Perhaps it was not the best thing for the country because we had built up a reputation for good cheese in the world markets.

Canadian factories combined to make a cheese weighing one ton which was shown at the Chicago exposition. It was drawn through the streets of the city and gained a great deal of publicity for the industry. We have not made a grade of export butter to compare with our cheese, but we are gradually improving the quality and with more education and experience we may be able to capture the British butter market too.

Acquired Creamery

Mr. Dunham died in 1906 and it was my fortune to become the proprietor of the plant which was carried on as the Peterborough Creamery until 1918. I may tell you that it was bought for less than $6,000, and at that time employed two men and one girl.

We went on developing for a few years and in 1914 bought ground and enlarged the building, and in 1918 the period of private ownership came to an end. The Peterborough Milk Products Company was organized and continued until 1930 when we became a unit plant in the Silverwood company. Mr. Silverwood was at one time a school teacher. He was born near Lindsay and used to buy fowl for Flavelles Limited. In 1913 about the year I came to Peterborough Mr. Silverwood went to London with Dundas and Flavelle and eventually bought it out. The Silverwood organization comprises twenty-eight plants. All of them were engaged in the creamery industry and were brought into co-operation by Mr. Silverwood since 1922. They were all taken into the Silverwood organization just as they were and by the turning over of one piece of paper and taking another. Every dollar that was in the Peterborough Milk Products Company is today in Silverwood stock. The plan of organization was simply a joining together of all those twenty-eight creamery plants with the view of each one helping the others.

After the war we had no export markets, and the only thing that held those creameries together and kept them going was the policy of helping each other. If one department or one plant fell down, the others were there to help them over the hill. I can tell you that Mr. Silverwood is one of the most broad-minded, unselfish business men in Canada. He is always thinking of the welfare of the people who are contributing to the success of the business.

Investment of $200,000

Of the Silverwood stock 85 per cent is owned by employees of the company and milk producers, farmers from whom supplies of milk and cream are obtained. The company has come through the years of depression and is in fine shape to share in the prosperity which we believe is coming round the business corner.

It may interest you to know that the plant which I bought for less than $6,000 represents today more than $200,000 invested by Peterborough people some of whom were with our old company and including milk producers.

Distribution of Money

Going back to 1910 when we had a staff of only two men and one girl we have distributed to milk producers at least $2,600,000 and that is placing the total at a conservative estimate; and the wages to our employees since that time have been more than $1,000,000. I mention those figures because I think the company has been of some good to Peterborough, and we have never received any relief or assistance from the city in the form of fixed assessments. We have paid the full taxes levied by the city from the day I owned the plant.

I know that we are putting out products that are as good as any others in Ontario and that applies to the full line of products, milk, cream, butter, ice cream, cheese and so on. I believe that they will stand up against any competition coming into Peterborough in those lines. We have kept our staff at work during the winter seasons, although occasionally on short time, and I can say this that not one of our employees has ever been discharged. Those who have left us have done so on their own free will, usually going to other positions. This is a hurried picture of the business we are engaged in. I am very pleased to see practically every member of the staff here on the very short time allowed for arranging the dinner, and to be with the men and women who are associated with me. Of the twenty-eight Silverwood plants there is none with a better and more loyal group of employees."

Brief concluding speeches by Mr. Garrison, Mr. Allan and Mr. Rowe mentioned the pleasant relations throughout the plant, and in Mr. Rowe's words "largely due to the boss we have had."

Makes A $5 Profit When $4 Sheep Dies

Dundalk, Jan. 27.

DONALD McLean of Shrigley has found out how to make farming pay. A sheep he had sold for $4 died before he could deliver it, but a fur buyer came along, bought the hide from McLean for $1, and advised him to put the carcass out in the field to attract foxes. Yesterday the buyer called again, and McLean had a beautiful fox pelt, which he sold for $8. His seeming misfortune had netted him an extra $5.

Bread Hauled By Boats Through City's Streets

Thousands of citizens marooned in upper stories, without heat or light, in Portsmouth, O., are supplied with bread by rescue workers, who tow it through the streets in rowboats. The current is so strong and treacherous that three men are required to a boat. Bread is delivered through second story windows.

THOUSANDS RACE TIME TO REINFORCE of strengthening the gigantic system of levees.

New dynamite blasts widened the gap in the Bird's Point-New Madrid floodway below Cairo through which flood waters have been diverted into a man-created basin covering more than 200 square miles.

Residents of Tiptonmille, Tenn., and New Madrid, Mo., two riverside towns near the floodway, were warned by George Myer Red Cross national disaster director, to flee lest "they drown like rats in a trap." The levees are sure to break, he said.

Other cities opened their doors to exiles from the flooded areas. Columbus, Ohio, prepared to shelter 5,000 and Charlestown, Mo., doubled its 3,800 population overnight with 2,500 hungry, cold and homeless refugees arriving from Southeastern Missouri. Preparations were made at Memphis, Tenn. to accommodate 50,000 as the exodus from the surrounding country proceeded apace.

Food Runs Low.

Mayor H. R. Debassey of Parkersburg, W. Va., appealed for conservation of food in the face of shortening supplies.

Portsmouth, Ohio, cheered its mayor's statement that "We've got it whipped" while the Ohio slowed toward a standstill and the citizenry turned to restoration of essential services.

In Washington President Roosevelt gave personal attention to coordinating the United States government's relief efforts. He said the emergency in the Ohio River Valley would not be ended until Thursday night.

The House of Representatives approved in lightning fashion the $790,000,000 relief fund bill and sent it to the senate.

ency, he said, he welcomed news of Ontario acquiring control of unallenated water power rights on the Trent River system.

From Wilfred Heighington (Con., Toronto St. David's) came first intimation of Opposition strategy. He suggested appointment of a committee to investigate reports of a power shortage.

"Certainly until the Attorney-General shows us otherwise, we should not be called on to pass this legislation," he said.

D. M. Campbell (Lib., East Kent) commended the present administration of Hydro. Cost to rural consumers in his constituency has been reduced 40 to 50 per cent since 1934. The Legislature had a duty to protect investors in Hydro and the real investors were those who use it.

Mr. Campbell said Hydro reserve should be at the minimum that will guarantee service to the consumer and yet not be a burden to the consumer.

The House adjourned at 11 p.m. Fraser Hunter (Lib., Toronto St. Patrick's) will resume debate today.

a pre-arranged plan. Beds had been barricaded against the entrance to one corridor. Glass window frames started to be smashed all at once. Fires started and it was pretty difficult to get from one place to another because of the smoke.

Dr. Heaslip told how prisoners used clubs to smash windows, beds, and other furniture and how they dashed into the kitchen to eat the meat they claimed was "rotten."

B.N.A. AMENDMENT REVIVED IN HOUSE BY R. B. BENNETT

and its nine provinces to do the same.

Any move, however, would require the backing of public opinion, Mr. King said. He hoped Mr. Bennett's speech had served to open the subject, and that it would be discussed and studied by constitutional authorites throughout the country. A public discussion would go a long way to smooth the path of a convention.

Recent events, discontent in some provinces, and something worse in others, said Mr. Bennett, demonstrated the need of early action. Conflicts between province and Dominion were becoming more frequent and developed on such plainly national subjects that a remedy should be applied. He referred to the debt problem and the breach of contracts by legislatures.

"I suggest that we have a constitutional convention," he said, "a convention at which the provinces of Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, would not be represented merely by the premier but represented by all those who constitute the legislatures of the provinces. Not only in number but representatives of all phases of thought within those legislatures. The same with respect to Quebec, Ontario and the West.

OBITUARY

MRS. ROBERT McGILL
(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 27. — The death occurred at Cochrane, on Saturday, January 23, of Mrs. Robert McGill, formerly a resident of this part of Manvers.

The late Mrs. McGill, whose maiden name was Jennie Argue, was born in Fenelon Township and at an early age came to live at Yelverton, where she was raised and attended Yelverton Public school.

Forty-eight years ago, January 2, she was married to Robert McGill, also of Manvers. For a number of years Mr. McGill was village blacksmith at Lifford. Fourteen years ago Mr. and Mrs. McGill left Manvers to take up residence at Cochrane, where they have since that time lived.

Surviving Mrs. McGill are her husband; one son, Harry McGill of Cochrane, and one daughter (Josephine), Mrs. Harry King, now of Toronto. A daughter, Alma, died many years ago. Two brothers, George Argue of Lifford and Harry Argue of Yelverton, also survive. Two brothers, William and Alfred, predeceased her, as well as several sisters who died in youth.

Mr. and Mrs. McGill enjoyed the celebration of their forty-eighth wedding anniversary this month, and many of the relatives and friends of Mrs. McGill were permitted to meet her on this happy occasion, which was so shortly to be followed by her death.

The funeral services were held in Belleghem's Undertaking Parlors, Tuesday afternoon, with interment in Little Lake Cemetery.

HAD AGONISING PAINS IN HER BACK

Free From Pain Since Taking Kruschen

Like many other sufferers from backache and rheumatic ailments, this woman decided to try Kruschen Salts in a last attempt to obtain relief from pain. To her surprise, the pains did grow less, and in a few months the backache had disappeared. Having made sure of the results, she now writes as follows:—

"For about four months I had agonising pains in my back and could not turn in bed. During that time I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief, and was seriously considering going into hospital. However, seeing a case similar to mine described in an advertisement for Kruschen, I thought I would try it, and was more than surprised to find the pain getting less. I have been taking Kruschen for four months, and would not be without it for anything. I must say I am free from those dreadful pains."—(Mrs.) B. C.

Kruschen is an excellent diuretic—that is, it helps to stimulate kidney functions. When kidneys are restored to healthy, normal action, poisonous waste is properly eliminated, the blood-stream is purified, and you get welcome relief from the dragging pains of backache.

DECORATING RINK FOR BIG CARNIVAL ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Most Advanced Step Is Being Taken In Ice Decoration

SEA-GREEN ICE

If the finished job even approximates designs which were completed on paper today, the Peterborough public is to be treated to something in the realm of the newly-developed art of ice decoration which will surpass anything yet seen on the American continent at the Skating Carnival in the Brock Street Rink Friday evening.

Designs drawn by Andy Rutter of the Winter Sports Committee, in whose hands the matter has been entrusted, call for a basic sea-green ice surface. Unit designs of highly-modernistic line in which several of the more vivid colours of the rainbow will have a place in artistic scheming. Distinctly unusual will be the decorative lay-out around the band stand at the north end of the rink for it is to include even the symbolic inscription of musical notes on the ice surface.

Ice decoration has been demonstrated at ice carnivals in the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto and in the big rinks of the United States such as Madison Square Garden but rarely have the ice makers ventured beyond a simple, uniform tinting of the ice sheet. It remains for Peterborough to demonstrate the most advanced step in the art this week.

Andy Rutter will lay the design himself and he expects the job will require 36 hours uninterrupted work Thursday and Friday. The designs will be painted with brushes on the ice surface. Subsequent floodings will render them permanent.

Harold Rye Reads Reporter Lesson

In a mood censorious tinctured with a dash of sarcasm Harold Rye told off an Examiner reporter Tuesday night in words to the effect that there is no news at the locks dam unless the river is flowing up over it.

"But the eight-foot drop at the dam was reduced to 18 inches," the reporter protested. "Wasn't that worth a story? The river below the dam had risen until it was almost level with the top."

"But, it wasn't level," Mr. Rye retorted. "Anyone could see where the dam was. You were trying to make a sensation out of nothing. You know well enough that it was still away below, probably five feet under the spring freshet level of three years ago."

North Mona(g)han's municipal sage was primed for an argument, and experience on other occasions has left a very definite impression that the axiom about discretion and valor should be remembered when some irritation has perturbed the equanimity of "H.B." One might as well take the squelching as briefly as possible, and wait for another day of encounter on more favorable ground.

To Mr. Rye down in his woodworkshop at the foot of Lock street, the Otonabee is a friendly neighbor that seldom cuts loose on a rampage, and disdains publicity unless as Mr. Rye says it swells to the stage at which it reverses its usual course and flows upstream over the locks dam. And at that level it is trespassing on part of the Rye property, wiping out the junction of Lock and McKellar streets and threatening to move up town. So a reporter was rebuked for fishing a headline out of the river when it was still moving orderly, howbeit a trifle turgidly, downstream, and the Rye tally stick shows to-day another notch of verbal victory,—an easy and hollow one at that. But, there is always another day.

BUTTER GRADING IS BEING CHECKED UNDER NEW LAW

Of 90 Prints Examined Seventy-One Were Correctly Labelled

PICKED UP IN STORES

Of 90 prints of butter produced by 64 Ontario creameries, 71 were truly labelled first grade, 18 second grade and one a third grade, Charles Kennedy of Belleville, district butter inspector under the new federal Dairy Industries Act, told the Silverwood employees at their dinner in Hooper's tea rooms Tuesday night.

The prints were picked up here and there in various retail stores, and were officially tested as a gauge of the first effects of the new regulations. The report from the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, showed that 43 creameries, or 67 per cent. had correctly marked their butter as first grade; and the prints from fourteen other creameries were tested as second grade, being sold under first grade labels. A few of the samples were third grade butter in first grade wrappers.

Mr. Kennedy reported that in his district from Belleville to Huntsville he had found the trade desiring to co-operate with the government in meeting of the requirements of the new Act which came into force September 1 last.

Protection to Buyer

The purpose of this legislation is to guarantee to the purchaser of butter the quality as indicated by the label on the wrapper. It affords protection to the buyer as official assurance that he is getting grade of butter for which he is paying. If he wants to buy a second grade butter he may do so, but if he demands first grade he has the government's inspection as evidence of that quality. The grading of butter was sought by the Cream Producers' Association for their own protection because it required butter to be accurately graded, and would prevent the selling of second and third grades in unfair competition with butter of the highest quality.

Careful Handling

It will likely develop that retailers generally will take more pains in the handling of butter, especially to keep it separate from such goods as onions, coal oil and so on, whose odors are readily assimilated by butter. Most stores take these precautions now, but the careless retailer is bound to be checked up by the new system of inspection which should make him more careful of his butter storage. On the other hand creameries are likely to be more interested in the retailing of their products, which includes the handling of butter in the retail shops.

Inspectors are gradually applying the full effect of the regulations as they give retailers and creameries every opportunity to adjust themselves to the new Act.

WEDDINGS

COWARD—MANLEY

The wedding of Elva Jean Manley, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Manley, to Clifford Albert Coward, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Coward, both of Otonabee, was solemnized quietly at the Manse of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

The bride, who wore a tailored dress of dark green crepe, was attended by Miss Isabel Coward, sister of the bridegroom, while Alan Manley, brother of the bride, was best man.

After a trip to Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Coward will reside in the township of Otonabee.

Davies, Miss A. Milburn, Miss I. Connelly and A. Noftall (Program); Mrs. R. Gurney and Mrs. Constable (Social); Mrs. C. Gardiner, Mrs. G. Worboy, and E. Frost (Membership); Mrs. Huffman (Welfare); Mrs. C. Gardner (Flower).

Following the installation of officers, brief speeches were made by Mrs. Spicer and Mrs. Darling, the latter thanking the ladies and teaching staff and asking for continued co-operation, and G. S. Mattice, who expressed appreciation of the work of the association.

A short program which was much enjoyed, included piano solos by Donald Spicer and Billy Allen, and a vocal solo by Mrs. N. Todd.

The ladies received a cordial invition to attend a tea to be held at the home of Mrs. W. R. Morris on February 6 by the Home and School Council, when Mrs. E. E. Reece of Birchcliffe will receive with Mrs. Morris.

Three rooms shared the honor of the banner; those taught by F. Frost, Miss G. Coulter and Miss M. Richardson.

The Most Colorful Spectacle of the Year
SKATING CARNIVAL
PRESENTED BY THE TORONTO SKATING CLUB
FRIDAY, JANUARY 29
At Brock Street Rink

Twenty-five of the outstanding figure skaters of Canada, including the North American Champion, Junior and Senior Canadian Champions and Olympic representatives, will stage a colorful exhibition of figure skating, waltzes and formation skating. This spectacle is a preview of the magnificent Skating Carnival presented each year in Toronto by the Toronto Skating Club, with all the new lighting effects and brilliant costumes.

200 extra theatre seats have been installed on the east side of Brock Street Rink so that as many people as possible may see the Carnival.

PLAN DOG DERBY FOR SATURDAY

Race Will Start at The Y.M.C.A. At 10.30—Open To Boys 16 And Under

SINGLE DOG HITCH

Tall streamlined dogs and short muscular dogs. Mongrel dogs and thoroughbred dogs. Yellow dogs, white dogs and black dogs. Any kind of dog is eligible for the big dog derby to be staged in the city Saturday morning.

The big race will begin on the icy road surface at the Y.M.C.A. on north George street—that is, if the Weather Man is kind enough to leave sufficient ice. At 10.30 a.m. the starting gun will sound and the city's first dog derby will be under way.

The course extends somewhat over a mile in length. Racers will proceed north on George street to Park Hill road, east on Park Hill road to Water street, and directly down Water to the finish line at the Post Office. Thomas A. DeForge of the Service Cigar Store, who is sponsoring the race with the co-operation of the Peterborough Winter Sports Committee is arranging for a prominent cast of starters, referees and judges.

The race is open to youngsters 16 years and under. The regulations call for single dog hitches, but any type of sleigh will be allowed. First prize is $18 in merchandise donated by J. J. Duffus; second is $10 in merchandise donated by Zellers, and a handsome pair of C.C.M. skates and boots has been donated for third prize by H. T. Millard. John Hill and John Steinkrauss have provided other valuable prizes.

A WARSHIP RAID

Rebel Craft Seizes Red Vessel Despite Seaplane Attack.

SANTANDER, Spain, Jan. 27 (A.P.). — Despite bombs dropped from a government seaplane, the insurgent warship Espana to-day succeeded in a daring seizure of the Socialist patrol boat Alejandro at the very entrance to this Bay of Biscap harbor.

The Espana's anti-aircraft guns replied to the attack from the air and kept the bomber at bay until the raid was completed.

Hilda Wilson, aged 63, who claimed to be the fattest woman in the world and weighed 644 pounds, died at a fair in London while taking part in an exhibition.

ROWE IS GIVEN 15-MONTH TERM

Bonnisteel Also Of Lindsay Sentenced To Three Months

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Appearing on remand for sentence on three charges of theft of a motor truck and breaking and entering and theft, Royden Rowe of Lindsay was this (Wednesday) morning sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to not less than 15 months in Ontario Reformatory and an indeterminate sentence not to exceed 6 months.

Dealing with his companion, Cleveland Bonnisteel, also of Lindsay, the magistrate sentenced him to three months determinate and three months indeterminate in Ontario Reformatory on two charges of breaking and entering and theft.

The charges related to a recent escapade in which the young men stole a motor truck from outside Empress Hotel here and then drove to Warsaw and broke into the store of Hilliard Darling and the office of George Taylor and stole cigarettes and stamps.

Addressing Rowe, the magistrate told him: "These were very deliberate crimes. You young fellows must not get it into your heads that poverty is an excuse for crime. In these modern days there are so many societies offering assistance to those in genuine need that there is no excuse for theft."

Bonnisteel, on whose behalf L. M. Frost, K.C., recently made an eloquent appeal for suspended sentence, was told by His Worship: "Yours is a particularly painful case, but you are the one who brought trouble on yourself. I cannot take into consideration who your antecedants might have been in dealing with this matter. The fact that they were good people is less excuse for your participation in this most serious crime. I am going to give you a light sentence, however, in the hope that you will have the sense to straighten up and re-establish yourself."

The defendant's widowed mother who was in court, buried her head in her hands on hearing the sentence and she sobbed brokenly.

With the Girl Guides

FIRST PETERBOROUGH

The 1st and 3rd Companies of the Peterborough Girl Guides held a joint meeting at headquarters on Simcoe street.

Patrol leaders fell in and marked paces. Horseshoe formation was practised. P.L. Irene Houghton was presented with a five-year star and was made company leader. This was a pleasant surprise to the entire company and was a well-deserved honor. Joan Patterson of the Nightingale Patrol was presented by Moira Whalon for enrolment. The colors were then marched off.

Instruction in marching drills and forming fours was given by Hazel Bradley.

We were then gathered together for camp-fire, where we discussed the cooking sale. A letter of thanks from the head of the Shelter was read by our captain. We had a sing-song and closed our meeting with the Taps.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS.

The first committee meetings of the new council will be held Thursday night.

BEGIN REHEARSALS.

St. Peter's Dramatic Society is beginning rehearsals for its annual 17th of March play. The offering this year will be "The Blarney-Stone" and it is expected that George Lynch will lend his services to coaching the cast.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

A large delegation of priests and laity from the Diocese of Peterborough, under the leadership of the Very Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, is expected to attend the first Canadian Archdiocesan Convention of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine to be held in Toronto on January 29, 30 and 31.

GUESTS AT EMPRESS.

A. P. Whitely of Whittaker's Harrowgate, England, is among the guests registered at the Empress Hotel. He is paying a visit to the local branch of the firm. Other guests at the Empress are J. E. Bettley of Montreal and D. Rodgers of Ottawa, Sun Life officials, G. E. Kennedy, Prince Edward Island, W. A. Jones of Warren, Ohio, F. C. McDiarmid and T. Carr of Ottawa and L. Moreau of Montreal.

TRIAL IS ADJOURNED.

Trial of Roger McMillan of Norwood on a charge of converting to his own use $10 alleged to have been collected by him for the William A. Richardson insurance agency in Norwood, was adjourned until February 11 when the Crown had submitted its case yesterday. V. J. McElderry, K.C., is conducting the prosecution and T. J. Carley, K.C., the defence.

COUNTRY ROADS ARE BAD.

Although the provincial highways in this district are in fair condition for motor traffic, county and township roads have been almost impassable during the past two days. The road surfaces are glazed with ice over most stretches and motorists have had difficulty avoiding the ditches. Hills offer the most serious difficulty, and detours around the steeper inclines have been necessary. Even sharp-shod horses have had trouble.

FRACTURES HEEL.

F. R. Jennings, middle-aged employee of the Quaker Oats Company, was admitted to Nichols Hospital Tuesday following an accident which resulted in a fracture of the main bone in his right heel. He had climbed on top of a box car of grain to set the brakes when he slipped on the icy roof and plunged to the ground, narrowly missing the steel rails.

JAMES HALES IS BURIED.

Representatives of legal circles, civic bodies, temperance organizations and the United Church of Canada on Tuesday paid tribute to James Hales, K.C., at the funeral service held at Sherbourne Street United Church, Toronto. A private service was held earlier at the late residence. Rev. Dr. Richard Roberts, assisted by Rev. MacGregor Grant, conducted both services. Mr. Hales, former head of Ontario License Commission, was born in Otonabee.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

County Council officials are planning to inquire to determine whether the county or city is responsible for the safety of children who slide in Victoria Park and for the safety of motorists who use the roadway in front of the county buildings. Some reeves are of the opinion that, although the city is allowed to care for the park, the county would be legally responsible for any accidents which should occur. Councillors are also considering the advisability of erecting a guard rail to lessen the danger of cars toppling down the steep incline from the Court House driveway.

AT SEED SHOW.

A. D. Runions was in Millbrook today assisting A. E. Summers, Durham representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, in judging the exhibits at the annual seed show by county farmers.

COLLECT $365,000.

General Motors Corporation on Tuesday gave to 871 employees in Oshawa $365,000 as their share in the $10,700,000 which is being distributed amongst all members of the corporation's employees' saving and investment plan class of 1931.

HELP FLOOD SUFFERERS.

At the regular luncheon of the Belleville Rotary club this week a substantial grant was voted to the American Red Cross as a contribution toward the relief of the flood sufferers. The grant was made on motion of E. P. Bernstien, past president of the club.

WELCOME DONATIONS.

Two very welcome donations have been received by the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition in the shape of $100 cheques from Conklin's All-Canadian Shows whose big carnival will be the Midway attraction again this year and George Hamid, Inc., the New York booking agents from whom the Peterborough Industrial obtains its vaudeville acts.

CLAIM AGAINST PORT HOPE.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. is acting on behalf of J. T. Steen, a Port Hope merchant who is instituting proceedings against the corporation of Port Hope for damages done to his property by the recent flood which inundated the lower part of the town. Steel claims that the damage was the result of negligence on the part of the town in allegedly interfering with the flow of the Ganaraska River.

LECTURE IS POSTPONED.

In order to avoid conflict with the Peterborough Winter Sports Committee's skating carnival at the Brock Street Rink Friday evening, the Friday Night Supper Club has postponed the university extension lecture which was scheduled for that evening this week. Many members of the club are planning to attend the carnival and see Canada's premier figure skaters in action.

KNOX CHURCH Y.P.S.

Motion pictures exhibited by R. E. Knox of the Canadian General Electric were a feature of the Knox Young People's Union meeting Tuesday evening. Interesting shots of the manufacturing processes at the C.G.E. were included in the reels. Stuart Laing, Peterborough's representative to the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament, told the meeting of the work of the parliament at its recent session.

GROUP OFFICERS.

Officers of the North End group of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church for the coming year will include the two past leaders, Mrs. C. Curtis and Mrs. W. G. Morrow; the leader, Miss Lena Eakins; the recording secretary, Mrs. D. Dickson; the corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. Doughty; the teacher, Mrs. A. Seal (re-elected), and convenors: Mrs. Ed. Smith and Mrs. J. Bateson (Social); Mrs. W. Steinkrauss (Program); Mrs. George Lockington (Telephone); Mrs. E. Barrie (Membership).

SEATS STILL AVAILABLE.

The demand for reserved seat accommodation at the Skating Carnival Friday evening is continuing. Winter Sports Committee officials announced today that 150 half dollar admissions have been blocked off for the reserved demand. The 50-cent accommodations are located adjacent to the main reserve sections on either side of the rink. Regular $1.00 reserve seats in choice locations were still available today.

MRS. C. M. SCOTT IS RE-ELECTED

convention hymn, it was interesting to note, was the composition of Rev. Stanley Scott, brother of Dr. C. M. Scott. At the afternoon session, Mrs. H. V. Dobson sang sweetly the sacred solo "I Shall Not Pass this Way Again," with Miss Mabel Clarry as accompanist at all sessions.

The literature secretary announced the results of an interesting reading contest throughout the Presbyterial, with Norwood evening auxiliary coming first, and George St. Auxiliary, second.

Again, at the supper hour, the delegates enjoyed a delightful banquet, when a very sincere address of welcome was voiced on behalf of her society by the president, Mrs. S. D. Carver, to which Mrs. H. Robb of Havelock made gracious response. Much unfinished business was completed including the following appointments: Special objects representative, Mrs. W. H. Morton; Delegate to Whitby summer school, Mrs. Reynolds, Norwood; Nominating committee, Mrs. E. Mesley and Mrs. W. W. Leonard. Plans for the proposed visit of Miss Evelyn Mitchell, field secretary to this Presbyterial, were adopted. Mrs. Leonard read the report of the courtesy committee and Mrs. H. P. L. Seymour that of the resolutions committee.

Missionary Playette

As a pleasant interlude came the amusing missionary playette, "The Fountain of Youth," splendidly presented by three mothers of the Mark Street Baby Band: Mesdames Earl Borland, Wright and H. Alton. In an interesting manner, this little fantasy emphasizes the "youth-giving" qualities of the W.M.S. Between acts, in recitation, "The Childrens' Pledge," and in concertina solo little Miss Betty Adlam and Master Ross Cribbis provided entertainment.

The delegates then adjourned to meet again in the various group conferences, including Baby Band workers, Mission Band, Mission Circles and Auxiliaries. Here, a helpful interchange of ideas was conducted, and many new suggestions were brought to light on these different phases of missionary endeavor.

At these annual gatherings the evening session comes as a culmination of the inspiration of the day, and this year's service, commencing at eight o'clock, was no exception. Rev. G. S. Easton, pastor of the church, presided and conducted the opening worship, which he based upon the prophecy of Isaiah.

An appropriate and beautifully rendered solo, "Spirit of God," was contributed by Mrs. R. Cowan of Trinity choir, while members of the Mission Circle assisted in receiving the offering.

At this time, the Presbyterial President, Mrs. Scott, expressed appreciation for all those contributing to the success of the gathering. She also brought a message of inspiration from the branch president, Mrs. W. L. Smythe, and in a few words introduced the speaker of the evening.

The convention was fortunate in securing as guest speaker the Rev. R. M. McMullin, B.A., B.D., formerly of Korea, who, in his illustrated address, brought the "Land of Dawn" most realistically before his hearers. Dividing his lecture into two parts, the speaker spoke on "Korea —Old and New," showing characteristics of the country and of the dress and customs of the people. He pointed out the strategic position of this hilly little country, situated as it is between China, Japan and Russia, and emphasized especially Japanese influence upon the various industries. Several views showed the excellent work being done by our missionaries in schools, churches and rural areas. In contrast were pictures depicting the ancestor worship, the grotesque images and the spirit houses of "Old" Korea. Vast improvement was noted in recent years, and the future of the Christian religion in Korea is most encouraging.

A closing hymn and the benediction pronounced by Rev. A. S. Cleland, chairman of Peterborough Presbytery, closed another inspiring annual meeting for Peterborough Presbyterial W.M.S., which will meet next year by invitation in Knox United Church, Peterborough.

SITTING AT LINDSAY.

In addition to presiding over his own court here, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., is sitting on the Bench at Lindsay in the absence from duty of Magistrate A. E. Gee. The latter is confined to his home with eye trouble, it is learned.

PARKING INFRACTIONS.

Levying fines of $2 and 75 cents costs in each of five charges against local residents laid under the city's parking by-law, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., warned that any further breaches of the ordinance would be more severely dealt with. He particularly deplored the all-too-common practice of double-parking.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

Appearing on remand to face charges relative to the recent theft from a parked car of ten bottles of liquor, three young men were this (Wednesday) morning dealt with by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. The first of them was sentenced to two months imprisonment on pleading guilty to stealing the liquor; charges against the second man were withdrawn by the Crown; while the third youth was convicted on a plea of guilty of unlawfully consuming and was ordered to pay a fine of $15 and $3 costs.

JOLLEY AGAIN TOPS BATTING AVERAGES

Wins Championship And Four Other Titles But No Majors Will Chance Him

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (A.P.). — The tragedy of Smead Jolley is retold once more in the official International League batting averages for 1936, released to-day.

The Albany outfielder, one-time fly chaser for Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox, long has been among the heaviest hitters in organized baseball. He proved it again last year, winning the league batting championship and four other assorted titles.

Yet he is one of only two men in the loop's first 10 hitters who will not get a chance in the major leagues in 1937. And all because as a fielder, he makes a good plowhand.

Last season he clouted the ball for a .373 average, nosing out Phil Weintraub, Rochester's first sacker by two points in the final standings, with Johnny Dickshot of Buffalo third at .359.

Jolley's fielding, however, remained so mediocre that no major league club is willing to take a chance on him. The White Sox did it in 1930 and were rewarded with a .317 batting mark, but a .950 fielding performance. In 1931, again with Chicago, he hit .300 and fielded the magnificent total of .857.

The following year divided between Chicago and Boston, he batted .312 and fielded .946. That was his last chance under the big tent.

The only other first-10 hitter in the International League who will be back next season is Est. Crabtree of Rochester, who finished sixth with .346.

Weintraub to Reds.

The others will see action in half a dozen spring training camps. Weintraub gets his chance with the Cincinnati Reds. Dickshot is reported as a sure bet for Pittsburgh Pirates' outfield. Frank McGowan, veteran rookie from Buffalo, finished fourth in the batting race with a .356 mark, and as a result gets a chance with Boston Bees.

Athletics picked up Second Baseman Bill Cissell, who hit .349 for Baltimore. The Bees took Burt Fletcher, Buffalo's first baseman, who had a .344 average. Others coming up are: To the Giants, Les Powers, Baltimore first baseman, who hit .340; to the Red Sox, Buster Mills, Rochester outfielder, with .331; and to Washington, Roberto Estaleda, Albany third baseman, also with .331.

Jolley had it all over any other batsman like a tent. In addition to his batting championship, he won titles for the most base hits, 221; total bases, 345; doubles, 52; and singles, 142.

The only new league record produced goes down opposite the name of the veteran Max Bishop, although he saw action in only 20 games for Baltimore, on August 22, he worked opposition pitching for six bases on balls in one game.

Woody Abernathy of Baltimore, as usual, came up with the home run crown, slamming out 42, and added the run scoring title with 132 tallies; Mills drove in the most runs, 134; Babe Dahlgren of Syracuse, new member of the Red Sox cast, led in triples with 21; Buffalo's Marvin Olson made the most sacrifice hits, 19.

Rochester's Red Wings led the batting with a .296 average, trailed by Buffalo with .292 and Baltimore with .282.

VINES TAKES LEAD BY BEATING PERRY

Californian Tops Series By Making It Three In Row From a Briton

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—Ellsworth Vines, gangling Californian, who holds the world's professional tennis championship, defeated Fred Perry, British star, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, last night to take the lead for the first time in their cross-country tennis trek.

Playing before a crowd of 3,000, Vines made it three matches in a row over the graceful Briton. The United States ace had his powerful game under full control.

Perry broke Vines' service in the first game of the opening set and took a three to one lead in the games. Vines then held his service and broke through the Briton's to square the set. Vines reeled off three games to win the set.

Perry held his service to start the second and, after Vines had taken his service, the Briton captured the next two games to lead, three to one, in games. Vines broke Perry's service in the next game, but Perry retaliated and took his own service for a five to two lead. Perry came back after Vines had won a game to take a love game and the set at six to three.

Vines opened the third and deciding set with a victory and both players held service through the ninth game. Perry's strokes went awry in the tenth game and Vines broke through his service with the loss of only one point to take the set and match.

The meeting was the eleventh for Vines and Perry, each player having won five times previously.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

THREE BLOOD and Thunder Loop puck brawls are billed for tonight on the ice of the Brock St. rink. At seven or so, Bewdley tangles with the Outboard Marines; followed pronto by Millbrook and ye merry Mayfairs; with Lakefield and Westclox winding it up in what should be the best scrap of the eve. Each tilt lasts an hour if there are enough on their feet to ice two teams for third periods! This Senior City Hockey League—affiliated as an O.H.A. intermediate "B" circuit—is made up of six teams of men who play men's hockey. It is no place for Lydia Pinkham and her Pink Pills for Pale People. The lads throw their whole souls and hearts into the game—and sometimes all their knees and elbows, too! And the customers love it.

* * * * * *

GOOD ROBUST hockey is a sight to see. We like to see the players smacking each other plenty and battling hard. But illegal tactics should be squelched at the start of a game, otherwise someone will be hurt. Players are padded up pretty well and supposed to be in good condition. They should be able to take it or hand it out. But high-sticking or butt-ending is dangerous and may result in broken ribs or loss of an eye. And if a guy has to fight, let him drop his stick and swing his dukes; if he swings his stick suspend him from further play in the league.

* * * * * *

WHETHER OR not there is snow for ski-ing here this weekend, the big figure skating carnival Friday night at the Brock St. rink will go ahead as scheduled, with the public fancy dress carnival for prizes Saturday eve at All Saints' rink—and also Saturday a.m. the dog derby (from the "Y" up George, over Park Hill Road and down Water to the Post Office) if the streets aren't dry. The Friday night program at the Brock is a pip and should dazzle folk with its colorful pageantry, costumes, intricate figure skating and music. Looks like a sellout that p.m. and deservedly so, as the Carnival Committee has chosen the best artists in the country.

* * * * * *

LET'S LOOK over the basketball situation locally this week-end. Ladies League games at the Y.W. have been postponed owing to the figure skating that eve. P.C.I. senior boys go to Lindsay that night, while the P.C.I. girls and the junior boys have games in Port Hope On Saturday e'en at the Y.M.C.A., St. John's play St. Paul's in a Church Loop bantam final at six, with St. John's Juveniles meeting St. Andrew's at seven. Senior City Loop tilts that evening will not be postponed but will run in this order: C.G.E. vs. R. Neill Ltd. at eight, and Dominion Life vs. P.C.I. at nine.

* * * * * *

IT SEEMS the Petes crossed us up last night here when they breezed through the Belleville Redmen for a 12-4 smirk. We had predicted a tight tilt—but there was nothing tight about that but the smile on Manager Thomas' pan. However, as Belleville held the Fliers to a 5-4 score last week while the Fliers beat the Petes 7-3, you can't blame us for figuring the Quinte crew must be tough. It's an odd one to figure. According to their showing last p.m. the Petes should knock over the strong Fliers from Trenton without much trouble. Fans are all asking now how come the Airmen beat 'em by a 7-3 score. Probably the Fliers had a little edge on condition while the locals lacked confidence. But neither point will bother our squad next game.

* * * * * *

THE PLAYERS were told before the game: "Now you've got the kind of ice tonight that you go best on—go out there, turn on some real speed, pass the puck plenty and play straight hockey." They did just that. Their speed and swelegant passing plays had the Quinte club hanging on the ropes most of the way, and the stick-handling and shooting left little to be desired. Despite the fact that the score was high and the game apparently pretty open, our defencemen all looked fine. They bumped the boys from Greater Belleville around hard and had 'em shooting from outside the last while. And the goalie was good. The losers tried hard enough but couldn't cope with that fast systematic style of hockey.

* * * * * *

THE CALLADINE-VITARELLI-BURTON line looked exceptionally well. Bill had his tricky stickhandling in top form, Ned battled away in his usual tireless and effective style, and Les was really clicking and doing some lovely sniping in close. The McDougall-Creighton-Coughlin line was smart in spots, but generally more as individuals when some of their passing missed fire. The fans seem to like Shrimp's tricky work in around defence and goal. Gardner and Williamson seem to be hitting their stride lately, while Magee is nailing 'em hard on defence and Weir is getting back to the fine form he showed two seasons ago. Clark ties himself in knots between the gas pipes and the opponents have trouble untying them. The boys tackle the Redmen in Belleville Friday and should repeat the win.

* * * * * *

THIS ITEM was in the Belleville paper: "Out in Peterborough the city fathers are hoping for a good fall of snow for their annual Winter Sports Carnival this weekend. Every known winter sport is on the three-day program. Last year the carnival proved highly successful but Peterborough citizens look forward to a bigger and better program this year. Local persons interested in ski-ing, tobogganing, speed and fancy skating, should take a jaunt to the Liftlock City and take in the sights. To add color and glamor, there will be parades, bands, et al, with outstanding skiers and skaters imported. Personally, we had hoped something of this kind would have developed in Belleville before this but it looks as if Peterborough business men and citizens have beaten us to the punch and are making their annual Winter Sports Carnival a splendid advertising medium."

HUSTLING KNOTTY AGAIN IN PAPERS

Former Local Baseball Coach On Organization Tour Through Eastern Ontario

The former Petes' baseball coach, Knotty Lee—coach now of Ogdensburg Colts in the Can.-Am. pro ball league—is being written up regularly by papers in Eastern Ontario and Northern New York as he hops from place to place organizing teams. The following appeared recently in the Brockville Recorder:

"Looking as chipper as ever and exhibitng a substantial weight gain since the closing of the baseball season last summer, George (Knotty) Lee blew into town Wednesday afternoon in the course of a tour of towns and cities in the Canadian-American Baseball League. Knotty hasn't changed a bit and is most enthusiastic over the prospects of a banner season at the helm of the Ogdensburg Colts.

"To Lee goes the credit of organizing the Canadian-American League and of making Ogdensburg baseball conscious after some 20 years of diamond inactivity. Lee is so popular in the 'Burg he would be given the city hall if he needed it for baseball purposes, and the fans there (and there are plenty of them) regard him their A-1 booster.

Plans Bigger Loop

"The astute manager of the Colts has extender his connections during the winter and in his present tour is giving a personal touch to negotiations which will lead to the extension of the league to an eight-club circuit. He assured baseball interests here that Perth Crescents, 1936 champions, are well set with Buffalo sponsorship this year and Smiths Falls is applying for entry in the league. He visited Peterborough on Monday. From Brockville, the hustling Knotty proceeded to Cornwall with the intention of also visiting Ottawa, Massena, Watertown, Oswego and Ogdensburg.

And this item appeared Saturday in the Ogdensburg Advance News: "Knotty Lee's in town. The line forms to the right. Knotty blew in with some snow, which just goes to show you that Knotty always brings something with him when he comes across the line. Last spring he brung up to the gates of our city some ball players of the King's Domain, and our gendarmes what guard our shores, looked at them suspiciously and then told 'em to go back to Prescottown and wait until the bond came around the mountain.

"You know the rest. We lost 13 straight games at one time last season. Well this time, 'tis different. Knotty comes to town with tidings of great joy and devotion for the fans. Since the King abdicated, Knotty has been a different man. He can see ball players now with his eyes shut, and has been traveling around with the air of a plenipotentiary bent on spreading the gospel of the ball, bat and glove, with the ticket furnished by the National Association. The Good Will Ambassador from Torontown is gay and carefree. There are baseball pennies in heaven waiting to rain down on the pasture of the Colts when they gather here not too many weeks hence, to cavort out at Winter Park where at this writing skates meet the ice and flesh bounds up therefrom as the band plays: 'You're My Black and Blue Baby.' Knotty Lee's in town! Call out the guard."

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(A.P.). — Babe Ruth and Joe McCarthy are still nursing their old feud. . . . Joe gave a dinner to the New York baseball writers night before last. . . . All good American Leaguers were there. . . . But the Babe was not invited. . . . "Guess McCarthy's still sore," chuckled Ruth to-day.

Joe's Backers say the fight started over the Babe's feeling that he should manage the Yankees instead of McCarthy. . . . Incidentally, the notion that Ruth's bitter about not getting a big league manager's job is strictly the bunk.

Colonel Rupert's refusal to let him go to the National League when the Reds wanted him rankled a little, but he knows how his chances of getting a major league shot are slim.

Our dope is that Comedian Al Schacht, once a major league pitcher, sold himself from the Jersey City club to Clark Griffith of Washington by sending letters to Griffith about "a great young pitcher called Schacht" and signing them "A Fan."

Jim Londos is wrestling in South Africa and doing all right. . . . But as "Jeem" will tell you, he has to do at least all right because most of his money's sunk in a New York Hotel.

Group C, in the schedule seems to be providing the most interesting race so far. Up until Tuesday night Wallace Harvey and J. Skinner were tied for the first honors, but Wallace succeeded in defeating Jimmy and now Wallace leads with four straight wins—he is followed closely by Tom Donaldson with two wins.

The rest of the boys are right in there with only one loss and no one can tell what will happen. . . And by the way in that same group Norman Hamley won his first schedule game last night while Oscar McGill keeps up his losing streak.

In Group B there are several rinks tied, each having lost one game. . . As in the other group when Norman Hamley won his first schedule, the same thing happened to R. F. Downey in Group B when he met and defeated the other half of the Hamley family.

We believe that a number of mixed rinks from Bobcaygeon will be down on Saturday night to play in the first round of the "Horkness Trophy."

Bobby—"The last minute and a half, sir."

RAMBLER FORWARD LEADING SCORER

Clint Smith Takes Jackson's Place After Latter Goes To Toronto

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 27.—(A.P.).—Clint Smith, capable Philadelphia Ramblers forward, took advantage of the departure of Art Jackson from Syracuse Stars and rose to the scoring lead in the International - American Hockey League during the past week with 34 points, 16 goals and 18 assists.

Jackson, who led the loop for weeks, went up to Toronto Maple Leafs nearly two weeks ago, but left a records of 33 scoring points behind him in the int.-Am. League.

Thus his name remained near the top in the official scoring list released to-day, in a three-way tie for second, with Jack Markle of Syracuse and Bryan Hextall of Philadelphia. Hextall came along with a rush, adding five goals and two assists to his record. He has the most goals of any player in the league—21.

Eleven of the 15 top scorers in the league are on the roster of either the Syracuse or Philadelphia team.

Jack Church, Syracuse defenceman, who is more than familiar with every penalty box in the circuit, has a total of 30 penalties, leading the "bad man" class by a wide margin. Leading scorers:

	G.	A.	P.
Smith, Philadelphia	16	18	34
Jackson, Syracuse	15	18	33

Petes Swamp Redmen In Impressive Style Before Large Crowd

Local Intermediates Hang Up 12-4 Victory Over Belleville Squad With Flashy Com bination And Fast Skating

FIRST-STRING FORWARDS STAR

The Petes moved into a virtual tie for first place in their O.H.A. intermediate group here last night by knocking over the Belleville Redmen, 12 to 4, before a big crowd of fans. In a speedy game on fast ice, the locals showed too much class for the Quinte crew and outplayed them from start to finish. They had a 5-1 lead in the first frame and were in front 7 to 3 heading into the third.

Flashing a fine passing attack and showing a lot of speed, the Buckland boys took command of the situation halfway through the initial inning and piled up the count from then on. They spotted Belleville a goal practically from the first faceoff and were a bit slow then in starting. But after that they were too good—even though Belleville held them even on scoring in the middle chapter. The good work of the defence and the excellent combination and speed of the forwards, with tricky stickhandling and deadly shooting, had Belleville baffled most of the way. It was a clean game with only three penalties drawn.

FIRST LINE STARS.

Calladine, Vitarelli and Burton starred offensively for the homesters, with McDougall showing nice flashes of form at times. The other forwards also turned in a good game. Clarke made some smart saves in goal for the Petes and his defence was strong. Weir, Magee, Gardner and Williamson all looked good defensively, body-checking effectively to stop dangerous Quinte thrusts. But the first forward line carried off the main honors with some beautiful passing and stickwork in close to keep play in Belleville territory minutes at a time. The losers kept trying but did not show much the last half of the game. The Jackson brothers, St. Louis and Morgan went best for them.

Almost from the opening faceoff, St. Louis backhanded one by Clarke on Morgan's pass. Play was fast and even for a time with Burton being robbed in close. Calladine evened the count halfway through with a fluke goal, his shot from the corner glancing in off Watts' stick. The Petes began to press and carried play from then on. Burton scored on Vitarelli's pass on a lovely play, Morgan went off for tripping McDougall who was right through, but Calladine's penalty shot was blocked. The Petes ganged up hard to get two in a hurry, Calladine going through neatly alone for one and Burton getting another on Calladine's assist. Just before the bell, Creighton went in fast to bat home Williamson's rebound on a long shot off the end boards.

Even In Second.

It was fast and fairly even for a time in the second, but the Petes soon showed an edge. Belleville tallied first when Barriage took W. Jackson's pass at close range. Calladine got it back on Vitarelli's corner passout. Magee was robbed by the goalie and later St. Louis got through but missed an open net. McDougall scored a smart one, aided by Creighton, and C. Jackson took W. Jackson's pass to get it back. A Calladine-Vitarelli combination was robbed by the net-guardian as the period finished.

The home team had most of the play in the fast third heat. They scored in the first half minute, Calladine taking Vitarelli's pass in close. St. Louis got the finger for boarding and the Petes peppered the goalie as they turned on a nifty power play. Weir went off for tripping as St. Louis got back and Belleville ganged up but could do nothing. McDougall broke clear and scored a nice one, jerking the goalie out with a fake shot first. Clarke had to hop to save two hot stabs and then C. Jackson scored in a scramble. But McDougall took Creighton's pass and circled the net to get it back, and St. Louis went off hurt. Burton took passes from Vitarelli and Calladine to tally and Calladine scored on Weir's assist. Gardner was thefted of one late on a nice lone rush.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Watts; defence, Bentley and Murphy; centre, St. Louis; wings, Burley and Morgan; alternates, Barriage, C. Jackson, W. Jackson and McGuire.

Petes: Goal, Clarke; defence, Weir and Magee; centre, Calladine; wings, Vitarelli and Burton; alternates, McDougall, Creighton, Coughlin, Gardner and Williamson.

Referee, J. Sabatino of Lakefield.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press.)

Harvey Jackson of Toronto Maple Leafs and little Aurel Joliat of Montreal's fast-flying Canadiens were the only ones of five scoring leaders who saw action last night to improve their positions.

Jackson, continuing his rapid rise towards the top of the parade, used his team's only goal to move into a fourth place tie with Johnny Gagnon of Canadiens. Joliat went a point ahead of Amerks' Art Chapman by his two goals against Maple Leafs and thereby pushed the idle Bob Gracie of Montreal Maroons out of the picture.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Aurie, Detroit	17	12	29
Schriner, Americans	12	16	28
Barry, Detroit	8	19	27
Gagnon, Canadiens	13	13	26
Jackson, Toronto	13	13	26
Joliat, Canadiens	14	10	24
Chapman, Americans	6	17	23

Connell Is Out

Old "Father Time" is beginning to take his toll of some of the N.H.L. stars. The latest put out of action is "Dead Pan" Alex. Connell, Montreal Maroons' goalie. Due to a severe cold and a couple of cracked ribs Alex, has found it necessary to rest for a couple of weeks. The 35-year-old veteran was replaced by Bill Beveridge, Maroons' spare goal-tender. Connell, the Ottawa fireman, is shown.

AMERKS BLANKED BY BLACK HAWKS IN 9 TO 0 DRUBBING

Chicago Power Plays Prove Too Much For Helpless New Yorkers

CHABOT HAS BAD NIGHT

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Jan. 27. — (CP). —The lowly Chicago Black Hawks cut loose last night with the wildest scoring spree of the National Hockey League season and rifled nine goals past Sadeyed Lorne Chabot, as they held New York Americans to a 9 to 0 shutout.

The previous high mark this season had been seven goals, while the Hawks' best mark had been five. Nine thousand fans watched the game.

"Pep" Kelly, sharpshooting wingman of Chicago, recently obtained from Toronto Maple Leafs, led the sniping with three goals; Paul Thompson rang up two, while the others went to Earl Seibert, Wildor Larochelle, Johnny Gottselig and Pete Palangio. Gottselig also drew three assists.

The Hawks got the drop when Kelly slammed in a pair of counters in the first frame. Thereafter the Amerks had to open up wide in an effort to score, and the Chicago marksmen took full advantage of their opportunities on break-away plays.

Mike Karakas, keen-eyed young Chicago goaler, played a spectacular game and was frequently applauded by the fans. Lorne Chabot of the Amerks showed a weakness on long shots, although he was good at halting short-range efforts.

The Hawks played without "Doc" Romnes and Mush March, both out through injuries.

First Period.

1—Chicago, Kelly (Trudel) 9.08
2—Chicago, Kelly (Gottselig, Trudel) 19.11

Miss Kidd's Rink Won Lakefield Bonspiel

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27 — The final game of the Open Bonspiel by the Lakefield Ladies' Curling Club was played off on Saturday, January 23 in the Lakefield Rink.

Miss Elsie Kidd's rink won the championship when they defeated Mrs. Fred Wannamaker's rink 8 to 5. The score was tied many times during the play and it was anybody's game until the last end when Miss Kidd added two points to her lead of 1 to carry off the championship with a 3 point lead.

The bonspiel which commenced in the week between Christmas and New Year's, was a knockout contest and was open to all ladies in the village. There were nine rinks entered. Owing to bad weather conditions, and the playing of regular games, some of the bonspiel matches had to be postponed so that the contest was not completed until January 23. The results follow:

First Round

Miss Elsie Kidd	9
Mrs. H. E. Moore	3
Mrs. D. H. Charlton	9
Mrs. E. H. Northey	1
Mrs. Geo. Graham	5
Miss B. Charlton	4
Mrs. Fred Wannamaker	12
Mrs. G. Renwick	2

MAPLE LEAFS TAKE BEATING FROM CANADIENS

Strictly Defensive Tactics Of Montrealers Displease Toronto Crowd

SCORE IS 3 TO 1

Joliat Sinks Two For His Outfit —Jackson Tallies For The Leafs

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Les Canadiens increased their lead in the international section of the National Hockey League when they outscored Maple Leafs 3 to 1 at Maple Leaf Gardens last night. And, the Habitants' chances of staying on the top rung appear to be very good, if they continue to adopt the strictly defensive tactics that spoiled considerable of the game for the big crowd.

Midweek games, other than play-off contests, usually do not draw big crowds here but extreme interest in the progress of the crippled Leafs was proved last evening when 11,167 cash customers were on hand. They could have been provided with a better all-around display, but the Frenchmen evidently wanted that win—and they took the crowd-displeasing way to do it. They iced the puck down the rink through the entire third period, and also got the final goal of the tilt in a breakaway from the Leaf's persistent pressure. It was certainly a bit odd to see the usually wide-open Canadiens doing the safety-first act to the nth degree.

Joliat Scores Twice

Leading the winners' successful sniping was little Aurel Joliat, who had two goals to his credit. Jack McGill netted their other one. Toronto's lone marker was from the stick of Harvey Jackson.

Most of the real action was confined to the first period, when three shots sank into the strings behind the goalers.

No goals were registered in a second period that saw the Canadiens' front lines often using a "trailer" for protection, although the veteran first-string trio of Morenz, Joliat and Gagnon turned on the heat occasionally. Leafs drove in hard, but lucklessly, and Apps and then Drillon failed when in good scoring position. The line led by Bill Thoms also came to life and attacked hotly in spots, and young Art Jackson, who centred the third array, also showed up better than in other home games. Canadiens had few scoring chances in the middle session.

One in the Third

Height of something or other was shown at the start of the final period when Coach Irvin sent the young line of Art Jackson, Davidson and Jarvis against the experienced Morenz and Company.

The crowd booded heartily when the great oldsters took up the tactics of Defenceman "Babe" Siebert and merely heaved the rubber down the ice. The almost inevitable happened when Morenz fed a pass to Joliat in centre ice, and the little winger got around Hamilton, the lone safety man. He then drew out Broda and dumped the disc into the empty cage at 18.36. And that wound things up the sour way for the fans.

Play was very clean, and only three penalties, all minors, were dished out. Hamilton got two, and Buswell the other. And, even though the Leafs lost, it must be said that the refereeing was better than in recent games.

Canadiens did not use George Brown, their injured centreman, and, of course, Pete Lepine is still on their hospital list. The Leafs' casualty list of Conacher, Boll and Wendall were sorely missed in last night's puck party.

Canadiens.—Goal, Cude; defence, Buswell, Mackenzie; centre, Morenz; wings, Joliat, Gagnon; subs, Siebert, Lorrain, Miller Brown, Haynes, McGill, G. Mantha, Desilets, Blake.

Toronto.—Goal, Broda; defence, Day, Hamilton; centre, Apps; wings, H. Jackson, Drillon; subs, Horner, Fowler, Metz, Finnigan, Thoms, A. Jackson, Jarvis, Davidson.

Officials—Bill Stewart and Bill Shaver.

First Period

1—Canadiens, Joliat (Morenz) 2.15
2—Leafs, H. Jackson (Apps, Drillon) 17.09
3—Canadiens, McGill (Lorrain) 18.55
Penalty—Hamilton.

Second Period

No scoring.
No penalties.

Third Period

4—Canadiens, Joliat 18.36
Penalties—Buswell, Hamilton.

WRECKERS DEFEAT NORWOOD JUNIORS

First Game On Havelock Ice Is 6 To 2 Victory For Homesters

(Examiner Correspondence.)

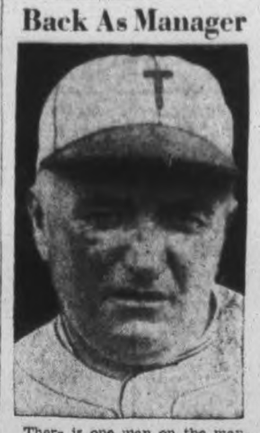
HAVELOCK, Jan. 27.—Havelock hockey fans witnessed their first game of the season on local ice, when the Wreckers defeated Norwood Juniors in their third game of the Kawartha Junior League, by the score of 6 to 2. The first line of the Wreckers, Hagerman, McMullen and Ketchen, were outstanding for the locals, while Godin, B. Webb and B. Lumsden were about the best for Norwood. Teams:

Havelock.—Goal, J. Peters; defence, J. Aboud and G. Whitney; wings, J. Ketchen, R. Hagerman and L. McMullen. Subs., W. Moore, S. McCutcheon, E. Hoffman, and Fred McLaughlin.

Norwood.—Goal, M. McMaster; defence, D. Bedore and B. Puffer; wings, W. Godin, B. Webb and B. Lumsden. Subs., T. Baskin, G. Innis, H. Godin, J. Baskin, and D. Clarke.

Referee—E. Hamlin.

Back As Manager



There is one man on the managerial end of Toronto's International league ball club who is wearing a happy smile. He is the former manager, Dan Howley, who has been with the club for three terms before. He came to Leafs in 1918 and again during the years from 1923 to 1926. During part of the season of 1933 he again managed the club. He has two league championships to his credit. Mr. Howley, who is pictured, is extremely well known throughout the baseball circuits.

SPURT BY RANGERS DEFEATS BRUINS 3 TO 0 IN THIRD

All Night's Scoring Comes In Final Seven Minutes Of Play

SHORE INJURES LEG

BOSTON, Jan. 27 (C.P.). — A three-goal spurt in the last period last night gave New York Rangers a 3-0 shut-out over Boston Bruins, and sent them up within three games of the section-leading Detroit Red Wings.

All the scoring came during the last seven minutes of play, but the last two goals were registered while the Bruins had five forwards mobbing the enemy zone in a desperate attempt to wipe out the first goal, made by Phil Watson with Ott Heller's assistance.

Alex Shibicky supplied the second goal after taking the puck away from Bill Cowley in the centre zone and out-skating all the Bruins to their cage. When the Boston goaler came out to smother and guessed wrong, Shibicky rapped the puck inside in very deliberate fashion.

The final tally, made 18 seconds before time expired, was poked home by Cecil Dillon in much the same manner.

During the goalless play, both teams performed in efficient, but unexciting fashion, and the victory-starved Boston rooters, who have been denied a home victory five times in a row, were not aroused until Jack Portland and Lynn Patrick, son of the visiting manager, put on an earnest fist-fight late in the second period, after the Bruin had suffered a hard board check.

Previously Eddie Shore was jammed against the backboards, and he was forced to retire with an injured leg.

First Period.

Ferguson's Cop Nod Over Hastings Team

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 27. — Hastings hockey teams got their first taste of the brand served up in the Campbellford Town League, and it is a brand that should pack them in, if Monday night's game here is an indication of the type played. Before a fair-sized crowd that braved a chilly wind Ferguson's of Campbellford defeated the local Bruins 3-1. The game was of the real blood and thunder kind, neither side asking quarter and only that the referee was very lenient with the boys, many more penalties were deserved.

The first period was a scoreless session, with neither outfit showing anything to impress the fans. In the middle chukker the winners nipped a pair of counters by Bush, while the best the locals could do was one by Stevenson.

In the final, Hastings carried the play to the visitors for the major portion, only to have Atkinson catch them all up, to give Ferguson's a safe lead. Sticks were high all through the period, with the result members of both squads received some nice cuts to take home.

Ferguson's.—Goal, Turner; defence, Bush, Free; centre, Keating; wings, Free, Smith. Subs.—Smith, Atkinson, Outinetyke, Wilkes.

Hastings.—Goal, Bonds; defence, Thompson, Hahn; centre, Stevenson; wings, Sargent, C. Scriver. Subs.—M. Scriver, McKee, C. Rote, G. Scriver, L. Scriver.

Referee—A. Turner.

ABERHART, ADVISER HARGRAVE REACH PARTING OF WAYS

Premier Brands Him Faithless —Suspects Sinecure Motive In Dealings

LATTER HEADS EAST

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

EDMONTON, Jan. 27—(C.P.). — Premier William Aberhart and John Hargrave, Social Credit technical adviser, were at the parting of the ways to-day and the people of Alberta had two conflicting press statements to lead them to an understanding of the breach.

Hargrave suddenly left Edmonton yesterday "because I regretfully find myself unable to co-operate further with Mr. Aberhart and his Cabinet." He was understood to be on his way to the East, either with a stop-over at Winnipeg or Ottawa or directly on his way to England, where he is Leader of the Social Credit Party.

In a press statement last night, Premier Aberhart struck back at his adviser, terming him a "faithless man" and an "ambitious egotist even though he be a self-styled advocate of Douglas Social Credit."

The Alberta Premier said: "I fear this is but another attempt by some unknown person or persons, through the instrumentality of some undisclosed medium, to make our task all the more difficult."

He also said: "I am sorry to say we are forced to conclude that Mr. Hargrave is an irresponsible person who has had some sinecure motive in coming to our Province. I am glad, however, that we have not become too greatly involved in our relationship with him."

Haven't Lost Faith

The Aberhart statement declared "we haven't lost our firm belief in Social Credit principles."

It contained also this declaration: "I am confident that as Premier, I can leave the judgment of this case fully in the hands of all the supporters of the government, knowing that they realize that we are citizens of this province, desirous of doing the very best we can for the improvement of conditions and also that it is our intention to continue our citizenship in this province for many years to come."

The Hargrave statement, delivered to the press a few minutes after he caught a train out of the city, said in part: "I still feel the first Social Credit Government in the world is not yet publicly committed to the principles of Social Credit. I still feel that it lacks technical knowledge, and, as a consequence, it has, over the past 18 months, groped its way like a man stumbling along on a pitch black night."

Hargrave became technical adviser to the government's Social Credit planning committee after he arrived in Edmonton December 8.

CARDS AND DANCING AT LIFFORD LINE

Enjoyable Party Held In Community Hall With Good Attendance

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 27—On Friday evening, January 22, a jolly card party and dance was held at Lifford Community Hall with a good attendance, the roads being in excellent condition for motoring and the weather mild. At the conclusion of several games of progressive euchre, prizes were awarded to the winning lady, Mrs. John Henderson, and the winning gentleman, Larry McCullum. Consolation prizes were awarded to Miss Evelyn Finney and Earl Lathangue.

The floor was cleared for dancing and excellent music was provided by Robert Sisson and George Tims. Round and square dancing was enjoyed until the small hours of the morning.

Mrs. Wm. Lathangue was a business visitor to Lindsay on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cephas Staples and son, Lawrence, were business visitors to Bowmanville on Thursday afternoon.

Lifford School has been closed for the past week owing to an epidemic of severe colds.

Mrs. Percy Preston accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Bill Chapman of Port Perry to Peterborough on Sunday afternoon to visit their brother who is a patient in Nicholls Hospital.

There was no church at Lifford on Sunday owing to the unfavorable weather conditions.

Monday morning found the roads in this locality in a very dangerous condition. Several local teachers and students were unable to reach their schools.

A number from here motored to Peterborough on Tuesday to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Robert McGill.

Mr. Herman Thorne of Omemee is busily engaged in sawing wood for local farmers. The only beneficial feature regarding lack of snow is the favorable conditions for wood-cutting except in low lying flooded areas.

GRAFTONS FORM MEMBERSHIP GUILD

Grafton Guild Is Open To All Staff Members Of Five Years' Service

An association known as the "Grafton Guild" has been organized by the firm of Grafton & Company, Limited, for its staff members. The Guild is open for membership to anyone who has been in the employ of the firm for at least five consecutive years, and is open to the staffs from all branch stores as well as the head office.

To each member as he or she qualifies is sent a certificate of membership. The men's certificates are sent out already framed, but those won by the women members of the organization are nicely tied up with a piece of red ribbon. The certificate has a heavy border around it, at the top is the Grafton Crest, with the words below: "Grafton Guild Continuation Certificate." The text of the certificate is: "Having completed the required number of years of continuous service in the employ of the clothing organization known as Grafton & Company, Limited, Mr. ——— is entitled to all rights and privileges which accrue to membership in the Grafton Guild."

Colonel Grafton is the only Diamond member, having completed 60 years' service, and so is Honorary President of the Guild. W. A. Davidson is next in the Golden section with 55 years to his credit, and is Honorary Vice-President. H. L. Conway, formerly of Peterborough, for 40 years, managing director.

Local Members of the Guild and their numbers of years are:

W. G. Hughes, manager, 33 years; J. H. Conway, 22 years; J. C. Best, 21 years; H. Chate, 15 years; C. Frost, 10 years; C. Nixon, 7 years; George Wesley, 6 years; Mrs. Welsh, 20 years; G. Green, 11 years; F. Curtis, 10 years.

There are 116 members who make up the total membership, with 33 in the five-year class, 22 in the ten-year group, 17 in the 15; 9 in the 20, 12 in the 25, 14 in the 30, 7 in the 40, and one each in the 50 and 60 groups.

FRANCO-TURKISH DISPUTE ENDS.

GENEVA, Jan. 27 (CP-Havas). — The Franco-Turkish dispute over the status of Alexandretta was settled yesterday after an official agreement between representatives of the two powers.

Under the terms of the accord the Alexandretta region, on the border of Turkey and French - mandated Syria, is raised to the rank of an independent administrative entity, but will still owe allegiance to Syria, when France yields its Syrian mandate three years from now.

MARMORA

Among those from Marmora who attended the Kinsmen's Ball in Belleville on Friday evening were Tom Crawford, Roy Smith, Bob Scott, Grace Crawford and Annie Bailey.

COTTESLOE

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Patterson visited on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Brown, Elgin.

A large number of young people met for an enjoyable evening on Saturday at the Oakdale rink.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Toms, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Cuffe.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston Blakely and Elton visited on Sunday evening at the home of Mr. Henry Dewart.

Miss Dorothy Kelly, P.C.I., spent the week-end at her home here.

Mr. Donald Forsyth, Lily Lake, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Forsyth.

Sunday Service

The sacrament of the Lord's supper was observed at the afternoon service here on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Cleland took for his topic "Souls and Soils" taken from Matt. 13.-3, showing the different kinds of soil into which the word is being sown and the different results, some bringing forth thirty fold, some sixty, and some a hundred fold. The attendance at the service was very good.

FLAG FROM VIMY RIDGE.

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP). — The first of the flags which adorned the Cenotaph in Whitehall last July 29 when the Canadian pilgrims to Vimy Ridge held their memorable service there, will be presented to the City of Toronto, Brig.-General Alex. Ross, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, announced here yesterday. The ceremony of presentation will take place at City Hall, Toronto, next Monday.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE RACE

"Look out! Look out!" cried the queer little animal who had said he was a snow jumper. "Keep back, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Keep back of what?" asked the rabbit gentleman who was riding down the Duck Pond on a cake of ice that was almost tipping over. "Do you mean back of a post or back of the fence?"

"Keep back from the edge of the ice cake boat you are riding on," said the snow jumper. "You are too close to the edge. That's what makes it tip. Get in the middle!"

Uncle Wiggily tried to do this. But he wasn't quick enough. Farther and farther tipped the ice cake and the jolly old rabbit gentleman was just about to slide off into the cold water when the snow jumper leaped aboard to the far side of the cake.

That tipped it the other way and, as a sailor would say, once more it rode on an even keel. So everything was all right and now Uncle Wiggily had a passenger on his ice boat.

Tired of Waiting

It wasn't really an ice boat, Mr. Whitewash, the Polar Bear gentleman, who had offered to take Uncle Wiggily riding on a real ice boat, was a little slow getting it out. So Mr. Longears went off by himself. Mr. Whitewash was chasing after him on another cake of ice, as he used to ride at the North Pole. But Mr. Longears didn't know that.

"Thank you, snow jumper, for tilting my cake of ice back on an even keel," said Uncle Wiggily, pretending to be a sailor. "But what was that you called to me about not wanting to be late at the race?"

"I'll tell you about it, Uncle Wiggily," said the snow jumper. Truly he was a funny animal as he sat down near Mr. Longears on the ice cake boat that was swirling down the Duck Pond. The snow jumper was like a kangaroo, having very long hind legs and short front ones. But he was also something like a goat, Uncle Wiggily had never seen such a queer animal. He was very friendly, though.

"I go around to different places where they have snow jumping races," said the queer animal whose professional name was Quiffy. "You have heard of golfers going around to golf races, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes," said Uncle Wiggily, sitting a little nearer the middle of the ice cake to "trim ship", as a sailor would say.

"And you know how some chaps go around, racing in autos, don't you?"

Never Races in Auto

"Oh, yes," said Uncle Wiggily, wishing his pink twinkling nose wasn't so cold. "I have an auto myself though I never race it. It has bologna sausage tires."

"How interesting," said the snow jumper whose name was still Quiffy. "I sprinkle them with red pepper whenever I want to go extra fast," said Mr. Longears.

"Say, I never thought of that," laughed Quiffy. "Have you any red pepper now, Mr. Shortears?"

"Longears is the name," said Uncle Wiggily. "But why do you want red pepper?"

"To sprinkle on my hind legs so I can go very far in the snow jump race," was the answer.

"Sorry, but I haven't any," said Mr. Longears.

"No matter," said Quiffy. "Here we are at the race. All ashore that's going ashore!" he cried in a loud voice. He and the rabbit jumped off the ice cake boat just as it broke into many pieces and there they were at the race. A Police Dog was running and barking: "Get a program or you can't tell the winners! Get a program!"

And if the laundry horse will call and get the pussy cat's collar to starch, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's big jump.

Vestry Meeting Of St. Mark's Church Hears Reports Of Successful Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Jan. 28.—The annual meeting of St. Mark's Church was held on Wednesday evening of last week in the Sunday School rooms, the Rector, Canon W. G. Swayne, presiding and A. B. McComb acting as vestry clerk.

The People's Warden report presented by W. J. Barlow and Rector's Warden report presented by J. F. Baker, showed all indebtedness to Dec. 31st, 1936, paid in full and small cash balances on hand. Interesting reports were received from the Senior W.A. and the Junior W.A. presented by Mrs. Mel. Fitzgerald and Miss Margaret Barlow and showed much work done by these organizations. Report of the Men's Club was given by president A. B. McComb and St. Mark's Sunday School by Supt. J. F. Baker.

The following officers for the ensuing year were elected and appointed: W. J. Barlow, People's Warden; J F Baker, Rector's Warden; M. Fitzgerald and W. R. Belcher, delegates to Synod; sidesmen, Chas. Nobes, Chas. Benson, Morley Barlow, Jesse Barlow, Ralph Fleming, Ward McInroy, Ronald Brown and Jason Baker; executive committee, the Rector and Wardens and M. Fitzgerald, Jesse Barlow, Chas. Lough, S. S. McComb, Thos. Prest, W. S. Stiles and Mesdames S. S. McComb, M. Fitzgerald, A. V. Brown, and Chas. Lough; auditors, A. B. McComb and C. Lough; caretaker, Mr. H. Skerritt.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the organist, Mrs. (Rev.) W. G. Swayne for her splendid service as organist and choir leader during the past years and also to the Rector and Wardens and officers of the various organizations which have done so much to make 1936 one of the most successful years in the history of the church.

Personals

Mr. A. V. Brown is quite ill since Sunday last but has improved somewhat during the last few days.

Miss Leola Pollock spent the week-end with her parents at Keswick.

A new stove has been installed in the school house, S.S. No. 5.

Mrs. John McLaren and family are visiting for several weeks with relatives in Trenton.

A large number from this vicinity attended the dance held at Springbrook under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 442 on Friday evening of last week and all report an excellent time. Splendid music was furnished by Messrs. C. Allen, M. Bell and M. Stapley, with Mr. Stuart Bronson as floor manager.

Mr. Earnest Stiles spent the week-end in Toronto visiting his sister, Mrs. Reg. Cross and family.

Sciatica Relieved; Energy Regained

Tonic Way Drives Out Pain; Brings Health.

Try the tonic way to drive out that punishing, stabbing pain of sciatica that seems like a knife stab in your hip and thigh. Take PHOSFERINE, first to help drive out the pain, and then to build up your nervous and physical energy so that life once more looks bright.

"After taking only four doses of PHOSFERINE," writes Miss I. Bayles, Derby Street, London, "I was able to move about with ease, and I am glad to say I am now quite restored. On previous occasions PHOSFERINE has saved me from severe nerve pains and sleepless nights."

PHOSFERINE feeds your troubled nerves. It is concentrated nerve nourishment. As it does so, your general health is rapidly improved. You begin to eat better, and you sleep like a log at nights. Take this tonic way of escape from sciatica and rheumatic pain. Get PHOSFERINE from your druggist now. 50c, $1.00 (4 times as much), $1.50 (8 times as much—get this large economical size). 66

BAILIEBORO

THINK PHEASANTS WILL BENEFIT BY UNUSUAL WINTER

Will Come Through In Better Condition And Will Be Safer

A BIRTHDAY PARTY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 27—Few pheasants have been seen in this district this winter but the mild weather which has prevailed no doubt accounts for the birds making themselves scarce.

During the past two or three years since an open season was declared the birds have been becoming scarce. Last fall, however, no open season was allowed and in this district it was believed that pheasants were more plentiful. During the early part of the winter when the snow was deep and zero weather prevailed the stately ring-necks began to muster around the barns and orchards in search of food. W. H. Barnard had a flock of about fifteen come each day for grain which he left out for the birds, but once the snow disappeared the birds vanished.

It is generally believed that the open winter will not only give the pheasants a decided advantage to winter in a healthy condition, but will also aid them in seeking safer hiding paces to remain at night away from the birds and animals of prey. Each winter season there is a high mortality among these lovely birds caused by owls, hawks, as well as skunks, foxes and other fur-bearing animals.

For many years the fox has been almost extinct in this district, but this season several have been reported seen and it is thought that they are again becoming numerous and will be a great enemy of the pheasant.

A Birthday Party

Mrs. Dawson Rutherford was hostess on Saturday evening to a number of the friends of her father, Mr. John Greer, in honor of his birthday anniversary occasion.

The guests were served an oyster supper by the hostess who was assisted by Mrs. George Fletcher and Mrs. Geo. Milburn of Peterborough.

At the conclusion of the supper hour those present made the surprise presentation to Mr. Greer of a beautiful fountain pen. The presentation was made by Mr. James Roddy, who also spoke a few words wishing Mr. Greer on behalf of those present many happy returns of the day.

The remainder of the evening was spent in a favorite pastime, when the village fathers played euchre to their heart's content.

Among those present were, Messrs. Howard Barnard, Bert Perrin, James Roddy, Geo. Milburn of Peterborough, Bert Byers, Richard Thompson, Otfa Williamson, Dawson Rutherford, Reg Armstrong, Joseph Lang, Geo. Fletcher and John Greer.

Personals

Miss May Finnie of Canton spent the week-end the guest of Miss Edna Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. White have returned home from visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thompson and children of Peterborough spent Sunday guests of friends in the district.

Among those from the village who attended the dance at Centreville on Friday evening were, Misses B. and A. Barnard, Jean and Jessie Anderson, I. Campbell, W. Gainer, E. Jewison, R. Dawson, H. Armstrong, R. Staples, M. Earl, M. Brackenridge, Mr. and Mrs. F. Barnard, and Messrs. H. Jewison, M. Barnard, I. and M. Jewison, N. Fry, H. Lang, H. Seens, A. and K. Dawson, J. Armstrong, E. and R. Brackenridge, A. Brackenridge, H. Fair, N. Earl, E. Barnard and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Milburn of Peterborough were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Rutherford on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson and little son of Millbrook were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Wicks on Sunday.

Miss Clara Seens, who was a delegate from the Young People's Union of the United Church to the Bay of Quinte Conference winter school at Lindsay, returned home on Saturday.

Mrs. George Tabscott and little son Billie are visiting friends at Port Hope.

Mr. Norman Earl has purchased a new car.

Mr. W. D. Hibbard completed the task of filling his ice house on Saturday. It is estimated he has stored about fifteen hundred blocks of ice for use during the summer months.

TRENT RIVER

PLANNING TO HOLD VALENTINE SOCIAL

Home And School Association Decide To Stage Event Next Month

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 27.—The regular monthly meeting of the Home and School Association was held recently at Old Havelock School House. The meeting dealt chiefly with the program for the February meeting. It was decided to have a Valentine social with a program committee consisting of Miss Gena McNeely, Mrs. Roy Longmuir, Elton Huble and Ralph Buchanan.

Miss Ruth Menzies presided over a contest with Mrs. Wesley Johnston and Mrs. John Menzies as group leaders. Mrs. Johnston's side were the winners.

An interesting feature of the evening was a spelling match under the direction of Miss Gena McNeely. Suitable prizes were given, Mrs. John Menzies group were the winners. The next meeting will be held February 10th.

Ex-Kaiser Ill

Still weak after an attack of influenza, Germany's ex-Kaiser has abandoned his daily walks and early morning workouts at the woodpile, reports from Doorn, Netherlands say. Almost 78-years-of-age, the former Majesty has always been an early riser and a man who believes in exercise.

HASTINGS

CAPTAIN IS HOST TO HOCKEY TEAM

Elgin Players Are Guests At Most Enjoyable House Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 27—On Friday evening, Mr. Fred O'Grady, captain of the Elgin Hockey club, entertained E. Preston, J. Stinson, G. Richardson, J. Richardson, J. Preston, L. Fleming, C. Metcalfe, R. Richardson, R. Scott, H. Thistlewaite and M. Scott, members of the hockey cub and their many friends at the home of his parents. Over one hundred and twenty were present for a real night's entertainment consisting of round and square dancing with the serving of dainty refreshments at midnight. During the evening tickets were sold on a bag of flour and Mrs. F. Crate of Hastings held the lucky number.

Hydro Subscribers

The following in the Elgin Settlement, Mr. H. Thistlewaite, Mr. A. E. Metcalfe, Mr. S. McGee, Mr. Ted McGee, Mrs. J. Buck, Mrs. J. Scott, and Mrs. E. Waters are having their homes wired for electricity. The Hydro men have the line near completion.

Institute to Meet

The February meeting of the Hastings Women's Institute will be held in the council chambers on Tuesday afternoon, February 2, with Mrs. Chas. Dodd as program convener. The guest speaker who will give the topic will be Rev. D. K. Perrie of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Chas. Dodd will give a talk on the motto, "Purpose is what gives life its meaning," and the roll call will be "A Canadian article every woman buys and where made."

On Saturday afternoon the committee in charge of preparations for the birthday tea and sale of home cooking to be held on Saturday, January 30, met at the home of Mrs. H. Stephenson and completed arrangements.

Personals

Mr. Purdy of Wycliffe College will conduct services in St. George's Anglican Church on Sunday, January, 31, morning and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dalnard of Toronto were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Dalnard.

SELWYN

The many friends of Mr. Sam Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hughes, will regret to learn that he is seriously ill and was removed to the hospital in Peterborough on Sunday evening.

Misses Elda Sanderson and Edna Elliott spent last week the guests of the latter's sisters in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Tully and daughters Grace and Shirley, of Omemee, called on friends in the village on Sunday evening.

The many friends of Mrs. Lewis McIlmoyle will be sorry to learn that she is confined to her home through illness.

On Sunday evening, January 10, the Warsaw Radio Station, WEZ, owned and operated by Mr. Hilliard Hamblin, was tuned in by some local radio fans and was heard exceptionally well. This station is situated on the banks of the Indian River, near Warsaw.

On Friday evening, January 29th, Miss Meta Thorn of Omemee will present her travelogue, "My Trip to Vimy" in the Selwyn United church. This promises to be well worth hearing, and everyone is invited to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyle and sons Harold and Charlie, visited with their daughters and sons-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Len Forsythe and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bell on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald, Miss Emma Elliott and Mr. Isaac Elliott, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dobson in Peterborough on Saturday.

On Friday evening last Mr. and Mrs. Reg. McConkey opened their home for an evening of dancing sponsored by the hockey club of Bridgenorth. Mr. Herbert McConkey supplied the violin music for dancing.

For Quick Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Splendid Results. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

You'll never know how quickly and easily you can overcome a bad winter cough, until you try this well known recipe. It gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money and you'll find it very pleasant and dependable, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle. Add your syrup and you have 16 ounces of medicine that will surprise you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This home mixture takes right hold of a severe cough. For real results, you'll say it's splendid. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you perfectly.

GUARD THINKS GUELPH RIOTS WELL ORGANIZED

Claims Disturbance Was Not Spontaneous—Lauds Halting Gifts

ENCOURAGED GAMBLING

Admits No Emergency Drill Or Pre-arranged Plans For Trouble

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 28—(C.P.)—There is no doubt but that the reformatory riots here January 17 were organized well in advance, Guard Rhodes Fawcett to-day told the inquiry conducted by Judge James E. Madden.

"The disturbance was not spontaneous," he said. "It had been unusually quiet during the morning, but starting after dinner at noon when 25 refused their food, they became restless.

"I closed the gate and held it to keep the men in their corridor, but I was unable to lock it because I had no key. They pushed the gate open, would not pay any attention to orders," he said.

"One prisoner had a baseball bat and was breaking up chairs and tables with it," said Fawcett. "There were five or six baseball bats taken out of the schoolroom."

Paintings, drawings, instruments and $26 in cash, a total of goods valued at $176.50 were taken from Fawcett's quarters, he told the inquiry, adding his hobby was painting and drawing.

Used Gifts in Gambling

Prisoners at the Reformatory gambled with dice, using toilet articles received as gifts, said Guard Fawcett.

"Where did they get dice?" asked Judge Madden.

"I don't know. We always took them away if we saw them," was the reply.

"It was a very good thing to stop parcels from coming in," Fawcett added. "Some men would get cigaret lighters, razor blades, shaving soap and other toilet articles and having them encouraged gambling.

"If they had no articles to gamble for, then they would spend their leisure time differently."

"How long has this been going on?" asked Judge Madden. "Have parcels been coming in since you came here 21 years ago?"

"Yes, parcels were coming in freely when I came here 21 years ago. Five years ago all parcels were stopped except those containing toilet articles, and in November the toilet articles were stopped."

"Was a bulletin posted that all parcels were stopped?" asked J. G. Gillanders, K.C., commission counsel.

"No, I happened to hear of it from the tower guard when I went on door duty one Sunday."

"Was there any drill or pre-arranged plan you, as a guard, could follow in the event of an emergency such as this disturbance?"

"No."

Guard Fawcett said he could not lock gates to the various corridors without calling the guard from the tower. He said he had no key to lock the gates to keep the men confined to their quarters when disturbance was first actively threatening.

"The guard at the tower is needed there because he has charge of all gates," Fawcett said, declaring guards did not possess keys to lock gates.

The prisoners had no valid cause for complaint as regards food, he said.

NEW VOLUNTEER STEP ADVOCATED

Britain Tells Germany She Is Ready To Discuss Recall Fighters From Spain

LONDON, Jan. 28. — The British Government has informed Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini she is ready to discuss the recall of volunteers from Spain. The discussion would be before the International Non-Intervention Committee.

The British action is the sequel to banning of British volunteers for Spain. This ban, however, did not apply to volunteers already there. Replying to the British appeal for international agreement to ban volunteers, Italy and Germany raised the point of the men already there. Britain is now ready to discuss their recall, but does not pronounce on the question of whether such a recall is feasible.

PROPOSES CANADA HAVE 1,000-PLANE AIR DEFENCE ARM

British M.P. Would See Each Of Colonies With Similar Force

FOR COLLECTIVE SECURITY

SWANSEA, Wales, Jan. 28.—(CP Cable.) —A complete air defence force of 1,000 fighting planes was advocated for Canada to-day by Sir Henry Page Croft, Conservative Member of Parliament for Bournemouth.

'Collective security within the Empire is essential," he said, "in view of the failure of collective security for the world."

Commenting on the need for air strength and equality in the air with the next largest power, Sir Henry urged that Canada, Australia, South Africa and India should each provide immediately a complete defence air arm of 1,000 planes. New Zealand should have an air force of 400 planes, he said, while each Crown colony should equip from five to 20 squadrons according to its means and population.

Sir Henry suggested loans should be floated by City of London at the lowest possible interest rates to develop the Empire, and that such rates should be made available particularly to those Dominions willing to equip themselves with an adequate system of air defence.

"What is needed is a new spirit of kinship, re-union among al lour peoples of common breed in a common purpose," he declared. "We are fools not to stand together when separated we may perish at the hands of a covetous martial state."

FLOWER-INSPIRED SONG

Tiny Yellow Flower Inspired Olcott to Write "My Wild Irish Rose."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. Jan. 28, —(CP)—It was a tiny yellow flower that inspired her husband to write the song "My Wild Irish Rose," Mrs. Chauncey Olcott, here on vacation, said to-day.

She and her husband were walking at Glengaris, County Cork in 1898, when a boy gave her the flower and, asked what it was, he replied:

"Sure, it's a wild Irish rose."

Mrs. Olcott still has the rose, pressed in a book.

SCHOOL DISTRICT IN DROUGHT AREA SHOWS SURPLUS

Coal Traded For Taxes In High Financing To Put Board On Sound Basis

TEACHERS WELL PAID

CLIMAX, Jan. 28.—(CP)—Climax School District, in the heart of the drought area southwest of Regina, boast a record of all due bills paid and a favorable bank balance.

Teachers do not go unpaid. Bill collectors do not have to come trailing the secretary-treasurer. And when the year ended December 31 last, the school district's financial statement showed, there was a credit balance of $490.

All current indebtedness has been paid and $203 was paid on old accounts to bring them up to date. A salary cut was restored to teachers January 1 and one teacher is now receiving $1,000 annually and the other two are being paid $750 annually.

The efficiency of the school was also revealed at the meeting, when in answer to a question of a ratepayer, H. Smith, principal, said that out of 101 departmental papers written at the examinations last June, only four failed to earn the requisite marks, thus giving a percentage of 97½ passed.

Blind Man Operates Farm In Township Of Otonabee Does All Regular Tasks

Faithful Dog Only Companion That Peter Robertson Has

GOOD NEIGHBORS

By KEITH COPPING

As the sun shoots its final rays over the icy slopes north of Rice Lake, a weathered, elderly farmer emerges from a little frame farmhouse. He makes his way to his barn with a slow but confident step and sets about his evening chores amid lengthening shadows.

The sun sets and the shadows deepen as he stoops to his milking, but he lights no light. Inky darkness closes in as he cleans the stalls and carries feed and bedding for his stock, but still he falters not. Daylight or darkness makes no difference to this plucky, grey-haired man for he is totaly blind.

Impossible?

One would say it was impossible, but it is a fact. The blind man is 63-year-old Peter Robertson. For then the sun set 12 years ago never to arise again, yet he works successfully his 100-acre farm two miles southwest of the village of Keene with a collie pup as his only helper and companion. Remarkable are the accomplishments of blind men and his are among the most remarkable.

Does Regular Tasks

Not only the routine barn chores does he do. Seeding, care and harvesting of a generous truck garden, herding of his cattle, separation of milk and the churning of butter and care of a roost of chickens are a few among the host of tasks involved in the operation of a farm on a paying basis to which he attends. A weekly tour of the farm to see that his fences are all in order is not even beyond him. And he does his own housekeeping in a dwelling whose interior presents a surprising picture of tidiness.

He was born on a farm nearby and came into possession of his present farm 31 years ago. Twice he has been married, his last wife predeceasing him at the turn of the century. A son succumbed to the influenza plague of 1918.

Sight Goes Slowly

His sight had been weakening for many years before his blindness became total in 1924. For a time he employed a housekeeper but during the last two years he has been completely alone.

"People ask me many questions" Mr. Robertson told the reporter who visited him at his farm today. "They wonder how I make my way about the farm. It isn't hard. I know every stick and stone on the 100 acres and I know where the fences are when I come to them almost without feeling for them. When I set out across the fields I take note of little things like the direction of the wind so I can keep in a straight line."

Others ask him how he manages to seed, he said. "If I am putting in a row of potatoes, I stretch a string to guide me. I can't follow the regular procedure so I dig, seed and cover as I go. I guess I get along nearly as fast as any other fellow who sows by hand.

WANT RADIO BEACONS

Navigators Urge 3 More Along Great Lakes.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—(CP)—Canadian Navigators' Federation wants more radio beacons along the shores of the great lakes. In annual convention yesterday the Federation approved of motions to be submitted to the federal minister of transport, urging the need of beacons at Port Arthur, Port Colborne and Goderich. Delegates also discussed the need for improvements in the lower canals.

4 NATIONS' FLEETS PREPARE BLOCKADE

Germany, Italy Likely Patrol Socialist Coast--France, Rebel —Britain "Umpire"

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(AP). —Four great European powers held their warships in check to-day for orders from the chairman of the "Hands-Off-Spain" committee to gird the strife-torn peninsula with a naval blockade.

Observers expected a meeting of the sub-committee of the International non-intervention group today to set a date for a multi-power patrol of Spanish waters to halt forcibly the flow of volunteer troops to Spain.

Just where the men-of-war of France, Great Britain, Germany and Italy would be placed to enforce the ban to which all four nations have agreed was not disclosed prior to the committee meeting.

Russian warships were expected to join the blockade squadron in the future.

One plan was understood to have been drafted under which the fleets of Germany and Italy, which have recognized the Spanish insurgent Fascists as the country's de facto government, would block the coastline held by the Socialist government.

French naval vessels, already assembled near Spanish waters for spring manoeuvres, would patrol the insurgent coastal areas.

The British fleet was believed assigned the role of "umpire."

JUDGE AIDS PRISONER

Penniless Man Is Charged With Stealing Sink From Abandoned House

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (CP)—John Winter, 21, penniless, was in court, accused of removing a sink from an abandoned house. His wife, Mary, pleaded for him.

"Oh, Judge," she sobbed, "our baby is sick and needs attention. John is not a thief. He is good. He has tried so hard."

Magistrate Matthew J. Troy turned to the accused man and said: "Stealing is not the answer, son. A criminal record and a term in prison won't help you or your wife or baby. Here is a new start for you. I'm forgetting about this charge. Make the most of your opportunity."

HYDRO MEASURE IS SHOVED THROUGH ON VOTE OF 58-15

Debate Starts On Second Bill--Challies Calls On Lyon To Resign

RAPS ROEBUCK'S FINDINGS

TORONTO, Jan. 28 — (C.P.). — Ontario Legislature, with an indefinite recess Friday night less certain, to-day considered the second of three Hydro bills after passing the first by a 58-15 vote.

Following a six-day debate the Government, a few minutes before last midnight, put through second reading the initial bill to give the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission immunity from court judgments.

A Conservative amendment to refer the bill to a select committee of 15 was lost on the same division as the main motion.

Second reading of the next bill, to relieve Hydro of the necessity of posting bond for appeals to the Privy Council, came up to-day with no definite indication from George S. Henry, Conservative House Leader, what the Opposition planned. This bill would also return to the commission a sum already posted for an appeal against a Quebec power contract judgment.

Before division last night, Mr. Henry said he did not wish to prolong the debate and was content with an understanding members could "wander pretty far afield" in debating the next two bills. Acting Premier Harry Nixon made no statement on this suggestion.

NO KISSING AT WEDDINGS

Signs Up In Buffalo Courts, "Do Not Kiss" Brides and Grooms, Shake Hands.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 28 (CP).—On the request of the health commissioner, Chief Clerk George Reibold posted a sign reading "Do not kiss" in the city court.

"We are going to try," said Reibold hopefully, "to prevent any kissing around here during civil wedding ceremonies."

Court attaches said they thought it would be nice if brides and grooms shook hands.

It's all on account of the flu.

Natural Products Act Held Unconstitutional In Privy Council Ruling

Measure Allowing Ottawa To Regulate Business Provincially Is Held Valid

ALSO FARM CREDIT ACT

Day Of Rest, Minimum Wages, Hours Of Labor Are All Ruled Out

LONDON, Jan. 28 (CP Cable). — Measures passed by the Canadian Parliament dealing with unemployment insurance, hours of labor, minimum wages and marketing were declared unconstitutional today by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Legislation on trade practices arising from the recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying was upheld.

Their Lordships handed down judgment on six appeals from the Supreme Court of Canada. The decisions defined the respective jurisdictions of the Dominion and the provinces, in respect to the legislation, as defined by the British North America Act. Four of the appeals were brought by the provinces. All were dismissed. Two were taken by the Dominion. These also were dismissed.

All Unconstitutional.

The Judicial Committee declared the following measures, passed by the Dominion Parliament in 1934 and 1935, while the Conservative Government of R. B. Bennett was in office, to be ultra vires, or beyond the authority of the Federal Parliament:

1. Employment and Social Insurance Act, 1935. This measure provided for the creation of a contributory system of employment insurance and the setting up of employment agencies. The Canadian Supreme Court held the Act invalid. Their Lordships agreed and dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada.

2. The weekly day of rest in Industrial Undertakings Act, the Minimum Wages Act, and the Limitation of Hours of Work Act, 1935. These three separate acts were based on conventions agreed to by the International Labor Office and ratified by the Dominion Parliament under its treaty-making powers. The Canadian supreme court split evenly on the legislation. The Privy Council declared each act to be ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament and dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada.

3. The Natural Products Marketing Act, 1934, and its amending act of the following year. These measures provided for the setting up of marketing boards for various classes of products with wide powers for control by the majority of producers. The supreme court of Canada unanimously declared the acts ultra vires. The Attorney-General of British Columbia appealed to the Privy Council to have the legislation declared valid. The appeal was dismissed.

Three Are Upheld.

The following measures were declared valid:

1. The Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act, 1935. This legislation authorized the establishment of a federal commission with powers to regulate business provincially, inter-provincially and in relation to the Dominion as a whole. It arose from recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying. The Supreme Court of Canada declared some sections valid and others invalid. The judicial committee found valid all the sections of the act put before it, dismissed the appeal of the Ontario Attorney-General and allowed the cross-appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada.

2. Section 498A of the Criminal Code of Canada. This provides penalties for violation of the regulations set up by the Dominion Trade and Industry Commission. A majority decision of the Canadian Supreme Court upheld the legislation. The Privy Council also found the sub-section valid and dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of British Columbia.

3. The Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, 1934, and an amending act of the following year. This provided a means by which a farmer and his creditors might be brought together for a settlement of debts along bankruptcy lines but without actual recourse to the bankruptcy court. It was upheld by the Supreme Court at Ottawa. The judicial committee concurred and dismissed the

ONTARIO IS READY TO JOIN OTTAWA IN INSURANCE PLAN

Wants Nation-wide Scheme Says Roebuck—Only One Feasible

REGRETS WAGE RULING

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—Ontario is prepared to co-operate with the Dominion Government and the other provinces to pass enabling legislation for the setting up of a national system of unemployment insurance, Attorney General Arthur Roebuck, speaking on behalf of the Government, said to-day.

Mr. Roebuck made a statement commenting on Privy Council decisions handed down in London today.

Of the Unemployment and Social Insurance Act, ruled ultra vires of the Federal Government, Mr. Roebuck said:

"The Privy Council has said it was beyond the Dominion's jurisdiction. We supported the Federal claim, arguing a national system of unemployment insurance must necessarily be national in scope to be successful and that it is beyond the physical capacity of the provinces to bring it into being and administer it.

"I'm quite satisfied Ontario is prepared to cooperate with the Dominion to pass enabling legislation to permit a nation-wide scheme to be made effective."

Of the decision ruling invalid Acts pertaining to a weekly day of rest, minimum wages and hours of labor, Mr. Roebuck said:

"It is a matter for congratulation the Privy Council has not upheld the radical claims of the Dominion of a right to invade provincial jurisdiction by means of some departmental arrangement with a foreign country.

One Regret.

"Any other decision would have upset the whole scheme of Canadian Confederation. On the other hand it is to be regretted that the right to pass humanitarian legislation has been denied the Dominion Government. We supoprted the Dominion's claim on the ground of national well-being.

"It is quite impossible to have effective limitation of the hours of labor and practical machinery for establishing of minimum wages enacted provincially or even by concurrent legislation in the various provinces. Difficulties in the way of concurrent action are the large number of legislative bodies. They are practically insuperable.

"The decision leaves us in the position of province competing against province in the matter of unreasonably low wages and excessively long hours of labor. Should the Dominion in the future attempt legislation along these lines in concurrence with Provincial authorities, Ontario will cooperate."

Marooned Louisville Folks Let Flood Bring Their Food

Cruise Shows Starving Citizens Fishing Anything Edible From Murky Waters

UNBELIEVABLE SIGHTS

By Edward J. Neil
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 28 (AP)—On the main street of Louisville, in the heart of the Blue Grass' beautiful derby town, people were fishing —from second story windows for food with 20-foot poles, baskets tied to the ends of them.

It was the weirdest sight I've ever seen, this heart of Louisville under 15 feet of water, bright sunlight streaming warmly down on a fantastic world of eddying muddy water with houses, factories, hotels, warehouses, growing up out of the midst of it.

There were stores filled with food, and yet 20 feet away people were starving. There was nothing but a vast world of water, and still people were choking with thirst. You had to see it to believe it.

We started out from a pontoon platform at 18th Street and Broadway in the good ship "Port Huron", a coast guard launch from the Great Lakes, towing a big life boat manned by stevedores from New York, to get a shipment of bread and milk for the hungry sufferers of the city.

Thousands of Cars Out of Sight

Straight down Broadway we chugged, lookouts sighting submerged trucks ahead. It was along this arm waterway only few hours before that a powerboat ripped out its bottom scraping over a big truck that had been caught in the rising waters. Underneath the surface, far too far down to see, are thousands of passenger cars resting where they stood when the mighty Ohio swept miles above its normal banks.

You pass a cigarette factory at 30th Street, then one after the other some of the biggest whiskey distilleries in the south. They stand deserted in the water, like great misshapen houseboats.

"Hello, Sailors."

Then come a string of two-story frame houses, once a drab white, now daubed with the mud of the opulent river. Windows pop up, heads bob out, both men and women.

"Hey, where you bound, sailors?"

Edward Drafts Suit For Tailor's Benefit

Vienna, Jan. 28. (AP)

EDWARD, Duke of Windsor, showed his Vienna tailor yesterday how he thought a job ought to be done. The Duke came into the city from the Enzesfeld Castle of Baron Eugene de Rothschild, where he has been a guest since he abdicated.

In the tailor shop he took chalk and traced on cloth his idea of how a ski jacket should be cut. Then the tailor set to work on a balloon silk garment for Edward, and also began to remodel the Duke's English ski trousers to conform to the Austrian wedge style.

Family Lives In Cold Truck As Lindsay, Sydenham Fight

Mayor Resents "Dumping" So Chief Chases Them From Scugog Town

RELIEF HEAD TO DECIDE

LINDSAY, Jan. 28.—A battle is in progress between the relief authorities of Lindsay and Sydenham, and, until it is settled, David Wilson, his wife and three small children will be without a home.

Tuesday night, on instructions from the Reeve of Sydenham, the Wilsons and their furniture were bundled into a truck and sent to Lindsay, their former home. They were brought here after a journey of 150 miles, despite numerous protests from Mayor H. D. Logan by telephone and telegraph.

Upon their arrival, they were met by Chief of Police Lawler, who gave them $2 for a meal and instructed them to return to Sydenham. They then started back to Sydenham, but got only as far as Omemee, 13 miles from here, where they stayed overnight, returning to Lindsay yesterday.

After much argument and discussion they were shipped on their way to Sydenham again in their unheated vehicle.

On Way Back To Sydenham.

The official objection to their presence in Lindsay seems to be that this municipality resents the action of Sydenham in dumping the

FLOODING OHIO SHOWS SIGNS OF EASING GRIP

200 To 400 Dead, Million Homeless And $400,000,000 Damage So Far

FULL STORY NOT BARED YET

Mississippi Valley Engineers Believe Great Dike System Will Hold

CHICAGO, Jan. 28. — A titanic struggle to restrain a great river approached a climax today as United States life saving forces were mobilized for action in the deep south in the event the mighty Mississippi again runs amok.

As incomplete figures indicated between 200 and 400 dead; 1,000,000 homeless and $400,000,000 damage thus far in the United States' mightiest flood, the stricken Ohio river valley hoped the worst was past, struggled for its second breath and contemplated rehabilitation efforts.

While the Ohio showed signs of loosening its grip upon a wide area between Pittsburgh and Cairo, Ill., it became apparent the full story of the havoc will not be known for days.

Louisville, once gay derby town, now desolate, buried its dead in trenches as the flood water began to subside. The number of lives lost was a matter of conjecture. Mayor Neville Miller said there were 200 dead after the city's health officer admitted the bodies of 130 victims had been recovered.

Tension eased as the river started to recede, although sickness was increasing, electricity was shut off, water rationed and sanitation problems increased hourly.

Water Again In Mains

The threat of disease lingered in Cincinnati but there was hope and good cheer as rehabilitation efforts were begun. Water flowed into the mains from artesian wells after a famine but the supply was still short of the city's needs.

The United States war department was advised its forces were ready at a moment's notice to evacuate by land and water residents of any areas threatened with inundation when the flood crest pours down the Mississippi next week.

Reassuring words came, however, from engineers who said the rivers' $1,000,000,000 dike system from Cairo to the gulf showed no signs

TWEED FOUNDRY GETS SLATE JOB

Awarded Contract Building New Factory—Latter To Employ 44 Men

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, June 28.—Canada Slate Products Limited, whose mine is located near the village of Madoc, is making rapid progress, contracts having been let for the roofing slate process building. A statement issued by the president, Mr. L. Ampleford gives complete details of the present operations and progress of work.

"The contract for the erection of the roofing slate process building for the Canadian Slate Products Limited plant at Madoc, was awarded on January 23, to the W. Gordon Steel Works at Tweed. This building will be 75' x 126' steel frame, erected on concrete foundation. This building will accommodate one Pollard diamond saw, which has already been purchased and is on the property, and will be powered by one 87 h.p. Ruston diesel engine which has already been purchased, and in addition this building will house fifteen roofing slate trimming machines. The number of men necessary to process roofing slates in this building will be approximately forty, made up as follows:

25 splitters, 10 trimmers, 2 sawyers, 6 laborers, 1 foreman.

Ready to Go March 15.

"This building is expected to be completely erected and the machinery in full operation by March 15. Owing to the mild weather this winter, the company has been able to employ, steadily, between twenty-five and thirty men and it is hoped that this will continue during the balance of the winter. The erection of this building will add a very important link to this growing industry. Other buildings will be erected during the summer.

"The 50-ton crushing plant which will crush granules and manuacture slate flour will be ready to turn over within the next few days.

"The board of directors of this company are very pleased with the progress which is being made and expects to be in full mass production early in the spring.

"Quite a few Peterborough men are employed on this project and it is hoped that additional men from Belleville and district will be employed in the near future."

family on its hands. Sydenham, however, maintains that the Wilsons originally came from Lindsay and therefore should be its charge. The father left Lindsay two years ago, but he did not take his family along until last August.

Mayor Logan admitted Tuesday night that he was not sure just who was responsible for the family under such circumstances.

"But Sydenham had no right to load them in a truck and dump them right on our main street," he declared.

The argument has been submitted to the District Relief Inspector for a settlement. In the meantime, the Wilsons have to make their home in the truck.

One Long Cold Wave Keeps 'Peggers Hardy

Winnipeg, Jan. 28 (CP)

WINNIPEG'S hardy citizens shrugged deeper into turned-up overcoat collars tonight and thought, philosophically, that half of the winter had gone.

There has been only one cold snap here this season. But it has continued without a break since the first of the year, and residents—because they have to—are becoming used to it.

At that, Winnipeggers have been luckier than usual this winter, when the coldest day has been 37 below zero. They looked back on last winter, when 40-below-zero weather prevailed almost continuously for more than two months. January 20, 1936, temperature dipped to an unofficial 51 below.

$59,205 JUDGMENT AGAINST McCOLL

Walkerville Counsel Claims Former Officials' Defalcations Will Cost $80,000

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 28 (CP)—Court appearances ended, Duncan B. McColl, 41, deposed manager of the former Walkerville Hydro System, today awaited transfer to Kingston Penitentiary to start a sentence for misappropriations of Hydro funds. McColl finished with the courts late last night when Justice Keiller MacKay gave judgment against him for $59,205.41 and costs in a civil action brought by the Windsor Utilities Commission.

The prisoner, sentenced to five years in penitentiary last month when he pleaded guilty to theft of $40,000 in Hydro funds over a period of 11 years, appeared unmoved by the decision. After shaking hands with all those who testified against him he walked off with jailers. He conducted his own defence.

In giving judgment, Mr. Justice MacKay deducted $246.11 from the $59,451.52 claim of the commission. Of the deducted total $190.54 had previously been withdrawn by commission counsel Bruce Macdonald because of the expense which would have been involved in bringing witnesses from distant points. This left an amount of $55.57 which Justice MacKay disallowed because he believed there was reasonable doubt in McColl's favor.

Explanations Vague

In the other items which made up the total the judge found that McColl had not offered satisfactory explanations of the defalcations outlined by the plaintiff. He found the explanations "vague, shadowy and unsubstantial." Major amount of the claim—$25,049.17—was admitted by McColl and was basis of the amount he was charged with taking in the criminal prosecution.

Counsel Macdonald in argument said the Hydro system would eventually lose $80,000 to $85,000 through McColl's defalcations. A special audit cost $10,000, he said, besides other items and the $50,000 which made up the actual claim. He referred to McColl's manipulation of Hydro books as "deliberate, calculated and skilful."

"It was not my desire to have this case go on," McColl said in opening his argument. "I would have been glad to have a reasonable settlement or a judgment for any amount I thought correct."

INSURANCE GAINS ARE WORLD-WIDE

Confederation Life's Total Reaches New Total Of $398,499,573

Remarkable progress was revealed in the Sixty-fifth Annual Report of the Confederation Life Association presented to policyholders and shareholders today. R. S. Waldie, Vice-President, who presided, drew attention to the striking gains made, not alone in Canada, but in Great Britain, West Indies, China and other parts of the world. From this it was apparent, he said, that economic revival was world wide.

The Association's business is at its highest level, insurances in force being $398,499,573.

Mr. Waldie drew attention to problems which call for the immediate attention of Dominion and Provincial Governments. He advocated the formation of a Royal Commission to study these problems and seek their solution. The problems particularly concerned the financial position of the Prairie Provinces and the need for co-operation to enable the credit of the Western Provinces to be maintained despite the deplorable economic condition from which they have suffered for years past. He said Eastern Canada's relationship to Western Canada was comparable to that of a parent to a young son or daughter who, during the period of development and pioneering, should be encouraged with material assistance and support. He also stressed the fact that it was highly necessary for all Provinces to maintain sanctity of contracts even though such contracts might temporarily be onerous. Moreover, as many Canadian Life Insurance Companies do an international business, they were highly concerned with the maintenance of Canada's credit abroad.

Dealing with increased Government activity in social services, involving huge capital expenditures, he felt that Government responsibilities in this direction should be clearly defined beforehand in order to avoid duplication and unnecessary administrative expenditures, and to ascertain where the money is to come from.

Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries during 1936 amounted to $11,679,075, of which $2,966,085 was for death claims and $1,843,113 for matured endowments. Dividends to policyholders amounted to $1,-956,337. Fewer policies were surrendered in 1936, the amount paid in cash surrender values being $534,270 less than in 1935.

New assurances were issued and paid for to the amount of $47,506,513, including revived policies. Total assurances in force at the end of 1936 amounted to $398,499,573, an increase of $11,634,821.

CHAPTER 50

HUTCHINS shuddered as he watched the fire. "What a horrible death! But the Colonel may have escaped."

"We should have seen him on the roof if so," said Selden. "I've been in that room of his. Before he was aware of any fire, his staircase would be burnt away and the steel shutters almost red hot. It would have been a merciful death if he had been suffocated in his sleep."

The captain of the Grinfold Fire brigade came to Hutchins. He had just drawn up his engines, and the hose had been connected up.

"A bad business, Inspector. We can't do much here. Anyone inside?"

"Get your tallest ladder and try to get on the roof," Hutchins ordered.

The captain looked dubiously at the burning building. "I'm afraid there's not much chance there. We'd better get the hoses on, and try to get in the back way."

There was a ringing of bells, a hoarse roar, and the fire engine from Poolhurst rushed up the drive like a horse artillery limber coming into action. Figues like demons in the red light of the conflagration and the dense clouds of smoke were working heroically, for the word had gone round that Colonel Graham was trapped inside. The old place burnt like tinder, being oak-paneled throughout, and the roof was a cross-work of gigantic old beams.

As Selden and Hutchins watched, with a mighty crash the roof fell in, and a volcano of flames rose to heaven. Already the whole village was there, standing back from the heat, in a stupid, fascinated half-circle.

Selden felt a touch on his arm; the captain of the fire brigade stood there. "If Colonel Graham was in his private room he is nothing but charred ashes now," he said solemnly.

Selden nodded. "The wicked have digged a pit, and have fallen into the midst of it themselves,' " he said, with gravity that made Hutchins look at him in question.

The united efforts of the fire brigades seemed to have as little effect as the rain which still pelted down, making a curious hissing sound as it fell on the flames and was turned to steam.

"It'll burn right out now," the fire brigade captain said, and removed his helmet to wipe his forehead.

"Those cursed servants," the captain observed, with the stout contempt of the English countryman for all foreigners; "not one of them made any attempt to get any furniture out of the house. They say that they couldn't get into the rooms, but it was sheer funk."

He went back to his men grumbling fiercely.

The dreary hopeless dawn saw them still at work, and the flames had given way to huge columns of black smoke that rose from the shell of strong stone walls, which alone remained of the Manor house. The villagers had drifted away, soaked with rain, and eager for warm beds. Only Selden kept vigil with the inspector, whose smarting eyes showed signs of desperate fatigue.

"I shall have to go, Selden," he said, "and what I am to do the Lord only knows. Here's Colonel Graham, the chairman of the bench that's to sit today, dead, as far as we know, and Conolly to come up this morning, and you now tell us that Hucks and the woman who called herself Mrs. Thornton are the real murderers. To my mind it's a pity that you did not tell me before."

Selden put his hand on the inspector's arm. "My dear fellow," he said soothingly, "if it had been possible I would have done so, but I hadn't got the proof. I only got it yesterday. Now if you will take my advice, when you get to Grinfold, call up the other magistrates, and tell them about the fire, and request, and I am certain they will agree, that, as a mark of respect to Colonel Graham, they shall postpone the sitting. Then when you have had a rest, bring James over and hear what he has to say. I believe he can throw light on the matter."

"Very well, Selden," Hutchins said wearily. "You seem to know all about it. Where shall I bring him?"

"To the Abbey. Reid and Miss Lawrence and the children are there, and we can have a conference."

"But hadn't we better get Lady Severinge. It seems quite irregular but, then, everything is wrong about this case to my idea."

"The Abbey doesn't belong to Lady Severinge, and I don't fancy she will ever return to it."

The inspector gazed at Selden in open amazement. "I am to dog-tired, now," he said. "I'll do what you ask, and then we'll go into all these matters."

Later in the morning, when the smoking pile was sufficiently cool to allow of a search, the firemen found the charred remains of Colonel Graham. The fact that the body had been clothed told its own story, and one could picture the man rising from his seat, where he had fallen into a doze—perhaps an unnatural sleep, though of that there could be no proof—and suddenly realizing his awful condition. The probable attempt to escape by the staircase, and meeting a choking mass of dense smoke; the frantic rush to the windows where his ingenuity had constructed the steel shutters, now nearly red hot and unable to be moved, and then the brief moment before the fumes overcame him; the realization that all his precautions had been in vain, and in fact his undoing, and that however long justice is delayed it grinds out in its appointed time.

The sun broke through the leaden clouds and lighted up the poor ruins as though the dark crimes that had blacked the Abbey and the Manor house had at last been removed, and a fairer day had come.

Daylight found Reid pacing restlessly up and down the silent corridor. He had hardly slept a wink, though the night had passed quietly enough as far as the Abbey was concerned. But he had heard faintly from across the lake the baying of the hounds and the sound of shots, and his mind went back to the scene where he had been the victim. He was anxious with regard to Selden's safety, being entirely ignorant of his movements.

The closely shuttered windows had prevented him from seeing the lurid glare in the sky where the Colonel's house was burning.

At eight o'clock he could stand it no longer. He walked quickly down the passage to the hall, and called up the Bull Inn. The excited maid told him of strange happenings. According to her tale, the Manor had caught fire and the Colonel had perished in the flames. Poor Mr. Hucks, who had gone up to help, had been trying to liberate the bloodhounds from their burning kennels, and they had set on him and killed him. The police had brought his body to the inn, and placed it in a shed at the back, as a temporary mortuary. Mr. Selden? Oh yes, he was quite all right, though very tired. He was changing his clothes, and was then coming to the Abbey.

That was all Reid could get from the half hysterical girl, but with a wealth of detail. Reid put up the receiver and saw Sylvia standing beside him.

She had slept well, after Selden's reassurances, and was looking fresh and happier than of late. Reid imparted the information.

"What is the meaning of it all?" A cloud passed over her lovely face at the terrible news.

Reid remarked:

"Dick Selden will be here shortly. He must be half dead after being up all night at the fire."

"Then I had better see about breakfast; we'll use the front kitchen. Somehow, I don't like going into the servants quarters."

When Selden arrived, they were ready for him in the dining room, for the inn had been in a state of chaos, and he had come up without eating.

They would not discuss anything in front of the twins, but Selden informed them that they were now free to go where they liked, and the restraint and misery of the past days were over altogether. A shadow seemed to be lifted from the Abbey; the bright sunshine outside, and the cool autumn air blowing freely in from the open window, combined to cause a great reaction of feeling.

"Now," Selden said, lighting a pipe, when the simple meal was over, "I'm dead to the world, and positively must have some sleep. Sylvia, do you think that you could get hold of those startled servants and bring them back?" There is no danger whatever now."

"I'll take the car and fetch them if I can—they come from round here."

"Take the twins with you, then, and Jack shall drive. I shall be all right here." He turned to Reid with a meaning look. "Hutchins will be coming here this afternoon for a talk, he has to attend the court this morning. Then we will have a round table conference."

HEAPS IS OPPOSED IN PLAN TO ASK U.S. CALL PEACE RALLY

Would Embarrass Roosevelt Declares King—Impertinence Says Bennett

"NOT THE RIGHT NATION"

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 (C.P.). — The flood of oratory loosed on the House of Commons by successive resolutions of the so-called "ginger group," designed to explore involved ramifications of economic and constitutional reform and questions of peace and war, will continue to-day when private members' business again enjoys priority.

M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar) is slated to move his resolution calling for appointment of a select standing committee of the House of Commons to "recommend specific amendments to the British North America Act required to enable this Dominion to enact necessary and desirable legislation for the better social conditions of the Canadian people."

In this debate it is expected, much of the argument will be found exhausted by the debate of Tuesday when former Prime Minister Bennett urged creation of a non-political constitutional convention to seek agreement on constitutional reform. Mr. Bennett did not make any definite motion, but the suggestion was talked over at length with varying degrees of approval from all parties.

If Mr. Coldwell's resolution is disposed of in time the next order is the resolution of Thomas Reid (Lib. New Westminster) calling for cancellation of subsidies to steamship companies who do not comply with the parliamentary order to replace Chinese deckhands with Canadians.

Heaps Takes Up Whole Day.

Yesterday's entire session was taken up with debate over a resolution by A. A. Heaps (C.C.F., Winnipeg North), requesting the Dominion Government to ask the President of the United States to convene a World Peace Conference. After many had spoken Mr. Heaps closed the debate just as the House reached the hour for automatic adjournment and the question was not put.

Too much attention was being devoted to war preparations and not enough to peace, Mr. Heaps declared, and he urged that Canada be the first country in the world to substitute for its War Department a "Department of Peace." He felt

WAVE OF PETTY CRIME

Ottawa Women Victims of Many Thefts in Past Few Weeks.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28 — (C.P.). — A wave of petty crime in which most of the victims are women, has been worrying Ottawa police for the last two months and Mortimer Culver, chief of detectives, to-day warned women and citizens generally to take care of their property.

About 30 women have reported having their purses snatched by well-dressed youths between the ages of 16 and 25, travelling in groups of two or three and sometimes using cars.

CAPREOL MAN SHOT TRYING TO VISIT WIFE

Boarder Opens Fire As Freed Burwash Inmate Attempts To Batter Door Down

POLICE ARREST GUNNER

Prisoner Claims Victim's Mother-In-Law Told Him To Use Shot-gun

CAPREOL, Jan. 28—(CP).—Alex "Red" Kain of Capreol is in hospital here suffering gun-shot wounds allegedly fired by Clement St. Jean of Sturgeon Falls when Kain visited his parents-in-law's home in Norman Township Tuesday. St. Jean is being held by Police.

Kain, recently released from Burwash Industrial farm, allegedly went to his parents-in-law's home last night to visit his wife, Olive Kain and his child.

According to the story told police by St. Jean, Mrs. Sawyer, his mother-in-law, refused to admit Kain to the house and when Kain began to batter down the door Mr. Sawyer appeared with a shot-gun. Kain wrested the gun from Sawyer and then St. Jean, who was rooming at the Sawyers, appeared with another shot-gun and fired at Kain when instructed to do so by Mrs. Sawyer.

Kain suffered gun-shot wounds in the arm, but was reported to be in no danger.

A charge of inflicting bodily harm was preferred against St. Jean today by police.

HAVELOCK

Mr. John Barlow suffered a painful accident Monday, cracking two of his ribs when slipping on the ice.

Rev. J. Thorburn Conn, of Peterborough, was special speaker at the Young Men's Bible Class of the United church last Sunday, and also spoke at the evening service.

A very enjoyable party was held on Tuesday night, at the home of Mrs. F. Voyer, when more than sixty of Havelock's younger folk were the guests of the Misses Margaret, Rita and Olive Voyer and their brothers Francis, Paul and Jerome, for an evening of games and dancing.

Prizes for euchre were won by Miss Dorothy Wright and Mr. Philip Greenley, while consolation awards went to Miss Ena Griffith, Miss Mary McMullen, Bill McLaughlin and Jim Covert. After the games a lovely lunch was served by the hostesses, assisted by their mother and the Misses Alma, Ruth and Irene Hagerman. Dancing was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening, with music provided by Mr. Douglas Hutchinson at the piano.

MARMORA UNITED CHURCH REQUESTS PASTOR TO REMAIN

Splendid Year Is Shown In Annual Meet With Year's Receipts $2,737

OFFICERS APPOINTED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 28.—The annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, was held in the church on Wednesday evening; the pastor, Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, presiding.

In presenting his report of pastoral activities, the pastor gave the following figures: Membership, 139; received into membership during year on profession of faith, 18; received into membership by letter, 4; marriages, 12; baptisms, 24; burials, 9. H. W. Sabine gave the report of the Sunday School. The financial receipts totalled $185.25, with the expenditures reaching $197.40, showing an adverse balance of $12.15. There was an average attendance of 90, with the average Sunday School collection of $3.15. The Sunday School work was shown to be prospering.

W. A. Raises $548

Mrs. G. Jarvis gave the financial statement of the Women's Association. This organization was shown to have been very active during the past year, raising the excellent total of $548.65. Of this amount $300 went to the general funds of the church, in addition to other financial requirements being met.

W. A. Sanderson then spoke briefly for the choir and as treasurer of the church presented the financial statement which showed receipts for the year to be $2,737.85 with expenditures at $2,534.22. Through a special every-member canvass liabilities facing the church at the beginning of 1936 have been somewhat reduced. Almost $400 was raised by means of the canvass.

The pastor, at the conclusion of the report, voiced his appreciation of the results attained and also thanked the members of the choir for their services.

Election of Officers

Next on the agenda was the election of elders and stewards. The names of E. I. Gale and H. R. Haacke were added to the names of the seven elders, who were re-elected, namely, W. A. Sanderson, H. W. Sabine, H. O. Loveless, F. S. Pearce, A. Sweet, G. B. Airhart and Dr. D. L. Curtis.

The stewards of the church were all re-elected.

H. W. Sabine was elected as delegate to Presbytery and W. A. Sanderson was elected alternate.

H. W. Sabine, superintendent of the Sunday School, gave an outline of the problems of Sunday School work, following which officers were elected as follows: Superintendent, H. W. Sabine; Secretary-treasurer, Garth Sabine; Assistant secretary, to be appointed by Board of Management. Board of Management, Dr. D. L. Curtis, G. Jarvis and Mrs. W. A. Sanderson.

W. A. Sanderson, as treasurer of the church, and A. Sweet, as secretary, were both re-elected.

The Missionary and Maintenance committee were next to be appointed. The members are Mrs. H. R. Haacke, Miss M. Brown and Dr. D. L. Curtis, with Miss Hilda Thomson as treasurer.

Ask Pastor to Say

Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, upon unanimous motion of the meeting, was cordially invited to remain as pastor for another year.

A few questions of minor importance were settled before the meeting adjourned for refreshments served by the ladies.

GOT DRUNK IN CLASS-ROOM

Night School Student Is Haled Into Police Court.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28 (CP).—Fred Meintz, 54, night school student, was haled into police court for drunkenness.

"You mean to say you got drunk in the class-room?" inquired Judge Leroy Dawson.

"That's right, Your Honor."

"What kind of a school do you attend?"

"Bartenders' school," said Meintz. His fine was $10.

WARDEN MONCRIEF FETED AT OMEMEE

Fellow - Citizens Tender Him Banquet To Mark His Promotion

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Jan. 28.— Over two hundred citizens and friends gathered in Coronation Hall Thursday evening to honor Reeve W. Moncrief who has been elected Warden of Victoria county. It has been a number of years since Omemee has had the honor of having the Warden as a resident.

About 8 o'clock the party sat down to a well served dinner prepared by the Women's Institute.

After all had done justice to the excellent menu, H. Lamb, who was toast master of the evening, proposed the toast to the King, which was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by J. Bent, who in his usual pleasing manner complimented the ladies. Miss Christina Connell very gracefully responded.

The toast to the county council was proposed by Mr. C. G. Frost, of Lindsay, while Reeve Martin of Verulam and Reeve Guiry of Emily responded.

One of the honors of the evening fell to Councillor Fred Parker of Omemee, who proposed the toast to the guest of honor, Mr. Moncrief. Mr. Moncrief in a few well chosen words promised the people he would do his very best to make his task a success.

Mrs. C. Elliott favored the gathering with two solos, with Miss L. Race as accompanist.

A number of the guests, among them being T. H. Simson, J. W. Deyell, L. M. Frost, F. Nugent, D. McQuarrie and many others from Lindsay and surrounding villages, were called upon to say a few words and many witty and humorous remarks were made by these gentlemen, adding to the pleasure of the evening.

At the conclusion of the banquet, chairs were removed and dancing was enjoyed. The music was supplied by a number of musicians from Millbrook.

WOLVES KILLING SHEEP IN CAMDEN

Township Council Pays Out $600 To Owners At One Session

NAPANEE, Jan. 28.—The howls of the wolves which have been keeping farmers of this district up at nights had an echo yesterday in the groans of the Camden Council when that body had to dip into the township funds to the extent of $600 with which to reimburse livestock owners for animals which fell prey to the marauders during the past year.

A by-law was recently passed by Council authorizing the payment of a $10 bounty for every wolf destroyed within the township borders. Three have already been shot.

The animals are mostly of a half-breed species, and this is said to account for their fearlessness during raids of farmyards in this district.

Lack of snow has made it extremely hard to hunt them down, because of the absence of tracks after their raids. Dogs will not follow a wolf track, according to hunters, but if the ground were covered with snow it would be comparatively easy to trace them to the swamps in which they lurk during the day.

A few days ago a farmer came upon one of the animals in the act of attacking a calf. He fired at the wolf and injured it, but it escaped into the woods.

SKATING PARTY FOR LAKEFIELD Y.P.U.

Enjoyable Program Presented At Meeting Of United Church Organization

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 28. — Robert Spence, citizenship convenor, was in charge of the meeting of the Young People's Union of Lakefield United Church held in the Sunday school on Monday evening. The topic was "Our Home-Life."

The meeting opened with an hour's active recreation in which Rev. Mr. Kelly, recreation convenor, introduced some new and active games to the society. An amusing feature of this part of the program was a skit staged by Robert Spence and Clifford Hurl, in which they waged an argument over who should present the first speech. Finally Mr. Kelly, in an attempt to settle the argument, suggested that they read their speeches turn about, sentence by sentence. The result was highly humorous.

In the business session, at which the president, Wallace Hendren, presided, the society made arrangements for a skating party to be held at the Lakefield rink on Monday next, February 1. After skating a social time will be spent at the Sunday school, where refreshments will be served.

The program was then presented as follows: Vocal duet, Mrs. Don McMillan and Rev. G. T. Kelly, "Come, Holy Spirit"; recitation, "When Sister 'spects her Beau," by Freida Webster; topic, "Our Home-Life," by Robert Spence.

Mr. Spence spoke of the example that parents should show their children. Passages of Scripture by Phyllis Webster, Nora Webster; humorous reading, Phyllis Webster.

The meeting closed with the benediction.

Personals.

Mr. J. R. Hull of Lakefield was in Toronto this week on business.

Mrs. J. McKerchar and Mrs. G. F. Kelly were in Peterborough on Tuesday attending the Peterborough Presbyterial meetings at Trinity Church. They went as delegates from the Lakefield United Church W.M.S.

Relief As a Sure Thing

When Toronto police made their last raid of major size on places where placing bets on horse races was in progress they arrested 155 men.

Police later found that 85 per cent. of those arrested had cards showing they were entitled to receive aid from the relief department. We are not urging, nor was it shown that these men were spending any money there. It may be argued they had nothing else to do and went to the joints for the sake of keeping out of the cold or for some place to spend their time.

But there's something more behind all that. If there were no relief ready and waiting for them; if they knew there would be nothing at home to eat when they arrived in the evening, we do not suppose many of them would have been putting in their time in places where people go to place bets on the horse races. The chances are they would have been out looking around and asking a good many questions regarding the prospects of finding a little work to do so they could provide something to eat. We think it fair enough to accept that evidence just as it stands and to conclude that men who waste their time in that way are making no effort whatever to better their condition. They look upon relief as a sure thing.

Our System Is Weak

Sixty per cent. of the inmates at the Guelph Reformatory are under 21 years of age. That was stated by the superintendent, Dr. J. D. Heaslip, at the investigation into the riots of recent date.

The number of inmates which previous convictions registered against them is given this way—in the first column are the number of inmates and in the second column the number of previous court convictions against them:

206	1	4	9
61	2	2	10
36	3	2	11
39	4	1	12
22	5	1	14
16	6	1	16
7	7	2	18
4	7

The ages of inmates is given in groups:

52 boys 16 years of age.
69 boys who are 17 years of age.
105 who are 18 years of age.
103 who are 19 years of age.
6 who are 20 years of age.
48 who are 21 years old.

And that group from 16 to 21 years of age accounts for 60 per cent. of the Reformatory population, and from there the ages run up to one of 72 and one of 78.

We do not think much of such a place as a means or method of reformation. Once a boy of 16 or any other age passes through the gates he becomes a prisoner and the outside world regards him as an ex-prisoner when he finishes his time. It is always on record that he "served time." Associating with those who have a string of previous convictions means living in an atmosphere of crime, and as most young folk are susceptible to influence it means they are familiarized with crime and all that it means. It would be extremely difficult to have in such a place much of a pull or drag or influence in the opposite direction. For all practical purposes we seem to have evolved a system where we say to the young man who has been found guilty of his first venture in crime: "We realize you have broken the law, and we regret to see you moving in that direction, so we will send you to a place where you will have plenty of opportunity to associate with others who have repeatedly broken the law."

Right Out In The Open

The British Admiralty has issued a report telling plainly why it has insisted upon the dismissal of certain workmen, and the reason was there had been tampering with the machinery and equipment of certain naval vessels. The nature of the offence and the name of the vessel was publicly stated in each instance.

It is worth noting that the British Admiralty made no effort to cover up the incident. There was no hush-hush policy adopted. Something wrong and dangerous was being done, or had been done, and it was all brought out in the open.

We have a number of public bodies all over the country which might profit by a study of that situation. When anything goes wrong in the working of their various departments the first thing thought of is to keep it out of the papers. They reason if the public does not know it will be possible to get it fixed up and no one will be any the wiser. The trouble with that attitude is that it is not possible to permanently suppress news of anything which is wrong. There was a splendid old editor some years ago who had several slogans to guide him, and one was "A plain statement never beclouds an issue." Evidently the British Admiralty works on similar lines.

It Looks Too Dangerous

There are a good many people who have always been entirely friendly toward the Hydro Electric Commission and its purpose who find it extremely difficult to follow with approval the present course of the Ontario Government in putting through legislation which will make the Hydro Electric Commission something separate and apart so that the courts can render no effective judgment against it. There is a popular idea that the move is necessary to save Hydro from the hands of the people referred to as power barons, but that is not a good enough course of reasoning. To bring in the "power baron" phrase has not settled the thing at all. The question is: Shall Hydro be accountable for what Hydro does or not? If Hydro does a wrong thing, then can there be no appeal to the courts for justice? Apparently in the future the door will be closed.

Let us look at it from a local point. Hydro is now in control of the Trent Valley system for purposes of power. The Trent Valley system of lakes and canals is also the backbone of our tourist business and of much of the summer trade of the entire Kawartha Lakes district. If the water levels are regulated solely for purposes of power, and if by so doing there was damage brought upon our tourist business, we would not be able to do anything about it. We would have no right to go to court of justice and say our interests had been adversely affected, and that Hydro had done something which was injurious to our interests.

The Hydro Electric Commission is, after all, just a collective method of doing somthing which needed doing. The communities came together and pooled their resources in order to develop power at certain points and then to finance its distribution for general use. We do other things in the same way. In a city we have a sewage disposal plant because it is necessary, but it is actually a co-operative measure. But if a city has a sewage disposal plant which does not function properly, and if the city persists in pouring rank and unsavory material in a river and causing nuisance and damage to people along the river, then they can attack the city in the courts, and they have a right to do so. The city, acting in a co-operative manner, must be held responsible for any damage it does. We do not like the idea of taking any corporation, whether publicly-owned or not, and setting it in a class which is above civil law. It is too patent a violation of a principle which governments are too fond of attacking.

More Eggs in Mild Weather

There have been mild days this season when they were expected to be cold ones, and one result is the hens have laid too many eggs. Reports indicate there are a million dozen more eggs in Canada today than there were a year ago.

Within several days we have heard farmers claim the price of eggs was too low; they said we were quoting them too low in the paper. And from people who buy eggs we also hear the price is quoted too high.

There has been an increase in the number of incubators used in Ontario, and as a result there were many more pullets on the scene early in 1936, and within recent weeks they have been doing what they were supposed to do—lay eggs. In a normal year there are sections of the province where roads are blocked by snow,but this year roads have been open and eggs have been coming rapidly to market.

Those who deal in such matters say the weather has a good deal to do with it. We believe that is correct. It worked that way on the Tenth Concession. On the days when the snow was deep and the wind high, and when it drifted so it was necessary to dig before opening the hen house door, people did not go out with a basket or an apron to gather up the eggs. One could put them all in the pocket of a smock. On such days it was necessary to take the water dish in and put it on the back of the kitchen range until the solid block of ice thawed enough so it could be slipped out. Then the water we carried out would be warm. We figured the hens would like a warm drink, but whether they did or not we never knew. On such days too there was the iron kettle and it would have a number of small potatoes boiled and the mash and grain would all be mixed in there. Figured the hens wanted something warm to eat. Whether that was any use we never found out. In such weather it was generally found that some of the birds with long combs had got frost-bitten and that meant they would not lay for a spell. Everything would be cold in the hen house when winter was on in earnest and there was nothing much in the atmosphere or surroundings to cause a hen to lay an egg. The hen house on the Tenth Concession ould never have to plead guilty to even a minor section of the charge that there were a million dozen more eggs in the country than at the same time last season.

The Stealing Business

It looks as though there was always something new to steal. Norman Dowds was in court at Toronto and the charge against him was that he visited the stock yards and stole rings out of the noses of bulls. He had an equipment by which he could with safety unfasten the rings, after which he was in the habit of selling them to farmers who came there on business. When arrested he had a dozen of them on his person.

It is also reported that farmers who bring horses there find in a short time that the halters have been removed. These in turn are resold to farmers.

It may be that the stealing business is getting rather worn out when it drops down to the scale where a copper ring in a bull's nose at the stock yards is the size of the game. A man with a gold tooth in his head would have to be attended by a body guard to travel that district with security.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Montreal youths have pleaded guilty to stealing hundreds of cakes of soap. Just another gang out to make a clean-up.

Unfortunately there is some danger of the old Hydro slogan of power at cost being lost sight of in the endeavor to hang on to power at any cost.

A Royal Commission may be appointed to investigate the financial relations between the Dominion and the provinces. That is the usual method of burying a question.

Rural mail carriers are once more staging a drive against the present contract system of letting mail routes. It is an old grievance and should have been dealt with long ago.

A committee is going to review the Dominion election act and it should have no difficulty in discovering that some sections of that bill fell down badly in the last election.

According to Western reports Premier Aberhart is regarded as being out on the end of a limb. And nobody is standing by with a landing net, so far as we can learn.

The McGill Daily says there are not 100 students in the University who can tell what is going on in Europe. Perhaps the student paper will tell us just what is going on.

London's newest motion picture theatre is to have a swimming pool, sports ground and dance floor. Let us hope the architect does not forget to make arrangements for a screen too.

Chancellor Hitler is barred from attending the coronation by reason of an old custom which does not allow invitations to heads of state. They probably will go ahead with the thing anyway.

Some person should take Senator Ellender of Louisiania to one side and tell him quietly that Canada does not owe any war debt to the United States—or to any other country.

Crosley Field, the home of the Cincinnati Reds is under water as a result of the flood, and the Peterborough ball club which sees its grounds inundated every second year or so will feel like sending a telegram of sympathy.

That tax conference in Toronto to organize a firm stand against the cost of relief and other social services being charged against real estate is a sign that sometimes the worm really does turn.

The Canadian National Railway has been given judgment for $1,000 against the owner of a truck which collided with a C.N.R. train at a level crossing. That is just another proof it pays to stop, look and listen before driving over a railway track.

Motor thieves in Winnipeg have been getting away with an average of two cars a day ever since the beginning of the year. Owners are probably wishing that the sit-down strike idea would spread to that angle of the automotive field.

HE SNORES

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Uncle Eben visits me, a stalwart man of 83, I'd call him rather lank; but Uncle Eben keeps his health, nor does he fling away his wealth, he keeps it in the bank.

¶ He's fussy on his victuals though, and stokes them in alarming slow, as though it caused him grief; but uncle never yet complains, at times he halts and then explains, he's troubled with his teeth.

¶ He is no trouble when he's here, his brain seems active like and clear, and he reads quite a lot; he likes to sit a while and rest, and park his chin upon his chest, as though he's deep in thought.

¶ My uncle goes to bed at nine, he says that is the proper time, he won't stay up no more; he's kind of stubborn I persist, for in his room he will persist, on opening up the door.

¶ When Uncle Eben starts to snore, why I can't read or talk no more, he snores both high and low; if folk are in and hear that sound, they start to jump and look around, they then pick up and go.

¶ And I can't up and say to him, from lack of sleep we're getting thin, for that would make him sore; yet uncle's wrong it seems to me, I wouldn't mind if he'd agree—and let me close his door.

We Must Prepare For Neutrality

From Parliamentary Debates, Jan. 25.

Miss MACPHAIL: What I am saying is that we do not need to explain our loyalty. If we are doing what we think best for Canada, that is the best thing we can do in the circumstances; we cannot expect that we shall all agree.

We hear many glowing words of praise for Sweden and Denmark. Well, possibly Sweden and Denmark are in the position in which they are today by reason of many things, but largely because they have kept themselves from wars for a long time. They were closer to the conflict of 1914-1918 than we were; yet they were able to maintain neutrality. Again they are sitting on top of the volcano; whether they can maintain neutrality on this occasion I do not know, but I know they still have the determination to try to. Canada would be well advised to get ready for neutrality. If we wait until the last moment to make our decision we shall not decide for neutrality, because there will be the pull of the military caste, the pull of sentimental imperial ties, there will be many things influencing us against neutrality. If, then, we are even going to consider it we should consider it now, and we should consider the price. I think the United States are acting wisely in this regard. They are preparing for neutrality. I do not know whether they can remain neutral when war comes, but I know they are getting ready to remain neutral, and that is something. That will keep them out at least a couple of weeks longer than would otherwise be possible. In Canada we ought now to be doing everything possible in preparation to maintain a neutral position. Unless we do so we shall be drawn in by forces of which we as a parliament know nothing, about which possibly the government will not know too much and of which the people of Canada have never heard.

Canada is developing a virile national spirit. I do not mean nationalism which seeks expression by endeavouring to annex—other countries, for instance, Newfoundland, the West Indies and Bermuda. I mean a nationalism which is proud of Canada, which is self-respecting, which is determined that Canada will make decisions for herself and that she will not now, as has been the case too often in the past, be unduly influenced by considerations of Great Britain, shall I say. Canada is growing up, and particularly among our younger people there is a virile Canadianism. They are not so much attached to any apart of Europe, or indeed to the British commonwealth of nations, as are those of older years. This is something we have to reckon with at some time, and we might as well admit it now.

As Canada grows up, she should take part in neighbourhood conferences. I do not remember his exact words, but in speaking at Geneva I believe the Prime Minister expressed faith in regional pacts, saying that he thought they came closer to reality in linking obligations with definite contingency and direct interest. Early last December there was a neghbourhood conference of the American republics at Buenos Aires. I see no reason why Canada should not have attended that conference.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: May I give my hon. friend the reason?

Miss MACPHAIL: Yes, indeed.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: We were not invited.

Miss MACPHAIL: Did you make it clear that you did not want to be invited?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: No; we just were not invited, that is all.

Miss MACPHAIL: I am not so sure. If Canada made it known that she wanted to be invited she would be invited.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): That is not the way it is done.

JUST NONSENSE.

(Ottawa Journal)

MR. NORMAN JACQUES, Social Credit member of the House of Commons, makes the charge that "British bankers" for $25,000,000 "bought the silence of the English press" in the matter of the Douglas Social Credit doctrine. It was true, he declared, because "the charge had been published and had never been disproved."

This makes it easy to prove things. You make a charge, and if it isn't denied then it follows that the charge is true. It doesn't matter if the person against whom the charge is directed never hears of the allegation, it doesn't matter if the person attacked considers the charge so silly as to refute itself—it is true just the same. Or so it would be if Mr. Jacques' precedent could be taken as sound.

As a public man Mr. Jacques should know better than to utter such nonsense. It is just as foolish as his further charge that Canadian newspapers give "little publicity to Social Credit doctrines." He did not claim we had been bought up by the bankers, and so it must be just our natural perverseness.

"QUEERS" THE WORD.

(Toronto Star)

IT HAS been a queer winter. In Stanley township, Fenwick Stewart celebrated the New Year by ploughing; his first experience of that kind, although he recalls doing it on Christmas Day forty-two years ago. At Collingwood and Barjeros, snakes have been reported. In the Badjeros area William Moore took his cutter to visit his daughter some miles from home on Christmas Day. Then came the thaw, and he could not get it back for two weeks. At Trenton, a recent fog was so thick that two men who had fishing shanties on the bay were lost in it. At Sudbury the mild weather is said to account for an epidemic of mumps which has affected every second school child. And all over Ontario colds and flu have been blamed upon the unusual weather. It has given people something to grumble about. But those who think it heralds a new kind of winter are mistaken. It is just a little bump on the bigger bumps of milder winters which will in due course give place to colder ones.

Floating Bridge Is Unique.

(U.S. Engineers Surprised To Hear Of It.)

EDITOR Examiner:

Sir: In the December 17th issue of the Examiner, I noticed that Peterborough has a newly organized Kawartha Lakes District Tourists Association which interests me, naturally because it concerns my own home section.

During the past 30 years, or more, I have visited the old homes scenes many times and each time find new interests in dear old Peterborough County.

Also during my lifetime, I have noticed that outsiders can see things sometimes about us that we have not thought much about, because, having been used to them all our lives, we have just taken them for granted. So now that Peterborough has just organized a tourists' association presumably for the purpose of calling general attention to the attractions of the Kawartha Lake section, I am assuming the right, as a native son, to mention some of the attractions, which at one time I took for granted, and which some of my fellow native sons may still be taking for granted, that might be well to emphasize for the benefit of future visitors and tourists.

One is the floating bridge across Lake Chemong. I never realized until within the last few years that this structure is a real curiosity on the American continent, if not in the world. That bridge is among my earliest recollections, yet when I happened to show a picture of it to a civil engineer of my acquaintance, to my surprise, he had never heard of anything of the kind beyond the temporary use of pontoon bridges in war times. He asked me all sorts of questions as to its construction to which I could give only the answers of a layman. He, in turn, showed it, or mentioned it, to some of his engineer associates and all expressed the same interest. I have been asked a number of times for specific directions as to where the floating bridge is located and how it may be reached by automobile. There may be other floating bridges besides this and the one at Gannon's Narrows. There used to be one across Pigeon Creek. I have also a faint recollection of having heard of one in the Lake Simcoe section, but I never heard of any outside of Ontario.

Another attraction is the lift lock, but I think this has been pretty well advertised.

Where is there another string of lakes to compare with the Kawartha Lakes of Ontario?

While on this tack, why not let the outside world know where, and what is the Trent Valley Canal? Has anyone ever sat on the deck of a canal steamer and written, in graphic terms, just what may be seen on a trip from the Bay of Quinte to the Georgian Bay via this canal, stating through what lakes, narrows, rivers, locks, towns, villages, and other interesting points it passes? What Indian villages are to be seen? To what tribes do these Indians belong? What are some of the interesting points in their history? What historic places may be seen that are intimately associated with the making of Ontario, or America in general?

Where in the whole world is there another Buckhorn, or Young's Point with their glacial-swept granite floors?

What markers are there to tell the visitor interesting facts in regard to certain features along the way, the floating bridge for example. I have reason to believe that few people in Peterborough County know that it was built just 68 years ago and so far as I know, has been in continuous use ever since.

Please do not think me presumptuous in calling attention to these points of interest. Maybe, after all, I have missed the most important. I know that there are many others that could be mentioned and advertised more prominently than they have been in the past, that would redound to the credit of the makers of Peterborough and vicinity. I live among people who are undoubtedly Ontario's best customers, so far as tourist traffic is concerned, and as a native son of a native daughter of Peterborough County, I am anxious that my home land "hide not her light under a bushel."

If you think this letter worth while to bring to the attention of the Tourist Association, I shall appreciate it.

Yours truly

Muzzling Civic Employees.

(From the Owen Sound Sun-Times.)

AT a recent meeting Kitchener City Council passed a resolution forbidding civic employees from giving the press information which is "prejudicial to the business of the city." Which practically means, as rightly interpreted by The Record, that the public which pays the taxes and elects the mayor and aldermen is not to receive any "prejudicial" information from the City Hall.

What is "prejudicial" information? The Record asks; and it mentions cases; dangerous conditions of streets, threatening epidemics, existence of serious fire hazards—and wants to know whether the public should be informed through the press or the official in charge should suppress all information until he has consulted the official body concerned. Would such information be held "prejudicial?" Who is to be the judge—the city engineer, the medical officer, the fire chief—or is it all to be left to the judgment of the mayor or some alderman? Is a civic employee to risk his job by giving out some information a couple of aldermen may consider "prejudicial?"

This "hush, hush" policy is bad—very bad. In two ways.

If civic employees are to be muzzled, much harm may have been done before the information to which the citizens are entitled reaches them through authorized channels. Surely the sane thing to do, if a danger exists, is to let the people know about it through the only medium to which all have access—the press. Surely, too, the newspapers are sensible enough not to publish anything which is liable to do more harm than good. They are not scandal-mongers.

Another point is that, no matter how close-mouthed officials may be rumor is a very busy old lady; so in the absence of authentic information, half-true or wholly false stories are only too likely to be subject to no correction or contradiction if those who know are barred from disclosing the truth.

That is a very dangerous precedent the Kitchener City Council has sought to establish—we say "sought to establish" because we do not think the good people of Kitchener will stand for it. It is Fascism on a small score—the old wornout "It's none of your business; we're running this city" policy. The people are too enlightened for that sort of treatment. They pay the bills, the members of council are their servants; they are entitled to full information on all public matters; and, unless we mistake the people of Kitchener, they will demand it. The council will be wise to "get out from under" as soon as possible.

Stands Scotland Where She Did?

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

APPARENTLY No. Scientists at Glasgow University have been getting out their "foot-rules, or whatever it is they measure with, and find that Scotland is moving westward at the rate of ten feet per annum. Scotland has been drifting thus in the Greeleyan manner for 72 years, having moved 700 feet in that time, and if continued for about 1,500,000 years would be blocking New York Harbor or the mouth of the St. Lawrence. It might be bad for Scotland to be tacked onto the United States, but it would improve America a lot.

Still, that is not exactly what is happening. The Glaswegians say that Scotland is not detaching itself from England and going on a peripatetic journey but is swinging round west and south. In due course, therefore, she will bump against Ireland, thereby closing the route of the C.P.R. liners via the Northern Ireland route. If this sort of thing goes on, Scotland, being populated by a pushful people, will nose Ireland south until the British Isles bump up against Spain. That will take a long time, too, and we hope the Spanish civil war is over by that time, else Britain will be involved. The curious spectacle will be seen of England being where the northern half of the country is. But whether Scotland is the northern or the southern half, the Scots will no doubt retain their characteristics.

At the same time this Scottish move will lead to new complications. The English Channel will be blocked, or, in fact, it will be where the Pentland Firth is today. London will be where Glasgow is and the gentleman who go grouse shooting on August 12 will go south instead of north.

And when Northern Ireland is shoved around to where the Irish Free State is, what will the Irish do then?

Truly the Scots have a lot to answer for. Still, if they spread their influence around Europe a bit it may be a more peaceful continent to live in.

To The Editor

IN DUMMER

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The story goes that if a man is not good enough for Heaven, and not quite bad enough for h—— send him to Dummer. In this respect there seems to have been some misjudgement regarding a certain Mr. Geo. Woodcock, as he seemed to be an undesirable character. If all these people such as Woodcock would stay where they belong, poor old Dummer would be able to keep out of the headlines. It is true, we all feel sorry for this poor fellow's misfortune, but do not feel the same about his disposition, which was anything but pleasant. He seems to be one of those individuals that delight in fighting or bullying their way through the world. However, people who had any dealings with him would rather walk around him, than to lay hands on the fellow in order to get him out of your way—not because you fear him, but more for sanitary reasons than anything else.

He left here with the idea that he had been dumped off at the wrong place, so decided to go back to the old roost and make a fresh start. We all wish him well in his new abode, but unless he learns to be thankful for small mercies, and change his tactics, he cannot expect much sympathy from the general public.

FAIR PLAY

R. R. 2, Lakefield.

"ROGER" IS BACK.

(Regina Leader-Post)

IT IS a matter for community-wide relief and satisfaction that "Roger" has been found. "Roger," a dog of black and white etching, precise denomination in the canine world not known to us, had been missing one bitter cold night after another of late. He disappeared out of the life of his boy owner on Pasqua street on a Sunday night and wasn't recovered until the following Thursday night. He had been out four nights, seemingly, in weather all the way from 25 to nearly 40 below zero.

The whole of Regina had been getting interested in "Roger," particularly citizens who have dogs and perhaps more particularly still those who themselves have lost dogs on occasions.

Thoughts, too, were with the boy owner, who had written a plaintive letter to the police imploring aid in his search. Thought were with the boy as he trudged the streets night after night in this biting weather of late looking out and calling for his dog. Not a few sympathetic citizens appeared to join in the search.

UNLICENSED DRIVERS.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

ACCORDING to statistics issued by the motor vehicles branch of the Ontario Department of Highways for the nine months ending last September, 24 fatal accidents, 327 non-fatal and 186 causing property damage only involved 527 drivers without license. This seems a remarkably large number of persons to be illegally in charge of motor vehicles. If five per cent. of all drivers involved in reported accidents in that period were found to be without license, is it not reasonable to assume that one in every 20 on the roads at any time is taking a chance in the same way? These would include under-age drivers and persons unable for other reasons to obtain permits, as well as those from whom permits had been taken as result of accidents.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 28. — Wheat prices skidded on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, but made very little fues about it. At the close of a dull session values were 2½-2¼ cents lower, at the day's lowest levels.

A minimum of selling prompted by a lack of overseas demand for wheat sufficed to scale down the price struoture.

Operations throughout were dragy. Losses at Chicago and 1⅝d decline at Liverpool were other depressing market factors, with little support apparent in the pit. Export sales were small and unestimated.

Cash grains spreads closed about unchanged. Coarse grains prices fell off with wheat.

STEEL OFFICIALS PAY VISIT TO CITY

250 Representatives Of Various Industries See Company's Pictures

Officials of the Crucible Steel Company visited Peterborough Wednesday night, meeting two hundred and fifty representatives of the manufacturing industries of city and district at the Canadian General Electric Company, and later at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

Howard J. Stagg, assistant general manager of the Halcomb steel division of the Crucible Steel Company, and Neil O'Connor, sales manager of the company's Syracuse branch, were accompanied by J. L. Hynes, Canadian manager, and George Golby of the company's Toronto branch, and by three members of the sales department of Railway Power and Engineering Corporation, Toronto, Canadian distributors, H. C. Lewis, W. Patterson and W. L. Lawrenson. C. H. Ley, sales manager of Dominion Wheel and Foundry, Toronto, was also present.

A program of motion pictures, showing the manufacturing and processing of tool steels was presented in the main office of the C.G.E. Company, and other interesting reels including a comedy traced the development of tool steels from the ore to the finished product.

In addition to the men who were present from local factories and other interests using steel, there were representatives of the Nicholson File Company, Port Hope; Cooey Arms Company, Cobourg; Deloro Smelting and Refining Company; the Douglas Pectin Company, Cobourg; Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, Cordova; and incidentally the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. Nearly two hundred of the guests went on to the Kawartha Club for a pleasant social hour, meeting the visiting steel men and the officials of the Railway Power and Engineering Corporation. Refreshments were served. The arrangements for the evening were smoothly handled by the C.G.E. Foremen's Association, with S. O. Shields as chairman.

PIRATES SINK PACKERS IN INTERMEDIATE TILT

Pirates trounced Packers, 10 to 2, at the Sacred Heart rink last evening in an intermediate Southend Hockey League tilt. The winners looked too good for their rivals on the night's play, dishing up a fast-skating passing game and rugged checking. Fleming led the scorers with four while DeCarlo notched three, B. Bailey two and Thomas one. The first line of the losers were most effective for that team while all the winners shone. The teams:

Packers: Goal, Rishea; defence, A. Downer, Foster; centre, G. Downer; wings, N. Downer, B. Downer; alternates, Jones, Cournyea, J. Downer.

Pirates: Goal, Hartwick; defence, Bailey, Hobbins; centre, DeCarlo; wings, Fleming, Thomas; alternate, Thornton.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Curling .....

Every night from now on it looks as if the standing in the groups might be changed.

In Group A, B. Scott was leading with no losses until Ray Best trimmed him Wednesday night. Now, there are four of them tied with one loss apiece.

In the write-up that appeared in the morning's paper about the Oshawa bonspiel, we notice that our boys are not mentioned in the money at all. So we guess its was a case of curtains for them.

The postponed Neill Trophy competition has been called for next Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. And this time, so the competition will be a little more attractive, the committee has added a consolation event.

Just why so many of the boys came down and hung around No. 8, when we have good ice available, is hard to figure out. It puts us in mind of a young couple, living out in the west end of the town, who went down to the fowl supper held at Keene last fall, and all they did was eat bread and butter.

It appears that when Gordon Matthews was walking down to the office the other morning, a gentleman stepped up to Gordon took off his hat, and said: "Mr. Brown, I believe?" Gordon's reply was simple and direct. It was: "Sir, if you believe that, you'll believe anything."

Scores:

J. J. Howden, 11; A. Kay 7.
R. Best, 14; B. Scott, 6.
G. Matthews, 15; M. Cruthers, 11.
R. Adams, 13; A. Gates, 8.

BLIND FARMER RUNS OWN FARM

when the crop sprouts and begins to require care out the hardy veteran is able for the difficulties. "I can tell most of the plants apart from weeds by touch so I don't make too many mistakes when I'm weeding. Carrots and the slimmer plants are hard to tell until they are well grown but others are easier. People ask me how I know the difference between pigweed and a potato plant but that is an easy one. I just nip off a bit of leaf and smell it. You can generally tell by the smell if you can't by the touch."

Mr. Robertson is justly proud of the straightness of the furrows in his garden. Traces of his garden of last summer still remaining today indicated he had followed with remarkable trueness his guiding strings. From the garden last summer he produced potatoes, carrots, beans, peas and other vegetables in such quantity that he was able to give some away after putting away his winter store.

When a faithful old collie he had had many years got too old for further work last year, trouble resulted for Mr. Robertson. The dog had long been herding the cattle for him out when he slowed down the cattle realized he was harmless and refused to be driven.

Difficult Job

"I had to start going out after them myself and it was a hard job for me to find them. They would be lying in the shade of trees making no noise and I often had to hunt all over before I found them. Then a neighbour brought a bell and tied it to one of the cows and I found no trouble after that."

As he spoke of the matter of dogs, Mr. Robertson introduced his new dog "Collie" to the reporter. "I think this one's going to be a good help," he said. "I'll just have to take him out after the cows two or three times and he'll learn to bring them back himself." He said he called the dog "Collie" because the word "Collie" was on the cage in which the dog was delivered.

A distance of 70 yards separate Mr. Robertson's barn from his house and a gateway stands midway. Each evening he makes his way from the barn toward the house with two full pails of milk and has yet to spill a drop. He closes the barn door and operates the intervening gate with his elbow without setting down the pails, he stated.

Good Neighbours

"I have wonderful neighbours," Mr. Robertson said. "They are a great help to me. I never have to ask them for help as they do everything without asking. William Stewart and his brother, Harry, won't see me stuck and other neighbours like Tom Stillman, Dave Kemp and Gordon Taylor often help me out."

He said the neighbours take turns in seeding one of his fields with grain and turn over a third of the crop to him in return. They provide him with a considerable source of revenue by pasturing their cattle on his farm at $5 a head. Last year he took care of more than 40 head.

Anything he wants from Keene is brought by the neighbours as they pass by. If he finds himself short of hay or straw he rarely finds it necessary to ask for it as it is given him readily. Neighbouring boys were busy cutting him firewood out of his own woodlot today.

New Roof

"I'll tell you just how good my neighbours are," he said. "They decided last year that my barn needed re-shingling and the first thing I know about it was when I heard them hammering the shingles on."

Despite the fact he is blind, Mr. Robertson can repay his neighbours in some measure for their kindness. He is a graduate veterinary surgeon and practiced until his failing eyesight forced him to give it up many years ago. Nonetheless he still retains his old knowledge and skill and frequently goes to the aid of his neighbours with his services in dressing horses teeth, delivering calves and foals and diagnosing symptoms.

Simple Life.

All in all, the simple life the blind man leads is very much that of the average, hard-working farmer. He rises winter and summer between 4 and 5 o'clock, and, after doing his household chores, proceeds about his daily round of farm work with methodical efficiency.

"I've always worked hard, so I couldn't get used to sitting around and doing nothing," he explained. "In summer the work keeps me going from morning to night pretty well, but I have it easier in winter like any other farmer."

He said his barn chores require about an hour in winter, but a somewhat shorter time in summer. It matters not whether he sets about the chores in the bright sunlight of mid-day or in the darkness of early morning or midnight, so he regulates his work schedule to suit his convenience. Testimony to his amazing efficiency is the relative tidy, cleanliness of his barn and stables. "In cleaning the barn each day I am at a disadvantage as I have to carry out the dirt shovel by shovel," he explained. "A wheelbarrow is no use to me as I can't load it or handle it very well."

Tidy Housekeeper.

Mr. Robertson carries out his household duties as expediently as he does outside work.

"The baker from Keene brings me my bread and my neighbors bring me other supplies. I cook myself eggs, bacon, potatoes and lots of other good solid dishes. Sometimes I cook a roast of meat, but not very often, as most of it has to be thrown out before I can finish it. I also use lots of canned goods, as they are so handy for a blind man."

Niece Comes To Aid.

Regularly Mr. Robertson tidies up the house and, once in a while, scrubs the floors. He is aided in this regard by a niece who visits him occasionally for a few days to make sure all is in order.

"What do you do in the evenings?" he was asked.

"By the time I'm through my work I'm nearly always ready for bed. After I've had my supper and washed the dishes, I sit around a while and once in a while get out my violin. I used to be quite a fiddler when I was a young fellow, and I still like to amuse myself by playing the old-time tunes. I've been amusing myself this way quite a bit since I've been alone. I used to have a radio, but it broke down and I never had it repaired. Perhaps I'll get another one some time."

No Lights.

Of course, he bothers not to light lamp as he sits on his couch by the stove in the evening for he has no use for light. He would like to light his coal oil lamp occasionally for service as a guide to expected visitors, but he would be unable to tell the height of the wick, he said. If visitors come, they light the lamp themselves.

"I like my neighbors to drop in and chat in the evenings, as it is pretty lonely at times. They are very good about that. A blind boy from up the line who attends the Institute for the Blind at Brantford often comes to see me when he is home."

Mr. Robertson is never far out of touch with the outside world as he has a telephone in his home. "Each morning at about 5 o'clock I give a ring on the telephone and Bill Stewart knows I'm all right. In summer I don't have to ring as he watches for my barn door to open in the morning."

A chime clock on his living-room wall gives him the time of day. If he wishes to know the time between the hour and half-hour periods, he opens the face of the clock and feels the hands.

Not Afraid.

"Aren't you afraid of being bothered by transients or other marauders?"

"Few people will harm a blind man," he replied. "Most want to help. A while ago I caught a fellow hiding in my barn. I heard him rustling about and when I ordered him out he went without any trouble."

He is looking forward to receipt of a blind pension as a help to his simple existence and is waiting with interest the move now under way at Ottawa to reduce the effective blind pension age. "A blind person does not spend much money, but a pension would help me get a few little things I want," he said.

As news photographers flashed pictures of him in his home, he commented with a chuckle: "If you put my picture in the paper the widows will be after me."

MAROONED FOLKS LET FLOOD BRING

Everyone yells back. More windows pop up. People run out on their second story porches, just above the waterline.

"Got anything to eat? Any cigarettes? When are they coming for us? Hey sailors, take us along."

But we're supply boats, on a mission for milk that thousands of babies and children need desperately in the refugee camps on the highlands back from the flood; bread for the battered, hungry grownups who are rationed to the bone.

A few more blocks ahead is our goal, a railroad siding at the end of the deep water at 30th and Garland. There are five box cars, standing up to their axles in the muddy flood, but water hasn't touched the precious cargo packed in right up to the roofs. The sailors tell me the food has just come in from Chicago.

But just 100 feet or so short of the siding, is the strangest sight of all. On both sides of the street are grocery stores, drug stores, fruit stores, their windows smashed in by the weight of the waters.

Fish With Baskets.

In the windows of the food stores are piled edibles of all kinds. Much of the stuff has floated away. And from the second story porches of houses clustered around, men gaze hungrily into the water, holding long poles with baskets tied to the ends, spearing as you would net for fish anything with eatable look that drifts by.

They haul in their "lines," watch us, and yell like the others. Their eyes never leave us as the longshoremen pull up to the box cars, and in scarcely any time at all, load the supply boat until it sinks to the gunwales.

We start back. It's against regulations, but how are you going to get by those drawn, bewhiskered sufferers? We toss them loaves of bread, promise we'll be sending relief right back.

TRENT RIVER

Owing to ice conditions the Donegal-Trent River hockey game to be played here Tuesday night was cancelled. Weather permitting, South Dummer will play here Tuesday night.

HAVELOCK A.Y.P.A. ACTS HOST TO Y.P.L.

Mixed Program Of Musicals And Games Is Heartily Enjoyed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 28.—Over sixty members of the United Church Young People's League were the guests of St. John's Anglican Young People's Association Monday night, for an evening of games and entertainment.

Commencing with a hymn by the Y.P.L. orchestra, Miss Marguerite Roche, A.Y.P.A. president, welcomed the visitors and expressed her regret that their rector, Rev. R. E. Lemon could not be present owing to an important meeting in Toronto. Miss Roche then asked Miss Dorothy Davidson, Y.P.L. president, to present their part of the program.

After thanking the members of the A.Y.P.A. for their hospitality, Miss Davidson first called upon a quartet (Miss Barbara Fennell, Max Warne, Grey Kemp and Everard Chiles) who rendered a well-known negro spiritual entitled "Swing Low Sweet Chariot." Mrs. James Young gave a splendid reading entitled "Joining," followed by a selection from the orchestra. Asked by Miss Davidson to say a few words, Rev. S. A. Kemp expressed his pleasure at having the two societies participate in the same program, and hoped that more evenings of the same nature may be enjoyed.

Miss Roche then resumed her position as mistress of ceremonies and presented the A.Y.P.A. portion of the entertainment, which included a reading by Miss Reta Leeson, entitled "Bargain Day" and a piano solo by Miss Verna Isaac, followed by several games and contests.

Winners of the contests were: screen star contest, Marjory Leng and Fred Hill; nut contest, Jewell Scott and Bert Hagerman.

While refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee were being prepared there was community singing and soon after lunch the pleasant evening drew to a close with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Dafoe Family Has Resided In The County Of Hastings For Past Six Generations

Branches of Family Have Scattered To All Parts Of The Continent

EMPIRE LOYALISTS

(By A Staff Reporter)

MADOC, Jan. 28.—The history of the Dafoe family, conspicuously represented in its sixth generation in Canada by Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician extraordinary to those famous little sisters of Callander,—Annette, Marie, Cecile, Emilie and Yvonne Dionne, includes one of the most interesting genealogies that may be traced in all the clan records of this country.

This assertion probably should be substantially qualified, restricting it to families of Anglo-Saxon origin or admixture, because some of the oldest French surnames of Quebec were established in the lower province long before the English came from across the sea and later from that lost New England whose rugged individualism, sharpened by pioneering struggles for existence in a strange country that became their home, turned their sympathies and self-interest away from their motherland.

Scattered Over Continent

Branches of the Dafoe family tree, whose trunk arose in Hastings county, extend with astonishing virility and productiveness into many parts of Canada and across the border whence its founders came in the early days of Ontario. So amazingly numerous is its posterity that the family tree in its far spreading substance seems to obscure even the brightest of its scions. This human family is definitely greater in its sheer numbers than the brightest of its sons. In the field of medicine Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe has gained international renown as the emergent doctor to the Dionne babies, and before that prodigious event and the lustre its success cast upon the family name, John Wesley Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, had achieved a high place in Canadian letters and journalism. Other Dafoe men might be singled out for individual mention, but when all their accomplishments were noted they recede into the background which projects the family as a whole.

A Norwood Branch

Of special interest to Peterborough county is another branch of the Dafoes in the female line continuing in the children of the late J. B. Pearce of Norwood and his wife, Lois Dafoe. Still another branch is represented in the sixth generation by Roswald Dafoe, son of Frank Dafoe, Madoc's leading hardware merchant.

If it were permissible and also if it were possible to publish the Dafoe genealogy the chart would create an immediate impression of the fecundity of this family, apart from secondary philosophical impressions of how life expands and multiplies until in so many instances relationships are dimmed on the side of ancestry beyond grandparents of the present generation.

Recall Bible Phrases

The beginning of a historic outline of the Dafoes suggests the first verses of St. Matthew's gospel: "Abraham begat Isaac; and Isaac begat Jacob; and Jacob begat Judas and his brethern," the dynasty of the royal house of David.

In that archaic language it might be written of the Dafoes: "Abraham begat Michael; and Michael begat Michael; and Michael son of Michael begat Allan; and Allan begat Allan Roy and his brother William Allan Vandusen of Toronto, who is also a physician."

And also in that charting Abraham begat Daniel; and Daniel begat Samuel; and Samuel begat Calvin; and Calvin begat John Wesley, one of Canada's most distinguished and influential editors.

Children of Abraham

Originally the Dafoes in Hastings county were two brothers, Abraham and Jacob. Jacob had no children, and the available record does not indicate whether he married. Hence, the family has sprung from the brother Abraham who in 1783, one hundred and fifty-three years ago, came to Canada with his brother Jacob after the American revolution, and settled at Hay Bay, an arm of the Bay of Quinte, south of Napanee, near the southeast corner of Hastings county.

Settled In New York

According to a sketch of the family to which the Examiner has had access, the name Dafoe is exclusively Canadian. It is a corruption of the name Devoe, which is not uncommon in New York State; and this in turn derived from the root or earlier name De Vos. The family in its racial origin was probably Flemish or Dutch, probably the former, and is comparatively common in the Netherlands to this day.

In the year 1658 a number of farmers came from the Low countries to New York, then New Amsterdam, and became tenants of the Van Rensselaer family at Rensselaerwyck. Among them were Abram De Vos and Jacob Devos, presumably brothers or father and son. These men were undoubtedly the progenitors of the numberless Devoes. Defoes and Dafoes scattered over the continent. Abraham (Abram) and Jacob have been family names down to the present generation, and as another link with colonial days in New York State the name Van Rensselaer still persists, especially in the branch distinguished by John W. Dafoe of Winnipeg, who has a son, a brother and a nephew bearing that nominal tie with the founders of the family in America.

Long Blank Period

From 1658 until 1783 the fortunes of the Dafoes or De Vos are lost in the mists of time. In the revolt of the New England States, the King's Rangers, apparently a loyalist battalion recruited in the Dutch settlements along the Hudson, included a considerable number of men of that name. After the war they came to Canada with their families and settled in the forests of Ontario.

There is on file in the Crown Lands Department at Toronto the old United Empire list recording the names of those who received grants of land. The Order in Council authorizing the making of this list was passed at Quebec, November 9, 1789, chronicling Lord Dorchester's wish "to put a marke of Honor upon the families who had adhered to the unity of the Empire and joined the Royal Standard in America before the treaty of Separation in 1783."

Fidelity Recognized

It was accordingly ordered that this list should be made "to the end that their posterity may be discriminated from future settlers in the parish registers and rolls of the militia of their respective districts and other remembrances of the Province, as proper objects, by their persevering in the fidelity and conduct so honourable to their ancestors, for distinguished Benefits and Privileges."

In the old United Empire list appear the names of nine male Dafoes, probably of two or three generations, and on the distaff side one woman is mentioned as "widow Dafoe and one son."

The notation opposite the name of Abraham Dafoe was: "Fredericksburg—Corporal King's Rangers, Land Board Mecklenburg 1790, 550; Land Board Mecklenburg 1792, 100 in right of his brother Jacob," presumably referring to their grants of land.

Bay of Quinte Pioneers

The loyalists took the shortest routes to Canada. The Dafoes came to Hay Bay, a reach of the Bay of Quinte, leaving behind them their homes in New York State, severing the material bonds that had been fashioned during a century and a quarter, to preserve their stronger affection for the Empire and their allegiance to the British throne.

The Abraham Dafoe of 1783 had six sons, Conrad, Michael, John, Daniel, George and Jacob. Their families are indicated in this absorbing genealogy which would require pages of any newspaper for reproduction.

Conrad settled in Ashtsville, married Aneph Empey, and died at the age of 100 years and 3 months. Michael settled in South Fredericksburg, married a Holcombe and died in 1868 in his 103rd year. From that fact he must have been 28 years old when his father Abraham came to Canada in 1783.

Dr. Dafoe's Ancestors

And so on with Abaham's other sons. They married and hewed out homes for themselves and their families in the southern area of Hastings county. Michael, son of Abraham, had eleven children, eight boys and three girls, all of whom married. One of Michael's sons was also christened Michael. He married Sarah Ockerman, and they had six children. One of their four sons was named Allan who married Mary Williams, and their family consisted of five boys and three girls. By this time some of the Dafoes had moved up into Hastings county, and so it came about that Allan, son of Michael, was a farmer at Bogart, between Tweed and Sulphide. One of his five sons, William Allan Dafoe, received a university training, took the medical course at the University of Toronto and began the practice of his profession in Madoc about the year 1880. He married Essa Vandusen. They had nine children, seven daughters and two sons. The sons followed in the professional footsteps of their father, and are Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe of Callander, and Dr. William Allan Vandusen Dafoe of Toronto. Their father practiced medicine in Madoc until 1929 when he moved to Toronto where he died.

Frank Dafoe Branch

From that brief outline it has been shown that Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe descended from Michael son of Michael and grandson of Abraham. Another of the first Michael's sons was named Caleb. His wife was named Sharpe. They had nine children all of whom married.

One of Caleb's six sons was Hiram whose wife's name was Scott. They had five children, four sons and one daughter, all of whom married. One of Hiram's sons is Frank Dafoe of Madoc, whose wife's name was Robinson. They had six children, and only one of them, Roswald, is now living in Madoc, representing the sixth generation of the family.

Married J. B. Pearce

Another of Abraham's son was John who settled in what was then known as South Fredericksburg. His wife's name was Schomann, and they had nine children. One of their five sons was called Abram who was married in 1812 and lived to be seventy years old. His wife's name was Holcombe born in 1789. They had eleven children, six boys and five girls, and to repeat a characteristic fact they all married. One of the girls was named Lois. She married J. B. Pearce of Norwood, and they had eight children. Two of the sons are at present living in Norwood, Frederick Pearce and Charles Pearce. Another son, Russell, was killed "Somewhere in France," December 27, 1915. The record indicates that a daughter, Emma, married a Campbell of Port Hope, probably Police Magistrate Campbell.

The branch of the Dafoe family descending through Abram, son of John, and grandson of the original Abraham, is an exceedingly numerous line in itself. Their record is not complete, but it is sufficient to indicate how sons and daughters in each generation moved away from the old settlements in Hastings county. Some of them are traced to Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York, California, British Columbia, Rochester, Belleville, Napanee, Toronto, Rochdale, Foxboro, Norwood, Port Hope, and so on.

J. W. Dafoe's Line

The John W. Dafoe, Winnipeg, branch descends from Daniel son of the original Abraham. Daniel settled at Big Creek, seven miles from Napanee. He had seven children, one daughter and six sons.

One of the sons was Samuel whose wife's name was Wright. They had seven children, one of them Calvin who married Mary Elcombe; and in turn one of their seven children was John Wesley Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.

Other pages of the genealogy are similar to these extracts, the brief record of marriages and resulting families, sons and daughters who in most instances were married, and so on to the present generation. They are literally scattered all over the continent. Quite a number served in the war. And all this multitude not to use too strong a term, sprang from Abraham Dafoe, the British Empire Loyalist of Dutch or Flemish descent, who settled on an arm of the Bay of Quinte in 1783. Incomplete as the record is, nevertheless it is an amazing human document.

Police Jailed Goat As Being Hitch-Hiker

Freemont, O., Jan. 28 (CP) A truck driver backed his trailer up to the police station and unloaded a goat.

It wasn't his goat, he explained to Police Chief Herman Schneider. He was merely driving from Erie, Pa., to Detroit with a load which contained no goats whatever when he started out.

"I have no use for goats," he told Chief Schneider, "and I can't figure out how this hitch-hiker got aboard.

Schneider jailed the animal.

Andrew Meiklejohn Host At Oyster Supper In Honor Of Son

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, Jan. 28. — On Monday night Mr. Andrew Meiklejohn was host at an oyster supper in honor of the birthday of his son, Mr. Lindsay Meiklejohn, of Wainwright, Alberta, who is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson. Several neighbors of the village were invited to participate in the social gathering. At the conclusion of the delicious supper, Mr. D. A. McKenzie proposed a toast to the honored guest and his aged father, wishing them many more years of good health and happiness. After drinking to their health all joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows." Returning to the drawing room there were vocal and instrumental music and contests. The social re-union was most enjoyable and was brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Syne."

41st Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McRoberts celebrated the forty-first anniversary of their marriage on Friday and had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ball, of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Weston Fallis, of Millbrook, Mrs. John McKague and Rev. D. A. McKenzie.

Misses Esther and Jessie Deyell spent the week-end in Toronto.

Miss Elsie Rannie of Burnbrae, and Mr. Earl Godden of Campbellford were guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson on Sunday.

Y.P.S. Holds Meeting

The Young People's Society of Centreville Presbyterian church met on Tuesday night, the president, Ernest Breckenridge, presiding. After considering some items of business, Grace Johnson presided for the program. The theme was "Christ pre-eminent in all things," and was considered under four heads, as follows; Christ pre-eminent in individual life, home life, social life and commercial life.

Excellent papers were given by Muriel Whittington, Grace Johnson, Mary Anderson and Willie Lackey. McIntosh Bradshaw gave a very fine solo.

Holland's Princess On Honeymoon

Princess Juliana, heiress to the throne of Holland, and her consort, Prince Bernhardt zu Lippe-Biesterfeld, pictured enjoying a honeymoon at Krynica, Poland. They were snapped during a skiing trip on a mountain slope near the town.

PLAINVILLE

The Y.P.S. held their skating party at the rink on the lake, Gore's Landing, on Saturday evening. After skating all were entertained with lunch by Misses Beulah Brisbin and Marie McKinley at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Brisbin.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. John West were pleasantly surprised at the home of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer West, where all their family met to celebrate the occasion of their parents' fortieth wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. West were presented with a beautiful set of dishes.

Miss Marie McKinley is recovering nicely after an operation for appendicitis in the Port Hope Hospital, Monday morning.

NATURAL PRODUCTS ACT ULTRA VIRES

appeal of the Attorney-General of British Columbia.

Only 2 In Operation.

Of the legislation only the National Products Market Act and the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act were placed in operation. The former was declared ultra vires and the latter valid.

The decision on minimum wages and hours of labor was the longest judgment, their lordships remarking that the appeal afforded them an opportunity of stating their opinion on some matters arising in the remainder of the appeals.

Within the British Empire, their lordships declared, it was a well established rule that the making of treaties was an executive act while the performance of their obligations, if they entailed alteration of the existing domestic law, required legislative action.

Unlike some other countries, they proceeded, the stipulations of a treaty duly ratified did not within the Empire have the force of law by virtue of the treaty alone. If the national executive, namely the government of the day, decided to incur the obligations of a treaty which involved the alteration of the law they had to run the risk of obtaining the assent of parliament to the necessary statute.

To make themselves as secure as possible, the judgment went on, they would often before final ratification seek to obtain approval from parliament, but it had never been suggested and it was not law that such an expression of approval should operate as law or that in law it precluded parliament or any subsequent parliament from refusing to give sanction to any legislative proposals subsequently brought before it.

Parliament In Control.

Their lordships declared that parliament, as the chief justice of Canada had pointed out, had constitutional control over the executive, but it could not be disputed that the creation of obligations undertaken in treaties and the assent to their form and quality were the function of the executive alone. Once they were created, while they bound the state as against the other contracting parties, parliament might refuse to perform them and so leave the state in default.

In a unitary state whose legislature possessed unlimited powers the problem was simple. Parliament would either fulfill or not the treaty obligations imposed on the state by the executive. But in a state where the legislature did not possess absolute authority, or in a federal state where the legislative authority was limited by a constitutional document or divided up between different legislatures in accordance with the classes of subject matter submitted for legislation, the problem was complex.

Referring to the Canadian Chief Justice's opinion that the Privy Council judgments in the aeronautics and radio cases constrained them to hold that jurisdiction to legislate for the performance of treaty obligation resided exclusively in the Parliament of Canada, Their Lordships declared they were satisfied that neither case afforded a warrant for holding that legislation to perform Canadian treaty was exclusively within the Dominion legislative power.

"For the purposes of Section 91, namely the distribution of legislative powers between the Dominion and the Provinces, there is no such thing as treaty legislation as such," the judgment proceeded. "The distribution is based on classes of subjects and as a treaty deals with the particular class of subjects so will the legislative power of performing it be ascertained.

Most Essential Condition.

"No one will doubt that this distribution is one of the most essential conditions, probably the most essential condition, in the interprovincial compact to which the B.N.A. gives effect.

"If the position of Lower Canada, now Quebec, were considered alone the existence of her separate jurisprudence anent both property and civil rights might be said to depend upon loyal adherence to her constitutional right to exclusive competence of her own legislature in these matters.

"Nor is it of less importance for the other provinces, though their law may be based on England jurisprudence, to preserve their own right to legislate for themselves in respect to local conditions which may vary by as great a distance as separates Atlantic from Pacific.

"It would be remarkable that while the Dominion could not initiate legislation, however desirable, which affected civil rights in the provinces, yet its government, not responsible to the provinces, need only agree with a foreign country to enact such legislation and its Parliament would be forthwith clothed with authority to affect provincial rights to the full extent of such agreement.

"Such a result would appear to undermine the constitutional safeguards of provincial autonomy. It follows from what has been said that no further legislative competence is obtained by the Dominion for its accession to international status and the consequent increase in the scope of its executive functions.

Executive's Responsibilities

"It is true, as pointed out in the Chief Justice's judgment, that as the executive is now clothed with treaty-making powers, so the parliament of Canada, to which the executive is responsible, has imposed upon it responsibilities in connection with such treaties.

"If it were to disapprove of them, they would either not be made or the ministers would meet their constitutional fate. But this is true of all executive functions in their relations to Parliament. There is no existing constitutional ground for stretching the competence of the Dominion Parliament so that it becomes enlarged to keep pace with the enlarged functions of the Dominion executive.

"In other words the Dominion cannot, by merely making promises to foreign countries, clothe itself with legislative authority inconsistent with the constitution which gave it birth.

"It must not be thought that the result of this decision is that Canada is incompetent to legislate in performance of her treaty obligations. In the totality of her legislative powers, Dominion and provincial together, she is fully equipped.

"But legislative powers remained distributed, and if in the exercise of her new functions derived from her international status she incurs obligations, they must, so far as legislation is concerned when they deal with provincial classes of subjects, be dealt with by the totality of powers, in other words by co-operation between the Dominion and the provinces.

"While the ship of state now sails on larger ventures, she still retains the watertight compartments which are an essential part of her original structure."

The Marketing Act

In agreeing with the Supreme Court of Canada that the natural products marketing act was ulta vires, their lordships said there could be no doubt that the act covered tansactions in any natural product completed within a province and had no connection with interprovincial or export trade.

"Therefore, it is plain," the judgment went on "that the act purports to affect property and civil rights in a province and if not brought within one of the enumerated classes of subjects in section 91 must be beyond the competence of the Dominion legislature.

"It was sought to bring the Act within the class of section 91, namely regulation of trade and commerce. Emphasis was laid upon those parts of the act dealing with inter-provincial and export trade, but the regulation of trade and commerce does not permit the regulation of individual forms of trade and commerce confined to a province.

"In this their lordships agree with the Chief Justice. Regarding the attempt to support the act upon the general powers of peace and good government, their lordships think the Chief Justice's judgment is conclusive.

"Their lordships were given to understand that some provinces attach more importance to marketing schemes such as might be set up under this legislation.

Unless and until a change is made in the respective legislative functions, it may be that satisfactory results can only be obtained through co-operation, but the legislation will have to be carefully framed and will not be achieved by either party leaving its own sphere encroaching upon that of the other.

"In the present case, their lordships are unable to support the legislation as it stands."

Employment Insurance.

In declaring unconstitutional the Employment and Social Insurance Act, the Judicial Committee remarked that a strong appeal had been made concerning the special importance of unemployment insurance at the time and for some time prior to the passing of the Act.

"The Act does not purport to deal with any special emergency," Their Lordships commented, "but found itself on general world conditions referred to in the Treaty of Peace. It is also an Act intended to be permanent and there is agreement between all the Supreme Court members that it could not be supported upon the suggested existence of any special emergency.

"Their Lordships find themselves unable to differ from this view. Assuming the Dominion has collected a fund through taxation, it by no means follows that any legislation disposing of it is necessarily within Dominion competence. If the legislation invades civil rights within a province it will be invalid. To hold otherwise would afford the Dominion's easy passage into the Provincial domain."

Trade Commission Act

On the Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act it is held Their Lordships declared that except the Canadian judges' opinion as to the validity of Section 18 and 19, they agreed with the Supreme Court.

"No one has challenged the Dominion's competence to pass legislation relating to trade marks," the Privy Council judgment said, "and if the Dominion has the power to create trade mark rights for individual traders, it is difficult to see why that power should not extend to what is now a usual feature of national and international commerce, viz., the national mark."

The judicial committee dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Ontario and allowed a cross-appeal by the Attorney-General of Canada, stating Sections 18 and 19 are not ultra vires. The judgment added that Sections 23 and 26 also were not ultra vires.

Section 498A

The judgment upholding the validity of Section 498A of the Criminal Code was short. Their Lordships agreed with the Chief Justice of Canada, that the appeal was covered by the Proprietary Articles case of 1931.

"There seems no reason in the present case to suppose that the Dominion is using the Criminal Law as a pretext or that the Legislature is in pith or substance only interfering with provincial or civil rights," the judgment said. "Their Lordships opine that no part of the section is ultra vires."

Regarding the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, Their Lordships declared they were unable to hold that the Statutory conditions of insolvency enabling a creditor or debtor to invoke the aid of the bankruptcy laws were intended to be stereotyped under the B.N.A. so as to confine the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada to the then existing legislation.

"Their Lordships are unable to accept the contention that the act is not genuine legislation relating to bankruptcy and insolvency," the judgment said. "The appeal is dismissed without costs."

Army Blocks Him

Army opposition blocked the efforts of Japanese Emperor Hirohito to to install Gen. Kazuhige Ugaki (ABOVE) as head of a new government, following the resignation of Premier Kohi Hirota and his cabinet. The militarists refused to accept Ugaki as premier, because he disbanded four divisions of the army while war minister in 1926.

Refugee Train Stops Cow Milked For Baby

Charleston, W.Va., Jan. 28

FLOOD refugees from Huntington took the most direct route to stop a baby's sobs of hunger.

Their evacuation train halted far out in the country. A cow grazed placidly in a field.

Nurses didn't hesitate. One took a milk bottle and went to work—the baby's hunger was satisfied.

The farmer? He saw the nurse milking his cow, learned why, milked bossy dry.

"Other babies might get hungry," he said handing over a bucket brimming full.

TURKEY ANTICS NOW EXPLAINED

Columnist Lays It All To Insight Into Their Eventual Fate

TRURO, N.S., Jan. 28—(C.P.)—The antics of turkeys throughout their lifetime, and the difficulties of farmers who hope to raise the birds to maturity are explained in a new way in this columnist's comment in a Truro paper:

"Turkeys are very hard to raise until after they are almost hens When a turkey is young, it is obsessed with a desire to die. It counts that day lost whose low descending sun finds it was not out in the wet grass in the morning to get pneumonia or something or other.

"A young turkey is a fatalist. It knows it was born to die, and it feels death might better come now in a natural way than later by violence. When it has grown larger it becomes optimistic, but later realizes it knew more in its childhood than when grown up."

Entertain
At the Tea Hour.

Mrs. H. W. Morphet and Miss Mildred Morphet of 458 Hunter street west were at home to their friends, nearly two hundred in number, at the tea hour on Wednesday afternoon, when they were assisted in receiving by another daughter of the house, Mrs. F. E. Hooper of Dublin street. Mrs. Morphet received in dark blue velvet with a corsage of roses. Her daughters were both in velvet, Mrs. Hooper wearing burgundy and Miss Morphet in black.

Assisting in looking after the guests in the flower-decked rooms was Mrs. T. H. Glover, in brown velvet.

The tea table was done with silver candelabra holding ivory tapers and a tall cut-glass vase filled with a profusion of lovely Spring flowers.

Tea was poured by Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. G. H. Thompson, Mrs. A. Moir and Miss Annie Wood. Assistants were Mrs. E. V. Morphet, Mrs. James Matthews, Miss Florence Adams, Miss Violet Davidson and Miss Betty Preston.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Hawkins and Mrs. Melville Hancock of Port Hope. (The latter was formerly Miss Margaret Storey of Peterborough.)

Quiet Observance
Of Golden Anniversary.

The observance of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fisher of 493 Water street, which took place on Tuesday, was a quiet event, marked by a small family dinner and the visits of close friends who dropped in during the afternoon and evening to offer felicitations to the bride and bridegroom of half a century. The slight indisposition of Mr. Fisher added to the desire for a quiet celebration of the Golden Jubilee of a couple whose families are among the oldest in this district.

Mr. Fisher is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fisher, of Cavan township, whose parents were of Irish birth, while his wife is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Pimlie of South Monaghan, the former being a native of Scotland and settling in the township as a boy. Mr. Fisher is the last representative of a family of eight.

The marriage was celebrated fifty years ago by the Rev. James Cameron, Presbyterian minister, at the home of the bride's parents in South Monghan. For nearly twenty years, Mr. Fisher was engaged in farming in the township and then moved to Peterborough, where they lived for nearly thirty years. Twenty-five of those were spent by Mr. Fisher as clerk of the Peterborough market, from which position he retired about two years ago.

They have one daughter, Mrs. Frank Buckham of South Monaghan, who, with her husband and four children, were here for the family dinner which marked the Golden Jubilee observance, and was attended by relatives from Peterborough and the township, including Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Fisher, of South Monaghan. A niece, Mrs. Finlay Mathieson, of Burlington, Ontario, was also present.

In the afternoon, especial visitors included the Rev. M. C. Parr, pastor of George Street United Church, where Mr. and Mrs. Fisher are regular attendants, with Mrs. Parr, also their neighbors, the Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Sutcliffe. Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe sang in his fine baritone vonce. Many lovely flowers and gifts and messages of congratulation were received by Mr. and Mrs. Fisher.

UNIQUE METHOD PROVES FUTILE

Man Transports Illegal Rum In Garbage Can But Goes To Jail

HALIFAX, Jan. 28 — (C.P.). — Elias Briand thought he had at last found the perfect way to escape detection while transporting rum illegally in his possession, but Constable Roy Montague changed his mind.

Montague saw a man struggling with a galvanized garbage can. It looked an innocent enough pastime, but he decided to investigate. The garbage can contained nine half-gallon cans of rum.

Briand pleaded guilty to unlawful possession of rum and was sentenced to six months in prison, when he was unable to pay a $300 fine.

Fashion Service

A two-piece school dress of navy blue wool that will serve two or more purposes. It's grand, too, for cool early spring weather without a coat.

Daughter will enjoy wearing lots of different sweaters with the navy skirt. A coral-red or one of the new Dalmatian sweaters would be so bright and gay. The fitted bodice lining top sees that the skirt stays "put."

The peplum blouse flares so cunningly over the hips. The sleeves puff a little at the shoulders. They are equally smart above the elbows as in the back view.

The pattern can be used again for a separate blouse or for a separate skirt. An extra skirt of bright plaid would look adorable with the navy blouse.

A print crepe silk is nice for "best." Cottons and linens are also suitable.

Style No. 3099 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅛ yards of 39-inch material with ⅝ yard of 36-inch lining for bodice.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors. Conducted by Roberta

DAILY duties are a great hindrance to many a Christian, because it takes a higher quality and greater quantity of grace to be Christ-like in the kitchen and in the shop, in the street and in the train, than it does in prayer-meeting or the church service.

—O. S. Marsden.

Dear Friends:

We often think that if we did not have to mingle with certain kinds of people, how much more Christian a life we could live. But—and this is a very important but—our Lord lived like a human being when he was on earth.

He did not shut Himself away from the rest of humanity to practise decent living. He ate with them, and drank with them, and I would like to explain my idea of that last sentence. He also made wine out of water at the marriage feast, and many a one who imbibes too freely if they never take notice of another word in the Bible, likes to point to that fact as an excuse for themselves.

But, you must remember that there are many countries that do not use tea or coffee very largely. They drink wine, and even children drink it also. Also, you should know that tea and coffee was unknown in the days when our Lord was here on earth, at least we hear no mention of either of them.

But the point is this, He lived like His diciples, and where the worship of God was all tangled up with so many rules that these same rules were seemingly of more importance than the true worship, He, as we would say in modern slang, debunked it.

He showed them where they had obscured the love that His Father gave them freely, and it is like a great many homes where the house is more important than the ones who occupy it, or pay for the upkeep of it, where the polish on the floors must be untarnished whether those who live there are comfortable or not.

The pharisees and chief priests were not bad men in the truest sense of the word, in fact they thought they were exceedingly good men. But the tabernacle as the house of God was elevated above God, the rules of worship, the signs, the steps they took, each and every one became of more importance than the love of God, and after all any thinking person should realize that true worship is above all else.

We are told in the bible that "Martha was cumbered with much serving," and that "Mary has chosen the better part," because Mary saw with the eyes of the spirit, while Martha saw with the eyes of the body. And we who think that by outwardly living like a Christian without any real love in our hearts, will find we have been grasping the shadow, and letting the substance go, and that there is no real true Christianity in us.

Our Lord knows we are human beings, and that we must live like humans, cultivating the Divine part of us. We are meant to enjoy the fruits of the earth, and the fruits of our labor, but we must put first things first, else we lose the very thing we are striving after.

Some think that by outwardly acknowledging our love for God, that life will be made easy for us, but you will find that immediately we come right out and show what side we are on, more is expected of us, and that far from shedding our faults and failings, they are the things that will trip us up, and folks will jeer and say "a fine Christian she or he, is."

But God knows our weaknesses and will strengthen us if we depend on His help. Yet, never never get it into your head that trying to be a Christian is an easy thing. You have accepted God as your guide and you will do far more good by being an example of that, than by going around shouting that you are "saved," and trying to push your opinions down other people's throats. You will have all you can do to correct your own faults, than in trying to correct others. But make no mistake it is no easy job to be a Christian. More later.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

ST. JAMES', EMILY.

On Friday evening the A.Y.P.A. of St. James' Church enjoyed a very interesting program in the Parish Hall. The president, Alton Clark, presided over the business session, and the roll was called by the secretary, Arthur Boate. The parliamentary debate which was the main feature of the program proved very interesting and enjoyable. The topic was: "Resolved, That the press has more influence in the country than the pulpit." Albert Davis and Bill Miller had some very fine points which they expressed in a clear manner in favor of the press, while Helen Franks and Reg. Boate displayed sound arguments in favor of the pulpit. After a lengthy debate the members passed in parliamentary manner to the side they thought had the best arguments, showing the negative side with a slight majority. The meeting was closed by the president.

Skating Party.

On Saturday evening a jolly skating party was enjoyed by the A.Y.P.A. members on the lake adjoining Wilbert Clark's farm. The ice was in perfect condition for the annual event. About ten o'clock the party went to Mr. Clark's home to partake of the pot-luck supper which had been made possible by a contribution from each member. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Clark and Alton by the members before departing from their home.

What Is Correct?

How are artichokes eaten?

With the fingers. Each leaf is pulled off separately, the thick portion at the base is dipped in the sauce provided, and bitten off. The leaf is then laid on the plate. The heart of the artichoke, after the fibrous, inedible covering is removed, is eaten with a knife and fork.

What does the best man wear?

At a formal daytime wedding, formal afternoon attire is correct. Formal evening weddings call for tailcoat and white tie. The Best Man and the Bridegroom dress exactly alike, but usually choose ties that are different from those worn by the ushers.

When does a man take off his hat in an elevator?

A gentleman will always remove his hat in a hotel or an apartment-house elevator. It is not expected of him today in the elevator of a business building. He may, of course, choose to remove his hat if he happens to know a woman who is in the elevator and certainly will if he meets a friend there unexpectedly.

FRESH coffee is a test of gracious entertaining

WHETHER a hostess serves after-dinner coffee in the dining room or in the drawing room is far less important than the kind of coffee she serves.

This is why fine hostesses all over the Dominion are serving Chase & Sanborn Dated Coffee.

Its freshness is guaranteed by our Dating Plan. Every bag is rushed fresh to your grocer with the date of delivery plainly marked on it. And no bag stays on his shelf more than 10 days. It can't grow stale . . . can't cause headaches, indigestion, "nerves."

And its price is low, because we pack it in a simple bag and pass the saving on to you.

If you want sincere compliments on your hospitality, order Chase & Sanborn Dated Coffee tomorrow—in the economical bag.

BANK DEPOSITS ARE INCREASED

Dominion Bank Issues Its Sixty-Sixth Annual Statement

EARNINGS IMPROVE

The shareholders of The Dominion Bank were presented with a highly satisfactory statement of the bank's affairs at the 66th annual meeting held in Toronto on Wednesday, January 27th. The outstanding features of this statement were an exceptionally strong cash and liquid position, a large growth in deposits, an enlarged security portfolio and increased profits.

Total deposits amount to $112,478,420, an increase of $6,541,209 during the year and over $14,000,000 in the past two years.

The security portfolio comprising investments in Dominion and Provincial government bonds and other high-grade securities is at the highest point in the bank's history. They total $51,536,902 as compared with $39,516,079 in the previous statement, an increase of 12,022,823 during the year.

As has been said, the bank is in a particularly strong liquid position. Its cash assets are shown at $26,289,533 which is 21.7 per cent of public liabilities. Immediately available assets have reached a total of $93,363,826 or 77 per cent of public liabilities. The percentage last year was 65.29 per cent.

Current loans and discounts in Canada including municipal loans are shown in a total of $45,970,186, a decrease of $12,069,667. Current loans are less by 11,118,193 and municipal loans by $956,474. The reduction in current loans is principally due to a liquidation of advances against grain.

The notes of the bank in circulation at the end of the year were $5,570,701, a decrease of $331,530 due to the gradual reduction in the amount of notes which the bank may have in circulation under the provisions of the present Bank Act. Bank premises account now stands at $5,760,000. The sum of $100,000 was written off in 1936 compared with $75,000 in the previous year.

After making provision for Dominion and Provincial government taxes, the net profits for the year were $951,277 compared with $901,556 in 1935, an increase of $49,721. Out of profits $700,000 was provided for dividends, a contribution of $75,000 was made to officers' pension fund, $100,000 was written off bank premises account, leaving $76,276 to be added to profit and loss account, which now stands at $668,977.

The capital paid up is $7,000,000 while the reserve fund and undivided profits is $7,668,977.

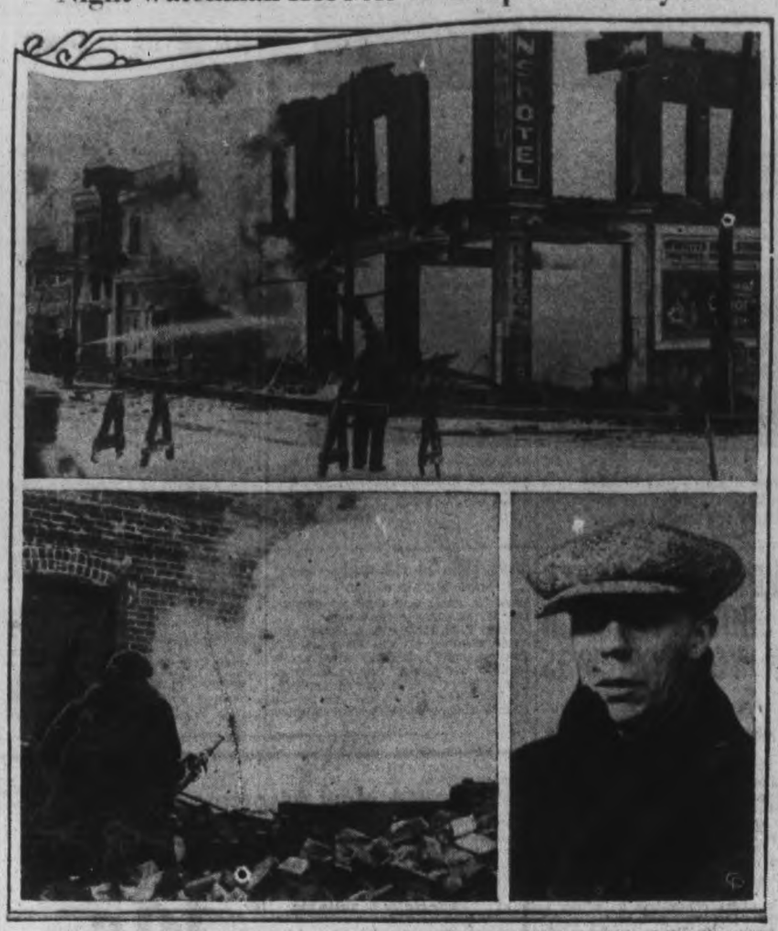
Night Watchman Hero As 45 Escape North Bay Fire



Forty-five guests, including members of the Soo Greyhounds' hockey team, escaped from the Queen's hotel, North Bay, Ont., when the building burned to the ground in an early morning blaze, considered the worst in the city's history. Damage was estimated at $300,000, with the hotel a complete loss and nearby stores and buildings damaged. A view of the fire-gutted hotel still smouldering is given at TOP. LOWER LEFT shows one of the volunteer fire brigade pouring a stream of water on the ruins from the partially wrecked top of a nearby building. Hero of the fire was Arthur Cutts (RIGHT), night watchman, who woke the 45 guests and led them to safety though twice overcome by smoke.

C.P. LOSES EDITOR IN ALEX. P. BELL

One Of Few Morse Operators To Become Newsman After His Job Vanished

TORONTO, Jan. 28 (CP).—Alex. P. Bell, member of the editorial staff of The Canadian Press, died yesterday after an illness of almost a year. He was 39 years old, and one of the few Morse operators who made themselves into newspapermen when the teleprinter displaced the telegraph key in newspaper offices eight years ago.

Born in Ayrshire, Scotland, he came to Canada as a youth, and while still a youth enlisted at Westville, N.S., in the 193rd Battalion and went overseas in 1916. He went immediately to France as a member of the 42nd Battalion. After a year's service, which included Sanctuary Wood, Courcelette, the Regina Trench and Passchendaele, he was wounded at Lens in December, 1917.

Before he decided in 1924 to learn Morse, he worked as a bookkeeper, sailor and miner in Nova Scotia. In 1925 he started copying The Canadian Press news report in the Sydney Post, and two years later was transferred to The Canadian Press Toronto office. His job vanished in 1929 with the advent of the teleprinter, but within a year he was back with "C.P." as a re-write man.

His keen sense of news value and ability to edit copy rapidly made him an ideal news association fyling editor. By 1934 he was selecting the world news report sent from Toronto to more than a score of Ontario evening papers, and in 1935 he was transferred to Montreal to handle the report for Maritime morning papers.

He was well-known as a sports writer in Montreal and Toronto, covering major hockey, football and track meets for several years. He is survived by his widow and three children.

'Teen Age Population Of City Being Admitted Without Question Of Age

REV. M. C. PARR CHARGES

Wednesday afternoon marked the opening of the local W.C.T.U. work for 1937, when a fine representation of members gathered at the Y.W.C.A. The president, Mrs. G. K. Tyler, presided, and an excellent program was carried out.

A brief business session followed and in the absence of Miss E. Mighe, the secretary, her place was taken by Mrs. B. Manning.

As a prelude to the theme of the day, Mrs. J. Fairbrother, superintendent of temperance in Sunday Schools, reported the result of the Sunday School examination contest, and will anounce the winners and present prizes at an early date.

There are 14 Sunday Schools within Peterborough Union, each having a temperance secretary, who presents the department once a month. Only four schools took part in the contest, but these did splendid work.

The guest speaker, Rev. M. C. Parr, pastor of George Street United Church, brought a challenging message to the ladies of the W.C.T.U., commending their fine work and their courage under the difficult conditions confronting them today.

Disastrous Mistake

It is generally conceded that government control and the beverage rooms were a disastrous mistake. We were led to believe these would greatly better conditions where the rum-runners and bootleggers were dealing in their deadly traffic. It is imperative that we arouse at once. If we hope to combat this evil, we must let the world know now that we, as W.C.T.U., as church and Sunday School, are still on the job.

We, who are old, must lead the way for our youth. We must not wait till they are ensnared. Without question, declared the speaker, our 'teen age population, right here in Peterborough, is going to the beverage rooms without any question of age. With such evil on the outside, what have we in our Sunday Schools with which to meet the temptation on every hand?

To present temperance once a month is not sufficient to stop it. We older members must do everything that can be done. A temperance study course for teachers in our Sunday Schools is essential, before we can hope to hold the children, the young men and women of our churches. While we rest upon our oars the liquor people are busy every minute. Every factor that goes into the building of character, should be at work in every Sunday School, he said.

Hundreds of people suffer from the results of the beverage room, both directly and indirectly. Figures show that in Ontario between 60 and 75 million dollars is spent in drink, $13,000 in Peterborough alone. Enough to pay all the relief costs.

A most appropriate and beautiful solo, "This Is My Task" contributed by Mrs. H. V. Dobson, summed up the work before this earnest group of women.

The thanks of the Union was tendered the soloist and the speaker, and a spirited discussion followed the address—in which helpful ideas were evolved.

Some appointments for various changes being considered were made in the department leaders, and the Benediction closed the splendid meeting.

Mrs. M. Gill, 99 years old, of Ellesmere, England, observed her birthday by having her hair bobbed.

COMMUNITY HEALTH

A Column Conducted by the Department of Public Health, Peterborough, in the Interests of Peterborough Citizens.

"PREVENTIVE DENTISTRY"
(Contributed by Dr. J. S. Middleton)

Diseased mouths and decayed teeth are frequently the cause of ill health and much suffering, and often death has been traced to carelessness and neglect of teeth and mouth. It is not expected that Preventive Dentistry will take care of all the diseased teeth but ... endeavour is being made by education to prevent the occurrence of diseased teeth in children and younger people.

In Canada last year we spent $300,000,000—in sickness and at least half of this sickness could have been prevented, so that from an economic standpoint it is good business to do all we can in the way of prevention. A campaign for a better understanding of dental health is being carried on next week in this city and a great deal of information and instructions will be given by those who have had a part in similar campaigns in other provinces of the Dominion.

It is hoped that the mothers, especially, will be helped in the work they have to do in caring for the children in their tender years. The mothers are the first dentists that the children have and some of them do good work but the vast majority do not take the time to make an examination of the child's mouth every day. The importance of this was brought to notice recently when Dean Mason examined the mouths of the quints. He found no difficulty in getting them to open their mouths wide for they had been accustomed to this from infancy. How much easier would be the task of the dentist if all children were given the same training.

Tooth decay comes much more rapidly in some mouths than in others so that there can be no set rule for bringing a child to a dentist for examination. All the temporary teeth are usually through the gums at two years. When a dark spot or a discoloured groove is noticed there should be no hesitation in bringing the child for further examination. The dentist will be guided by the structure of the teeth as to how frequently they should be examined. Only by the fullest co-operation between the parents and the dental profession can we hope to lessen this disease that in the more civilized parts of the world is making such rapid progress.

WEDDINGS

PAYNE—PLANT.

The Elite Court was the scene of a pretty wedding ceremony on Wednesday, when the marriage took place there at half-past eight o'clock last night of Mrs. Jean Plant of London Street and Edward Payne of Cambridge Street. The Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, was the officiating clergyman. The Court was tastefully decorated with flowers, ferns and palms, and the wedding music was played by Mose Yokom. Approximately forty of the friends of the bride and bridegroom were in attendance.

Mrs. Reg. Eagleton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, Reg. Eagleton was best man, and the two daughters of the bride, the Misses Viola and Daisy Plant, were bridesmaids.

The bride wore a lovely long-sleeved gown of blue chiffon velvet, with brilliant clips at the neckline. She wore a wreath of silver flowers in her hair, blue kid slippers, and a corsage bouquet of pink Premier Supreme roses.

Mrs. Eagleton was in an evening frock of Persian tile taffeta with silver shoulder-straps, blue kid slippers and Talisman roses.

The bridesmaids wore evening attire also. Miss Viola was frocked in pink lace with a silver tiara, and her sister, Miss Daisy, wore pink taffeta and flowers in her hair. Both had silver slippers and rose corsage bouquets.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party and guests danced to music played by Mose Yokom, with Miss Anne Bernard of the Elite Cafe staff playing for two old-time dances. Buffet refreshments were served from a flower-decked table centered by a wedding cake presented by Louis Yeotes to the bride, who has been head waitress at the Elite Cafe for some time past.

Mr and Mrs. Payne will live at 292 Brock Street.

THINK CHURCH FIRE STARTED IN ORGAN

Evidence Of Short Circuit Related In Cobourg Probe—Water Pressure Low

COBOURG, Ont., Jan. 28 (CP).—Evidence the $100,000 St. Andrew's Church fire here January 3 might have started from a short circuit in the organ was before Fire Marshal W. J. Scott as he continued his probe into the blaze today.

Fred Burn, one of the church officials, testified last night an electrician looked over the organ and found it suffered greater damage than the church fire could have caused. Because of this, Mr. Burn expressed the belief a short circuit was responsible.

Other witnesses testified the water pressure was too low when firemen started fighting the flames. Councillor Harry McGuire said he noticed the low pressure. It was barely able to shoot streams as far as the church eaves, but when questioned he admitted the strong wind might have been responsible for turning the hose streams into spray before they reached any height.

Dr. W. Wade said he wondered why the pumper was not put into use, and W. J. Maher, who also declared he saw broken hose, stated he was curious over the fact the pumper was not operated. Maher also said the department did not have sufficient active men and younger men should be obtained and trained by the veterans.

Mr. Maher said the pumper, sent for more hose, returned with pieces which had to be connected before attached to the hydrant.

FLOODING OHIO SHOWS SIGNS OF EASING GRIP

of weakness and hope was expressed wholesale evacuation would be unnecessary.

"It appears likely that flood waters will pass down the valley without causing inundation," was the message Major General E. M. Markham, chief of United States engineers, issued through Lieut.-Colonel Eugene Reybold, district chief at Memphis.

The immediate battleground in the struggle to control the rain-swollen torrent in its surge to the Gulf of Mexico centred around Cairo, nestling on a point at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

During the night, Mound City, Ill. surrendered to the flood waters as a back levee collapsed and put 875 to flight.

Engineers said this was the only unfavorable development in the last 24 hours, and divided their efforts between directing completion of the second line of defence on the Birds Point-New Madrid floodway and saving Tiptonville, Tenn., from a new threat.

Residents Refuse to Flee

The 1,300 residents of Tiptonville, disregarding a warning to flee as the Mississippi threatened to cut a channel across Snake Bend and inundate the Tennessee city, not far from Cairo.

Safe so far from being engulfed, Cairo, bulwarked behind a 60-foot seawall expressed confidence it would win its battle.

"Just tell the world we're here and will be for a long, long time," Mayor August Bode declared.

As the flood waters poured into the vast $21,000,000 spillway just below Cairo, engineers said they probably would reach the top of the basin to-night. Then they will await the crest of the flood, with expectations it will hit Cairo about February 2, and Memphis four days later.

Problems of restoration replaced problems of life-saving in Evansville, and other Southern Indiana cities. Evansville estimated its damage at $16,875,000. Losses in other cities wrecked by flood waters were incalculable at present.

Smiles greeted hip-booted Governor Martin Davey of Ohio as he inspected the bedraggled city of Portsmouth where 1,000 persons still were marooned in flooded buildings and refused to leave. On hilltops, between 30,000 and 36,000 lived in makeshift dwellings. Disease was no greater than usual, officials said. Water supplies were being rationed at Portmouth, and several other hard-hit Ohio cities.

The southern states of Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi counted more than 150,000 homeless and 34 dead. The vanguard of 50,000 refugees poured into Memphis while the evacuation of hundreds more continued.

Two National Guard planes dropped messages over Arkansas' flood danger zone, warning lowlanders to evacuate. An area of 100,000 acres was threatened as the levee at Mellwood showed signs of cracking.

Flood Refugees Take To Rowboats To Save Goods

Scenes such as this are common occurrences throughout the flooded districts of northern and central United States. It shows George Clabey rowing a boatload of furniture, beds and sewing machine from his flooded home near Louisville, Ky. Many families, driven from their homes, have been forced to take this mode of transportation to remove their personal belongings. No Mr. Clabey is not a furniture mover by trade.

CAMPBELLFORD

W. ROY LOUCKS TO HEAD BOARD

Campbellford Trustees Select Committee Chairmen—Sweaters For Hockey Team

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28.— W. Roy Loucks was elected chairman of the Board of Education at the annual meeting on Monday night when the Board appointed committee chairmen for the year 1937 and these chose the members of their own committees. The following committees were formed with the first name being the chairman of each:

Finance, Dr. H. O. Richardson, A. G. Thompson, C .W. Palliser, A. J. Armour; Property, F. C. Bonnycastle, W. Henson, Jos. Kelleher, Jas. Milne, W. D. Wood; Bus Committee, A. G. Thompson, A. J. Armour, E. H. Greig, W. D. Wood; Internal, J. A. Irwin, A. G. Thompson, Wm. Cook, Cecil McLean, Geo. H. Free.

Following the Public School Inspector's report, which was received and filed, Principal C. S. Haig of the Public School addressed the board with the request that some assistance be given in supplying sweaters for the Public school hockey team. Although it was suggested that there was a balance of funds which had been supplied some years ago for recreational and cadet purposes, it was decided that the matter should be left over until the next meeting, when there would have been an opportunity to find out what funds were available.

HEAPS IS OPPOSED IN PLAN TO ASK U.S. CALL PEACE RALLY

the United States was so "feared and respected" that it was in the best position to organize a World Peace Conference. An invitation from that country to attend such a conference could hardly be ignored, he said.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said it would be an interference with the national affairs of the United States. President Roosevelt could be relied upon to call a conference or take any other action he might consider would advance the cause of peace, but a suggestion from Canada could do nothing more than embarrass him.

Conservative Leader Bennett said he would go farther and describe such a suggestion from 10,000,000 people to 120,000,000 as an impertinence.

Further, Mr. Bennett said the United States was scarcely the nation to call a world peace conference. It was spending more money on armaments than ever before, and it had taken the stand it should free itself from responsibility for world affairs.

Killed 1933 Parley."

"I have not forgotten that a great world economic conference was called in 1933," said Mr Bennett. "I know one man, two men, three men, who were urged by the President of the United States to expedite in every possible way the work of that conference, yet the conference had hardly met before the President of the United States torpedoed it, for reasons which have never yet been made public. In his judgment conditions in the world were such that it was necessary for him to take the action he did take."

Those who took the view North American nations could stay out of world affairs were not on sound ground. The United States was both feared and respected by other nations and was free from national interests outside its own borders. It was the logical country to start a new move for peace, the League of Nations having failed.

Preparations for national defence were not inconsistent with a desire for peace, said Mr. King. All parties desired peace and it did not help the cause when those who were concerned about national defence were accused of favoring war.

Dangerous forces were operating in the world and there was no guarantee they would not operate against the shores of Canada or across Canada. The world was in a critical condition and it was doubtful if a conference would be of any value. Conferences in the past had not accomplished much.

"Let us not begin by telling other countries what they should do until we tell them what we ourselves are prepared to do in helping to meet an emergency," said Mr. King

Thinks Conference Do Little.

"It is inconceivable that the President of the United States, with the interest he has taken in world affairs, with the concern he has already shown for the maintenance of peace, has not had under consideration the very question my friend (Mr. Heaps) has suggested."

The more he saw of conferences, the less patience he had with them, said Mr. King. They were a convenient way of appearing to be doing something when doing nothing.

There was the serious question as to whether the nations were prepared for a conference. Germany, Japan and other nations refused to be in the League of Nations and might not look on a conference with any more favor. Unless they participated the conference could do little.

Great Britain and France had been working without success to bring about a meeting of the big powers in Europe. They felt the fewer nations became involved in the present situation the better.

"In my opinion," concluded Mr. King, "the sooner we realize that there is no panacea for world peace, and that perhaps the last of all panaceas that should be attempted is a world conference, the better it will be in the end for the peace of the world."

Miss Macphail's Idea.

A conference called by the United States would have one good effect, said Miss Agnes Macphail (U.F.O.-Lab., Grey-Bruce). It would take the heads of European states out of Europe into a continent that was at peace. And, she added, "there is always a chance the boat might sink on the way over."

Europe had assumed too great a place in world affairs, she said. And European statesmen should be given a chance to see how wide the Atlantic ocean was. They should be forced to meet in a better atmosphere than could be found there.

T. L. Church (Cons. Toronto-Broadview) declared Canada would become a "laughing stock" if such a resolution were adopted. It was against the constitution of United States to enter into European affairs and the president could not, if he wished, take the step proposed.

Canada, Mr. Church said, had no defence policy and no defence force on land or sea, or in the air.

"We are depending upon the mother country and it is no wonder statesmen declare that Canada is becoming a drag upon England."

Mr. Church challenged the government to "bring down a defence policy that is a defence policy — 'Not sponge on the hard working British taxpayer.'"

"One of the worst political manoeuvres this country could adopt would be to enter as a participating member in any pan - American union," said Hon. C. H. Cahan (Cons. St. Lawrence-St. George).

"We to the north of the United States have nothing in common with the states to the south. It would add nothing to our economic and very little, if anything, to our cultural strength."

If an invitation were ever sent to Canada to take part in that conference, he hoped the government would decline, at least do nothing without consulting parliament.

CAMPBELLFORD

CATTLE ARE SAVED WHEN BARN BURNS

However Loss In Fire Near Campbellford Will Be Over $3,500

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28. — When a fire broke out on the farm of William Stephens, one-half mile east of town, at 11 o'clock last night, the main barn and out-buildings were completely destroyed. The fire which was of undetermined origin, was first noticed by the hired man, Ed. Bushell who was returning from a church meeting in town. As he walked along the road, he noticed smoke coming from the barn and immediately gave the alarm to the family, who had already retired. Bushell proceeded to the barn and quickly turned out 24 head of cattle, three horses and a colt and also succeeded in rescuing two sets of harness. The estimated loss of the barns and machinery is well over $3,500.00, which is partially covered by insurance.

HYDRO MEASURE IS SHOVED THROUGH ON VOTE OF 58-15

of, the last of the three will be dealt with immediately.

Liberals Vote Solidly

Liberals lined up solidly behind the government on the bill to prevent collection of judgments against the Hydro Commission, its members or officials, in connection with Quebec power contracts cancelled by 1935 legislation.

Conservative Opposition fought unsuccessfully to have the bill sent to a select committee in which a study of Ontario's power needs could be made. Mr. Henry indicated the Opposition would fight the next two bills as it fought the first, making uncertain prospects for indefinite adjournment Friday night.

Legislators were a bit startled last night when J. Clark (Lib. Windsor-Sandwich) pleaded for an end to "this confounded hypocrisy about campaign funds."

Mr. Clark's remarks came when William Duckworth (Cons. Toronto Dovercourt) asked him. "What about the $720,000 Beauharnois gave the Liberal Party?"

Both major Canadian parties have taken money from contractors and anyone else, said Mr. Clark.

"Whats the use of pretending we haven't," he asked. "It's been done ever since political parties were born."

Suggests Funds Be Appropriated.

To end "this confounded hypocrisy," Mr. Clark suggested Governments should appropriate funds to finance election campaigns.

Stewart Lyon, Hydro Commission chairman, was accused by George Challies (Cons. Grenville-Dundas) of going around "making political speeches" and of using "phoney figures' in discussing Hydro. Mr Challies called on Mr. Lyon to resign immediately.

Doubt that Hydro has sufficient reserve power to meet any special demand or to fill the breach in case Niagara Falls generation should be reduced by an ice jam, was expressed by Mr. Challies.

He also said power development projects outlined by Mr. Roebuck had been investigated in 1925 and found unfeasible except as auxiliaries for peak loads.

"What the East is waiting for is development of the St. Lawrence, which will give us 8.00 power," he said.

R. S. Colter (Lib. Haldimand-Norfolk) said the majority of people believe the Quebec power contracts are morally dishonest.

Mr. Clark said inability to pay was always a good reason for nullifying a contract. He cited Britain's action on her war debt to the United States as a precedent to justify nullification of the Quebec power contracts. Britain couldn't pay the debt, he said, and Ontario cannot pay for power she can't use.

Hon. T. B. McQuesten, second Cabinet member on the Hydro Commission, said negotiations with the Quebec companies for revision of the contracts had proved fruitless in 1935 ,and there was no reason to expect they would be fruitful now.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Eczema or Salt Rheum as it is often called is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases.

The intense burning, itching, smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to heat, or the hands placed in water, are almost unbearable.

Use Burdock Blood Bitters internally, and apply it externally. A few bottles are usually sufficient to afford relief from this torturing blood and skin disease.

$4,000 Stamp Sells For $3

NEW YORK—A philatelic "find" is reported by Herman Herst, a stamp dealer who returned recently from the Pacific Coast. He brought a United States stamp estimated to be worth about $4,000 but which cost him only $3. The stamp is a lightly-cancelled specimen of the 30-cent value, 1860 issue.

VETERAN MEMBERS OF MURRAY STREET ARE LIFE DEACONS

Dr. W. D. Scott And C. B. Routley Are Honored At Congregational Meeting

TOTAL GIVINGS $8,930

An unusually large number of members and adherents of Murray Street Baptist Church attended the annual congregational supper and business meeting on Wednesday evening, the supper having been arranged by members of the Ladies Association. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, who is now completing his tenth year as pastor of the church, was chairman of the evening, and during the business session there was a unanimous vote of appreciation of his services and loyalty to his leadership passed by the gathering. Added honor was extended to two members when Dr. W. D. Scott and C. B. Routley were made life Deacons.

Membership of the church stands at 464. Current receipts were reported as $5,246; missionary receipts were $1,255. Salaries amounted to $3,880; mission giving was $1,255. There was a debit balance of $1,-233.76. From all sources the year's giving amounted to $8,930.

Fellowship Fund has a present balance of $136, but it is likely to be spent within coming months. The Obligation Fund, started ten years ago to care for a debt of $10,000, has made slow progress, as the fund has been depleted by repairs and some of the original subscribers have died or moved away. The average collection per Sunday was $112.25.

The Sunday School report showed a decrease attendance of 27. During the year the school has been self-supporting financially. At the moment the attendance is on the increase. Receipts for the year amounted to $370, there being a credit balance of $24.54.

The Pastor's Work.

The pastor, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, said: "I am here at my tenth annual meeting. I have often felt inadequate, but I have tried to give leadership in establishing the Kingdom of God. The work of a minister is not always told in statistics. I count it a privilege to have been your pastor, and I am repaid if I have been able to help you stand on the hill of God. No progress will be made statistically until the people themselves aid in making the statistics."

Reference was made to the Wednesday prayer service, urging a larger attendance. "I feel some of you are bothered by the falling off. One wishes that we might have a good portion of our Sunday morning congregation at our Wednesday service. The Sunday evening service is one of our problems. For a number of years the attendance was larger than to-day. The average was 142 at our evening service.

Mr. Sutcliffe referred to the difficult task of the Finance Committee, Mr. Gordon Matthews having been chairman for ten years. Mr. Matthews is retiring from that post.

There is much for the minister to do. There is not much leisure time in the year, nor does he want it. The discouragement of the past must always be the challenge of the future. I have seen no time when the future looks so bright for increased membership as right at this moment."

A motion of thanks and appreciation and loyalty was unanimously passed and extended to the pastor.

Reports Presented.

F. M. Summerville, treasurer, presented his report, it being the 24th occasion on which he has done so. The Womens Association, reported by Miss R. M. Kidd, showed total receipts of $515 and a full list of activity throughout the year. The Women's Mission Circle showed receipts of $635; the Mary Nicholls Mission Circle had receipts of $170. Mrs. Harold Foster reported favorably on the Mission Band, an organization which commenced operations during 1936. Finances of the B.Y.P.U. showed $148 receipts. Appreciation was voiced regarding the work of the church choir. Dr. Morgan on behalf of the trustees, reported the property in good condition and in a satisfactory state of repair.

Made Life Deacons.

The wording of a resolution unanimously passed was that "Dr. W. D. Scott and C. B. Routley be made life Deacons."

Dr. Scott referred to the fact that he first became a Deacon of the church in 1891, and when he first attended the church was holding service at the place now occupied by Gillespies garage. "May we go on and do greater and better work than ever," said Dr. Scott. H. H. Graham was added to the Board of Deacons.

The present plan of having a reception committee, an usher's committee, and a pew allocation committee will be changed and all this work will now be done by one committee. The ushers will hereafter be elected at the annual meeting.

A letter was received from the Official Board of George Street United Church expressing appreciation of the use of Murray Street Church during the time when George Street Church was being renovated.

The Rambling REPORTERS

AN UNWELCOME VISITOR.

Peacefully reading his evening newspaper to the accompaniment of a pleasant radio program, a West End resident grew restive on Tuesday night when he heard a loud humming in the room. On investigation, it proved to have nothing to do with the radio. It was a large and energetic hornet that in some unexplained fashion had entered the house. Its origin remains a mystery. The hornet, on a hurried trip to the kitchen stove after being smoked into insensibility, was unable to testify. —C.L.M.

CAFES, CABARETS GO UNDER FIRE AS "HOT SPOTS"

Big Sisters' Association Condemns Drinking In Winnipeg Establishments

MAKE TOUR OF CITY

WINNIPEG, Jan. 28 (C.P.) — Winnipeg's night clubs, cafes, and cabarets stand condemned as places where young women just shouldn't be seen, and the Big Sisters Association was more than ever convinced of the need for its work.

For ten years the association, partially financed by the Winnipeg Foundation, a philanthropic institution, has aided wayward girls to get back on their feet. Police and juvenile courts almost always have an association member on hand to assist the girls. Many have been provided with jobs.

Recently, members of the Big Sisters went on a tour of this city's "hot spots." The first port of call was what was described in the report as "a well-known chop suey house." It was there, the investigators reported, young girls came in with men "old enough to be their fathers." Much drinking was in evidence, it was reported, with "bouncers" handy to eject noisy patrons.

At a "place on Main Street," the investigators found the same atmosphere prevailing. Said one member: "I shudder to think what it would have been like by five o'clock."

SKATING CARNIVAL ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Twenty-Five Of Canada's Outstanding Figure Skaters Are Coming

Success of the skating carnival, to be held at Brock street rink on Friday night, is definitely assured, but weather conditions have forced the Winter Sports Carnival Committee to postpone the ski meet.

Heads of the winter sports carnival project here have been in touch with Ontario ski zone officials with a view to holding the ski meet at a later date.

Tickets for the skating carnival have been in great demand, and the carnival promises to be an outstanding success, while the scheduled dog derby is to be run off on Saturday morning, as well as the outdoor costume skating carnival on Saturday night.

At Brock Street Rink on Friday night, 25 of the outstanding figure skaters of Canada, including the North American Champion, Junior and Senior Canadian Champions and Olympic representatives, will stage a colorful exhibition of figure skating, waltzes and formation skating. This spectacle is a preview of the magnificent Skating Carnival presented each year in Toronto by the Toronto Skating Club, with all the new lighting effects and brilliant costumes.

BANK CLEARINGS.

Bank clearings in Peterborough this week show a gain of more than $100,000 over the corresponding week in 1936, according to figures released by the Clearing House today. Clearings here during the current week were $517,473, as compared with $402,596 during the same week last year.

INJURED ON SLEIGH.

Injured while sleigh-riding during the noon hour recess, Alex. Smith, 16, of Smith Township, was rushed to the Clinic here for medical treatment on Wednesday afternoon and was later conveyed by Bellegham's ambulance to Nicholls Hospital. Dr. A. G. Howson declared that the lad suffered a fractured femur and a fractured tibia, of the right leg.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION.

A. F. Hagerman was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Young People's Union of George Street United Church, on Tuesday night. Mr. Hagerman spoke on 'Home Tyranny.' The meeting, attended by forty-five young people, was in charge of the Citizenship convenor, Miss May Wilson, and the recreation period was taken by Lloyd Parnall. Assisting in the worship period were the Misses Dorothy Smith, Helen McGee and Margaret Craighead. A violin solo was played by Allan Brown.

TREASURER OF GROUP.

In the list of officers for the North End group of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the name of Mrs. A. Seal was listed as teacher, instead of treasurer.

IRON SECONDS MEET.

Peterborough members of the 2nd Battalion C.E.F. will be interested in learning that the Belleville 2nd Battalion Association held its annual meeting this week with R. Cooper elected president, W. C. Jack, vice-president, P. H. Talley, secretary, and Edgar Stapley treasurer.

PURCHASE FIELD FIRST AID KIT.

According to the policy of adding to equipment each year, the local St. John Ambulance Brigade has purchased a field first aid kit. The new kit will provide equipment for three units on duty simultaneously. Duties of members scheduled to stand by at the ski meet this week-end have been cancelled as a result of the cancellation of the meet.

SPECIAL PROSECUTOR.

At the Supreme Court Assizes which open here before Mr. Justice Hogg on Tuesday next, C. L. Snyder, K.C., of Toronto, will act as special Crown prosecutor, it is announced. He will be assisted in the prosecution of charges by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. Criminal cases listed for trial are: Rex vs. Allen; Rex vs. Harrington, and Rex vs. Cockerill.

CHANGE MIDWAY NAME.

Paddy Conklin has been appointed manager of the amusements centre of the Canadian National Exhibition this year. A Toronto press report indicates that the directors decided to retain full control of what has been known as the midway, and they selected Mr. Conklin to assume charge of this feature by reason of his long experience as the head of Conklin Brothers, who are returning to the Peterborough Exhibition this year.

TAXICAB WRECKING HELD DELIBERATE

Sheriff Reports One Of Occupants Auto Union Organizers, Is Missing

DETROIT, Jan. 28 (AP)—Deputy Sheriff William Bloom said today the wrecking of a taxicab at Flint, Mich., in which four auto union organizers were injured was "deliberate."

When the mishap occurred last night the men were being escorted to Flint by police and sheriff's deputies after two earlier encounters with hostile crowds had resulted in the temporary abduction of two of a group of six organizers for the United Automobile Workers of America.

Of the six who started out together, three were in a hospital at Flint today, another was suffering from minor injuries, one reached his home unharmed and the sixth was reported as missing by union leaders.

Robert C. Travis, union organizer at Flint, asked the State Police to search for John Mayo, the unaccounted for organizer.

Bloom, a sheriff's deputy in Genesee county (Flint), said his investigation indicated the taxicab was deliberately wrecked.

The cab driver, who escaped harm, and his four injured passengers said an automobile left a parking place on the side of the street as they entered Flint and then pulled directly into their path. The taxicab crashed into a tree in trying to avoid the car.

At Hurley Hospital in Flint it was said that Anthony Federoff and W. J. Hymes, both of Pittsburgh, Pa., were in serious condition and that Frank O'Rourke, of Saginaw, Mich., was hurt less seriously.

The fourth man hurt, Joseph Ditzel, of Toledo, Ohio, did not require hospital treatment.

The general Motors Corporation, whose operations have been reduced severely by strikes called by the U.A.W.A. ordered 5,000 employees back to work in Fisher Body plants in Michigan today. Forty thousand Chevolet workers were recalled in Indiana and Michigan yesterday.

AMATEUR NIGHT HELD IN LYCEUM

George And Margaret Young Placed First—Ray Collins Second

Winners at the Amateur Night held at St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Wednesday evening were as follows: George and Margaret Young, in a vocal duett; Ray Collins, winner of a pie-eating contest that evoked plenty of merriment from the onlookers; Fred Montgomery, guitar player; Helen Wolf, tap dancer; Albert Downer, step dancing; Harold Murray and Al Manley, Hawaiian guitar musicians; Leo Delaire, song and guitar number.

The evening was featured by selections offered by musicians of French, Irish, Russian and Austrian nationalities and songs and recitations given in French and Austrian tongues, also by a very interesting playlet presented by pupils of St. Mary's Convent and some unusual music on a "Flexitone," played by R. M. Beach, which aroused much applause.

The concert portion of the program included piano selections by Miss Alma Duffy, A.T.C.M.; Austrian folk songs in their own tongue done to guitar accompaniment by Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Seidel, and much enjoyed by the listeners; piano selections by Miss Helen Burke; songs by Harold Coulson; numbers by a quartet composed of Herb McCannan and Bert Arnott, harmonica players; Geoffrey O'Brien, violinist; Frank Clark, banjo. The excellent playlet by the Convent pupils included the following cast: Francois (Teresa Ryan); Jeanne (Jean Duignan); Marie (Margaret Doran); Henri (Joan Reid); Philippe (Eleanor Collins). It was entitled "The Habitant."

Others taking part in the amateur contest included Tom Tobin, playing the guitar; Robert Beach, "Flexitone numbers; accompanied by Miss Bernice Flynn; Mary Nelson, piano music; Yvonne Birdgenaw and Teresa Crowe, tap dances; Clarence Downer, step dancing; a little Russian girl, Sanco Zenhenko who sang; Miss Kathleen Twomey, reader; and the little DeChantigny sisters, Yolande and Cecile, who recited, the latter in French. Boys taking part in the pie-eating contest were Ray Collins, Harry O'Connor, Hector McMahon, Alvin Hutchinson and Andrew Murphy.

NAME WITH PUNCH

Noted Feminist Wants Something Lively to Designate Peace Workers.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP).—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt noted United States' feminist, wants a name with some punch in it to designate peace workers.

"Then," she said last night, "we'll get some place."

The 70-year-old woman told that banquet session of the conference of cause and cure of war, an organization she founded 12 years ago, that she saw three weaknesses in the present peace movement.

Asserting that the movement would not be victorious until the weaknesses were transformed into sources of strength, she listed them as: Lack of a virile name; lack of a positive, absolute aim, and lack of a common method and common policy.

Friday, January 29.

Judging by the lunar aspects, this should be an unusually lively, progressive and profitable day, providing a certain degree of vigilance is exercised in the way of trusting strange people or questionable projects. An element of intrigue subtlety or collusion might be hazardous to otherwise sound propositions or opportunities.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of definite progress and prosperity if they will but exercise vigilance against doubtful, subtle and intriguing propositions. Shun strife and discord. Profit may come through contracts, writings and practical projects as well as through cautious speculation.

A child born on this day may be talented, enterprising, adventurous and ambitious. It may gain through speculation as well as through practical propositions or creative talent.

PLANS DRAFTED QUICKLY TO AID FLOOD VICTIMS

Generous Response By Peterborough Citizens To Appeal For Food And Clothing

CAR BARNS DEPOT

The general response to the appeal on behalf of destitute sufferers in the flood-stricken areas of the United States, has been a magnificent one. Offers of assistance have come pouring in from all quarters to the Kiwanis Public Relations committee, who are handling details in connection with the raising and despatch of a car load of canned goods, vegetables, new clothing, blankets and medical supplies to the Ohio Valley.

"Peterborough owes it to the Ohio people who are our friends and neighbors during the summer time," P. J. Giffen, committee chairman commented.

Revealing the manner in which plans for early shipment of a car load of produce and supplies across the border are progressing, he stated that barns of Peterborough Bus Lines have been accepted as a clearing house for all the donations to the fund.

Trucks collecting produce or clothing from collection depots located at various strategic points throughout the city will drive straight into the heated garage of the Bus company to unload, and there goods will be packaged ready for re-loading and shipment.

Unemployed of the city, unable to afford cash donations or donations of goods in kind, have responded heartily to the appeal by offering their time and labor in the shipoing of the car. The committee has been glad to accept their gracious offer of help.

Offers of trucks have come from various firms and several factories have opened collection lists for donations to the fund, the money from which will be turned over to the committee that is handling the details.

Principals of all the city's public schools and Collegiate have been officially notified by the Board of Education of the appeal that is being made, and school children are requested to donate canned goods which they may deposit at their respective schools.

Members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. who are staging a Minstrel Show on Wednesday next have guaranteed the sum of thirty dollars to the fund from the proceeds of their show, and offers of help have come in from dozens of individuals in all stations of life.

Fred Ford, member of the Kiwanis Club and manager of Purity Bakeries Limited, and Alderman James Dutton, member of Rotary International and manager of Stocks Bread Limited have both authorized their drivers to make collections for the fund from householders and others on their routes who wish to offer aid to the unfortunate victims of the floods.

Donations may also be made through the following collection depots which have been established by the committee:

F. and G. Stores at Park and Charlotte; 599 George street, and Hunter street east; The Capitol Theatre; Richard Hall Limited; and Al Sharpe's Men's Store.

The Kiwanis Club bulletin, edited by Secretary John A. McKone, this week offers the following comment, relative to the appeal:

"Your Executive has had an emergency meeting and decided to give a carload of food and clothing to the Kiwanis Club of Cincinnati, Ohio. It is their desire to get the car off this week if at all possible. The need is very great and we will need the assistance of every member of the Club in putting this across. The Mayor and City Council is behind us as are all the other organizations to whom we have spoken.

"If you can picture the plight of the people in the flooded areas, you will get some idea of the great need there is for quick action. Let us not be tardy in regard to this.

JUDGE SMOKE IS RE-ELECTED HEAD OF POLICE BOARD

Estimates Of $29,830 Are Submitted By Chief Constable

TWO NEW PATROLMEN

Judge Sheldon L. Smoke was re-elected as chairman at the inaugural meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners held on Wednesday afternoon.

A letter from E. G. Odette, chief commissioner of the Liquor Control Board relative to enforcement of the L.C.A. was discussed and the secretary was instructed by motion to write to Mr. Odette intimating that the city police are cooperating with the provincial police in enforcement of the Act, and that the greatest difficulty here is in regard to the wine shop.

A further communication was received from the city council relative to appointment of a traffic officer to the police force and asking that the Commission grant a conference to the Finance Committee of the council. The letter was received and the secretary was requested to inform the council that the Board would be pleased to confer with the Finance Committee at any suitable time.

Estimates as submitted by the Chief Constable at $29,830 were approved by the Commission.

The resolution by which the estimates were adopted included further that the Commission report to the council that fourteen policemen (including two extra patrolmen, the chief constable and police matron), are absolutely required.

Mayor George A. Macdonald and Judge Smoke were delegated as a committee to consider the applications for the position of constable and to report to a meeting of the Commission this (Thursday) afternoon.

While the chief presented his estimates to the Commission and there was a resolution adopting them, the estimates were not finally dealt with by the Commission, having been returned to the chief for certain changes.

Home and School Association News

KING EDWARD SCHOOL

Election of officers for the King Edward Home and School Association for the coming year, took place at the meeting held in the kindergarten room of the school, with the following ladies installed by Mrs. G. A. Spicer, president of the Home and School Council:

Mrs. H. Turner, past president; Mrs. E. Hubel, president; Mrs. A. Ellis, first vice-president; Mrs. J. Mackness, second vice-president; Mrs. E. Baldry, secretary; Mrs. J. Pinnie, assistant secretary; Mrs. E. Chambers, treasurer; and the following committees: Mesdames Hazerman, Turner, Vannest, Eason, Butcher and Miss S. Leonard, Program; Mesdames Fife, Gerard, Harris, Social; Mesdames Snowden and Cooke and Miss J. M. Lancaster, Relief.

Reports were presented by the secretary and treasurer, also by Mrs. S. Gillespie, reporting on the Home and School Council, in which reference was made to the appointment of a Health convenor from each school to meet the M.O.H., Dr. Fraser, once a week. Mrs. G. Butcher was appointed from the King Edward School.

After the business session, a program was presented, consisting of concertina music by Mr. Neuble, a piano selection by Miss Elsie Chambers, and slides shown by R. J. Bolton, assisted by D. T. Crawford, illustrative of views of the Banff National Park and surrounding country.

The service of refreshments brought the meeting to a close.

Japanese makers of black inks are developing an export trade.

Let us get our car ready by Saturday and also let us have the full man-power of the Club behind this proposition. Here is an opportunity for doing a good work when it is needed. If you are hesitating about action, just imagine that you were in the same position as those people who have lost their homes, in fact, lost everything, possibly some of their relatives, their sons, their daughters, fathers, mothers. Possibly there will be an emergency meeting of the Club members in order to get the matter properly organized.

"Many tourists come to this section of the province from Ohio every year and I am sure they will appreciate anything we do in the way of assistance to them at the present time. In addition to this, it will be a case of cementing more firmly, although that is not needed, the friendship between the two nations. The good will which will result in this action will never be forgotten. Here is an opportunity before you and the other members of the Club to do a wonderful work."

CAN'T WEAR BLACK SHIRTS IN SELLING FASCIST PAPERS

New British Public Order Act Also Hits Political Rowdyism

POLICE ARE ADVISED

London.—Sir John Simon, the home secretary, has sent to all chief constables an important circular advising them of their powers under the new Public Order Act, which came into operation on Jan. 1.

It is illegal for any person in a public place to wear a uniform signifying his association with any political organization. This means that it will be an offence to wear black shirts while selling Fascist papers in the streets.

It will be also an offence if the display of physical force in promoting any political object arouses "reasonable apprehension."

Sir John Simon's circular to chief constables lays special stress on their powers relating to processions, offensive weapons and disorder at public meetings.

It is explained that the power to route processions should be regarded as the normal procedure. The additional power to ask the local authority for an order prohibiting processions is only to be exercised under very exceptional conditions.

Operation of the provision relating to disorder at public meetings will entirely depend upon the action of political parties themselves. The question as to whether there should be a prosecution against an interrupter will rest upon the chairman of a meeting.

There is no desire to suppress "liveliness" at public meetings, nor to prevent spontaneous indignation against the views of an unpopular speaker. But the authorities hope the act will put an end to organized rowdyism at meetings arranged by any political party.

500 CAPTIVE FISH RETURNED TO OCEAN

Portland Aquarium Fish Bought For $5 on Condition They Are Freed

Portland, Dorset.—After being in captivity for nearly two years, 500 fish from the Portland aquarium were returned to the sea.

Their liberation followed an attempt to sell the £1,500 ($7,500) aquarium by auction.

Efforts to obtain a bid for the fish failed, but when the auctioneer pointed out that it would be a pity to let them die in the tanks, Louis Basso, a Weymouth diver, said to the owner of the aquarium, Fox Davies: "I will give you 10s ($2.50) for the fish as they swim."

This offer was declined and the auctioneer made an attempt to sell the fish in lots.

Louis Basso was persistent. "I will give you £1 ($5) if you will undertake to net the fish and put them back into the sea," he said.

The offer was accepted.

Immediately after the sale an army of helpers assisted the proprietor to catch the fish and dump them into the West bay.

All sorts of fish, from huge congers to prawns and shrimps, were carried over the pebbles in tin baths and dropped into the sea.

BIRMINGHAM HELPS WORLD LAW FORCES

Midland Industries Send Police Equipment to Many Countries

Birmingham.—This Midlands city helps to keep law and order in all parts of the world.

First, the Birmingham police school trains police officers from places as far apart as China and South America; then Birmingham makes handcuffs for police use the world over, while police whistles are also made in large quantities.

And now, with the mechanization of police forces throughout the world, Birmingham is supplying them with motorcycles. The Dutch East Indies police have just ordered 62 motorcycles and sidecars from a Birmingham firm, and this police force alone now has nearly 1,000 Birmingham - made machines in service.

Birmingham - made motorcycles have also been recently ordered by police forces in South Africa, New South Wales, Hong Kong, Tasmania, Calcutta, Uganda and Cyprus, while pedal cycles have also been supplied for use by the Madras police and the Damascus police authorities.

TO SHIP WHOLE FACTORY

Glasgow Firm Will Send Complete Plant to India

Glasgow.—A complete sugar factory, to grind 1,000 tons of canes a day, is being made by a Glasgow firm. It will be shipped in the early part of next year to Hyderabad, where the Nizam's government has decided to establish a sugar industry.

TO WEAR BRITISH SILK

Queen Will Have Robe, Product of English Silkworms

London.—For the first time in history the Queen's coronation robes will be made of pure silk woven in Great Britain.

This has been made possible by Lady Hart Dyke, who now owns and controls the only silkworm farm in England, having converted for this purpose a wing of Lullingstone Castle, Kent.

NEW MAN GETS JOB EVERY 11 MINUTES

Tyneside Industries Busy—45 Plants Open

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—The north-east is sharing in the return of industrial prosperity and is sending a man back to work—sometimes after years of unemployment—every 11 minutes of the day and night throughout the year. On Tyneside alone a new job is found every 40 minutes, and a return prepared by the Tyneside industrial development board shows that in the last four years 45 new works have been set up on Tyneside. Their products include binding twine for colonial harvesters, foodstuffs, clothing, furniture, motor-bodies, concrete tiles, toys, chemicals, gas meters, neon signs, and ships' gangways.

BUYS LONELY ISLE OFF DONEGAL COAST

Pays $6,000 For Ten-Acre Island "Away From Civilization"

London.—Dr. Dorothy Anderton Sharpe of Marylebone, has bought an island of ten acres for the price of a London suburban house.

It is Edernish Island, off the coast of Donegal, and is sheltered from the full force of the Atlantic by Aran Island, made famous by the memorable film "Man of Aran."

There are no shops, no telephones, and the only noise comes from the sea and the wind and the cries of seabirds.

With her island Dr. Sharpe has a seven-roomed house, a boathouse, motor-boat and rowing boat.

For this paradise of quiet she paid £1,200 ($6,000) about the price of a London suburban house with three bedrooms, garage and small garden.

She will spend her summer holidays there, swimming, boating and idling with her friends. The only caller will be the post boy with urgent messages.

Here the owner may retire and feel herself thousands of miles away from the bustle of civilization.

DRIVER IS ATTACKED BUT MAIL UNTOUCHED

Is Struck on Head on Lonely Road

Bolsover.—Mail Van Driver John Linacre, driving in the rain to Bolover, near Chesterfield, at night, on a dark, lonely road, near Scarcliffe, two miles away, was attacked and injured.

He reported at Bolsover that he had been struck on the head with some instrument. He fought the attack and called for help, but his assailants got away.

The mail bag, which was to be checked, appeared to be intact.

NEW LONDON THEATRE TELEVISION EQUIPPED

Has Swiming-Pool on Roof, Side-Shows and Cocktail Bar

London. — Shops, side shows, a cocktail bar, dance floor, hairdressers and manicurists. All these will be found in the new Prince of Wales theatre, which is to be built on the site of the old one—a West End landmark.

When the theatre closed on January 16, a farewell performance was broadcast and many stars whose careers began at the theatre appeared.

In the big bar—66 ft. by 40 ft.—will be the dance floor, with experts to give lessons, and cabaret artists will give turns in the intervals of the stage show.

The new theatre will have a complete television installation, as well as the ordinary talkie apparatus.

For the use of the artists there will be a swim-pool on the roof.

The Prince of Wales theatre is one of the oldest in London and when the new building reopens it will still be a non-stop show as at present.

BOY, 13, SAVES LIFE OF LITTLE SISTER

Bristol.—The prompt action of a boy aged 13 probably saved the life of his sister at a party.

June Reed, aged four and a half of Hotwells, Bristol, was using a candle to look for a box of paints when she slipped, and the candle set fire to her party frock.

She screamed for help and brother John, who was in another room, ran to her and tore off her burning clothing. He received burns on the hands and arms. The little girl was rushed to Bristol Royal infirmary

IGNORED FORTUNE-TELLER SERVED 13, GIRL BURNED

Manchester Waitress Wore Red Roses, Fell in Boiling Soup

LAUGHED AT ADVICE

Manchester. — Eileen Duck, 22, waitress in a Manchester restaurant, was told by a fortune-teller: "Don't wear anything red this week if you wish to avoid burns."

She bought two red flowers for her dress and wore them. The same day, as she was serving a party of 13, she fell into a vat of boiling soup.

She screamed for help, unable to secure a hold on the sides of the vat. Her fiance, Norman Peate, chef at the restaurant, rushed up and dragged her out.

First aid was given, and the girl was taken to Manchester Royal Infirmary and afterwards transferred to the Park hospital, Davyhulme.

Miss Duck, who lives at Swinton, said to a reporter: "I am convinced it all came about because I ignored the fortune-teller's advice.

"I laughed at the advice and bought two red flowers. There is another thing. It was a party of 13 I was attending at the time. It was lucky for me that Norman, my fiance, was about. The doctors tell me I am fortunate to be as well as I am."

RESTORED TOWER BURNS

London.—Fire broke out in the ancient church of St. Mary, Swaffham Bulbeck, Cambridgeshire.

Starting near the organ, it spread to the early English tower, which was badly damaged. Cleaners who discovered the blaze tried to extinguish it with the help of villagers, but it had too strong a hold.

SCOTLAND YARD WILL HAVE BIG EXTENSION

New Building Takes Preference Over Other Schemes

London.—Work is in progress on the new £200,000 ($1,000,000) Scotland Yard extension scheme.

Squads of workmen are already clearing the site for the new building, which is to be erected on the Charing Cross side of the present police headquarters.

So urgently is the extension needed that it is to take precedence over any other part of the new Whitehall scheme, and efforts are being made to ensure that it is completed by 1940.

It was Lord Trenchard who first called attention to the deplorable lack of accommodation at the Yard.

BRITISH BOY SCOUTS DECLINE BY 11,584

But Increase 206,874 Throughout World—Investigate

London.—While the strength of the boy scout movement in the world has increased by 206,874, and in the British Empire by 34,031, it has declined in Britain, the home of the movement, by 11,584.

This decrease in the ranks of the boy scouts in Britain has perturbed the headquarters of the British Boy scout movement, and they are preparing vigorous steps to regain the lost ground.

A committee of investigation set up by the County of London Boy Scouts' association attributes the decline mainly to failure of leadership, complacency in the organization and the pull of counter-attractions.

PICTURE RESTORER ACCUSED OF THEFT

Painting Worth $10,000 Recovered—Charge Dropped

London.—Douglas Hulme, aged 37 picture restorer, of Willesden, was discharged at Westminster police court when accused of stealing while bailee, an oil painting by Velasquez worth £2,000 ($10,000) the property of Maurice Richard Lyndon White, art dealer, of Knightsbridge.

H. Elam, for the prosecution, said that the painting had been recovered, and was now in the possession of the police.

Mr. Lyndon White did not wish to go on with the charge.

SENTENCED TO HANG REPRIEVED BY KING

Mother of Slain Girl, 16, Supported Plea for Clemency

Hull.—The first reprieve of the reign of King George VI was granted to Arthur Smith North of Hull, who was sentenced to death at York assizes for the murder in a field near Beverley of Elsa Kathleen Meyer, aged 16.

North is the son of the late Inspector North of the Hull city fire brigade. Mrs. Violet Meyer, mother of the murdered girl, was glad to hear the news. She supported the plea for clemency.

"Having shared my sorrow with that of the North family, I feel I can also share in their joy in the news of the reprieve," she said.

"I hope that my motive in making this appeal will not be misunderstood. I ask that two young lives shall not be destroyed as a result of this tragedy that has come upon us."

At the assizes, Mrs. Meyer obtained permission to see North, embraced and kissed him and endeavored to comfort him.

FIREMEN DON MASKS IN SUB-CELLAR BLAZE

Firefighter Injured in Fall in Smoke-Filled Second Basement

London.—Central London firemen were engaged for two hours dealing with a fire which broke out in Cecil House, a building of five floors, used as workrooms, offices and stores by various firms in Holborn Viaduct.

The discovery was made early in the morning. The first firemen to arrive broke open the doors, and after getting down into the basement, had to retreat owing to the acrid smoke. A gas mask tender was rushed to the scene from Southwark.

About a dozen firemen put on gas-masks, and, dragging two lines of hose and carrying powerful hand lamps, groped their way into the basement, only to find that the origin of the fire was lower down in a sub-basement.

One of the firemen, Sub-officer Daivey, of Whitefriars station, fell down a flight of stairs. His hands and ankle were injured, and he had to be carried out by his colleagues. He was taken to St. Bartholomew's hospital, and later removed to his station. The fire was restricted to the sub-basement, the contents of which were seriously damaged.

THOSE 'PROFESSING RELIGION' RAPPED BY 'SACKED' PASTOR

Get Money for Poor in Pubs, Coin-Jingling in Church, Is Claim

HITS 'UNCHARITABLE'

Wembley, Middlesex.—"I go into pubs, have gone into pubs, and always will go into pubs," shouted Rev. James Wildman, assistant vicar of St. John's church, from the pulpit of the church.

Mr. Wildman was making his farewell sermon to a congregation of 800 people that overflowed into the aisles. During the week he had stated that he had been "sacked" from his office.

He reiterated that "he had been kicked out", and hit back at "the people who had done the kicking"

Mr. Wildman said, among other things: "I could go into a public house, say that I needed money for some sick children, and come back with £25 ($125). But if I came to the church people there would be a great jingling of coins and nothing else.

"People come here and say the Lord's Prayer, sing hymns, then go out and treat their neighbors and their servants badly. I have no time for them.

"An uncharitable element met me when I first came here four years ago. It still persists. I defy it. I defy ecclesiasticism and quibbles. I believe in taking religion to the common people."

Mr. Wildman's voice broke as he ended his farewell address. Afterwards he stated to a reporter: "I don't want to withdraw or qualify anything I said. There's no good making a secret of it, I've got the sack because of a vicious element that professes to be religious."

IS ALMOST DROWNED TRYING TO SAVE DOG

Forced to Loose Hold on Dog, Must Be Rescued Himself

Waterford—Michael Dawney, son of Lady Dawney, at home on leave from the R.A.F. and staying with his mother at Whitfield Court, County Waterford, dived from Waterford quay to go to the rescue of his dog.

The dog was carried down river. Mr. Dawney swam after him. He reached the dog, then, numbed by the cold, was forced to loose his hold.

The dog was swept on for a further 200 yards. Mr. Dawney, in a state of exhaustion, struck out for the side. He reached it—to find a 15-foot embankment towering over him.

He was hauled ashore with ropes. He soon recovered. Meanwhile, the dog was saved by two men in a boat.

MAY REPRIEVE YOUNG MAN

London—A petition is being prepared for presentation to Sir John Simon, home secretary, for the reprieve of William John Thomas, the young Bargoed chemist's assistant, who was sentenced to death at Glamorgan assizes for the murder of his sweetheart, Jeanette Florence Mary Roper, in a death pact. The jury made a strong recommendation to mercy.

WOULD GET X-RAY FOR PENNY WEEKLY

Welsh Miners Seek Means of Treatment

Cardiff.—Proposals are under consideration for establishing an X-ray examination scheme for 20,000 miners in the west Wales anthracite coalfield.

The miners' federation hopes to introduce a plan whereby miners and their wives and dependants will obtain X-ray examination facilities and ultra-violet ray treatment for one penny weekly.

Examinations are expected to be made in cases of suspected silicosis as well as for accidents.

CLAIM CRAB-APPLES MADE WATERY MILK

Is Fined $10 For Selling Milk Deficient in Quality

Hungerford, Berks.—A defence that the eating of crab-apples by cows produced excessive water in milk was unsuccessfully pleaded here.

The case was one in which George Rogers of the Crown Cottage Dairy, Inkpen, was fined £2 ($10) on each of two summonses for selling milk deficient in quality on two dates last November.

A. Goodeve-Docker, for Rogers, said it had to be considered that November was a very wet and stormy month. The cows were originally in a field in which there were acorns, the worst diet a cow could have. They were moved to an adjoining field which contained crab-apple trees.

During a gale the apples were blown down, and apparently the cows had a liking for them or did not show much discrimination in the matter of food.

He was instructed that crab-apples produced water in milk.

The chairman, Major Portal, said he considered it a very bad case and did not believe very much in the excuses put forward.

FAITH, HOPE, CHARITY TRIPLETS, REACH 79

Silver-Haired Sisters Hope to Attain Century Mark

Blackpool. — Three silver-haired triplet sisters from Yorkshire—Faith, Hope and Charity—leading their separate lives in three different homes, intend to break all records for triplet longevity.

They celebrated their 79th birthday recently.

The sisters are:

Mrs. Faith Alice Thackeray, of Bispham, near Blackpool;

Mrs. Hope Fanny Watson, of Otley Rd., Skipton; and

Mrs. Charity Sarah Rimington, of Raikes Rd., Skipton.

Faith is the only one of the trio whose husband is alive.

"We live a quiet life," she told a reporter. "I am very well and so are my sisters."

"I never felt better in my life," said Hope. "You are as old as you feel, and my sisters and I feel very young. It would be nice to all be 100 together . . . and why not?"

FIND SKELETON OF BRITON MISSING SIXTY YEARS AGO

Victim Was a Man of Means —Believe Mystery Solved

ROBBERS ATTACKED

Gothenburg, Sweden.—By the discovery of a skeleton, a few scraps of clothing, a bone spoon-handle in a cave within the Arctic circle, in the heart of Lapland wastes, the mystery of an Englishman's fate 60 years ago has been partially solved.

The Englishman, a man of means, with a few Laplanders as companions, was trekking back to Norway when robbers attacked him, murdered the Laps, stole his money, stores and kit, but spared his life.

The story spread that the Englishman abandoned his trek, went to live the life of a hermit in a cave high up in the mountains 50 miles from the nearest village.

The Englishman became a legend—until one day recently a Laplander told the sheriff of Waara-Grape in the Karesuando district that he had actually seen the Englishman in his mountain home.

The sheriff decided to take a reindeer expedition into the mountains to search.

The expedition returned after an eight-day search, in which they were frequently attacked by wolves.

They brought back the skeleton of a tall man, pieces of clothing, the handle of a bone spoon and the remnants of a sleigh. They had found these in a cave half blocked by a rock barrier.

The skull of the skeleton was well preserved, but bore no marks by which it could be identified.

JACOBITE GLASS SELLS HIGH

Hawick, Scotland.—An "Amen" glass which the Jacobites used when drinking to their cause and to "the King across the water," the property of Mrs. Archibald P. Douglas, was sold in London for $750.

CANNOT COPYRIGHT DUCE'S PHOTOGRAPH

Italian Cameraman Loses Suit Against Magazine

Rome.—Photographs of Mussolini's iron-jawed, strong-willed face cannot be copyrighted.

Recently a photographer sued a well-known Italian magazine for having reproduced a photo of Il Duce without previous authorization.

The court not only decided that there was no basis for trial but also lamented the photographer's lack of patriotism.

It is believed in legal circles that this does not apply to books or biographs on Il Duce.

CYCLES CONTINUOUSLY MORE THAN 69 HOURS

Hyderbad, India.—Rajagopal, an Indian student, cycled continuously for 69 hours, 20 minutes and set up what is believed to be a world's non-stop cycle record

Rajagopal became drowsy after cycling for 69 hours, and to keep him awake a band played, drums were beaten and fireworks set off. But 20 minutes later he was overcome by fatigue, wobbled and touched the ground with his left foot, thereby giving up the struggle.

MUST HAVE HIGH IDEALS

Berlin.—German school girls must be taught at school to understand the spirit of arms, Frau Reber-Gruber, Reich expert on the education of girls, stated at a convention of the Nazi Teachers league at Bayreuth. The school girls, she explained, must imbibe the high ideal of honor, love for their country, race consciousness and willingness to sacrifice.

CANNOT REMEMBER CAUSE OF DIVORCE

Thought She Obtained Order 20 Years Ago But Record Not Found

Rheims.—A woman who thought she divorced her husband 20 years ago cannot remember what she divorced him for.

Trouble began recently when Mme. Charles-Henri Gilbert, went to the register office to make arrangements to get married again.

"But you are already married," the clerk told her. "There is no record of your being divorced."

Files were looked up, and it was found that the court had divorced M. and Mme. Henri-Charles Gilbert.

The clerk pointed out that the divorce of Mme. Henri-Charles Gilbert did not dissolve the marriage of Mme. Charles-Henri Gilbert.

Now, so far as her lawyer can make out, Mme. Gilbert will have to divorce her ex-husband again this time with his names in the right order.

. . . And now she cannot remember . . .

ORDER LARGER TYPE TO SAVE TOTS' SIGHT

Tokio.—Alarmed by the increase of nearsightedness among the youth of Japan, the home ministry plans to prohibit the use of small type in periodicals read by children.

Larger type will prevent eyestrain to which students now are subjected, according to the ministry's theory.

Studies on the subject have shown that nearsightedness usually develops around the age of 10 and it has been estimated that 20,000,000 persons in Japan are suffering from myopia.

Army examinations of the conscription classes have shown increasing numbers of nearsighted youths and the authorities have been attempting to find some way of checking the tendency.

TRIANGULAR DRAMA AMONG POLAR BEARS

Nearly Ended in Attempted Murder of Disloyal Female Animal at Circus

Munich.—A triangle drama among polar bears nearly ended with the attempted murder of the disloyal female bear at the famous Krone Circus, widely known in Europe and other parts of the world.

One female bear of the group of 11 performing stunts every night deserted her "lover," a strong and very jealous animal and fell victim to the wooing of another male "colleague" in the artistic line.

The jilted bear deceived his ex-mate thoroughly by making her feel that he did not care very much about her anyhow, and continued to perform wonderfully well every night with the white-furred artists.

One day, however, when the group took a bath he saw his chance. As soon as his faithless love jumped into the water he jumped after her and kept her under for such a long time at everybody believed her drowned. It was only at the last minute that some wardens succeeded in separating the jealous bear from his victim so that the latter was saved.

For the time being the party seems to be getting along nicely, but the male bear is not trusted.

JOB HI-JACKERS BUSY

Trinidad Man Frightened From Work Into Sea

Port of Spain, Trinidad.—Sydney Xavier, caretaker at a "down-the-island" resort, reported to police he became so frightened by the threats of several men he jumped into the sea and swam several miles from Savary's Bay to Bombshell Bay where he hid overnight in a clump of bushes. He said he believed jealousy for his job had prompted the threats.

WOMAN DIDN'T COVER FACE ANGRY RELATIVE SHOT HER

Slayer Also Killed Her Brother Who Rushed to Aid Her

STRANGE TRAGEDY

Belgrade.—For simply showing her face, a woman has been shot dead at Kosovska, Mitrovica, Jugoslavia. Her brother who tried to protect her, was also killed.

Fata, a pretty young Moslem woman, was gathering pears from trees near the roadway with her sister-in-law, Zulfa.

Suddenly coming on the scene, Fata's brother, Esen, ordered both women to cover their faces so that passers-by might not see them. But the girls laughingly refused. Esen became angry, especially when some passing youths called out to the women: "You are too pretty to cover your faces—don't hide your beauty."

Snorting with rage, Esen went off to protest to Fata's husband, Raman. He became even more incensed when Raman merely said "Let the girls alone."

Esen took his gun and went off into the mountains. For three days he did not return. When he came back, the two young women, still with their faces uncovered, ran to meet him.

Esen calmly raised his gun and shot Zulfa dead. His sister Fata ran behind a tree. Hearing shots and screams, Raman rushed out of the house, but as he approached he, too, was killed.

GRENADE BLAST FATAL

Vicenza, Italy.—Though he lived through the world war without being wounded, Guiseppe Roncaglia, a peasant, was killed by a hand grenade buried since 1918. While plowing his field, Roncaglia struck the grenade. It exploded, hitting him in the head and causing instant death.

NAZIS ORDER MORE WOOD BE CUT DOWN

Berlin.—General Goering, in his capacity as Reich Forest Master and as "the authorized first executive of the Four-Year Plan, has ordered that in all German forests, state, community, or privately owned, fifty per cent. more wood must be cut between October, 1936, and September, 1937, than during the same period last year.

Only forests under 125 acres are exempt from the order.

The new order is due to the shortage of foreign wood owing to Germany's lack of foreign exchange wherewith to buy wood abroad, while more is being used in manufacturing artificial wool and the like.

CARNIVAL TEAMS MEET

Representatives of Many Countries Gather in Germany

Munich.—Representatives of countries throughout the world, including lands as far apart as the United States and Japan, France and Panama, took part in the first international carnival congress held recently at Munich. A team of 15 carnival players from Blackpool, England, and representatives of the carnival art of Bela Orkva (Jugoslavia), Binch (Belgium), Budapest, Luxemberg, Prague and Antwerp were among the many troupes attending this congress.

FIND HEAVIEST GIRL

Vienna.—The "heaviest girl of the whole world" has been found by a Vienna stage manager and will begin a vaudeville career this season. The 20-year-old girl, Saveta Andelic of Jagodina, Serbia, is said to weigh over 500 pounds. She is the daughter of a peasant who had much difficulty in finding enough food to satisfy his daughter's giant appetite.

NEW PAPER INDUSTRY TO AID SOUTH WALES

Old Munition Works To Be Revamped at Newport

Cardiff.—Plans are under way for making South Wales one of the biggest manufacturing centres for paper in the British Isles.

Following the extension of activity at the Ely Paper Mills, Cardiff, and the acquisition of a site on the new trading estate at Nantgarw, Glamorgan, Thomas Owen & Co. have also decided to develop their business at Newport.

An old munitions works has been taken over for paper board and specialized paper production. It occupies 13 acres of land, with a factory area of 400,000 sq. ft. About 6,000,000 gallons of water will be required daily for the processes.

It is estimated that 2,500 workers will be employed eventually. "In three or four years the paper-making industry will absorb every unemployed man and woman in Newport," said William Harrison, chairman of the company.

A profit-sharing scheme for workers will be introduced.

The firm will employ some 5,000 persons at these three works. Special machinery from Germany is being installed.

OPERATION IMPAIRED MIND

London.—A dance hostess, who took an overdose of drug and died in a west end hotel, was said at the inquest to have undergone an operation which sometimes affects the mind.

The woman was Mrs. Virginia Stafford Dickens, 34, and the coroner, Ingleby Oddie, recorded a verdict she killed herself while of unsound mind.

A friend, John Parker, said Mrs. Dickens lived apart from her husband, Richard Dickens, an author.

DUKE OF NORFOLK WEDS IN LONDON

Over 2,000 Guests Attend Ceremony Of Britain's Most Eligible Bachelor

LONDON, Jan. 28 (C.P. Cable).—The Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal and premier Duke of England, was married yesterday to Hon. Lavinia Strutt, 20-year-old only daughter of Lord Belper and the first Lady Belper.

More than 2,000 guests crowded Brompton Oratory, the most noted Catholic place of worship in England next to Westminster Cathedral, for the marriage ceremony, performed by Father Talbot, related to the Duke.

As the bride has not yet been received into the Catholic Church being still under instruction by Father Talbot, the marriage was not "solemnized" by a Nuptial Mass. The service was short and was without choir.

The bride wore a gown of silver lame with a 15-foot train. Her veil, of simple line, was of tulle, surmounted by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried white lilies.

After the wedding, the bride and bridegroom were understood to have left for Scotland, where part of their honeymoon will be spent.

The bride is a keen huntswoman with the Quorn Hunt, and also a capable tennis player. Last year she won the Nottinghamshire junior lawn tennis championship. In March of last year she broke her collarbone while riding in a point-to-point race.

Her mother was Hon. Eva Bruce, daughter of the second Lord Aberdare. After the dissolution of her marriage with Lord Belper, she became the wife of the Earl of Rosebrey.

Busy Man At Present.

The Duke, who is 28, had been described as the most eligible bachelor in the Empire. As Earl Marshal he is at the moment one of the world's busiest young men in planning the ceremonial details of the Coronation.

One of his most ancient secondary offices is that of chief butler to the King, the duties of which now consist merely in the ceremonial handing of wine at the King's Coronation. His lineage springs from Saxon times, as the family claims descent from Hereward the Wake.

The fortune of the Howard family has been estimated to be £10,000,000 ($50,000,000). Norfolk House in London was at one time regarded as one of the most magnificent private palaces in England. During the Great War it was loaned as a rest house for Canadian and other ladies from overseas temporarily resident here.

FOOLS JIM CROW COMING AND GOING

Young Naturalist's Novel Experiments Account For 8,000 Birds

WINDTHORST, Sask., Jan. 29. — (CP).—Archie Steele, 10-year-old naturalist, whose experience in egg transferring have brought him renown in this district, both agrees and disagrees with crow-killing campaigns.

At the age of seven he started to help his mother raise chickens by hatching eggs under crows. True he has killed many crows. But he has also fed and protected numerous female crows for they have hatched out about 75 chicks during the past three years for him. He succeeded in raising all but one of these.

Archie's big job is to locate the nests when crows start their hatching season. He then gets leghorn eggs from his mother. As a crow lays an egg up climbs Archie to replace it with a hen's egg. He has planted as many as five eggs in a crow's nest and has averaged almost 100 per cent hatch of nice brown leghorn chicks.

In his three years of crow killing it is estimated the lad has accounted for 400 crows eggs which never did hatch. That is a potential 8000 crows in three years.

A few months ago Archie found an owl's nest with four eggs. He took these out and put in hen's eggs; then he placed the owl's eggs under a crow and had 4 little owls. He believes in preserving owls because they do away with field mice and gophers.

WOMAN BECOMES BOARD CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Jessie Maclennan Chosen Chief Of School Board By Draw

WINNIPEG, Jan. 28 (CP).—She'll do her job as well as any man can, vows Mrs. Jessie Maclennan, first woman chairman of the Winnipeg School Board. But she will have the guidance and counsel of a man, a former chairman.

A draw from a hat decided the chairmanship of the board. A Ward 2 vacancy making it possible, the vote was deadlocked, 7 to 7, between Mrs. Maclennan and W. A. Cuddy. The members turned to the Board solicitor for guidance. His opinion was that the name of the trustee drawn from a hat would have the casting vote.

Followed a hurried search for a hat. Just before the draw the two opposing candidates shook hands for luck. The name drawn was that of H. B. Smith, and he promptly cast his vote for his fellow Laborite, Mrs. Maclennan.

Mrs. Maclennan during her two-year term will be counselled by Edward McGrath, a former chairman.

JOLIAT PICKS ALL-STAR TEAM HOCKEY DOMAIN

Rules Have Changed He Thinks Making Direct Comparison Impossible

PICKS TWO CANADIENS

By COLIN A. GRAVENOR
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

MONTREAL, Jan. 27—Auriel Joliat has always been better known for his brains than his prowess, for if his had not been so, the frail 135-pound veteran would not have remained at the top of the hockey pile season after season and be 36-year ringleader of the ...praging victories of Les Canadians in the 1936 - 37 pennant race.

Aurel Joliat

Because he is of an analytical turn of mind, and does not believe that sticking your head into the elevator shaft is the best way to find if the car is up or down, Aurel favors selecting two separate and individual all-star teams when matters of this nature come up in the long sleeping car hops from N.H.L. city to city.

"Old Time" Six is Strong

"The rules have changed so very much in recent years that it is difficult to compare present-day players with those of years back, so I give you my 'old time' selection," Aurel told the writer. "In goal I would put the late Georges Vezina. God rest his soul, he was a wonder in the nets! On the defence I would set up Eddie Gerard and Sprague Cleghorn. There's a pair who could stop any attack! For centre ice . . . it would be a tough one, but I would pick Frank Nighbor. The wings would be even harder, but I think that my choice would be the backward-skating fiend, Didier Pitre and that speedster Jack Laviolette. What a team!"

Turning to more recent times, Aurel has equally definite ideas on the ideal men in each position.

Picks Two From Canadiens

"I do not hesitate for a moment to place one of my present and one of my past teammates on the squad," says Aurel. "Howie Morenz is the best centreman of recent years, and I consider that George Hainsworth is outstanding in goal!"

For the other positions, Joliat picks Eddie Shore and King Clancy for defence, and Bill Cook and Harvey Jackson for the wings.

"I don't know just what would happen if it were ever possible to assemble those two teams. After all, who could stop the attack of Bill Cook, Howie and Harvey Jackson, who indeed, if if were not Eddie Gerard and Sprague Cleghorn in front of Georges Vezina? And as far as Didier Pitre, Frank Nighbor and Jack Laviolette, I think they could overcome nearly any defence except, perhaps, Shore-Clancy-Hainsworth, all in their prime."

Hopes to Meet Rangers

As far as Aurel is concerned, he figures that Les Canadiens are practically into the playoffs in first place and that the only squad that may overtake them would be the Maroons.

"I hope that we meet Rangers in the inter-sectional playdowns," wishes Aurel, "for we have an old score to settle with them, and I think that we can square accounts if we meet this year!"

Field Pound Down Stretch at Beautiful Hialeah Track

Here is an odd and striking angle view of a race at Hialeah Park, Florida. As the horses neared the finish line, Dixie Princess on the near side was nosed out by Dirigible, on the far side, and Balcony, in centre position, finished in third place.

McGILL, TORONTO LEADING LEAGUE

Toronto Blues Beat Queen's 4-3 To Move Into First Place

(By the Canadian Press)

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—McGill Redmen had to make room today at the top of the International Intercollegiate hockey league standing for University of Toronto Blues, who moved into a first place tie with the Montreal Collegians by a 4-3 victory last night against Queen's University.

Both teams now have eight points but the Redmen had the edge, being unbeaten in four games while the Torontonians have a loss marked against them in five games played.

It wasn't Johnny Munro's fault that Queen's bowed to the Toronto Collegians, For Munro, shifted from his usual defensive post to centre by Coach Flat Walsh, scored all three of his team's goals. But that wasn't enough and in the last minute of overtime Fullerton came through with his second goal to give the Torontonians victory.

U. of T. was not long in taking a first period lead, Morrison stickhandled his way through from the blue-line and beat McEwan easily at the four-minute mark. Just eight minutes later Munro scored his first goal with a waist high shot by Caswell.

But before the first period ended there was to be more scoring by U. of T. First Valiquette made it 2-1 and then Fullerton scored his first goal to send Toronto ahead 3-1.

Queen's had all the better of the play in the second period but was able only to cut down the Toronto lead by a goal. Munro fired this one when Toronto was shorthanded after taking a pass from Hepburn.

There was exactly two minutes of regular game time left when Munro got this third goal to tie the score at 3-3 and send the game into overtime. The stocky Queen's player took a pass from Joey Catlin and whipped it home.

Fullerton broke the deadlock in the last minute of overtime.

Hiawatha Wins 8 To 4 Over Bewdley Outfit

HIAWATHA, Jan. 28.—Hiawatha Indians of the Rice Lake Hockey League had revenge recently on Bewdley, by copping an 8-4 win on the former's open air rink. A good crowd say a hard scrap with both squads battling all through. Play was clean with but three penalties drawn. The Indian boys were careless in the second with a 4-1 lead and eased up on combination and Bewdley batted in three to tie it up. Both goalies kicked aside a flock of hot tries throughout. Allen Anderson scored three for the winners with Billy Woods two, and Reg. Paudash, Elmer Paudash and Joe Anderson one apiece. Referee—George Paudash.

gate line pressed all through, and the alternate line of Mackey-Saunders—Wellwood also went well.

VINES TAKES PERRY FOR SECOND IN ROW

Victory Gives Californian Seven Out Of Twelve Matches Played

CHARLOTTE, N.C., Jan. 28—(A.P.)—Ellsworth Vines defeated Fred Perry, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, here last night in the twelfth match of their cross-country series. The match gaves Vines a two-up lead over the Briton in the series.

Bruce Barnes defeated George Lott, 6-1, 6-4, in a preliminary match.

After vanquishing the Briton last night at Richmond, Va., the victory put him two up on Perry in their series. Vines has won seven matches and Perry five.

Victory, after last night's win at Richmond, Va., brought Vine's total to seven against Perry's five wins.

Perry, who turned professional this winter after reigning amateur King, won the first set, 6-3, but after Vines warmed up, the Californian ran through the last two sets handily.

Vines' blistering service conquered Perry, and the Californian also made good use of smashes and drop shots. Against this Perry showed a nifty backhand and chopped well.

In the second set, Vines permitted Perry to win only one game, one of his services. In the third set the two stars managed their first services, and the games were tied, 4-4, when Vines broke through and ran it out.

China Clippers Win From Grant's Team

China Clippers clipped out a 5-2 intermediate Southend Puck Loop verdict over Grant's Cleaners last night as the Sacred Heart rink. It was a speedy, rugged checking tussle all through with the Clippers having a little edge through better combination. Thornton tallied both goals for the Cleaners while B. Leggit notched two for the Clippers with C. Heal, G. Jamieson and Ridley getting one apiece. The scorers all showed up well, while the defencemen and goalies turned in a neat performance. The teams:

Grant's Cleaners: Goal, Fleming; defence, Creighton Curtin; centre Jones; wings Meagher Thornton; alternates Collins, Fisher.

China Clippers: Goal, Castle; defence, Callan, Hopkins; centre, Heal; wings, Jamieson, Leggitt; alternates, Jobe, Ridley, Todd, McIntyre.

St. Peter's Get Nod Over King Edward

St. Peter's nudged out a 5-4 win over King Edward in a lively Southend Hockey League fixture at the Sacred Heart rink last night. Play was hot and quite even most of the way with both teams turning in a good performance. Rochetta notched three for the victors with Prete and Smith getting one apiece. For the losers, Henwood had two and Jamieson and Self one apiece. Some neat passing and effective checking was shown by the opposing forwards. The teams:

St. Peter's: Goal, Crary; defence, Prete, Smith; centre, Rochetta; wings, Boyle, O'Connor, O'Donnel, Rex.

King Edward: Goal, Shea; defence, Campbell, Mackness; centre, Jamieson; wings, Self, Henwood; alternates, Henthorne, Gillespie, Roberts.

Referee, E. Jobe.

Beavers And Canucks In Southend Loop Tie

Beavers and Canucks went to a 3-3 tie in a Southend Hockey League game last night at the Sacred Heart rink. It was a keen contest all through with both sides battling from start to finish. Wade got two for the Beavers and Heath one; while Jones, Wheeler and Giardino tallied for the Canuck gang. Both goalies looked good. The teams:

Beavers: Goal, Mattuci; defence, Brioux, B. Jones; centre, Heath; wings, Jones, Wade; alternates, L. Clark, Hallihan, R. Clark.

Birthday Greetings

To Lou Holmes—one of the many hockey players Edmonton has turned out, who will be 26 years old tomorrow. After starring in Edmonton amateur ranks for years, he turned professional with Chicago Black Hawks in 1931. He just failed to make the grade in the big league and has performed for several minor league clubs since.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

A BUNCH of us were sitting around in a main street beanery at an ungodly hour the other a.m. holding forth on this and that. But Java Joe—who gets the handle from guzzling mugs of java—did most of the holding forth. He held the floor. Joe is a character who gives great pleasure to all his listeners just by talking. His language is an amazing weapon of expression. He may mangle the King's English from time to time—but who doesn't?—and he is never stumped for a word. So when we are around and can steer him onto sports, we listen very carefully indeed.

* * * * * *

"YOU SAY the Fliers from the Trenton Airdrum play dirty hockey," he says, "well, personality, I am for hockey that pleasures the masses and not the tripe of play like tennis put on for guys in top-notch hats and dolls in vermin wraps. Let us get action and at prices not absorbent because times are not too preposterous yet. Why, in days of gore they tell me the hockey was so inflammable that the game was on the brink of an abscess and the mugois had to transfer the rules to refrain hockey for prosperity. But now it is like lily of the value with guys playing it with white corpse cells—and if a guy with red corpse cells comes along and gives a heave-ho or two to an exponent, he is excused of playing dirty hockey. Nuts!"

* * * * * *

JOE WAS so disgusted he spilled some of the coffee from his saucer. "Most of the disrumpled critics," he went on after mopping up the java with a paper napkin, "are octoroons, guys in their eighties, who sit around getting hardening of the artilleries and a general taxi condition from high blood pleasure. Like the rich maggot in that newspaper movie Ritzald Lady I saw a week or so ago. But some of you addle essence of a young age have simultaneous ideas. This critical aptitude might as well be kept dormitory since it accommodates noshing as the Art Bishop of Cranberry found out when he panned His Royalness for taking the Subterranean cruise with a bunch of useful spirits his own age instead of old arid socrates.'

* * * * * *

AS HE seemed to be getting off sports, we asked did he figure the Fliers to take the Petes here Monday. "You communists what write in papers should know more than us about that," he retorted as he dunked a cookie in his coffee. "My mind may not be fractioning right and anyway my opinion has no infrenzied value but I would say the Fliers will find a low sealer here and maybe hit a few air sockets, too. Personality, I would be reclined to wage a bet of modern proportionings that the Petes would submerge victorious. But getting back to Edward, I say history reputes and . . . . " We left then.

* * * * * *

THREE FAST and lively Senior City Puck Loop tussles were run off at the Brock last eve. Outboard Marines took a 2-1 opener from the luckless Bewley boys; Mayfairs mauled Millbrook, 5 to 1; and Westclox yanked out a 2-1 verdict over Lakefield. League standings are in elsewhere tonight. As it begins to approach payoff time, the lads are laying to with hearty good will. However, some of the players—and customers, too—are complaining that the loop threatens to go pansy. Said one puckist last p.m.: "It's getting so ya can't even sneer at an opponent without getting the finger to climb the boards. If ya paste a guy ya get a major and if ya even look as if ya'd like to paste him ya get a minor." This is a sad state of affairs as the Blood and Thunder Loop wouldn't be much if "ya" take away the blood and the thunder, now would it?

* * * * * *

COACH BUCKLAND has signed up another defenceman for the Petes. He is Johnny Murphy, ex-Queen's rearguardsman, who has been working in the C.G.E. here since last summer. Big, strong and experienced, the Irisher should prove quite a help to the locals. Ellis or Gardner may be moved up to the front and worked on the second line, though this isn't definite yet. We understand Murphy is also some shucks at rugby and lacrosse. He played hockey with the Queen's U. team the last several years. He is likely to see action when the locals play the Redmen in Belleville tomorrow night.

GALS' CAGE games at the Y.W.C.A. tomorrow e'en, provided the figure skating carnival at the Brock St. rink is off—though it's a cinch to be held (in which case the cagers will postpone their tilts): Westclox Juniors vs. "Y" Quakers at 7.45, C.G.E. Seniors vs. Marconi Radio at 8.15, and St. John's Juniors vs. C.G.E. at 9.00, with the senior Westclox damsels drawing the bye. Though it looks as if lack of snow ruined the ski jumping and maybe the dog derby here this weekend, the ice should be okay for the big affair tomorrow night at the Brock and the fancy dress carnival Saturday eve at All Saints' rink.

* * * * * *

THIS FROM Oshawa: "There are a lot of Peterborough people who reside in Oshawa and quite likely most of them will visit their home town this weekend. They are staging a Winter Sports Carnival in the Liftlock City and, judging by the elaborate plans which have been made, the event should be an outstanding success—if they only get snow in time. They have a new ski jump out at Nassau, which was just another dam spot outside the city until the erection of the ski jump and now it bids fair to become known all over Ontario, as it is regarded as one of the finest. Several Oshawa winter-outdoor sport enthusiasts intend attending the event and now, it remains only for the snow to arrive and create the correct scenerial setting." That "scenerial" is worthy of Java Joe.

PICKING 'EM off the grapevine: Ducats for the Fliers' game here Monday are going like cakes at a kids' party . . . . N'Yawk Rovers played at home Sunday before 16,497 customers; Drake Jopling is with this team . . . . Outboard Marines, with fancy new sweaters, took a 4-3 overtime win in a Norwood puck fray the other night . . . . Belleville Juniors took an 8-5 win in Tweed last eve . . . . While the Fliers smeared Trenton, 15 to 3 . . . . Between Senior City Cage Loop games at the "Y" Saturday night, four gym athletes will entertain fans with stunts on the rings; they are Bill Taylor, Mick Magee, Jack Wolstenholme and Tom Dunlop . . . . Church Cage League games that night have been switched so that St. John's Juveniles play St. Andrew's at 6.15, and the bantam final betwixt St. John's and St. Paul's will be at 7.00 . . . . Church Puck Circuit dope is in elsewhere . . . . Quinte pucksters went home Tuesday saying: "Floods in the U.S. middle west nothing—we were flooded out right in Peterborough!"

Prince Of Wales Win Over King Edward 2-1

Prince of Wales nosed out a 2-1 verdict over King Edward in a smart School Hockey League game played yesterday at All Saints' rink. It was a postponed contest, and both teams turned in a nice brand of hockey. Penalties were frequent as the boys mixed it up hard. Cox put the K.E. crew one up in the first frame as the team turned it on with a Prince of Wales player in the penalty box. The Princes zapped in two in the middle chukker, Maudsley and Stewart scoring. A brilliant save by Spooner late in the fray kept King Edward from tieing it up as they pressed hard. Both goalies looked good, while all the players battled hard. The teams:

King Edward: Goal, Shea; defence, Henthorne, Roberts; centre, Jamieson; wings, Self, Jobs; alternates: Anderson, Dalliday, Reader, Cox, Hodson.

Prince of Wales: Goal, Spooner; defence, Scott, Todd; centre, Jackson; wings, Gardiner, Stewart; alternates: Maudsley, Gladwin, Doughty, Lachour.

Referee, D. Charlton.

BELLEVILLE TOO FAST FOR TWEED DOWN JUNIORS 8-5

Latter Tie It In Second At Five All Then Tompkins Cuts Loose For Three

TWEED OUT OF RUNNING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 28.— Losing their sixth straight game of the season, the Tweed Junior O.H.A. were eliminated by the Belleville Junior Redmen by a score of 8 to 5. In the opener Belleville jumped into a three to one lead with three quick goals in succession near the first of the period, while Tip Tummon rammed in a pass from Long for the lone home counter. Three penalties were handed out in this canto, two to Belleville and one to Tweed.

In the second, the home forces tied up the score after Belleville jumped into a five-to-two lead, when Jack Tummon tallied twice and Brunton once for the locals. Tweed scored their goals when Belleville was short a player who was warming the bench. Elsbury saw the bench for the second time in the game in this period while two Belleville players were chased for minor infractions.

In the last period, Belleville put the game in the bag with three goals, all by Tompkins, who stick-handled his way through the whole team to outwit Simpson.

Although the Tweed youngsters put up a stern battle, they were unable to cope with the fast aggregation from the Quinte city. Tompkins, with six goals for the Belleville forces, was the outstanding player on the ice, and Jack Tummon for the Tweedites followed with his three counters.

Both goalies put up a good exhibition of blocking when time after time the players serged in. Tompkins met his match on several occasions when he barged in on Simpson only to shoot into the goalie's pads.

As a result of last night's defeat the home forces are out of the playoffs, although it is likely they will finish the schedule, having only two more games to play in Belleville.

Gerald Quinn refereed the game.

Grove Takes 4-3 Win Over Lakefield High

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 28.—When the Lakefield Preparatory School hockey team met Lakefield High School in the rink on Wednesday afternoon, the Prep. School boys defeated their opponents 4 to 3.

The score was 2-2 for a large part of the game; then Grove scored twice. During the last five minutes of play the High School put on a valiant struggle in an attempt to tie the score, but only succeeded in getting one more point.

Morley il. played a fine game for the Grove, scoring three goals. Their fourth goal was put in by Warren i. Pease i. put up a good game in goal.

Lloyst, C. Birch and Stabler did the scoring for Lakefield High. Stabler on the High School defence was the star of the team. The line-up:

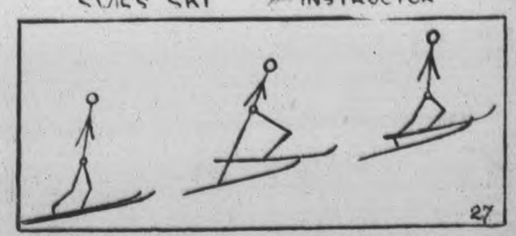
SKIING

by Charles Schaer
SWISS SKI INSTRUCTOR



27—THE CLIMBING STEP

Do not choose too steep a grade for your ascent. If the hill is fairly steep take it at an angle instead of attempting to walk straight up.

Bring the skis, if necessary, down on the snow with a decided stamp; this will help to eliminate backslip. When ascending a slope diagonally the surface of the ski is not placed flat on the slope but at an angle to it and the weight is taken on the upper edges of the skis. The sticks are held somewhat in the rear to assist in the climb.

The so-called climbing step, illustrated in the drawing above, is the customary method of ascending an open slope.

CHURCH PUCK LOOP.

Church Hockey League games tonight: George St. Bantams vs. Park St. at six; All Saints' vs. Knox Juveniles at seven; St. Paul's vs. Mark St. Juveniles at eight, and St. George's Seniors vs. All Saints' at nine.

Mark St. Juveniles defeated a short-handed Trinity team, 12 to 0, last Tuesday night, with Craig notching six of the winners' goals.

Hurl; alternates: Marquis, Bullock. C. Birth, K. Morris, W. Garbutt.

HAWKS UNWORRIED BY McLAUGHLIN'S ALL-AMERICAN IDEA

Resent However Insinuations They Have Not Been Giving Their Best

MANY ILL, INJURED

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(CP)—Recent declaration of Major Frederick McLaughlin, owner of Chicago Blackhawks of the National hockey league, that he desired an all-American squad to carry the Hawk colors into major league warfare within the near future today had left his present puckmen unruffled. They did, however, resent his insinuations they were not delivering to the best of their ability.

Ever since the season commenced the Hawks have been bogged down by illness and injuries. Not once have New York fans seen the team at full strength. Yet, according to Coach Clem Loughlin, he has the greatest collection of "real fighters" on the roster that the club has known since he took command.

Loughlin admitted prior to Thursday night's game here with New York Americans that he felt a bit discouraged. Loss of numerous games by one goal margins after winning Hawk tallies had been disallowed had left the team a bit downhearted, he said, "Yet they never gave up fighting to the last ditch."

That decisive 9-0 victory over the Amerks may, Loughlin thinks, prove to be the turning point in the Chicagoans tide of misfortune, after the match the Hawks could hardly have been recognized as the same club, so frolksome were they in comparison to their demeanour a bare two hours previously.

Hopeful of Win Tonight.

Loughlin and his proteges headed for Montreal today in the best of spirits but still rankling from the McLaughlin charge and even the mighty Canadiens, class of the Canadian group, may be forced to bow before their wrath in the Forum match tonight.

Coach Loughlin was emphatic in his declaration that his players had "in every game given their all toward a Chicago victory."

"You must remember," he said, "that my line which scored so many goals last season, that is Thompson, March and Romnes, have been together for only a few games this season on account of injuries. Other key players have also been put out through injury or sickness yet I can truthfully say that no team has fought the way those boys have despite these setbacks. And don't forget we have no minor league farm club to draw on for replacements when situations like we have encountered this season crop up."

1892 BASKETBALL FULL OF LAUGHS

Madison Square Battle With 18 Men Produces Only One Field Goal

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Basketball as played in 1892, the year of its conception at Springfield College, has at least one thing on basketball of today—it produces more laughs.

Using the 13 original rules posted on a bulletin board at Springfield College in 1892 by Dr. James Naismith, a native of Renfrew, Ont., the game was reproduced at Madison Square Garden last night. Ten minutes of play with two nine-men teams produced only one field goal—a long shot that settled into the peach basket and refused to bounce out.

Eighteen men started the mad scramble for the ball, tossed into the centre of the floor by George Bernert, but soon there were only 16 left. Two men were banished for personal fouls and stood on the side lines the remainder of the game, which ended with the single goal. When the basket was finally made, the referee had to call for a ladder to get the ball out.

The players dived into the crowd for the possession of the ball whenever it went out of bounds for the rules gave it to the player touching it first.

Nobody was injured in the game, which proved to be pretty much a brawl, probably because the players wore shin and knee guards beneath their long trousers.

Four of the game's "old timers" were on hand for the exhibition and one of them—William R. Chase of New Bedford, Mass.—outscored Jules Bender, Long Island University ace, 2-1 in a free throw shooting contest.

New Baseball Prexy

New president of the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball club is pictured here as he attended the International League meeting at the Commodore Hotel, New York. He is Donald Ross, son of Hon. W. D. Ross, former lieutenant-governor of Ontario, who purchased the ball club when it looked as though the club would be moved to another city.

RED WINGS DOWN PORT HOPE 6 TO 5

Sleightholm Grabs Three To Give Whitby Close Margin

PORT HOPE, Jan. 28.—In a fast and furious O.H.A. Intermediate "B" fixture here last night Whitby Red Wings nosed out Port Hope Ontario's 6 to 5 after the locals had twice been in the lead.

Port Hope led at the end of the first frame 2 to 1 and Whitby was on top 4-3 at the end of the middle session. Counters by Jackman and Smith put the homesters in the lead in the final period. J. Sleightholm evened up when he bagged his third goal of the night and Louis Vipond notched the winning tally. For the winners J. Sleightholm was outstanding with his trio of goals.

Whitby—Goal, Hurst; defence, Brown and Oke; centre, Heard; wings, Blanchard and Louis Vipond; alternates: E. Sleightholm, Luther, Vipond, Colin, Piper and J. Sleightholm.

Port Hope—Goal, Cancilla; defence Record and Cameron; centre, Rowden; wings, Smith and Pillsworth; alternates: Jackman, Phillips, Roach, Hagerman and Terbenche.

Referee—Stan Crossett, Port Hope.

18 GIVEN SEVEN YEARS.

WINDSOR—Henri Heider, 25, of Montreal, was sentenced to seven years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate David Brodie in police court to-day when he pleaded guilty to receiving a revolver stolen from the Provincial Bank of Canada at St. Joachim, 23 miles east of here, and also to having in his possession an offensive weapon.

EXTRA BANDAGES SAVING JOE LOUIS SO PASTOR SAYS

Statement Follows Report Brown Bomber Is Floored By Sparring Partner

"BEAT JOE FRIDAY IF—"

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(A.P.).—As expected, that now famous training-camp knockdown of Joe Louis echoed 'round the fistic firmament today. And the loudest echo of all came directly from the camp of Bob Pastor, who tangles with the Brown Bomber in Madison Square Garden to-morrow night.

Without referring to the news that Louis dropped to the canvas after sparring mate Eddie Malcolm threw a right-hand punch at him in yesterday's training session, the bull-necked ex-collegian issued a statement in which he declared:

1.—That Louis "couldn't dent a pound of butter" if he doesn't have extra bandages on his hands;

2.—That Louis "would not even be a preliminary fighter if he was boxing in the bare knuckle days," and

3.—That the State Athletic Commission "compel Louis to live up to rules and regulations relative to bandages."

Having gotten all this off his chest, Pastor took a deep breath and came up with nothing less than a "Tarzan" defi:

"I will prove concsuively I will stop Joe Louis within 10 rounds Friday night if he is not allowed to wear extra bandages."

Legitimate Knockdown

The Louis training camp episode was regarded variously as "one of those things" and as a legitimate knockdown. The eyebrow-raiser pointed out that if Joe kissed the canvas from a punch it would have the same lure for the fight faithful as a spilled bottle of honey on a drove of flies.

The possibility that Pastor might duplicate the stunt undoubtedly would draw the fans out at a considerably livelier rate than if he was conceded no chance at all, as has been the prediction heretofore. Louis, himself, insisted he slipped; that the punch which landed on his head had nothing to do with his going down. His followers pointed out that he came up off the floor immediately and pounded the dusky Malcolm all over the ring.

Ringside observers, all fight writers, were mixed in their opinions. Some said it was the punch which dropped Joe; others contended he mis-timed a hook and fell.

Clockmakers Win Over Lakefield

Senior City Hockey League standing to date.

Team	P.	W.	L.	T.
Westclox	4	4	0	0
Mayfairs	4	3	1	0
Millbrook	4	1	2	1
Marines	4	1	2	1
Lakefield	3	1	2	0
Bewdley	3	0	3	0

Westclox kept on top of the heap with a 2-1 win over Lakefield in a classy tussle before a fair crowd at the Brock last night. It was a fast game, fairly clean, and with little difference between the teams. The Clockmakers got a goal in the first frame, Thirnbeck scoring on White's pass. They added one in the second with Dinesen tallying, aided by Field. Chittick got the lone Lakefield counter as they ganged in the third.

Both goalies had to kick out a bunch in the speedy, systematic struggle, while the opposing defences bounced incoming forwards around freely. The first lines of each team looked smart on passing plays while the forwards kept up a hot pace most of the way. For Lakefield, Chittick, Sabatino and Junkin looked best; while the Parsons, Field and Thirnbeck stood out for the winners. The teams:

Lakefield: Goal, Junkin; defence, Sabatino and Morin; centre, Chittick; wings, Jewell and G. Charlton; alternates, Lennox, Deeth, I. Charlton, Chappell and Stenner.

Westclox: Goal, Tharby; defence, White and T. Parsons; centre, Field; wings, Thirnbeck and F. Parsons; alternates, O'Leary, Calladine, Padgett, Dinesen and Stante.

WHITBY JUNIORS BLAST PORT HOPE

Vipond Licks In Four Of His Squad's Six Goals To Visitors One

WHITBY, Jan. 28.—In a Lakeshore Group O.H.A. Junior "B" game here last evening, the local hockeyists reversed Port Hope by a decisive 6 to 1 count.

After a goalless first period, Dafoe sent the locals to the front in the second, scoring from a penalty shot. Vipond made it 2 to 0, netting from Bragg's pass.

Outstanding star of the game, Vipond whipped three more past Goaler Dawley in the third, while Billings ran it to 6 goals, before Hills, defenceman, tallied to avert a shutout for the Ports.

Millbrook Loses To Mayfairs 5-1

Mayfairs swept through for a 5-1 victory over Millbrook in their Senior City Hockey League contest before a small crowd at the Brock St. rink last night. In a speedy, hard-checking game, the homesters showed a decided edge through the last two frames, Millbrook got a defcounter in the first and were blanked the rest of the way while Mayfairs tallied three in the second heat and two in the third. Strict refereeing kept down the rough stuff as the rival players carried chips on their shoulders, a near general fight threatening in the third.

Cathcart's long bouncing shot fooled Currie in the opening spasm for Millbrook's lone tally. Meyette, Hill and Driscoll ran in three neat ones on passing plays for Mayfairs in the middle chukker. A Millbrook goal in the third was disallowed owing to a man in the crease. Vitarelli notched one in the final chapter on Mowry's corner passout and then Meyette's corner shot glanced in off a skate to end the scoring. The winners were carrying the play at the finish though Millbrook pressed hard for a time in the third period.

All the Millbrook forwards worked hard, there being no outstanding stars. The defence for the winners proved strong with stiff body checks, and Currie was smart in goal. There was little to choose among any of the forwards, the whole six looking good. Meyette led the scorers with two. The teams:

Millbrook: Goal, Ferguson; defence, Spencely and Mowry; centre, Edmunds; wings Cathcart and Skitch; alternates McCarthy, Wainman, Sloan and Hunter.

Mayfairs: Goal, Currie; defence, Vitarelli and Gardner; centre O'Leary; wings, Hill and Meyette; alternates, Driscoll, Mowry and Cournyea.

Referee, Herb Payne.

Outboard Marines Beat Bewdley 2-1

Staging a late rally in the third frame, Outboard Marines nosed out a 2-1 Senior City Hockey League victory over Bewdley before a few dozen fans at the Brock St. rink last night. The Bewdley bunch scored the only goal of the second heat after a scoreless first inning, but the Marines pressed hard in the third to notch two. It was a fast, clean contest on good ice with neither side showing much superiority at any time.

Both goalies had to jump in the lively opening stanza but the rival snipers failed to sink the disc. Early in the second chapter, Elliott rapped one by Beavis from close in to give Bewdley a 1-0 edge. The third was about half spent when Payne tore in fast to bulge the twine and even the count as the Outboards ganged up with D. Sidey serving time. A few minutes later, with Sidey back, Reeves rapped in Cripps' rebound as the goalie was slow in clearing. Bewdley pressed hard the last few minutes but failed to tie it up.

The two goalies made a bunch of nice saves in this tilt, and the rival defences bodychecked effectively in every frame to give them protection. There was little to choose among the opposing forwards, all passing the puck and working hard. Walker, Watson and Elliott looked best for Bewdley; while Payne, and Reeves seemed most effective for the winners. The teams:

Bewdley: Goal, Sloan; defence, D. Sidey and Walker; centre, Watson; wings, P. Sidey and Elliott; alternates, Mercer, Morton and Jewison.

Outboard Marines: Goal, Beavis; defence, LeBarr and Wood; centre, Payne; wings, Cournyea and Archibald; alternates, Cripps, Cournyea, Rowe, Reeves and Dalin.

Births Marriages In Memoriam Card of Thanks Deaths

MARRIED

ARMSTRONG—YOUNG.—At Murray Street Baptist Church, on Sunday, January 24, at 10 o'clock, Anne Young, eldest daughter of Mrs. James Young and the late James Young of Perth, Ontario, to Wilbert A. Armstrong, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Armstrong, of 182½ Hunter street, Peterborough. The Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will reside in Peterborough.

DIED

ARGUE, Thomas. — On Thursday, January 28, 1937, at his home at Yelverton, Thomas Argue. Funeral from his late residence on Sunday at 2.30, to the United Church, Yelverton.

MILLER, William. — At Nicholls Hospital, on Thursday, January 28, 1937, William Miller of R.R. No. 4, Lakefield. Funeral announcement later.

IN MEMORIAM

BALLANTYNE.—In loving memory of Robert Ballantyne, who passed away January 28, 1932.

Call not back the dear departed,
Anchored safe where storms are o'er,
On the border land we left them,
Soon to meet and part no more.
When we leave this world of changes,
When we leave this world of care,
We shall find our missing loved ones
In our Father's mansion fair.

—Sadly missed by his daughter, Mrs. J. Morrison, and family.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Francis O'Connor wish to extend sincere thanks and appreciation to their many relatives, friends and neighbors, also the clergy, and pupils of No. 8 School, for their kind expressions of sympathy and spiritual bouquets extended during their recent sad bereavement.

BISHOP OF LONDON ENTERS 80TH YEAR

Rt. Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram Still Fit As Ever And An Active Golfer

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(CP Cable.)—The Bishop of London, Rt. Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, entered his 80th year Tuesday, as fit as ever and still an active golfer.

The Bishop has held the See of London—the third highest position in the Anglican hierarchy—for 35 years. No Bishop of London has had so long a tenure of office for at least three centuries.

He manages a diocese of 246,008 acres, with 4,000,000 population, 1,200 clergy and 400 lay workers. Compare this, for instance, with Athabaska in Canada, with 175,000 square miles, 5,000 church population, 14 clergy and 10 lay workers.

Bishop Ingram made another of his periodic visits to Canada last year. He proudly owns up to the possession in the Dominion of 34 nieces, nephews, great-nephews and great-nieces, and has suggested to the Canadian Prime Minister that a memorial be erected to the Winnington-Ingram family in recognition of their part in populating Canada.

Arrested as a beggar in London, a man was carrying $1,150.

LAKEFIELD

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO SCOTTISH BARD

Members Of St. Andrew's Church Celebrate 178th Burns' Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 28—Members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lakefield, celebrated the 178th anniversary of Robert Burns' birth, at a Burns' supper, which they held on Monday in the Sunday School room of the church. The supper was not limited to congregational members, but was open to the public.

The evening opened in traditional Scottish style, when the haggis, on a large platter supported by Mr. Allan W. Clark and Mr. T. W. Chaplin, was brought in, in a procession headed by Piper J. W. McKerchar, who provided music on the bag-pipes. The parade circled the hall and set the haggis on the head table where the "Address to the Haggis" was given by Mr. J. M. Simpson. Rev. Robert Boyle, pastor of the church, led the gathering in Burns' Grace:

"For some have meat and cannot eat
And some have none, that want it.
But we hae meat and we can eat
So may the Lord be thank'it."

After which everyone partook of the sumptuous supper provided. All appeared to do justice to it, and most particularly to the haggis, a product of Mrs. O. E. Kingdon's culinary art which was a rare treat to most persons present.

A Scottish Program

Immediately after supper a program of Scottish selections was provided. Rev. Robert Boyle, who acted as chairman, opened the program with an address suitable to the occasion. Mrs. M. Kennedy then rendered a delightful piano selection, "Blue Bells of Scotland," with variations. "Scats Wha Hae" was rendered in real Scottish style by Dr. J. Cameron Smith, who sang as an encore, "The March of the Cameron Men." Mr. J. M. Simpson gave an address on the "Life of Robert Burns," treating the subject in an able manner.

Mr. J. McKercher, who was called upon to sing a solo, explained that he had intended to sing, "The Star of Robbie Burns," but as the music was not available, he recited the first verse and chorus of this selection, which was written by an admirer of Burns, and which climaxed Mr. Simpson's remarks on the illustrious bard. Mr. McKerchar sang, "Hail, Caledonia," which was much enjoyed.

The audience then joined in a community sing-song, singing "Annie Laurie" and "Lock Lomond." Mrs. T. W. Chaplin gave a splendid rendering of "Comin' Thro' the Rye," and Ethel Lake recited, "She was Scotch, and So Was I."

The evening closed with a selection on the bag-pipes by Mr. McKerchar, "The Cock o' the North," and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the audience.

The supper was provided by the ladies of the congregation. Misses Mary Davis and Jean Clark arranged the program.

On Sunday evening next, the Young People of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will conduct the evening church service. The theme of the evening will be "Christ Pre-eminent." Several young people will give short addresses. In the morning, Rev. R. Boyle will use the theme, "Christ Pre-eminent" as the subject of his sermon.

On Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Boyle will speak on the life of Robert Burns at the evening service. This address was scheduled for the eve of Burns' birthday, but was postponed when weather condition made church attendance almost impossible.

ANCIENT LICENSE TO MAKE PATTENS

Wooden Clogs Required In Georgian Days Of Dirty Streets

Charles Willson, 266 McDonnel street, has in his possession a remarkably well-preserved parchment of considerable historical interest. It is about 18 inches wide and some three inches deep, and bears the date 6th of February, 1817, 'being in the 57th year of the reign of King George III.' Bearing the signature of the mayor and chamberlain of London it sets forth that John Willson had been recognized and licensed as a patten-maker.

The real meaning of the certificate was explained by F. M. Dela Plaze, of the Public Library:

The Pattenmaker's Company was one of the guilds of London, and was incorporated about the time of the reign of Charles II, although early in the 15th century they appeared as a guild. The origin of the term is interesting; the condition of the streets in mediaeval times was deplorable, garbage and refuse were thrown into the streets and water courses were unknown. In order to enable people to travel the pavements, Pattens were invented, they were much of the same order of things as the Dutch clog and English golosh. The Company was not a large one, and its income was very small. The reason of this was that as the streets were improved the need of pattens died out. They were mentioned as early as 1380 in the fabric rolls of York Minster and are referred to by various writers all down the years since that time.

VETERAN MUSHER OUT OF '37 RACES

Shorty Russick Tells Of Losing Four Of Best Dogs Through The Ice

By Robert J. Anderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

WINNIPEG, Jan. 28.—Veteran of miles and miles of snowy trails, one of the north country's first-rank mushers, Shorty Russick, won't be around this season when the dog-sled racers begin their annual swing over the big time eastern circuit.

Shorty will be at his Pelican Narrows home when Emil St. Godard, Earl Brydges and the other famed drivers open up at Laconia, N.H., next month, rebuilding the team that so often brought him over the finish line in years gone by. Four of Shorty's best dogs went through Mirond Lake, near Pelican Narrows and 650 miles north-west of Winnipeg, last fall. One of the four was Bozo, the lead dog that many a time had made Russick the winner.

At the end of a vacation trip to Winnipeg, Shorty told how it happened to-day before leaving for his North Saskatchewan trading post. "It was good and dark at the time," the 42-year-old driver said, when he crossed the Little Lake last November 19.

500 Pound Load On.

The sled was loaded with about 500 pounds of fishing gear. Two or three inches of water lay over the ice as he drove his team through a heavy rain in unseasonably mild weather. Shorty had just started to run behind the sled after leading the way for miles previously.

"Then all at once down they go," Shorty said sadly. "I couldn't do anything for the dogs at the time. I almost went in, too. He made his way to shore and ran five miles to his trading post for aid, "but by the time I came back they had gone down."

It was his best team, Russick continued. And that meant he would be unable to compete in the dog-sled races this winter. Shorty has 30 dogs at his various posts, but few were good enough to make up a racing team, which takes at least two months to train.

Soft Guelph Life Rouses Guard's Ire

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 28—(C.P.)

PRISONERS at Guelph Reformatory are too well treated, Robert Cunningham, a guard, told the inquiry conducted here by Judge James Madden into the riot of January 17.

"They are well clothed and have a warm place to sleep" he said. "They sleep a lot warmer than I do. The fact of the matter is they are too well treated.

"They should be made to know they are doing time and made sorry they are doing time.

"Too many young people are put in dormitories together," he said. "I think if the cell system were in effect here there would be no trouble at all.

HAS LEG BROKEN WHEN TREE FALLS

William Bell Painfully Injured, Warsaw Reports Several Other Accidents

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Jan. 28.—Ice is keeping a good many people at home. Considering the roads there were quite a few at the United Church and also at the Presbyterian on Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Preston was over to conduct the service.

Rev. Mr. Walker held the Baptist services at the home of Mr. Fred Hamblin on Sunday afternoon.

About ten days ago, Mr. Job Wheeler slipped, bruising himself badly and tearing his face.

William Bell was felling a tree in J. A. Crowe's woodlot on Thursday last. As the tree began to sway Mr. Bell slipped and fell. Before he could get away the tree was down, breaking his leg just above the ankle.

On Saturday evening, Sid Bodenham fell, dislocating his right shoulder. He was working near his home, and expects to be back at work in a week or ten days.

About a week ago George Scott cut his left foot badly severing an artery. Dr. Munro was called, put in some stitches and dressed the foot. He is doing nicely.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BIG JUMP.

After he had jumped ashore from the broken cake of ice in the Duck Pond, Uncle Wiggily stood for a moment in a large field of snow where all sorts of animals were leaping in all directions.

Quiffy, who claimed to be a snow jumper, having hind legs like those of a kangaroo, stood close beside Mr. Longears.

"Well, how do you like it?" said Quiffy. "How do you like the race so far."

"It hasn't gone very far yet," answered Uncle Wiggily. "I mean I haven't seen any race. I had an exciting ride on what I thought was an ice boat but which turned out to be only a cake of ice."

"It turned over, too," chuckled Quiffy, who must have his joke.

"Never mind that," said Uncle Wiggily. "But I'm worried about Mr. Whitewash."

"Who is he?" asked Quiffy.

Polar Bear Friend.

"A Polar Bear friend of mine," said Uncle Wiggily. "He had to jump in the Duck Pond to get over being spotted. He invited me to have an ice boat ride, but I got aboard the wrong boat. The last I heard from Whitey was as he called me to come back. But I couldn't. Then I took you aboard and here——"

"Here we are at the races," interrupted Quiffy, begging the rabbit gentleman's pardon for interrupting. "How do you like them? How do you like the races so far?"

"They haven't gone very far yet," repeated Mr. Longears, looking at the other rabbits, squirrels, guinea pigs and dogs that were leaping about. "They don't seem to be going anywhere."

"Oh, this is only practice," said

Quiffy. "Wait until you see me jump. Then you'll be surprised."

"How long must I wait?" asked Mr. Longears.

Just then the Police Dog, who was selling programs (Uncle Wiggily having bought one), began to bark:

"Next event, broad snow jumping contest. Get a program or you can't tell the winners. Here you are! Get a program!"

"This is where the real snow jumping starts," said Quiffy. "I'm in this jumping race. Are you going to watch me?"

"I am," said Uncle Wiggily, politely. "But I wonder where Mr. Whitewash is?"

"Does he snow jump?" asked Quiffy.

Good At All Sports.

"He is good at all Winter sports", was the answer. "I hope nothing has happened to him. But I'll watch you jump, Quiffy."

Quiffy and several other animals who were to take part in the snow jumping contests, which were on skis, took their places. They were at one edge of a wide field of snow.

"Get ready! On your marks! Jump!" crowed a big rooster gentleman who was the starter.

"Watch me. This is going to be good!" called Quiffy to Uncle Wiggily. "I'm the best snow jumper in the world.

Just then, before the rooster could shoot the pop gun to start the race, all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily looked toward the top of the hill. Down it he saw the Bob Cat, the Fox and the Wolf, all running toward him.

"This is where I jump!" shouted Mr. Longears. "Watch me!"

"Not yet! Not yet! I haven't shot the popgun yet!" crowded the rooster starter. But Uncle Wiggily then and there made a very big jump.

And what happened next you shall hear in the following story. It will be called Uncle Wiggily winning the prize. But please don't let the library book read out loud or it might wake up the magazine.

Senator Claims Publication on Supreme Court Personnel Shocking.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—A.P.)—Senator Joseph Guffey (D., Pa.) asked to-day for a Senate investigation of the publication, "Nine Old Men," a book dealing with the personnel of the Supreme court. Written by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, Washington columnists, the book was described by Guffey in a speech in the Senate as "the most disturbing—I would say shocking—book on public officials I have ever read. Its purported disclosures are sensational."

BETHANY

Mrs. Otto Spencer, when examining the day's gathering of eggs, was much surprised at the size of a Plymouth Rock egg, measuring 6¾ inches by 7½ inches, and wonders how this compares with Examiner freak tests.

Mrs. Richard Fallis of Wilson street accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Roy Ferran, to Toronto on Friday to spend the week-end.

Miss Maud Woods spent the week-end with friends in Toronto.

Mr. Vernon Young of Young's, Ltd., spent a few days renewing former acquaintances in Oshawa, from Sunday until Wednesday.

Mr. S. J. Young and Mr L. Kennedy were business visitors to Toronto on Thursday

Mrs. Jim McKinnon was at home to a number of her lady friends on Wednesday to a dinner bridge consisting of three tables.

One case of scarlet fever has been discovered by Dr. J. J Hamilton; the small patient is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs Leonard Driver, and every precaution has been taken to isolate the little sufferer, to check up on this only case.

Skating parties have been largely patronized by the Bethany athletes at various centres; viz, L. Steers' farm home, where later an appetizing supper was enjoyed, also a party attended the opening night at Blackstock rink.

Mr. Louis Staples is kept very busy at his chopping mill, situated in a central location in the village.

Mr. Herbert Pinney, on Friday, had the misfortune to have his car upset into a deep ditch on the Thompson Hill, near Reid's Crossing, with a quantity of grain for chopping, owing to the icy condition of driving roads.

Mrs. Lou Fallis and daughter, Miss Margaret of Franklin, took in the holiday excursion to Toronto over the week-end, and visited friends in the city.

Miss Doris Driver, accompanied by Pontypool friends, spent Saturday in Toronto, the guest of her brother, Douglas of New Toronto.

C. N. GETS DAMAGES AGAINST TRUCKER

Counter Claim Ousted—Driver Tried To Beat Engine, Thinking He Couldn't Stop

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 28. —(CP). —Justice Jeffrey, in Winter Assize Court yesterday awarded the Canadian National Railways $1,000 for damages to its train, and cost of substituting another engine, after it struck a truckload of celery north of Hyde Park, in October, 1935.

The Judge turned down the attempt by E. V. Breckon of Aldershot the trucker, to collect from the railway company for damages to the transport truck and its load of celery. He dismissed a counter-claim.

Though novel to local courts, representatives of the C.N.R. said it was not the first time they had taken successful legal action against owners of trucks or cars who were hit by, or hit their trains.

In this case, the truck was hit by a Diesel-electric train. A 33-foot long tractor and trailer, it was within three feet of clearing the crossing, when the front of the train struck it, scattering its load of celery, and damaging the truck.

The award was the full amount asked. While the C.N.R. had earlier sued for $1,720, a later agreement with the defendants set the damages at $1,000.

Robert Henderson, of Aldershot, driver of the truck, testified that he did not see the train until he was within 100 feet of the crossing, then, believing he did not have time to stop, tried to beat the train to the crossing. He nearly succeeded.

The C.N.R. brought its original action against Breckon and his driver for $320 as damage to the Diesel-electric train, and $1,200 as the cost of substituting a steam engine while the Diesel-electric was out of operation. The counter claim was originally for $985.

Passenger Coach Rolls Down 40-Foot Bank 50 Miles From Edmonton

EDMONTON, Jan. 28—(CP)—Investigation was pressed today into the cause of a derailment which yesterday brought death to one man and injuries to 21 other persons when the passenger coach of a Canadian Pacific Railway mixed train rolled down a 40-foot embankment and burned.

Joseph Baur, 48-year-old clothing salesman of Edmonton, died about 30 minutes after the accident near Breton, 50 miles southwest of here. It was reported he had died of shock but a post mortem examination was being made.

Three others suffered serious injuries, including J. A. Wingblade, 54, Social Credit member of the Alberta Legislature for Wetaskiwin, in hospital here with severe scalp wounds and internal injuries.

The accident was believed to have been caused by a split rail.

Reduces Varicose or Swollen Veins

Simple Home Treatment Proves It At Small Cost.

The world progresses. To-day many minor ailments that took weeks to overcome can now be helped much more quickly. If you have varicose veins or bunches start to-day to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at McDermid & Jury or any dispensing pharmacist, and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. In a short time the veins should begin to grow smaller and by regular use soon approach normal.

People who want to reduce varicose veins or simple swellings before resorting to operations or injections should not hesitate to try a bottle at once. It is so penetrating and powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time.

HASTINGS COUPLE MARRIED 50 YEARS CELEBRATE EVENT

Mr. And Mrs. J. Killingbeck Receive Many Gifts From Friends

CAME FROM DUMMER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 28.—On January 26th, 1887, Mr. Jake Killingbeck and Mary Ellen Davey drove from their respective homes in Dummer township through deep snow and thirty below zero weather to Norwood, where they were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Sanderson.

On Tuesday evening they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home here on Trent street. Over one hundred relatives, many coming from distant points over treacherous roads to be present with this happy old couple on their fiftieth anniversary.

When the Examiner called on Tuesday evening at their comfortable home, the bride of fifty years ago was busy putting everything in readiness for the party.

The attendants at this happy event in 1887 were Miss Alberta Rorabach and Wm. Woods. Mr. and Mrs. Killingbeck were not sure if either of their attendants were still living or not.

Jake Killingbeck was born in the township of Dummer on June 26th, 1858, a son of the late Mr and Mrs. George Killingbeck, his bride, Mary Ellen Davey was also born in Dummer township on January 16th, 1870, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Davey. The groom's parents and the bride's resided on adjoining farms at what is known as Rotten Lake. They were the first settlers in that section of the township.

Lived in Dummer.

After their marriage they resided in Dummer fifteen years before moving to Percy township, where they lived for seven years, coming to Hastings to reside in the same house they now live in. After a short time in Hastings they moved to Norwood, where they resided ten years. After leaving Norwood they resided in California, Rochester and a number of other places before coming to Hastings a few years ago to live retired. When asked by the Examiner for any good hints to pass on to young couples just starting out on the sea of matrimony, the happy old groom of half a century described it all in one word, co-operation. In all this space of time, he declared he was only away from home eight nights.

Many Gifts Received.

During the night Mr. and Mrs. Killingbeck received many beautiful presents from members of their family and close friends. The evening was spent in cards and dancing, the happy old couple being right in the centre of the frolic until the midnight hour, when they served a very dainty lunch to their guests.

To the union were born six sons and five daughters, Charles of Burnley, Roy of Warkworth, Percy of Peterborough, Howard of Hastings, The latter three all saw service during the great war, Ernest of Havelock, and William, who was chief of police at Hastings up until his death a few years ago, Mrs. A. Tripp of Hastings, Mrs. Vallory of California, Mrs. Lonsbury of Warsaw, Mrs. A. Lemoire and Mrs. Wright, of Hastings.

They also have forty grandchildren.

Vestry Meeting Of Holy Trinity Parish Authorizes Several Alterations

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT JULIAN, Jan. 28.—On Tuesday evening the annual vestry meeting of Holy Trinity Parish was held in the nave of the church with the Rector, Rev. E. C. Moore, Rural Dean, in the chair. The meeting was opened with prayer, after which George Booth was appointed acting secretary.

During the brief business session following, all members of the executive were returned to office for 1937. Wellis Dunford was again chosen to be Rector's warden as were William McCauley for People's Warden and Frank Dunford, lay delegate to the Synod. Norman Bolton was given a contract to make a slight change in the present heating system and to tear down the unstable south chimney. Plans were also made to tear down the north chimney, next autumn, and to use the material from the two old chimneys to build a new one from the ground up.

In his address, Rev. Mr. Moore expressed his thanks to the executive, the congregation, and others for their loyalty and co-operation during 1936. He also made reference to the beautifully designed memorial windows, recently erected over the Altar in memory of the late William Thompson, very kindly given to Holy Trinity church by friends in Peterborough.

HASTINGS

BURNS' MEMORY IS DULY HONORED

Young People's Societies At Hastings Mark 178th Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 28—Tribute was paid to the memory of Robert Burns, Scotland's great lyric poet, during Monday evening's meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Society. Thirty-six were present for the exceptionally fine program in charge of the social convenors, Mrs. Roy Johnson and Mrs. Reta Johnston.

Owing to the absence of the president, the chair was occupied by the vice-president, Mr. Roy Johnson.

The opening number of the program was a Scottish song, "Annie Laurie," everyone joining in the singing. Mrs. Roy Johnson then gave a delightful piano solo, followed by a Burns song, "Flow Gently Sweet Afton."

The topic on "The Life of Robert Burns" was remarkably interesting, as given by Mr. V. Findly, superintendent of the Sunday school. To add to the interest of his topic he gave one of Burns' most noted productions, "The Cottars' Saturday Night," also two other poems, "The Story of Two Dogs" and "The Story of in the Mountain Days." The singing of "Comin' Thro' the Rye" was the closing number, and after a hymn, two contests were sponsored by the Rev. D. K. Perrie. The first one, an advertising contest, was won by Miss Keitha Mouncey. The second one, a Bible contest, was won by Miss Alice Whitred, who answered the ten questions from the Bible. Both winners were presented with boxes of candy, before the serving of dainty refreshments.

Trinity Y.P.S. Tribute.

On Monday evening, January 25th, Trinity United Young People had a Scottish program in memory of Robert Burns' birthday. The worship period was in charge of Miss Frances Metcalfe. Miss P. Metcalfe then gave a talk on the theme, "The Grain of Mustard Seed," as taken from the reading, and Miss Annie Hull gave a reading, 'Sowing Seeds,' bearing on the same theme.

After the minutes and planning for a skating party next Monday evening, Mr. Grant Sine presented the following program:

Miss Jessie Lamb chose as her topic, "Robert Burns," and gave in a very interesting manner the life and works of this famous Scottish writer, who was born near Ayr January 25th, 1759. His poem, "To a Mouse," was read by Miss Marjorie Scriver.

Solos were rendered by Misses Helen Collins and Mildred Sherwin, and after a hymn the meeting closed with the Mispah.

ENJOYABLE TIME AT OYSTER SUPPER

Banquet And Program In Orange Hall Enjoyed By Sixty Guests

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PONTYPOOL, Jan. 28. — On Friday evening the members of the R.B.P. together with their families gathered in the Pontypool Orange Hall, where an oyster supper and social evening was enjoyed. About sixty guests sat down to a sumptuous oyster supper which was enjoyed by all present. A toast to the King was proposed by Sir Knight Hartwell Lowery and was responded to by singing the National Anthem. A toast to the Lodge was voiced by Sir Knight Charles Brown and responded to by Sir Knight John Payne. A toast to the Guests was proposed by Sir Knight Lorne Wannan and responded to by Mrs. Hartwell Lowery. After supper a short program was enjoyed, consisting of speeches by several members and guests, and a violin solo by Herman Wilson, following the program playing cards and dancing rounded out the evening, music for dancing being supplied by Herman Wilson, Hartwell Lowery, Albert McMahon, Mrs. Lowery, and Miss Laura Shea.

DOG UNCOVERS HUNTING TRAGEDY

Bodies of Two Youths Discovered In Nova Scotia Lake

BEAR RIVER, N.S., Jan. 29.—(C.P.)—The disconsolate appearance of a pet dog who returned home late last night, drew attention to the absence of his master and led to the discovery of a double drowning accident two miles from this Annapolis county town.

Bodies of Charles Rice, 18, and Courtney Chute, 19, were recovered from the waters of Harris Lake today. They were discovered only a few feet from shore and had evidently crashed through thin ice.

The boys had gone rabbit hunting yesterday morning.

SOUTH PINS HOPES ON GREAT MISSISSIPPI DIKES

BLIZZARDS TIE WEST EUROPE TAKE 68 LIVES

Tanker Goes Down In North Sea—Liner Saves Only 3 Of 14 Crew

STREAMS OVERFLOW

Snow Blocks Roads In South England Marooning Motorists

LONDON, Jan. 29—(A.P.)—Stubborn storms spread havoc on land and water across Western Europe to-day. At least 68 persons were reported to have perished at sea.

The latest ship to fall to the fury of the wind and sea was the 1,100-ton tanker Olifer. She sank in boiling seas off the small island of Borkum in the North Sea. Eleven of a crew of 14 apparently were lost. The great liner Europa stood by, able to rescue only three men.

However, the storm-beaten, 4,855-ton Brizilian liner Santos, unheard from since reporting she was disabled and drifting toward the rocky Berlengas Islands off the coast of Portugal, was towed to safety at Lisbon, Lloyds reported. One hundred persons were aboard.

Village Marooned

Floods were an inland ally of the storm. Fishing boats carried food to inhabitants of LeGrauduroi, a flood-marooned village on the Allier River in Central France.

Flooded roads along the border of England and Scotland froze solid, isolating communities from overland travel.

Blizzards, borne on the driving winds, piled up huge drifts in the South of England, marooning scores of motorists all night in some areas.

Rain-swollen rivers in Southern France inundated low-lying farms and roads, particularly in the Rhone Valley.

Many streams overflowed and raised the Rhone River to dangerous levels.

Heavy seas inflicted heavy damage to shipping off the coast of Portugal in a gale which reached 97 miles an hour, although the worst seemed passed.

Warships Seek Shelter

Winds moderated in the Straits of Gibraltar and Western Mediterranean, where even the most powerful vessels, British men-of-war included, sought safety in harbors. The Moroccan ports of Casablanca and Rabat were closed. Shipping in the vicinity was at a standstill.

The 122-ton Dutch motor sloop Wilja drifted ashore at Gravesend, England, after colliding with a ferryboat. The Wilja's captain, his wife, his eight-months old baby and four members of the crew were rescued.

The Dutch ship Achilles lost a man overboard in the rescue of the crew of the Dutch steamer Jonge Jacobus off the Berlengas.

The worst disasters were the loss of the French trawler Lorette with 30 men aboard, and the British trawler Amethyst, carrying a crew of 16 men, missing since flashing distress signals in the North Sea Tuesday.

At Leixoes, Portugal, near Oporto the storm sank or damaged 23 vessels, including the British steamer Ashanti and the Norwegian steamer Ingria, within the harbor.

HITLER ON VERGE MOMENTOUS STEP

Calls Reichstag—Expect Announcement Of New Colony Or More Honors For Goering

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Germany, ready for Chancellor Hitler's announcement of some "momentous decision," completed preparations today for the first session of the Reichstag since reoccupation of the Rhineland.

Advance plans indicated the session called by Hitler for tomorrow to receive "an announcement from the government" would be of epochal importance.

Although the entire Reich has engaged in whispered debate for weeks, even high officials admitted they did not know what decisions Hitler had chosen to disclose.

Most observers expected the announcement would concern one of three things:

1. Acquisition of a colony or colonial rights with the appointment of a cabinet minister for colonies.

2. New powers and honors for Hermann Goering, his chief aide, who has long been rumored as the likely next chancellor.

3. Dissolution of the Reichstag in its present form.

ELIZABETH SOLE HEIR

British Act Will Not be Changed to Allow Sharing Throne With Sister

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(CP Cable)—The government has no intention of introducing legislation to amend the act of settlement in the House of Commons today, Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, asked if such legislation was planned with a view to "making it clear the Princess Elizabeth is the sole heir to the throne and does not share it jointly with her sister on the analogy of the Peerage Law."

Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, replied: "No, sir! There is no reason to do so. The government is advised there is no doubt that in the present circumstances Princess Elizabeth would succeed to the throne as sole heir."

Instances Fracas Over Prisoner In "Hole" And Strike Over Bread-Pudding

TROUBLE ABOUT PARCELS

States Some Complained On Food But Many Simply Had Chip On Shoulder

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 29.—(CP)—Since prisoner "A" came to the Ontario reformatory late in December, 1934, there have been three disturbances among prisoners, he told the inquiry conducted by Judge James Madden into the riot of January 17.

The other two disturbances were in 1935, once when a prisoner was "in the hole" and the other time when 250 prisoners refused the bread pudding dessert given them two or three times a week.

"You are not here on trial. I am here on behalf of the man as much as anyone else in order to bring out facts, J. Gordon Gillanders, K.C., commission counsel, told "A", the first prisoner called to testify.

"Nothing you say will be used as evidence against you at any future hearing given you," said Mr. Gillanders who added:

"Was the riot of January 17 planned?"

"It came to me as a complete surprise," said Prisoner A. "No one I spoke to in C side where I reside knew of the disturbance. I am in a privileged cell block and had lost contact with many of the boys. There was the beginning of a disturbance in the summer of 1935."

"At that time there was a prisoner in the hole, and there were many sympathizers.

Many Didn't Know What to Do

"Leaders told the boys to sit down, but it came as a surprise to 90 per cent of the boys and they didn't know what to do.

"I am chairman of the Inmates' Council formed with official approval when Dr. Heaslip came in November."

"You remember I objected to the word council," interjected Dr. Heaslip.

"I beg your pardon, I mean committee," said Prisoner A. "We held weekly meetings."

Repeaters had been accustomed in previous terms to receiving parcels, and they complained of the ban on them, the prisoner told the inquiry.

"Quite a few boys here haven't friends on the outside and some got parcels while others didn't.

"There is no doubt some of the gifts were used as gambling material," he said in answer to a question.

"How about you yourself?"

DEJECTED RADEK MAKES NO DEFENCE IN MOSCOW TRIAL

Unrepentant, Once Trusted Communist Official Admits His Treason

JUDGES REPUDIATE HIM

MOSCOW, Jan. 29—(A.P.)—Unrepentant to the end, Karl Radek, once the foremost publicist of Communism, made no effort to-day to defend himself when he and 16 co-defendants against charges of plotting the overthrow of the Soviet Government were allowed to speak their "final words."

"I admit the treason. I do not defend myself," Radek told the court abjectly. "There are no extenuating circumstances."

Unlike Gregory Piatikoff, who renounced his association with Leon Trotzky, exiled Bolshevist leader and foe of the Stalinist regime in Russia, Radek made to effort to shift the blame.

His weird whiskers and dun-colored old blouse gave the writer the appearance of a farmer as he defiantly told the court:

"I cannot even say Trotzky misled me except to say that I warned Trotzky in 1934 to avoid foreign complications. He was silent for a year and then he revealed the fait accompli with Hitler."

Only the faintest glimmer of hope remained that any of the once-trusted Communist officials could escape swift death before a firing squad.

Rebuked by Judge

The crowded courtroom listened intently to Radek's resolute words and to a dramatic rebuke from the Bench when he referred to "My Comrade Judges."

"You are no Comrade," Judge Vassily Ulrich, presiding over the military collegium of the Supreme Court, interrupted.

Piatikoff, former Assistant Commissar for Heavy Industry, was a broken, frail old man as he stood to throw himself on the mercy of the court.

"I agree to everything the prosecutor said except his statement I am still a Trotzkyist," Piatikoff said slowly. "I do not except clemency. My sole reason for talking is to aid the government clear up this filthy mess. Needless to say, no pressure was used to force me to tell everything."

ATTACK IS MADE ON CONCESSIONS TO FACTORIES

Invalidation Of Fixed Assessment For De Laval And Raybestos Companies

C.G.E. POWER EXTENSION

Alderman Gordon Promises To Apply For Bill As Private Ratepayer

Alderman G. N. Gordon, K.C., attacked three concessions to Peterborough manufacturing companies, proposing that legislation be sought to cancel them, at a meeting of the finance committee of the council Thursday night.

Invalidation of the fixed assessments of the Canadian Raybestos Company and the De Laval Company, and of the extension of the lease of the power plant at the waterworks dam to the Canadian General Electric Company by a private bill in the Legislature of Ontario during its present session was the substance of resolutions by Alderman Gordon.

To Manufacturers Committee

Alderman Wilson seconded the motion directed at the C.G.E. Company's lease, but the other members of the committee supported an amendment by Alderman Sloan, seconded by Juby, that Alderman Gordon's proposal be referred to the manufacturers committee of which Alderman Glover is chairman.

The two other motions levelled at the fixed assessments of the De Laval Company and the Raybestos Company were not seconded.

Take Private Action

"I'll apply for a bill as a private ratepayer," Alderman Gordon declared, "and save the city that much expense."

He said that an amendment passed by the Legislature in 1927 prohibited the fixing of assessment for more than ten years and also the renewal of a fixed assessment after that period.

"I'm moving it," Alderman Gordon remarked in regard to the De Laval resolution. "Do what you like with it. If the council doesn't pass it I intend to apply for a private bill myself."

Alderman Hamilton said that both the De Laval and Raybestos assessment bylaws had been voted on by the people.

Alderman Sloan's comment was to the effect that Mr. Cummings of the Attorney-General's Department had informed representatives of the council that the fixed assessments could be increased, if only by one

FRANCE IS WARNED AIR ARM OUTDATED

Inferior To Germany Who Is Prepared To Strike Over 100-Foot Military Roads

PARIS, Jan. 29.—(CP-Havas)—A rearmed Germany, ready to strike with lightning-like suddenness over 100-footwide military roads, was pictured last night in the Chamber of Deputies as debate on national defence continued.

Although government expenditure for rearmament was accepted by all parties, the opposition criticized France's air force and navy as being outdated by Germany's.

Edouard Daladier, minister of defence, assured the House France was safe from attack. Alluding to the famous Maginot line of underground fort, Daladier said: "Our fortification works today are sufficiently garrisoned to dispel any fear of a sudden attack."

"Billions" of marks have been spent by Germany in the last two years for military aviation, Henri de Kerillis of the opposition declared. He stated the Reich has 2,000 war planes while France has only 1,250, and that the quality of the latter were inferior.

Last Minute News Flashes

TORONTO.— Twenty-two Toronto storekeepers to-day were fined $2,200 by Magistrate J. E. Jones on charges of keeping gaming houses. They had slot machines in their places of business. Similar charges against four others were dropped.

LANSING, Mich.—A delegation of 25 non-union General Motors workers voted to-day to hold a three-hour "sit-down" strike in the office of Governor Frank Murphy, after he announced he would not use troops to force union strikers to leave Flint, Mich., plants of the Fisher Body Company.

MOSCOW.— The military collegium of the Soviet Supreme Court retired to-night to consider its verdict against 17 seemingly doomed men on trial for allegedly plotting the overthrow of Russian government.

TORONTO. — Joseph Savink, charged with the murder of his wife, Clara, was found guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter by an assizes court jury under Justice G. F. McFarland to-day. The jury deliberated three hours and recommended mercy.

SUB-COMMITTEE PLANS TO STUDY PIN GAMES HERE

Report On Number Of Games And Their Licensing Will Be Sought

CIGARETTE LICENSES

A report on the number of pin games and their licensing was sought by the finance committee of the council Thursday night by appointing a sub-committee composed of Aldermen Sloan, Wilson and Hamilton and Mayor Macdonald to obtain the desired information.

Alderman Gordon was also named for the subcommittee. "I don't want to go on it. I have made up my mind they are gambling machines."

Alderman Sloan said there were about eighty of them in the city, and sixty were owned by three men. A license fee of $15 would bring in $1300 a year to the treasury.

"Make it $500 a machine," Alderman Gordon suggested. "They are illegal and just a gambling proposition."

Ald. Stocker—That would put them out of business entirely.

Ald. Gordon—That's what we want to do.

Ald. Wilson—My objection is that school boys are playing them.

Ald. Gordon—One boy spent $8 on them last week.

Cigarette License

A suggestion by Alderman Sloan that the license fee for selling cigarettes be reduced and applied to all tobacco was referred to a special committee for investigation and a report.

The members of the committee are Aldermen Sloan, Wilson, Hamilton and Mayor Macdonald. Alderman Sloan said that 89 licenses produced a revenue of $1780, but there were more than twice 89 places selling cigarettes illegally, he believed. If the fee was reduced to $10 for both cigarettes and package tobacco, "the makins," the revenue from an estimated 300 selling places would be $3,000. Alderman Hamilton said ninety per cent of the young people were smoking cigarettes to which Mayor Macdonald added "And that doesn't help them any."

"Is this a moral or financial question?" Alderman Glover enquired.

"You might as well get the revenue out of it." Ald. Sloan said. "Some places have cigarettes under the counter without a license, and when the customer doesn't want the package tobacco the cigarettes are brought out."

BRITISH ISLES SHIVER

Hope Coldest Wave of Winter Will Check Flu

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(CP Cable)—While Great Britain today was in the grip of the severest cold wave of the winter, health authorities were hopeful it would bring a sharp halt to the ravages of influenza which has already taken the heaviest toll since the scourge of 1918.

The death toll for major cities and towns for the past two weeks has reached 2,280, according to the Ministry of Health. There has been a sharp drop in mortality in the southeastern sections of London which reported 273 deaths last week as compared with 344 the preceding week.

TWO SHOOTINGS IN NORTHLAND KILL 1, WOUND 1

Indian Woman Slays Brother-In-Law As He Batters Way Into Her Home

ONE SHOT IN THE DARK

Kirkland Lake Girl Victim Of Affair In Apartment House

CHAPLEAU, Ont., Jan. 29.—(CP).—Mrs. Agnes Sayers, 32-year-old Indian, is held here to-day on a charge of murdering her brother-in-law, Willie Sayers, by shooting him dead with a rifle as he allegedly battered his way into Mrs. Sayers' home a mile north of here. The shooting occurred last night.

Police said the woman would be arraigned before T. R. Serre, Justice of the Peace, this afternoon, and then taken to Sudbury.

Girl is Wounded.

KIRKLAND Lake, Jan. 29.—(CP)—Hellen Muttka, 22, is in hospital here with a bullet wound in the abdomen and Abrahan K. (Harry) Ansara, 30, is held by police after a shooting which occurred in the apartment of Thomas Ellis in Kirkland Lake to-day. No charge has been laid against Ansara.

According to the story told police Miss Muttka attended a dance last night and went later to the Ellis apartment, accompanied by another girl, Violet Guntilla.

Leo Bolduc, also at the Ellis apartment, and Miss Guntilla were sitting in one room and Miss Muttka and Ansara were in another room with Ellis when the shooting occurred. Ellis was asleep.

Bolduc and Miss Guntilla said they heard a shot and Ansara came out of the room carrying Miss Muttka and took her to a doctor's office.

Police did not reveal how the there was powder marks on one of shooting occurred but they said the girl's fingers. Doctors said she would recover.

G. M. ASKS COURT TO OUST STRIKERS

States In Petition Groups In Plants No Longer Considered Employees

DETROIT, Jan. 29 (A.P.). — A petition seeking a court order for eviction of "sit down" strikers from two Fisher body plants at Flint, Mich., revealed to-day General Motors Corporation no longer considers the men to be employees.

Roy Brownell, Flint attorney for General Motors, filed the petition with Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola of Genesee County (Flint) yesterday. It requested an injunction prohibiting the strikers from continuing to occupy the plants they have held since December 30.

The court directed the United Automobile Workers of America, which called the strikes that have crippled operations of General Motors, to show cause why an injunction should not be granted at a hearing on Monday.

The bill of complaint with the injunction petition referred to the "sit down" strikers as "former employees,' and said "they are no longer employees of the plaintiff and have no right to remain on the premises.

Latest Estimates Place Dead At 330 And 1,035,000 Homeless

RELIEF FUNDS FAR SHORT

Vast Army Of Laborers Continue Strengthening Levees On 1,000-Mile Stretch

CHICAGO, Jan. 29. — The Ohio River Valley, assured that the worst is past, began reclaiming its flood-swept cities and towns today while the south sought cheer in predictions it would be saved from the full fury of the Mississippi.

Aided by State and Federal governments, stricken communities in United States middlewestern states pushed plans for rehabilitation and the care of the homeless. These victims of the disaster numbered 1,035,000, latest estimates said, with 330 dead. Property loss estimates were $400,000,000.

As the crest of the United States most devastating flood passed slowly down the Ohio a pick and shovel army of 100,000 men fortified a fertile, cotton growing valley in the south against the impact of flood waters which will pour down the Mississippi next week.

Danger points along the 1,000 mile front between Cairo, Ill. where the Ohio spills into the Mississippi, and the Gulf of Mexico were at New Madrid, Mo., Hickman, Ky., and Mellwood, Ark., 38 miles below Helena.

As though preparing for a siege, 4,000 men battled behind a 60-foot seawall to save Cairo, Southern Illinois shipping centre from the oncoming crest. Most of the city's 13,000 had fled to safety.

Another Levee Dynamited.

Several days ago engineers "pulled the stopper' in the great 231,000-acre floodway below Cairo to ease the pressure against the seawall Last night they dynamited another hole to relieve the pressure on a setback levee near New Madrid, Mo.

Thousands of refugees who lived in the inundated area camped along the Missouri border hoping Cairo and south-east Missouris "boot heel" would be saved from engulfment.

As 500 men labored to strengthen the levee near Wellwood, Ark., evacuation of 100,000 threatened acres of farmlands, was completed, Another crew was at work repairing the levee at Hickman.

The big test of the government's $1,000,000,000 flood control system along the Mississippi will not come until next week.

While the engineers were prepared for any eventuality, Major-General Malin Craig, United States Army Chief of Staff, said qualifiedly he expected Mississippi dikes would hold. He based his belief in the expectation the levees will hold at Cairo and no abnormal floods develop in tributary rivers.

While some predictions were made

DOZEN U.S. PLANES HOP TO HONOLULU FOR NEW RECORD

Is Longest Over-water Mass Flight In History—2,553 Miles From San Diego

21 HOURS, 48 MINUTES

HONOLULU, Jan. 29 (AP)—Battling thick weather in the last stages of their record-breaking flight, 12 huge United States naval seaplanes completed the longest overwater mass flight in history at 3:50 a.m. today.

They officially covered the 2,553 miles from San Diego to Honolulu in 21 hours, 48 minutes elapsed time. The flight, under Lieut. Commander William H. McDade flew over the Pearl Harbor naval base in perfect formation, their flying lights twinkling.

The only previous mass transpacific flight was three years ago when Lieut. Kneffler McGinnis led a squadron of six naval planes on another "routine" flight of 2,400 miles from San Francisco Bay.

ARMY BLOCKS UGAKI

Reports to Emperor of Japan He Is Unable to Form Cabinet.

TOKYO, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Kazushige Ugaki, his efforts to form a Cabinet blocked by the army, informed Emperor Hirohito to-day he was unable to form a government, and resigned the proffered Premiership.

ORILLIA'S SCRIP PLAN COST $500

Last Of It Except What Is Kept For Souvenirs Will Be Redeemed Monday

ORILLIA, Ont., Jan. 29.—(CP).—Except what is kept for souvenirs, Orillia will see the last of its municipal scrip money Monday.

All outstanding scrip will be redeemed at the town office Monday at the regular discount rate of one per cent., town officials said today. If redeemed before Monday at the bank, the rate is two per cent.

The scrip relief system, adopted by town council last November, was changed in favor of cash and voucher system earlier this month. The by-law specified that outstanding scrip would be redeemed on or after Feb. 1 at the regular discount.

Of $10,000 worth of scrip money placed in circulation, all but $2,300 has been redeemed, Alderman H. G. Pack, relief chairman, said today. He said it cost $500 to issue and place the scrip in circulation.

LABATT TO DEFEND CASE

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 29—(C.P.).—John S. Labatt, London, has indicated through legal formalities, that he is defending a suit which David Meisner, Covington, started against him two weeks ago over the kidnapping of Labatt in 1934.

An appearance has been filed by Labatt's solicitors, at Osgoode Hall, judicial centre of Ontario, it was stated in London to-day. In all civil actions, the filing of an appearance is the first formal move by defence interests.

38,500 Deaths In Motor Crashes In United States In Past Year

All-Time Record Set In 1936 For Motor Vehicle Deaths

10,300,000 DISABLED

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Motor vehicles accident deaths in the United States reached an all time record total of 38,500 in 1936, the National Safety Council said today, exceeding the previous mark of 37,000 set in 1935.

Tornadoes, floods, excessive heat and increased employment helped push the 1936 total of accident deaths from all causes to 111,000, wiping out the 1934 record of 101,139.

The council added that accidents permanently disabled about 400,000 persons and temporarily disabled 10,300,000 others.

For the first time in eight years fatalities resulting from accidents within homes—39,000, or an advance of 7,500 from the 1935 figure — exceeded the number of deaths on the highways of the United States.

"Neither I nor any other safety worker will attempt to explain away a 1,500 increase in traffic deaths during 1936," said W. H. Cameron, managing director of the council.

The council's survey indicated 1,000 of the 1,500 increase in accident deaths as compared with 1935 came in November and December, when "open roads and fair weather permitted heavy traffic in the north half of the country, where winter usually cuts the volume of highway travel."

Guests Branded Scum Desert Jap Banquet

Nagasaki, Japan, Jan. 29 (AP)

A banquet at which many high officials were present was thrown into an uproar yesterday when Yasunemon Matsunaga, well-known industrialist, declared: "Government officials are certainly the scum of the earth."

The guests left the banquet tables in protest and insisted Matsunaga publish an apology in all newspapers. If he failed to do so, they threatened summary action.

OPPOSES OCEAN DERBY

Dr. Kimball Thinks Lindbergh Memorial Race Will Serve No Useful Purpose.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (CP). — Dr. Kimball, United States weather bureau expert, who furnished Col. Charles Lindbergh with weather data for his epic trans-Atlantic flight, in an address last night said he believed the proposed Lindbergh memorial air derby from New York to Paris was an undertaking courting disaster and could serve no useful purpose.

The flight, set for August, is sponsored by the French Government, which offers $150,000 in prizes.

Lad Drives 16 Miles In Sub-Zero Body Pierced By Broom-Handle

Stumble While Skiing Runs Improvised Pole Through Left Side

HOURS REACHING DOCTOR

NORTH BAY, Jan. 29—(C.P.). — After driving 16 miles in sub-zero weather with his body pierced by an improvised ski-pole, 10-year-old Louis Johnson rested in hospital here to-day with a good chance to recover.

The accident occurred when the boy was skiing near his home at Redbridge, 16 miles from North Bay. The boy fell and a pointed broomhandle he was using as a ski pole pierced his body on the left side, the point protruding five inches.

Two hours elapsed before Mrs. Annie Johnson, the boy's widowed mother, contacted a doctor. She finally reached Dr. J. E. I. Joyal of North Bay by telephone and he advised the broom-handle be sawed off close to the body and the boy brought to North Bay by motor car.

The broom-handle was removed in hospital here, and doctors found no vital organs were affected.

PLENTY OF PRESSURE

COBOURG.—Firemen testifying today at the Fire Marshall's probe into the fire which destroyed the Presbyterian church a few weeks ago, asserted that there was plenty of pressure and that if the five pumper had been connected up the firemen would have been hampered working in the confined space where the fire started.

Wife 15-Year Convict Ruled Same As Widow

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)

THE wife of a man sentenced to from fifteen years to life imprisonment may consider herself a widow and remarry, Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo ruled yesterday.

She need fear no shame or embarrassment if her first husband subsequently is pardoned or paroled, the court said, in granting a declaratory judgment to the effect that Gertrude M. Brockman is no longer the wife of James M. Brockman, who is serving a life sentence in the Attica State Prison. Brockman had opposed it on the ground he probably would be paroled in ten years.

90 PRISONERS MAY BE NAMED IN GUELPH RIOT

Out Of Sixty So Far Implicated In Complaints, Six Held Ringleaders

GAMBLING REVEALED

Guards Think Manhandling Would Have Led To Bloodshed

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 29 (CP). — Complaints from guards and others may involve about 90 prisoners at the Ontario Reformatory here as a result of the January 17 riot, J. Gordon Gillanders, K.C., counsel for the commission inquiring into the riot said today.

"Many of these are minor allegations," he said. "No charges have been laid and no charges will be laid against any prisoners until after conclusion of the inquiry, when Judge James E. Madden will have made his report to the government."

There are 10 prisoners on remand until February 2 on charges of breaking prison and two others are charged with theft of an auto. They were charged immediately after they were apprehended by police on Sunday night, following the riot, and appeared before Magistrate Frederic Watt. The men were placed in the county jail and later transferred back to the reformatory.

About 60 prisoners have so far been named, including six or eight alleged to have been ringleaders in the riot that caused more than $20,000 damage to the reformatory, Mr. Gillanders concluded.

Gambled When Idle.

Testimony that prisoners gambled with dice "any time they're not working," was given by Guard Frank Bond before Judge Madden yesterday. After Christmas presents and other parcels were stopped being allowed the prisoners the gambling continued for the free tobacco, cigarette papers and razors issued to the prisoners by the Government, Bond said.

Commercially-manufactured and home-made dice, along with a home - made crown-and-anchor game were entered as exhibits by Superintendent Dr. J. D. Heaslip. They had been seized by guards from the prisoners.

Guard Harry Ralston thought the guards were fortunate in not having been injured when the riot broke out. He told of one prisoner who wore mitts so his hands would not be injured when he smashed windows with his fists. Another "looked like a pirate with his shirt sleeves rolled up and breaking anything he could with a piece of lead pipe."

"If we had started to manhandle the prisoners that day there would have been bloodshed," he declared. "There were so many hot-heads among the young fellows some guard would have been killed."

HELP FOR PILOTS

Baby-Size Wings Ease Work On Controls.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP). — Baby-size wings called tabs, hooked behind the wings of big planes like air rudders, soon will ease the job of pilots.

This development of aviation was reported to the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences today by C. J. Weinzinger of the U.S. Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

As planes grow bigger, he explained, it takes more muscle for the pilot to operate some of the controls, including those which turn the wing surfaces against the impact of the air. The tabs, moving easily, start these turning motions.

Bullet Hits Axe Farmer Gets Peeved

Guelph, Jan. 29. (CP)

FARMERS in the Guelph district are threatening to close their lands to hunters because of promiscuous shooting. Cyril Morris, employee of John F. Bohn, whose farm is on the Guelph-Hespeler highway, was cutting wood in a bush, when a bullet fired by a huntsman struck his axe, he says.

SPARKING BLOWER BLAMED FOR FIRE IN COBOURG CHURCH

Inspector Absolves Chief And Town Brigade—Need More Men

HAD TOO MUCH START

COBOURG, Ont., Jan. 2.—(CP)—Furnace and flue pipes should be thoroughly inspected before a coal blower is attached, Fire Marshal W. V. Scott said at the conclusion of his inquiry yesterday into destruction by fire of Cobourg Presbyterian Church, January 3. The fire, he agreed with Fire Inspector W. L. Clairmont, was caused by sparks from a blower in the church.

Chief Dick Turpin and his men of the Cobourg fire department stand exonerated of blame for destruction of the church. It was in evidence the fire department pumper had not been connected up, but the fire marshal declared 25 pumps could not have extinguished the fire.

"Seeing and knowing things about fire as we are aware of them now, I cannot find any conceivable criticism for the fire chief or his brigade," said the marshal.

Chief Turpin testified he had first thought it was a minor fire, though it developed serious proportions later. He had had no opportunity early in the fire to connect the pumper, and had used a hydrant instead.

Shows Pressure Boosted.

W. G. Henderson, public works manager, produced records showing water pressure in the hydrants about the time the fire broke out was 70 pounds, but was boosted from 450 gallons a minute to 1,500 at a pressure of 105 pounds when his department was notified of the fire. They cut in extra pumps at the pumping station, he said.

Inspector Clairmont said the firemen did the best they could, but the flames had too great a start on the building. He believed the department should have at least 20 firemen instead of the 13 they have.

He was convinced sparks from the blower had started the fire. The blower had been shut off by the caretaker before he went home for the night, but sparks must have entered the flue, he said.

SLIGHTLY COLD

Farmer Finds Tho Overcoats Frozen Together And Cap To His Head.

LUMSDEN, Sask., Jan. 29 (CP).—It's been mighty cold hereabouts the past few days, so cold that when a farmer drove into town wrapped in two overcoats and a heavy fur cap it took him several minutes to open up. The inner coat was frozen to the outer one and the cap to his head. Lumsden is 40 miles north of Regina.

REFORM RULINGS INDICATE B.N.A. ACT OVERHAUL NEEDED

Comments On Judgments Find Provincial, Farm, Labor Heads United

BLOW TO PROGRESS

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—(CP).—Canada's constitution is destined for an overhauling if the Dominion powers heard the voices of provincial government heads. The Privy Council's rulings which held invalid Bennett government reform measures were pointed to by provincial authorities, labor and farm leaders as indicating the necessity of remodelling the British North America Act.

When the Privy Council yesterday found the majority of the reform measures were beyond powers of the Dominion Government, comment was forthcoming from government leaders which showed a decided feeling prevailing in favor of a constitutional conference.

Labor circles saw in the judgments a setback in their move towards improving the workers' conditions.

"The Privy Council opinions of Dominion social legislation will be received by the workers of Canada with widespread and deep regret," said P. M. Draper, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. "Laws on unemployment insurance, minimum wages and hours of work are even more urgently needed to-day than when the various acts were passed by parliament two years ago."

With A. R. Mosher, president of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor, Mr. Draper agreed the judgments emphasized the need for a constitutional change. He expressed the opinion, however, "laws required by conditions, and wanted by our people, ought to be possible without waiting for nine different provincial governments to act in nine different ways."

Roebuck Has Different Views

There was a different attitude than this in provincial government spheres. Attorneys General Arthur W. Roebuck of Ontario and J. B. McNair of New Brunswick expressed satisfaction the Privy Council decided the Dominion authorities had invaded Provincial jurisdiction.

New Brunswick's Attorney General favored a general conference of all interested parties and Mr. Roebuck stated Ontario was prepared to co-operate with the Dominion "to pass enabling legislation to permit a nation-wide scheme to be made effective." Mr. Roebuck had particular reference to the Unemployment and Social Insurance Act, ruled ultra vires the Dominion Government.

Comment from other Provincial Government officials:

Attorney General W. J. Major of Manitoba: "The question of constitutional revision will be brought directly to the fore. Manitoba has always been ready to co-operate along this line."

Attorney-General T. C. Davis of Saskatchewan: The judgments will undoubtedly result in amendments to the B.N.A. Act.

Premier William Aberhart of Alberta: "The Government would want to give its consideration when the official information is received. I would not care to give any snap judgment at present."

Premier Thane Campbell of Prince Edward Island: "The Privy Council seems to have upheld the decisions of the Supreme Court of

NAME GLOUCESTER IN REGENCY ACT

Duke Would Be In Line In Case Elizabeth Comes To Throne Before 18

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(CP Cable)—Provision for continuance of the royal authority despite any eventualities is contained in the "Regency Bill" now before Parliament. It will be called for second reading on Thursday.

It provides a regency would be set up in the event of the accession of a minor or the incapacity of the sovereign to act, through illness.

Under it a council of state may be formed when the sovereign leaves the United Kingdom—as for instance the forthcoming visit to India for the Imperial Durbar.

The regent—first adult in the line of succession—would be the Duke of Gloucester should his niece, the Princess Elizabeth, 10-year-old daughter of the King and Queen, succeed to the throne before she reaches the age of 18. Similarly he would be regent should the King's health fail. The bill follows the King's own request. In a message to Parliament earlier this week the King stated his father, King George V, had been seriously concerned over the possibility of his being unable to continue to exercise his functions due to ill health.

A council of state would be composed of the husband or wife of the sovereign and the four adults next in line of succession. At present those would be the Dukes of Gloucester and Kent; the Princess Royal, Countess of Harewood and Prince Arthur of Connaught.

Provision is made for a group of officials, including the speaker of the House of Commons, who would decide whether or not in the case of a serious illness the sovereign was "wholly incapacitated" within the meaning of the act.

LIQUOR AN ISSUE

Dr. Irwin Claims Political Parties Treated Temperance People With Contempt.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 29 (C.P.). —Rev. A. J. Irwin, secretary of the Ontario Temperance Federation, predicted yesterday the liquor question will be a factor in the next provincial election in addressing a pre-convention conference of Eastern Ontario temperance workers here.

Political parties, Dr. Irwin said, have treated the temperance people with contempt in the past and a determined effort would be made to change this sentiment at a provincial convention in March.

A $15,000,000 hydro - electric power plant will be built on the Yalu River between Korea and Manchukuo.

CUPID GETS A JOLT

Couple Parted For Reformatory And Jail Terms.

WINDSOR, Jan. 29—(CP).—Cupid took a hard jolt today when Magistrate W. A. Smith in county police court separated Isabel MacFarlane, 20, Vancouver, and Duncan Scott, 34, Toronto, hitch-hikers in custody here since January 14, when they walked into Amherstburg police station, 18 miles south of here, and asked for lodging.

Blonde and long-haired Isabel sobbed and held Scott's hand tightly when Magistrate Smith told her she would have to spend three months in Mercer Reformatory, Toronto. Scott was sentenced to four months in jail.

GAS CHAMBER IDEA WILL BE STUDIED LAPOINTE STATES

Bill Clarifying Railway Board's Powers Gets Second Reading

ON TELEGRAPH TOLLS

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—(CP)—House of Commons committees have not yet settled down to work but their tasks are increasing. Two important matters to be considered are the suggestion that lethal-gas chambers be substituted for the gallows in administering capital punishment and a detailed examination of the various methods under which the boundaries of electoral districts are determined.

Both these subjects were dealt with at yesterday's session. Dr. J. K. Blair (Lib. Wellington North) moved his bill to substitute lethal gas for hanging but it was shelved after brief debate when Justice Minister Lapointe offered to submit its subject matter to a special committee of the House.

A resolution moved earlier in the session by H. E. Brunelle (Lib. Champlain) provoked discussion that was a miniature reproduction of the bitter 10-day debate on the Redistribution Act of 1933. It was finally withdrawn when Mr. Lapointe promised to make a survey of the redistribution system a first subject for study by the committee on elections named the day before.

Mr. Brunelle's motion would have meant the appointment of a special House committee to arrange for amendments to the 1933 act to remedy alleged injustices. Numerous members seized the occasion to recount what they believed to be unfair and unnecessary disturbances of their electoral districts through 1933 legislation.

DIET KILLING HIM

429 Pound Cop Prefers Lumbago to Giving Up Food.

SUMMIT, N.J., Jan. 29—(C.P.).—Two pieces of toast—no more—were prescribed as breakfast to-day for the United States' "biggest cop," lumbago-stricken Patrick J. Kelly.

"I can't give up food," the 429-pound policeman groaned.

Laid low on Overlook Hospital's sturdiest bed, Kelly complained to Dr. Robert S. Milligan "this diet business hurts more than lumbago."

"You shouldn't eat so much," Milligan told the patient. "It's nothing serious now—just the result of not watching your health."

ONE BITE TOO MANY.

WHITTEMORE, Iowa (C.P.). — Among other ruins, Mrs. George Morgan found after she had extinguished a fire in her bureau drawer, was a charred match and a dead mouse.

Taking her bridal gown with her, Miss Winnie Jones, a graduate of Bangor University, England, is on her way to Shanghai, China, to wed E. Stewardson, professor of physics in Nanking University.

The prize for bridge, which was drawn for, went to Mrs. R. J. McGrath, while the high-score prize at the euchre tables was won by Mrs. C. Parker. T. J. McMurray acted as Master of Ceremonies, and, assisted by J. Condon, drew for the twenty-five pretty prizes which were given for a penny sale, and which were won by the following, some of whom were absent but sent in their tickets to claim the prizes: Mesdames McIntyre, Honey, J. Roach, Sr., J. A. LeBlanc, P. J. Burke, J. Lynch, M. Donoghue, Flynn, H. A. Owen; the Misses Nora Moher, Margaret Lynch, Beatrice Grovelle, Mary Lynch, Isabel Way, J. O'Brien, Isabel Malone, Kathleen Hickey; Messrs. P. Eano, M. J. Roche, A. V. Lillow, Wood, T. Sullivan, C. McGillen, Carney.

At the close of the games and the draw, refreshments were served, in charge of Miss Laura Hogan, president of the Alumnae, assisted by Mrs. P. LaPlante, Mrs. Barbara Hickey, Mrs. H. T. Crowley, Miss Margaret Moher, Miss Margaret Flynn and Miss Kathleen Hickey.

Those present included; Mesdames G. Lynch, J. Guiry, H. A. Owen, C. B. Young, Letellier, T. J. Best, R. J. McGrath, P. Eano, F. J. Lynch, F. J. Overend, P. Hickey, T. J. Lansfield, H. T. Hickey, W. Fashion Service

Be first to wear this new looking advanced spring two-piece costume with pleated skirt and jacket for town under your winter coat.

Or take it south! You'll fairly want to live in it. It's unrivaled for cruise wear for going ashore.

The all-round pleated skirt of bold peasant print crepe silk is belted at the waist. The buttoned-down-the-front jacket is of plain crepe. The shoulders are smartly squared. Pin inverted tucks fit it snugly through the waist. The ascot scarf matches the skirt.

Twin prints in crepe silk is another lovely idea you'll like.

A very dashing scheme is Dubonnet printed in chartreuse for the jacket with the skirt of charteuse crepe printed in Dubonnet.

Still again, you can use this pattern for a separate jacket or a separate skirt.

Style No. 3290 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 35-inch material with 1⅝ yards of 39-inch lining for jacket and 5⅝ yards of 35-inch material for skirt.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

OH would I were dead now,
Or up in my bed now,
To cover my head now,
And have a good cry. —Hood.

And this:

"No, I'll not weep:
I have full cause for weeping; but this heart
Shall break into a hundred thousand flaws
Or ere I'll weep."
—Shakespeare

Dear Friends:

Isn't it peculiar that only human beings can laugh or cry? And isn't it curious how we may go along hiding our sorrow, when all of a sudden some memory will poke its head up, and the tears sting our eyes and emotion chokes our voice.

And yet tears are like a safety valve to keep the brain from flying to pieces. Some cry easily, and so get rid of a lot of the poison of grief or sympathy, but to others it comes hard, and seems as if it would wreck their whole body when they give way to it.

Lately I have kept myself from crying because it takes such a toll of my strength, and I need all I have in this business of living, but find when I keep them back too much, I cry in my sleep, and wake up in the morning a perfect wreck.

But when the heart is crushed with sorrow, we feel as if we want to creep away into a corner and cry ourselves out, and sometimes we feel a sense of peace stealing over us afterward, and sometimes we get down into the depths of deepair, because we cannot see that our tears are helping any.

There are so many kinds of tears. The pouting kind of the person who has never grown up, the ones that are used to get the one who uses them their own way, the tears of mortification when one we love has spoken cruelly to us.

The heart-broken tears when those we care for so much are taken from us, leaving a vacant place in the home, and in our lives. The tears of vexation when we see someone headed for trouble, and all our talk is in vain.

Those we shed in sympathy for the sorrows of others, and the tears of self-pity, when we think of the troubles we have brought on ourselves, but we must shake ourselves loose from those because they pull us down so that we feel we can hardly ever get up again.

Then of course, there are the crocodile tears which are only brought on for effect, without any real feeling behind them, and we know them to be a disgusting business.

The tears of mortification when we have said or done anything at the wrong time, or in the wrong place, and we wish the ground would open up and let us drop out of sight.

The tears of old age, than which there is no sadder sight for there seems so much despair in them, and the tears mingled with laughter when a little one is trying to be brave after a fall or hurt.

And the shortest sentence in the bible: "Jesus wept." He, who had the power of life and death in His hands, He also suffered so that the tears came, making one more thing which brings Him closer to us frail mortals.

So, if your heart is full to breaking, let some of the dust of neglect, some of the hurt of the words that have been spoken to you, some of the pain caused by longing to see one who has gone before, let each and every one be washed away by the clean rain of tears, and you will find courage and strength and peace seep into your heart, and instead of blaming yourself for being weak, you will say, "thank God for tears."

Hoping that life will hold more of laughter and joy for you, so that tears will be few and far between.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 29 1937

He Must Stand Alone

When a Toronto man seventy years of age was in court charged with driving his car when drunk, part of the defence consisted of bringing a minister of gospel in to explain what a good family the man had and plead generally on his behalf.

Magistrate Jones took occasion to halt the minister before he was well under way, and also to give notice that such practice would receive little consideration in his court. In this particular case it appears to have received no consideration at all, as the magistrate ended the discussion by suggesting that the minister should not return in future on similar errand.

The magistrate is right. When a man knowingly and deliberately and stubbornly becomes drunk and then proceeds to drive his car he must take his medicine. The law says so, and when a minister enters court in such a case he is going there for the purpose of trying to defeat the carrying out of the law. There is not much to be said for the defendent in such a case who would seek to drag his minister to court to plead his cause.

Toronto's Mayor Is Right

Mayor Robbins of Toronto is taking action on behalf of the city to recover $30,000 from the fund of $500,000 for which a number of families in Toronto are now contesting under terms of the Millar will which was responsible for the very miserable stork derby going on in that city for the last ten years.

The $30,000 is made up of amounts which have been spent by the city of Toronto in providing relief and relief employment for these families. The Examiner considers the action of Mayor Robbins as correct. This paper has made a similar suggestion on several occasions. The Millar will was directly responsible for the bringing into the world of a number of children in families where there could be no provision made for their future, and this paper can see no good reason why such a freak contest should be staged under the will of any man without the proceeds of the same will being called upon to pay for the consequences. We believe it would be absurd and unreasonable to say to one family "Here is the entire amount of $500,000," and then say to the state, as represented by municipality or legislature, "You can take care of the rest."

If it appears likely Toronto will have future expenditure of any considerable amount as a result of this stork derby, then the city should consider that in making its claim. It is reasonable and just.

Changing the Gas Stations

The styles of cars have changed, and the containers from which we secure our supply of gas are also changing. Alterations are gradual, but that instrument known as an order-in-council has proclaimed that the old glass-topped container must go. The process will be gradual, but it was considered the old containers presented a fire hazard. There had been several cases where cars crashed into them, spilling the contents and causing serious fires.

So it is that the gas will in future come from modern equipment, filled with dials and indicators. Small counters visibly tell the story of the gallons being secured and the price to be paid. Watching the speed with which the number of cents and finally dollars are recorded gives a sensation that money goes rapidly.

Time was when things were more leisurely done. The car drove in and from the interior one could watch all that was going on. It was possible to see the gas at all stations; possible to watch it sink down in the glass and one had the sensation that great volume was being delivered to the vitals of his machine. Today it is changing and we are more than ever in the hands of efficiency and mechanical device.

Raising Campaign Funds

J. H. Clark, Liberal member for Windsor-Sandwich in the Ontario Legislature, says he is "sick and disgusted with the manner in which Liberals and Conservatives secure their campaign funds. Speaking in the Legislature Mr. Clark said:

"Both major political parties have been accepting money from large firms, contractors and others ever since their parties started. I am sick and disgusted with the whole business. There should be appropriations made for both parties to pay their election expenses."

In United States the securing of campaign funds is attended by publicity. If some firm, corporation or individual makes a grant of money to the funds of a political party then it must be published. In this country we do things differently. The general public does not know for certain how campaign funds are collected. We have known of political candidates who, in financing their campaigns, had been informed they would be supported in part from the central fund. Some of them have received such assistance, and others found the central fund to be nonexistant.

The members of political parties do not worry a great deal regarding the source of campaign funds. For the most part they are content if they do not have to put up the money themselves. A political campaign fund for election purposes could be raised easily enough by a small fee being paid by each member of the party, but it is not done that simple way.

So the door is open for interested parties to supply the funds, and it is known it is done that way. After an election is over those who have supplied the money for the winning side are in a position to ask for favors, and the party in power is not in a position to deny them. As things stand in this country at the moment the way is open for the collection of campaign funds wherever they are to be had, and more than one politician would be pleased to join Mr. Clark of Windsor-Sandwich and admit he was "sick and disgusted" with the business. But that state of being disgusted means nothing at all unless followed by some method which would keep corporations and interested parties from being in a position to suggest or dictate to the government after the election is over.

Was Feeling Lonely

Wilhelm of Hohenzollern reached milestone 78 in the flight of years the other day, and it was reported from Doorn in the Netherlands that he felt lonely. It is said he acted that way too. He had been in bed for several days before with the flu and the doctor said it would be best for him to remain indoors. So he did.

In Germany there was but one newspaper, formerly the strongest in the group of monarchial supporters, which made any reference to the birthday, and it was done in three lines. That was all.

We dare say Wilhelm would feel lonely because he could recall when his birthday was the occasion for rejoicing in a great nation, and when he sat at the head of a great table, surrounded by a great company. Everything connected with the occasion would conform to that word—great.

It is extremly hard for an individual to come from a position of high estate to one which is much lower. Human nature remains the same and Wilhelm at 78 will have but memories of the time when he was not at Doorn, but in state in Berlin. We can well believe there is much truth in the report that on his 78th birthday he was inclined to act as though loneliness had come to camp with him.

Blind Man Runs a Farm

Peter Robertson is 65 years of age, and he is blind. But he operates a farm of 100 acres within two miles of the village of Keene. Sight went from him twelve years ago, but it was not unexpected; that great gift—sight—had been failing previously. His wife is dead and the flu epidemic of 1918 took his son. There was a time when he employed a housekeeper, but for more than two years he has been living alone. And working alone.

Mr. Robertson makes his way over his entire 100 acres. He explains he knows every stick and stone in it. He can plant potatoes and makes the rows straight; he attends to a large truck garden; he can tell weeds from vegetables. He attends to his cattle, does the milking and carries two pails from the barn to the house and puts it through the separator, and on the way there is a gate which he opens and closes again, using his elbow and never putting the pails down. He admits he used to have trouble finding his cows if they were in bushland, but that was overcome when a neighbor brought a bell and tied to one of them. Mr. Robertson keeps house; he builds his own fires and attends to keeping the home neat. And he is blind.

His adventure—for adventure it is—provides another of those chapters which present a pleasing picture and a full meaning of the fine old word, neighbors. When he wants anything from Keene the neighbors get it as they are passing. Other neighbors call him on the phone daily to see how he is getting along; they help when it is time for seeding, and they pasture cattle on his land for which they pay. They help him with the cutting of the wood in the bush, and when Mr. Robertson's barn needed shingling he was not aware of the work being undertaken until he heard hammers driving the nails. Once more it was the neighbors who were doing the work.

In turn Mr. Robertson does his own good turns for the neighbors. He is a graduate veterinary surgeon and when there is trouble or sickness in a neighbor's barn, there he goes to assist. The outside world is shut off from him, but though he cannot see it, he goes his way. He notes the direction of the wind in the morning and that aids him in finding his way accurately to any given place; his sense of smell is a great help when it comes to detecting the difference between vegetables and weeds and the sense of touch Mr. Robertson has found to be invaluable. As to the wisdom of a blind man living alone and trying to work 100 acres of land there may be differences of opinion. His creature comforts might well be more readily attended to with help, but the unusual fact is that Mr. Robertson goes his way alone though blind. Nor does he ask for sympathy. Most of what he has to say has to do with appreciation of the kind neighbors by whom he is surrounded.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Lethbridge, Alta., hasn't had a motor fatality in two years. It takes more than good luck to set up a record like that.

When Nature goes on a rampage there is little that man can do about it save support the organizations seeking to counteract the resultant suffering.

The Privy council hasn't left much more of Mr. Bennett's famous reform legislation than the electors left of Mr. Bennett's government after the last election.

Lord Tweedsmuir intends to visit President Roosevelt after Easter and we have an idea that both Canada's Governor-General and the American president will enjoy the visit.

The Mississippi and the Ohio seem to be as hard to stop when they get going as is Attorney-General Roebuck when he begins one of his orations on Hydro affairs.

Eggs have been served at a Chinese restaurant in London that were one hundred years old. The graders would have a difficult task placing those specimens in their proper class.

Reports from Berlin say that Chancellor Hitler will become Emperor in all but name on Saturday. The world has had the impression that he has been that all along.

The Duke of Windsor has been showing his tailor how to make a ski suit. Over here the difficulty has been in getting a chance to wear ski clothes after they are made.

The siege of Madrid seems to be going on despite the fact that the floods in the United States have driven the Spanish conflict into small type on the inside pages.

An artificial lake at the Reformatory will not be completed until spring. In the meanwhile the guards will use paddles on the prisoners instead of on the pond.

The Privy Council has ruled most of the reform legislation unconstitutional, but somehow we do not expect to find Mr. King bringing in a measure to say that regardless of what the courts have decided the reform acts will remain.

Professor Piccard intends to use 2000 small balloons in his next stratosphere flight and to employ dynamite caps as safety valves. The thing sounds more like a 4th of July celebration than an aerial exploration trip.

Alexander Georgeivich Belaborodoff, said to have been the man who gave the order for the execution of Czar Nicholas and his family, has been arrested as a Red traitor. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but—

Major McLaughlin of Chicago has declared that he will collect a team composed entirely of American players to represent the Windy City in the National Hockey League. He fails to say however how long he expects it would take him to collect the outfit.

York County council turned down a motion that the Ontario government should be asked to give municipalities a share of the gasoline tax. Probably the councillors felt that it would be a sheer wast of time asking Queen's Park to come across.

Manitoba University debaters have decided that beautiful girls rate higher than brainy ones. The fact that school teachers receive only a fraction of what is paid feminine screen stars might be quoted to show that the student decision is shared by others.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I walk on the slippery street, I find it hard to keep my feet, I tumble and I slide; at times when I have reached my home, I feel as though I'd cracked a bone, with lumps upon my hide.

¶ I grab at trees as best I can, and being a cautious sort of man, I look where I shall land; wild hope comes bubbling up in me, when I get anchored at a tree, then spy a little sand.

¶ I walk on lawns so I won't slip, and on the fences take a grip, my time is very slow; and when the whistle blows at one, I try my best a little run, there's two more blocks to go.

¶ Wee Angus hastens home from school, he has no time to waste or fool, he gets his skates and stick; his hockey team plays on the road, defying every traffic code, he says the ice is slick.

¶ He skates down to the corner store, takes just two minutes, never more, he skates out in the yard; and he'll go errands here and there, for distance he don't seem to care, and says it isn't hard.

¶ When I complain about the street, and say I can't stand on my feet, and chant my hymn of hate; Wee Angus speaks of all the fun, he has when schooling hours are done—and says he thinks it's great.

Debating Costs Of New Building

(From Parliamentary Debate)

Mr. WALSH: What building is to be erected at Bedford?

Mr. CARDIN: A public building for postal purposes.

Mr. WALSH: Have they not a post office there at the present time? Bedford is a small place.

Mr. CARDIN: They have a post office, but no public building. I am informed that the postal service is being carried on in a rented building.

Mr. LENNARD: What building is to be erected at Ste. Anne de Beaupre?

Mr. FINN: A shrine.

Mr. LENNARD: I believe that has already been erected.

Mr. CARDIN: It is another post office.

Mr. FINN: It is not large enough.

Mr. LENNARD: What is the population of Ste. Anne de Beaupre?

Sir EUGENE FISET: It depends on the time of the year.

Mr. CARDIN: The population is 1,900.

Mr. LENNARD: That seems a heavy expenditure for a post office in a village of only 1,900 people.

Mr. CARDIN: In that locality, due to the thousands of visitors, the population increases during the summer.

Mr. SPENCE: That lasts only a couple of months.

Mr. CARDIN: More than that; it lasts nearly all summer.

Mr. SPENCE: What is the population of Bedford?

Mr. CARDIN: In 1934 it was 1,630.

Mr. SPENCE: You ought to be able to build five post offices there with $27,000.

◇ ◇ ◇

Just One Caretaker

Mr. CARDIN: The revenue at Ste. Anne de Beaupre for 1934-35 was $7,687, and at Bedford for the same year $5,093.

Mr. HEAPS: What will be the annual maintainance cost for the Bedford building after it is erected?

Mr. CARDIN: Frankly, I cannot tell.

Mr. SPENCE: How many caretakers are there in it?

Mr. CARDIN: Just one.

Mr. SPENCE: There cannot be many people out of jobs there.

Mr. LOCKHART: Have not these districts like Bedford and Ste. Anne de Beaupre rural mail delivery? It is only a matter of distribution from a centre, is it not?

Mr. CARDIN: There is rural mail in those sections of Quebec, but the mail has to be taken care of in the buildings at Ste. Anne de Beaupre and Bedford before it is distributed.

Mr. LOCKHART: It is only the immediate residents who have to come to the post office for their mail.

Mr. CARDIN: Yes.

Mr. LOCKHART: And the department is spending $27,000 to erect a building for a post office with a revenue of $5,000?

Mr. CARDIN: Yes.

◇ ◇ ◇

Gold Trimmings!

Mr. LENNARD: A great many of these items are for public buildings. Can the minister assure me that all the fittings indicated in the item are of Canadian manufacture?

Mr. CARDIN: Yes.

Mr. LENNARD: The gold fittings?

Mr. CARDIN: Yes.

◇ ◇ ◇

"I Am Through"

The CHAIRMAN: Order: I do not want to interrupt the hon. member for Temiscouata (Mr. Pouliot), but item 117 stands.

Mr POULIOT: Yes, but it has not been decided yet.

The CHAIRMAN: Oh, yes.

Mr. POULIOT: I spoke before it was decided that it stood. By the way, I am through.

THE REAL OWNERS.

(Brantford Expositor)

THIS newspaper has protested time and again in recent years against making the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission the adjunct of any political party. In the early days of its administration, when Sir Adam Beck was at its head, it was considered to be an enterprise owned and operated solely by the municipalities of the Province, the Provincial Government merely having the right to supervise its affairs because it was the guarantor of its bonds. Little by little, however, in recent Provincial administrations the authority of the Commission has been disregarded, and announcements of policy have been made as though Hydro were a department of the Provincial Government.

This policy has been a complete mistake, and it has resulted in the present rather disgraceful controversy between the Government and the Quebec power companies. Would it not be a good idea for the municipalities who own the system to insist upon their rights in the matter? The sooner this is done the better it will be for all concerned. The enterprise was never intended to become the football of politicians, to be operated for the advantage of the party that happens to be in power. Political interference has been a high price to pay for governmental guarantee of Hydro bonds. The municipalities are just as capable of operating the system efficiently and economically as is the Provincial Government and the citizens of Ontario will do well in every possible way to protest against the present regrettable meddling in its affairs.

FOLLOW THE STREAM.

(Halifax Chronicle)

A LETTER in another column from one of the oldest, if not the oldest, guides in the province, an octogenarian as spry on his feet today as many a man in his thirties, calls attention to a simple practical method by which the man lost in the woods may find his way out. Instead of following a blind "hunch" which all too often results in cutting circles in the woods and never gets a lost man anywhere, when he comes to a stream. The stream runs to the river and the river to the sea, and following the babbling brook in its downward course, the lost man must inevitably be brought out of the woods to the sea shore and civilization. It may take a little time, but far better to follow a sure thing and take the necessary time, than follow a "hunch" which in nine cases out of ten results in nothing but exhaustion and bewilderment.

The beauty of this rule lies in its simplicity. Anyone can follow it. And if it were followed we would escape the cases of severe suffering and sometimes death which occur every now and again. It might be worth the while of our public school teachers to take this up with the school children and teach them, when lost, to follow the stream.

They're Not Different People.

From the Montreal Star.)

ONE thing that must forcibly strike the non-political reader in studying such a discussion as they had in Parliament about modernizing the B.N.A. Act is the fashion our public men have of talking about the Provinces and the Dominion as if these two expressions covered entirely different and separate peoples. One would think that there was one set of Canadians who live in the Provinces and a wholly different set of Canadians who live in the Dominion.

But, of couse, precisely the same Canadians live in the Provinces as live in the Dominion. They are the same people but they hire two different sets of public servants. They hire Dominion representatives and they hire Provincial representatives. But the "bosses" are identical.

What does any ordinary "boss" do when he finds that the job he has given to one employee could be better done by another employee? He simply and swiftly changes his instructions. He shifts the job to the employee who can do it best. It does not make any difference to him who does it, so long as it is done well. He pays both employees, and he profits by the performance of the task, no matter which of them performs it.

When the representatives of the Provinces clash with the representatives of the Dominion over which of them should have the power to do certain things for their common employer—the Canadian people—who is concerned in the outcome? Not the people—for they will presumably reap the benefits of the service, no matter who does it. What is all the shooting about, then? Who cares who does it?

Yes, gentle reader, you have guessed it the first time. The people who care and care passionately, and are ready to go to the mat over it, are THE POLITICIANS. They are the boys to whom it matters. And it matters to them as a rule according to the sphere in which they have been chosen to serve the people. The same man may develop two opinions—one when he was a Provincial Minister and another when he was a Dominion Minister.

Setting The Tax Rate.

(From the Chatham News.)

USUALLY city councils wait until they have made up their budget of expenditures and estimated receipts before they strike the tax rate. The council of Brantford has reversed the procedure this year, and assurance is given that the tax rate will not exceed 43½ mills. The reason for this is that in Brantford any rate higher than this figure would not be a practicable levy, and so the council will set the rate and then "cut their suit according to their cloth."

There is much to be said in favor of such a plan. It may mean that in Brantford some desirable services will have to be impaired, but the council apparently believes that if the people cannot afford certain things, they will have to do without them.

In Chatham, fortunately, we do not have to anticipate anything like a 43½ mill rate. Last year the rate was 35 mills, and this year—well, some people are looking for a reduction while there are rumors in municipal circles that despite the fact that the city will be relieved of expenditures for Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances, creating considerable saving, there are other items of extraordinary outlays which will off-set that reduction to a certain extent at least. There is talk of building and maintaining a public Comfort Station, and there are certain grants which are made year by year which are considered unalterable.

But there is one thing which the council should bear constantly in mind, and that is the inability of many property owners to pay the taxes now levied against them. Any relief in taxation which is possible would be welcome—and highly justified.

We may not have reached the stage where we are compelled to set a certain tax rate, and live within it—but the responsibility still rests upon the council to keep expenditures down to the lowest possible minimum, to provide the maximum amount of relief to the taxpayers.

Canada's Goods Favored.

(From the Brantford Expositor.)

IN A recent issue The Expositor referred to the tremendous success that has accompanied the "Canada Calling" campaign undertaken by the Federal Government to popularize Canadian products in Britain. The market has been practically doubled by this aggressive scheme of advertising. The best feature of it was that it was a success because of the goodwill which existed among the British people for Canada. This was created to some degree by the Dunning budget, and then to a still greated extent by the willingness of the Federal Government to remove the grievances which British exporters had against the trade pact with the Dominion.

Another very substantial proof of the popularity of Canada's products in Britain was given just recently by Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Federal Deputy Minister of Agriculture, to the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association which held its convention in Hamilton. He pointed out that there had been a decided change in the attitude of the Mother Country toward Canadian products, which he declared were exceedingly popular with the British people, there having been few complaints received regarding quality and packing. That, of couree, was exceedingly gratifying to fruit exporters, because undoubtedly when Ontario fruits are carefully graded and packed according to the standards that prevail in Britain they are equal to the finest that can be had. This result has come about very largely because of the educational campaigns that have been conducted to promote this end. As a result Canadian exporters understand more fully the requirements of the British market and they have applied themselves diligently to satisfy these demands as far as possible.

The feeling toward Canadian products at the present time is such that British importers are co-operating very cheerfully with Canadian producers. Consumers have learned to appreciate the fine quality, not only of Canadian fruits but of dairy products and, consequently, the demand is steadily increasing. Official figures recently issued by the Bureau of Statistics stated that during the nine months which ended December 31 the value of Canada's exports to the United Kingdom totalled $324,127,000, an advance of 31.8 per cent over the corresponding period of 1935.

This willingness on the part of the British people to purchase Canadian products deserves reciprocation on the part of Canadians as far as this is possible without injuring Canadian industries and putting Canadian workers out of employment. The present feeling in Britain indicates that the time is opportune to capitalize this spirit of goodwill to the greatest possible extent in the revised trade treaty that is shortly to be concluded. It may be a trite saying that trade is exchange of goods, but it is absolutely true. No commercial agreement can be permanently successful that does not bring a fair advantage to both parties to the contract.

THOSE OBSTACLES.

(Windsor Star)

ACCORDING to Mr. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, constitutional obstacles prevent complete elimination of duplication of services provided by his department and the Provincial Departments of Agriculture.

If this be the case, why not set out to remove the constitutional obstacles? There is no need, obviously, for the operation of Provincial Departments of Agriculture, when so much money is being spent for the maintenance of a similar organization at Ottawa. The latter could handle the whole thing satisfactorily and at a great annual saving.

To The Editor

MODERNISM AND THE SCHOOLS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Modernism rejects the supernatural and the promise of a future life and throws mankind back upon itself. This is as was observed at the interview with the government, at the bottom of the whole trouble regarding the public school readers. Supernaturalism or a reference to an inspired Bible and a supernatural God is excluded from the readers. No pupil would ever learn that the Bible and its stories are any more than any other story book. "It is against this" as both the Rev. S. Inkster and Canon Armstrong declared that the present agitation represented by the deputation is directed. The whole tone of these readers must be recast if we are to remain a Christian people.

VALUE OF MILK.

(George W. Gray, in January Harper's)

MILK is a fluid of exceeding complexity. It embodies proteins, carbohydrates, fats, all the known vitamins, and several mineral elements.

The three longevity factors are absent from, or very meagerly present, in cereals and many other foods. But they are all present in milk. The vitamins, and to a lesser extent the calcium, are present in fresh fruits and vegetables. Dr. Henry C. Sherman, therefore, advises those who aspire to long life to make these three foods important members of their daily diet. As a practical formula for insuring ample portions of the longevity factors, he suggests that at least one-fifth of the food budget be spent on milk and cream, and not less than one-fifth on fresh fruits and green vegetables.

This leaves three-fifths for meat, fish, bread, butter, eggs, tea, coffee, and condiments, including all sweets.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Butcher cattle were generally 25 cents higher during dealings on Montreal livestock markets this week, while calves also rose 25 cents at the opening, but dropped the advance under heavy trading. Lamb section strengthened, with hog division holding steady and unchanged.

Receipts.—Cattle, 1,071; calves, 1,420; sheep and lambs, 551; hogs, 5,119.

In addition, 52 cattle and 1,769 hogs were received on direct consignment to Montreal, while 140 cattle and six calves were handled on through billing to Canadian points.

Good steers ranged from $6.25 to $7, with mediums from $5.25 to $6 and the bulk of common steers at $4 to $5. Butcher cows went from $2.50 to $4.50, while mediums made from $3 to $3.75, with common kinds around $2 50 and canners and cutters from $1.75 to $2.25. Good heifers made $5, with mediums around $4.25 to $4.50 and common kinds down to $3. Bologna bulls sold from $3 to $3.75, while heavies made from $3.75 to $4, with good butcher bulls at $4.25 to $4.50.

Grass calves ranged from $4 to $6.50, with other kinds from $5 to $10, while bulk of vealers sold around $9.

Bucks on lamb section, sold from $7 to $8, while good ewes and wethers made $9 to $9.50, with sheep from $3.50 to $5.

Bacon hogs, fed and watered, sold from $8.50 to $8.75, with selects at the usual $1 premium. Butchers and heavies were cut 50 cents a cwt. while extra heavies and lights were cut $1 a cwt. Sows made from $6 to $6.75.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Practically no change appeared in prices on Montreal open produce markets yesterday.

Graded egg shipments in carlots or less were quoted at 24c to 24½c a dozen for grade A-large, 22 to 22½c for A-medium, and 20c for A-pullets. Receipts: 1,188 cases.

Butter was quoted at 25½c to 25¾c per pound for carlots or less of No. 1, while lots to retailers were 27c for solids and 27½c for prints. Receipts: 963 boxes.

Cheese was quoted at 13c to 13¼c for Ontarios, while Quebecs were unquoted. Receipts 26 boxes.

Potatoes.—N.B. Mountains, 80's, $1.65; Quebec Mountains, 80's, $1.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 29. — Prospects of exceptionally heavy Argentine wheat shipments again this week sent futures prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to lowest levels since December 12. The close was off 1⅛ to ⅛ cent.

Export sales of 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat made on the break lifted values only fractionally from the session's low marks. Operations here inactive.

Forecasts Argentina's clearances this week would total 7,715,000 bushels, compared to 6,695,000 last week, induced selling that found support lacking. Black Sea shipments this week were 496,000 bushels against 976,000 last week.

Accelerating Winnipeg's recession were sharp setbacks in other grain markets. Liverpool was off 2d, and declines of more than a cent were boarded at Buenos Aires. Chicago was off nearly as much. Minneapolis was weak.

"I have no personal complaints regarding toilet supplies. It is a sore spot with some of them and the mob-psychology has affected them. But after all, we are in jail."

"Very sensible point of view," said Gillanders.

"There have been complaints about the egg mixture in the morning, a sort of omelette. Others complained about nothing—seemed to go around with a chip on their shoulder."

Coronation Concert At Campbellford Attracts Near Capacity Audience

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 29.—The Coronation Concert, sponsored by Miss Hilda Bonnycastle and held in the Parish Hall under the auspices of Christ Church was attended by a crowd which nearly filled the hall to capacity. Opening with a pageant depicting the coronation of King George VI a varied program which included some of the best talent of the town, followed. The "King" and "Queen" stood in tableau with their pages and costume while the opening chords of 25 girls trained for the occasion under the efficient direction of Mr. R. T. Cowell, sang the National Anthem.

Rev. T. H. Floyd acted as chairman for the balance of the program at the conclusion of which he expressed his thanks to the many who had contributed their time and talent in making the evening a success.

The progrm which followed included: violin and piano solo by Phyllis and Bruce Elmhirst; piano solo, Barbara Stevens; reading, Donald Lloyd; vocal duet, W. Henson and G. Lucy; vocal solo, Marie Crosson; harmonica and piano duet, Jack Cassan; quartet, W. Henson, J. M. Bygott, Dr. H. O. Richardson, accompanied by Albert Hazel; piano solo, Patricia Ironside; reading, Vera Wood; dance (Highland Fling) Pauline Cassan and Melba Ferguson; piano solo, Donald Bennett; vocal solo, Herb Leonard; violin and piano, Raymond Wragg and Donald Bennett; vocal solo, Mrs. A. Watson; vocal solo, Raymond Wragg; piano duet, Lloyd and Ross Richardson; vocal solo, Geo. Lucy; guitar and piano duet, Helen and Ray Young; reading, Lillian Hay; vocal solo, R. C. Ramsden; tap dance, Ruth Floyd; vocal solo, Hilda Bonnycastle.

Canada. Under the circumstances there seems little to say."

Premier Angus Macdonald of Nova Scotia: "It was desirable that these questions should be settled by the highest court in the Empire."

Although no official comment was coming from Dominion Government heads, political circles in the Capital considered the judgments first definite interpretation of the limitation of the Federal administration's power to give effect to international treaties. According to the rulings the Dominion could enter into international treaties, but their performance was up to the Provinces as such treaties affected them.

Positions to Be Ended.

Premier Mackenzie King announced in the House of Commons on learning of the Privy Council decisions that positions of members of the Employment and Social Insurance Commission would be abolished since the social reform legislation was declared ultra vires.

Attorney General Davis of Saskatchewan referred to the finding that the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangment Act was ruled valid and declared: "It is now the duty of the Dominion Government to provide facilities necessary to make available to our people the provisions of this act for debt adjustment."

The Privy Council's judgments had been anticipated by some in the face of the Supreme Court of Canada ruling the Natural Products' Marketing Act invalid.

Hon. K. C. MacDonald, minister of agriculture for British Columbia, explained his province's five marketing schemes would continue to operate because the Legislature had passed its own act after the Supreme Court judgments.

Walter Atkin, secretary of the Ontario Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, said the Burley Tobacco Marketing Board, which operated under the Dominion Natural Products Marketing Act, became inoperative as soon as the Supreme Court rulings appeared. The tobacco growers set up their own organization which will continue to operate and which is on a voluntary basis.

Ontario cheese makers also were prepared, according to Harley Mayberry, president of the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association. Members of the association conferred with Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario minister of agriculture, some time ago and a bill is practically drafted and ready for submission to the Attorney General.

"We are merely seeking to regulate the initial sale within the province and I think the Provincial Government has all the powers needed for that," he added.

FRACTURES ANKLE WHILE COASTING

14-Year-Old Bancroft Boy Is Victim Of Painful Accident

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Jan. 29.—Howard Vance, fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs Bob Vance of Bancroft, met with a serious accident while sleigh-riding in the village on Monday evening, when he fractured his ankle. While his young companion, Grant McCaw, was gone for aid, Howard attracted the attention of Mr. George Barker, who took the boy to his home. An X-ray at the office of Dr. O. W. Anderson showed the fracture of Howard's ankle. His many friends and schoolmates wish Howard a speedy recovery.

Following the Barry's Bay-Bancroft hockey match on Wednesday evening, a dance was held in the community hall, with a very large crowd in attendance. Music was supplied by Troubadors orchestra.

Miss Gladys Ivatt spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hope and family.

A cottage meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Curtis on Thursday night.

The Examiner BULLETIN BOARD

As a result of the Privy Council decision that the Bennett Reform Acts are ultra vires, Tom Moore and N. R. Beardet, members of the Employment and Social Insurance Commission have lost their jobs.

The Ontario Legislature will recess to-day until February 16, by which time it is expected Premier Hepburn will be back on the job.

Robert Taylor, motion picture star, was taken ill with influenza on a train en route to Washington, where he was to have attended the birthday ball.

At Asbestos, Que., 500 strikers ordered the departure from the town of C. H. Shoemaker, plant manager of the Canadian Johns-Manville Company.

Hospital For North

An hospital is to be built at Keg River, Alta., 375 miles northwest of Edmonton, to avoid the necessity of moving ill persons to Peace River or Fort Vermilion.

Toronto firemen were called to extricate a three-year-old boy who had fallen into a cold air vent in his home.

Twenty-three vessels, most of them small craft, sank off the Portuguese coast yesterday after one of the wildest gales in recent years.

Halifax families were driven into the street when fire of unknown origin swept through a double residence, doing $10,000 worth of damage.

Dr. Locke Dead

Dr. George A. Locke, chief librarian of Toronto and a past president of the American Library Association, died yesterday in Toronto, following a month's illness.

Provincial debts in Canada have been increasing at a greater rate than revenues in the period from 1925 to 1935, according to a statement issued by the Bank of Canada.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec announces his government is ready to act with other provinces to stabilize Canadian pulp and paper industry.

The Tennessee Senate has passed a bill making it a misdemeanor for a newspaper to publish "any untruth against an individual on its editorial page.

Killed at Crossing

When the Stratford-Goderich diesel-engined electric train crashed into a truck on the outskirts of Goderich, Edward Powell was killed and Frank Sproat critically injured.

Another 200 new Canadians were naturalized at Toronto yesterday. Most of them were young and the majority had come from Poland.

When a kettle of tar took fire, Vernon Carstead, a Toronto roofer, was burned about the face.

It is expected that civic employees in Toronto will have their salaries and wages reduced on a graded scale again this year.

Railway Man Killed

One railway man was killed and another injured when two Canadian National switching engines collided in the yards at Garneau Junction, Quebec.

Four Preston store owners, who pleaded guilty to operating slot machines, were fined $100 each.

At the inquest into the death of the victims of the Florida bus accident at Coral Gables yesterday, a witness swore the bus was travelling at 65 or 70 miles an hour just before the accident.

T. L. Church, Toronto Conservative member, has filed eight questions in Parliament dealing with the importation of Welsh and Russian coal.

Editor Is Fined

Charles Gautier, editor of Le Droit, Ottawa, was fined $100 and costs yesterday for contempt of court.

The United States House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee has approved a bill extending for three years the President's authority to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements.

Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulker stated yesterday that there is no possibility of any health insurance scheme being introduced at this session of the Legislature.

The Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross sent a cheque for $1,200 to the American body yesterday to aid flood sufferers.

Manchukuo will have to borrow practically all of the $450,000,000 needed for its five-year development plan.

Prosecuted Radek

Gen. Vishinsky, Soviet attorney-general, who has been the recipient of several death threats warning him the trial of 17 Russians on charges of plotting the overthrow of the government, would be his last. Vishinsky is leading the prosecution of the high officials, including Karl Radek now on trial.

WORST IS PAST IN OHIO VALLEY

the flood crest in the Mississippi would be considerably under first expectations, Lieut.-Colonel Eugene Reybold, directing operations at Memphis went ahead with plans to protect the levees against a flood of water the equivalent of 62 feet on the Cairo gauge.

200,000 To Go On Relief

A Herculean task was involved in restoring the towns along the Ohio waterfront from Pittsburgh to Cairo and government agencies developed a broad rehabilitation program with provisions for placing abut 200,000 persons on relief rolls.

Louisville officials stood on the estimate of 200 dead made four days ago as the Kentucky metropolis struggled with war-time fervor to care for thousands of the 230,000 persons driven from their homes.

Across the river, Jeffersonville, Ind., its 12,000 inhabitants reduced to 300, sent word it was "down but not out." The 300 survived the flood in a barricaded factory on the river front.

An alarming reduction in Cincinnati's water supply caused the daily water ration to be cut in half as the city's disaster council made plans to have 10,000 W.P.A. workers start a cleanup.

After surveying the damage wrought by the flood, Governor Martin L. Davey of Ohio proposed a conference between governors of the "flood states" and the federal government to discuss a long range flood control program.

He said the state could not possibly raise enough funds to meet the needs for rehabilitation.

At Huntington, W.Va., the police force was augmented by American Legion volunteers to aid law enforcement after one man was killed by thieves seeking valuables in the flooded area.

In the south, Memphis and other "cities of mercy" perched above the reach of flood waters, opened their arms to 160,000 homeless and physicians redoubled their efforts to fight sickness. One out of every 10 refugees suffered from pneumonia or influenza.

A score of minor villages in the Mississippi Valley basin are under water along a 200-mile stretch between Cairo and Memphis.

GAS CHAMBER IDEA WILL BE STUDIED LAPOINTE STATES

(Lib., Quebec-Montmorency), designed to clarify the powers of the board of railway commissioners regarding telegraph and telephone tolls, was given second reading and referred without debate to the committee on railways and telegraphs.

Shortly before adjournment the House resumed debate on the motion of James S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, dealing with Canada's foreign policy which he said should conform to these principles:

That in the event of war Canada should remain strictly neutral, regardless of who the belligerents may be, that at no time should Canadian citizens be permitted to make profits out of supplying war materials, and that Canada should make every effort to discover and remove the causes of international friction and social injustice.

The debate was in progress when the House adjourned.

Today the House will consider Transport Minister Howe's resolution calling for legislation to revise the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways, to set up a securities trust corporation to preserve the priority rights of the Dominion, and generally for revision of the accounting set-up of the Canadian National Railways system.

JOHN THOMPSON IS APPOINTED TO SERGEANT

Promoted To Position Left Vacant By Death Of Arthur Thomas

CONSTABLE NAMED

John A. Rogers Is Appointed As Constable Of Police Force

John A. Rogers, a grandson of the late R. B. Rogers who drew up the plans and supervised construction of the world-famous Lift Locks here, was on Thursday afternoon appointed as constable on Peterborough city police force

He fills the vacancy caused by the death last Fall of Sergeant Arthur Thomas, while Acting-Sergeant John Thompson popularly regarded as one of the most conscientious officers on the force has been promoted to the rank of sergeant Both appointments date from the 1st of February.

Twenty-four years of age and described by Dr. G. Murray Fraser, medical officer of health, who examined applicants as to their physical condition, as being in first class health, Rogers tips the scales at 185 pounds stripped and stands six feet in his socks.

Is Married Man

Born at Frankford he is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Rogers of 537 King street. For the past eighteen months he has been associated in business with his father at The Ollateria on Simcoe street. Prior to that time he was employed with the firm of Proctor and Gamble at Hamilton. He is married and is the father of a five weeks old son.

The successful applicant was one of seven likely-looking young men chosen by the Board of Police Commissioners for final selection from among over a hundred applicants for the vacancy. His appointment was made on motion of Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., seconded by Mayor George A. Macdonald.

These two Commissioners expressed themselves as being strongly in favor of the appointment being given to a local man, though an applicant from Woodstock with former police experience to his credit was given fullest consideration by the Board.

Addressing Rogers following his appointment His Honor Judge Sheldon I. Smoke, as chairman of the Commission, expressed the hope that his conduct would always be such as to reflect highest credit on the police force and the Commission.

He instructed the appointee he would be required to take the oath of office as constable before Magistrate Langley and report for duty on Monday next to the chief of police, at a commencing salary of $1,100 per annum.

Thanking the members of the Commission for the confidence they had seen fit to place in him, Rogers promised he would always strive to justify that faith and be efficient in the discharge of his duties.

"Your conduct and service will speak for you," Mayor Macdonald remarked.

The six unsuccessful men were thanked by the Commission for their attendance and were told the fact they had been selected from among such a heavy list of applications for interviews, was proof of their high qualifications.

The applicant from Woodstock and another one from Campbellford were allowed their expenses by the Commission.

Thompson Promoted

Bringing forward the question of Acting-Sergeant Thompson's promotion which he moved, Magistrate Langley declared, "I have always believed him to be a tremendously straightforward and clean-cut sort of a chap in every way. I have great pleasure in recommending that this Commission elevate him to the rank of sergeant to take effect on February 1st." Mayor Macdonald seconded and the motion was declared carried by the chairman.

Called before the Board, Thompson was told by the chairman, "This Board has approved of your promotion as sergeant. Your conduct, ability and service during sixteen years on the force have been excellent, and I have no hesitation in congratulating you on your promotion and trust that you will continue in the same satisfactory manner."

"We all congratulate you," Magistrate Langley concurred endorsing the remarks of Judge Smoke. "Keep up the same good work," Mayor Macdonald encouraged as the officer left the meeting after tendering his thanks.

NOBLE RESPONSE IS BEING MADE

Contributions To The U. S. Flood Fund Are Pouring Into Headquarters

Contributions to the fund for the relief of distress in the flood areas of the Ohio Valley, sponsored by Peterborough Kiwanis Club, are pouring in to the central headquarters of the committee and through the various other collection agencies throughout the city, it is reported.

It was reported by the committee to-day that at the plant of the Western Clock Company the sum of $193.40 was donated to the fund by the employees there. The office staff and outside representatives of The Prudential Life Insurance Company here, raised $20 for the fund besides contributing four cases of canned goods, while other office staffs and factory employees are making collections with the same spirit of sacrifice and enthusiasm.

Almost without exception the children of the city were on their way to school this morning with donations of canned goods, and it is anticipated by the committee that the donations received through this agency will be particularly gratifying.

Others who wish to make their contributions are asked to do so as early as possible at any one of the many depots throughout the city or direct to the garage of Peterborough Bus Lines which is the clearing house for all donations.

It is hoped by the committee to despatch the freight car load of vegetables, canned goods, new clothing and blankets and medical supplies to the Kiwanis Club at Cincinnati for the relief of distress in that area, on Sunday afternoon. The car is being sent through by the railway companies concerned freight free, while through arrangements with Canadian and United States Government authorities, through the Canadian and American Red Cross Societies, the gift from Peterborough will cross the border duty free.

CHIEF NEWHALL IS TAKEN TO TASK BY JUDGE SMOKE

Declares He Made No Criticism Of Alderman Stocker To Examiner

CONFIDENCE IN CHIEF

When he was criticized by His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke, as chairman of the Board of Police Commissioners for a statement made to the press in which he offered criticism of a member of the council, Chief Constable Samuel Newhall on Thursday afternoon demanded to know if he had the confidence of the Commission. "If not, I can settle the matter in five minutes," he declared, leaving the Commissioners to guess at the real significance of his words.

He argued that he was not responsible for what appeared in The Examiner, but promised, "The press will get no more interviews from me."

Remarking on a report which appeared in The Examiner and a Toronto evening newspaper on January 14 last, His Honor told the Chief he had gone beyond all bounds in making such comment.

The chief was quoted in the newspapers referred to as stating: "Apparently Alderman Stocker does not know what he is talking about," in replying to a statement by Alderman Stocker in council that regular police beats are limited strictly by Charlotte and Brock streets.

The article complained of went on to quote the chief as saying: "The beats extend far south of Charlotte and far north of Brock and are worked day and night. The men are visited at regular intervals by the sergeant who works the beats in opposite directions to which men are travelling. Rebutting earlier criticism heard in council suggesting that sergeants are not necessary on the police force, Chief Newhall declared: The sergeants work harder than any of the constables."

Offers Denial

Chief Newhall who emphatically denied having given such an interview to the press, exclaimed: "I'm not responsible for what goes in The Examiner. I made no such statement. I defy anyone to say I did. Certainly you take my word for it."

"I do not have to take your word. You are an employee of this Commission and you are asked for an explanation. The paper said you gave them a statement," Judge Smoke asserted.

"I never did," the Chief retorted.

Magistrate Langley interjected the remark, "I move that this Commission get down to business."

"Do I enjoy the confidence of this Commission," the Chief insisted. "If not, I can settle it in five minutes."

Mayor Macdonald: "I have every confidence in the Chief and have received every co-operation from him."

"Every fellow has the right to plead guilty or not guilty to a charge. I do not even know what the charge is. I wish you would write it down and I can soon disprove it," the Chief said.

He went on to complain that the previous evening when the Judge and Mayor were considering the applications for the vacancy on the police force, he had been requested to leave the meeting. "That is why I ask the confidence of this Commission now."

"You were asked to go through the applications last evening and to recommend twenty names. Then I asked you to name six men. You expressed a high regard for certain men," the chairman reminded him.

"Yes. And I do yet," the Chief acknowledged.

The Chairman's View

"The point is," the Judge proceeded, "that we are a Commission and you are not a member of that Commission. That is the way I look at it."

"Well. It was very trying to be asked to withdraw from the meeting. Another thing that make me feel very hurt is a statement you made, Your Honor, that prior to your coming here I ran the Police Commission," Chief Newhall explained.

"I said I had heard it," Judge Smoke corrected.

"It was very far-fetched and should not have been said by a man in your position," the Chief of Police retorted.

Judge: "That is enough. Do not speak to me like that again."

The Chief at this point assured the chairman of the Commission he held him in high personal regard and had not intended to be personal or discourteous.

Remarking on the care with which applicants for the vacancy were selected, the Mayor interjected the remark that he did not believe any man the Chief had recommended had been overlooked.

"I am not complaining about that. I think you have selected a fine man," the Chief agreed.

Given Good Co-operation

Mayor: "I only speak of the Commission from the time I was first appointed to it a year ago. But I can state that during the whole of that time I have had nothing but the finest co-operation from the Chief."

"So far as co-operation goes, I have had good co-operation from him, too," Judge Smoke declared.

Magistrate Langley remarked he had never thought that the Chief was in any way officious. "I feel the Chief is an exceptionally good police officer. He has his own opinion on every subject."

Bringing the discussion to a conclusion the Chief remarked it was the first time in his experience he had ever been criticized by the Police Commission. He was sorry the incident had happened, but he promised, "I assure you the press will get no more interviews from me."

At the annual congregational meeting of Grace United Church, Napanee, the pastor, Rev. R. T. Richards, B.A., B.D., was presented with a cheque for $100, as an expression of appreciation by the congregation. He was unanimously invited to remain as minister of the church for the coming year, and accepted. Mr. Richards is a former minister of Mark Street Church, Peterborough.

THE ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS.

The announcement a short time ago that only one day would be devoted to the High School entrance examinations was evidently in error, for the official timetable issued by the Ontario Department of Education shows that the examinations will be conducted over a three-day period as usual. The examinations will commence on Friday, June 25, with English grammar and writing in the morning and English composition in the afternoon. On Monday, June 28, there will be English literature in the morning and geography and spelling in the afternoon, while Tuesday's tests call for arithmetic in the morning and history after dinner.

For Saturday January 30

THIS DAY'S lunar aspects point to delays, impediments and difficult situations. Perseverance and diligence may save the day, however, for there are some fortuitous situations to assist in breaking down obstructions. Active social conditions are foreseen.

Those whose birthday it is may have to cope with certain difficult situations or stubborn obstacles during the year. If these are met with sound judgment, determination and persistency, these crystallizations may melt away and make way for substantial progress. Friendly or domestic encouragement may prove a factor in making changes, and safeguard employment.

A child born on this day may be studious, profound, gentle and gracious, as well as culturally inclined, although sensitive and affectionate. It should be popular and happy.

GEORGE ST. CHURCH IS FREE OF DEBT

More Than 2,000 People Are Under Pastoral Care Of Minister

The first year in George Street United Church's second century of existence was one of further progress and achievement according to reports received at the annual meeting of the church body this week. A financial statement by the treasurer revealed the church to be entirely free of debt for the first time in history.

Rev. M. C. Parr, pastor, occupied the chair and urged the continued loyal support of all in the church to ensure the future of the historic institution. In 700 families, more than 2,000 persons were under the pastoral care in 1936, he said. During the year, 1,387 calls were made by the pastor. Increased attendances at services was reported.

Dr. N. D. Buchanan, E. L. Sackville and C. H. Saunders were re-appointed to the Board of Stewards. W. P. Hetherington, A. Mowat, C. S. Thompson, H. Snelgrove, Cecil Buck and John Henshaw were re-appointed to the Board of Sessions. Other appointments were: B. W. Manning, trustee board; Dr. H. M. Yelland, Nicholls Hospital Board; A. F. Hagerman, William Hall, trust fund; Mrs. B. Shortly, Anson House board; W. W. Brown and Walter Burns, Bible Society and T. Pratt and Mr. Hetherington, auditors.

Among receipts indicated in the financial report tendered by Treasurer, H. G. Walker were: Local church account, $7,267.13; missionary and maintenance fund, $3,010.84; H. C. Stabler trust fund, $7,427.07; special centennial account, $5,269.36.

TORONTO YOUTHS ARRESTED IN CITY AFTER LONG CHASE

Taken To Cobourg To Face Joint Charges Of Attempted Burglary

ALSO WANTED IN TORONTO

Arrested by provincial and city police early this morning at George and Romaine street intersection after a thrilling chase in speeding cars over ice-bound roads, three teenage Toronto youths were taken to Cobourg to face joint charges of attempted burglary of John Sidey's store and post office at Bewdley. The trio gave their names as: Bill Jones, 19, 219 Oakcrest avenue; Charles Long, 19, 22 Mutual street, and William Turner, 17, 72 Oak street, all of Toronto.

Receiving information that an attempt had been made around 12.20 a.m. to burglarize Sidey's store at Bewdley, Provincial Motorcycle Constable Lloyd A. McClure in one car, and Sergeant John Thompson and Constable Joseph Wheeler of the city police in another car, proceeded to the junction of Highways 28 and 7 west of the city limits.

They observed a car approaching. According to Constable McClure it came down the Watering Trough Hill at a reckless speed and skidded on the brow of the hill narrowly escaping Constable Wheeler who was out on the roadway to signal the car to a halt.

Noticing that the rear license marker was bent up corresponding to a description of the car which Mr. Sidey saw making a get-away from his store when he surprised three men as they attempted to break into the premises, the officers in the two police cars took up the pursuit.

Travelling at an estimated speed of 65-70 miles-an-hour the three cars sped towards the city dodging dangerously in and out of traffic that was coming away from the Kawartha Golf and Country Club where a dinner-dance had just concluded.

At Charlotte and George streets the suspects turned south with the two police cars close on their heels. At Romaine street they attempted to turn east towards Little Lake and at this point Constable McClure rammed into them broadside with his car, damaging the radiator and front bumper of his own vehicle.

One of the three occupants of the runaway car was pitched out of a window onto the roadway as a result of the impact, it was reported, but he picked himself up badly shaken but uninjured. The other two suspects were forced to crawl out of the window, the right hand door having been damaged so that it would not open in an earlier accident in which the car was said to have been involved, while the left door was smashed so that it could not open when rammed by Constable McClure's car.

The trio submitted quietly to arrest. In their possession was found an electric hot plate and electric sandwich toaster.

According to Constable McClure the prisoners are wanted by Toronto police for alleged theft of a car, in addition to charges which they face at Cobourg relative to the attempted burglary at Bewdley.

WEST-END HOME IS RANSACKED

Drawers And Cupboards In Every Room Of House Turned Inside Out

Returning to their West-end home after having been out on a recent evening, Mr. and Mrs. I. Harland Keefer, 611 Walkerfield Avenue, were presented with a scene of wildest confusion and disorder.

Declaring the house had been ransacked from basement to attic, Mrs. Keefer told a reporter "it was as though a cyclone had struck the place." Drawers and cupboards in every room of the house had been turned inside out, and the contents scattered with reckless abandon.

Entry was gained to the premises by some unknown person or persons through the cellar window, the casing of which had been torn away. Object of the thorough search was not revealed, but Mrs. Keefer was of the opinion the intruders were after money.

Present checkup has led the victims of the outrage to the conclusion that the missing articles, include: A new pair of shoes and hair brushes belonging to Mr. Keefer, and a ring the property of his wife.

Little or no damage was done, with the exception of the basement window. Telephone wires on an extension telephone in an upper room were cut.

City police are investigating.

GARBAGE RATE .8 MILLS SET RECOMMENDED

Revision of Wages on Incinerator Employees Suggested By Ald. McIntyre

BEVERAGE-ROOM HOURS

Garbage collection tax rate of 4-5 of a mill, an increase of 1-5 over last year's rate, was recommended by the property committee of the council Thursday night.

On an assessment of $21,163,360 the rate of .8 mills will provide $16,930.69, and Alderman McIntyre's budget for his department this year calls for an estimated expenditure of $16,071.62. Alderman McIntyre explained that he was including in the appropriations an improved schedule of wages. "We saw what made good times at Christmas, bonuses from the factories and more money in circulation," he said. "In going over the wages paid at the incinerator I think they should be increased. The city should try to pay its employees a living wage."

Alderman Dutton said he was hoping that the whole question of civic wages would be discussed when the council's main budget is under consideration. "If we give a lead in that direction it may be an influence on other employers. That is the way recovery will come about."

Alderman Sloan expressed assent to this expressed trend, saying that he hoped the Board of Works men would be dealt with in the same manner.

A resolution in the finance committee by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Alderman Cotton, requests the Liquor Control Board to change the hour for the closing of beverage rooms from 12 p.m. to 11 p.m.

"We asked Mr. Odette for that last year and he told us it was impossible," Mayor Macdonald commented.

Ald. Gordon replied that regulation of the Act could be carried on by Order in Council, and he hoped that Mr. Odette would ask for an Order in Council to change the hours. "A resolution from the council would strengthen Mr. Odette's hands."

"It would be support to the hotel men who desire this change and who want to do the right thing," Ald. Dutton observed.

Alderman Gordon's motion also urges that the Charlotte street wine shop be closed at 6 p.m. every day instead of 8 p.m.

"There are more bums and beggars on Charlotte street than on any other street in the city," Ald. Gordon said, his opinion being based on his observations while walking home daily around six o'clock.

Fine Ice Surface Is Being Preserved For The Big Show

All is ready for staging of the grandest ice spectacle in Peterborough's history at the Brock Street Rink this evening. Despite this afternoon's mildness, a fine ice surface is being preserved, and the show will go on without fail.

Fifty-cent reserved admissions and 25-cent admissions will be available right up to the commencement of the program. Reserved seats for which persons have spoken but not yet paid for will be held only until eight o'clock; thus it is expected further reserved accommodation will be made available to the public at the box office at that time

Andy Rutter completed the spectacular scheme of ice decoration this morning after two days' work. The doors of the rink will not be opened to the general public until 8 p.m. in order that the ice surface may be protected from the warmth as long as possible.

Mr. T. H. G. Denne, who was mayor of Peterborough in 1901 and 1902, has spent years interviewing descendants of old Peterborough families, and has discovered a large number of old drawings, daguerrotypes, tintypes, stereopticon views, photographs and newspaper clippings, all depicting salient features of Peterborough during the nineteenth century from about 1820 on.

These have been photographed, enlarged to uniform size, mounted and framed by the Robert Simpson Company Limited of Toronto.

The collection, which is unique in Ontario and which constitutes an historical research achievement of major educational importance, has been presented by Mr. Denne to the City of Peterborough, and will later be placed on permanent exhibition in the Peterborough Public Library.

BALL TOURNAMENT AMONG 4 NATIONS IS BEING PLANNED

International Series Will Embrace Canada, U.S., Mexico And Cuba

ARRANGE DETAILS FEB. 2

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Honus Wagner, commissioner of semi-professional baseball, announced today completion of plans for an international series next year, with championship teams of Canada, the United States, Mexico and Cuba competing.

The competition the announcement said, will be in the nature of a bracketed elimination after national tournaments in the four countries have been completed. Early in September (1938), title winning teams of Mexico and Cuba will meet in one seven-game elimination series, and those of Canada and the United States will battle in another.

Victors in these two "semi-final" series will then meet for the championship beginning September 20. Final details, Wagner said, will be arranged after the meeting of state commissioners in Chicago, February 2.

National tournaments are being sanctioned this year in each of the four countries. The United States' championship finals will be held at Wichita, Kans., with a minimum guarantee of $5,000 to the winner, Wagner disclosed.

Forty-eight state tournaments are being established by Raymond Dumont, president of semi-pro congress, with state champion winners eligible for the finals. In many of the states, including California, Illinois, and Indiana, district tournaments are being established, with district winners eligible for state finals.

At Montreal Louis Duchesnay will stage the Canadian tourney in July. Each province will have its own elimination tournament with winners eligible for the national finals.

George St. Bantams Defeat Park St. 7-4

George St. Bantams copped a 7-4 nod over Park St. in a good Church League hockey game at All Saints' rink last evening. Bob Parnall, who has played two games in the senior church section, was the main difference in the classy squads. He tallied six for the winners, besides going strong defensively. Park St. had an edge on play and the score was close till late in the fray, when Bert Hamilton's crew pulled away. Other prominent players were R. Ainslie, Campbell who scored three, Woodgate, Hamilton and Routley. The latter got the last goal, while Martin scored the losers' fourth. The teams:

George St.: Goal, Richardson; defence, Parnall, Woodgate; centre, Wellwood; wings, Hamilton, Routley; alternates: Armstrong, Burns, Parr and Saunders.

Park St.: Goal, R. Ainslie; defence, Drury, Campbell; centre, Anderson; wings, Reader, Briscoe; alternates: Taylor, J. Ainslie, Martin, Smith.

Referee, D. Charlton.

Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

23—THE SIDE-STEP.

This method of climbing with skis is used for ascending straight uphill on an obstructed slope where there is not sufficient room to proceed diagonally.

Method of climbing by means of the sidestep is illustrated at left; at right the half sidestep is shown, the upper ski advanced with each upward step.

Stand with the skis parallel and horizontal to the slope. Step sideways directly uphill, the skis resting on their upper edges. Transfer the weight from one ski to the other, keeping the sticks one above and one below the skis and in line with the feet.

Half Side-Step.

Next—Direct Ascent.

Copyright, Central Press Canadian

29—THE HERRING BONE

This method of climbing, something of a mystery to the uninitiated, is used for short direct ascents.

Standing facing the hill with the skis in a divergent position tips apart, heels together. Thrust the knees forward and by turning the ankle inwards, place the skis on their inside edges with the weight carried well forward. Jerk the skis off the snow at each step, so that the heel of the rear ski is carried over that of the front ski.

The body is swayed from left to right and vice-versa as the weight is taken alternately on each ski. The sticks may be used to assist by keeping them to the rear of the skis and moving them in unison with the opposite legs.

Stepping round on the level in the herring bone position may be used as a preparatory exercise. It will accustom you to the movements that are called for in the ascent of a slope.

Next—Kick-turn

N.H.L. All-Stars

George Mantha, Canadiens—who led the Flying Frenchmen to a 6-5 victory with four goals and an assist on a fifth.

Wildor Larochelle, Chicago — who scored three goals for the Hawk cause.

Jack Portland, Boston—who played an outstanding game on the Bruins' defence.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

SPORT SYPORT SPORT

"THERE IS no place I would rather visit than Peterborough," the Governor General did not say in his speech when he failed to officially open the local ski meet this weekend; "and the reason is the activity of sports in this fair city. True, you citizens of our glorious Dominion are naturally dissatisfied with the shortage of snow for ski-ing purposes. But in all other branches of health-producing activities you are unsurpassed. I am pleased to note by the papers that your O.H.A. teams are overcoming such obstacles as Belleville and Tweed recently. And, by the way, the town of Tweed is not named after the Tweedsmuirs of Scotland—though, for that matter, no one has said that it was."

* * * * * * *

LORD TWEEDSMUIR smiled slightly at the jest before failing to continue: "Like almost everyone else, since coming as the King's representative to Canada, I am always delighted when Belleville loses in sports. It was therefore with extreme satisfaction that I learned what your Petes did to the 'Quinte crew' as they are quaintly termed in your Brock St. arena a few evenings ago. I would have enjoyed the spectacle and I am sure Lady Tweedsmuir too would have applauded the result. Civic officials, since my arrival here, have informed me a team of aviators from the Trenton air base have caused Peterborough considerable worry. This cannot be tolerated and I will have department officials in Ottawa check upon these transfers from the flying camps in Ottawa and Camp Borden.

* * * * * * *

"YOUR PROBLEMS for baseball this coming summer," His Excellency forgot to mention, "should be attended to in the near future. I realize that, outside of the larger city of Toronto, there is no centre in the prosperous Province of Ontario—and I have looked over the relief lists with Mr. Croll—that is doing so much in the sphere of sports as this city. It would be an irreparable mistake if a strong Peterborough senior baseball team did not carry the name of your city to all parts of Ontario in the coming season of baseball. It is up to every manufacturer and merchant here to see that this project is carried out. I would also deplore the fact that other lines of endeavor in the sense of athletics were neglected here during the present twelvemonth."

* * * * * * *

IN CONCLUSION, the Governor General just missed saying: "At this time, it appears propitious for me to commend you upon having such coverage of athletics in your local newspaper. Few if any papers in the Province surpass it. Unfortunately, I am unacquainted with the C.J.P. who conducts the daily column in this newspaper, but I feel that this city is fortunate in holding the services of such an admirable writer. He is an asset to any community and I trust the sports bodies of the city and district realize it. Whatever remuneration he receives is, I am confident, too small. As regards politics, ladies and gentlemen, I . . . . " But, as His Excellency had admirably neglected to cover the above important matters, we will not go into detail on the remainder of the speech he might have made.

THE BIG skating carnival at the Brock will be held tonight and there are still a few seats available. And tomorrow is the fancy dress one at All Saints' rink. This item is from the Cobourg Sentinel-Star: "Of course we aren't as bad off as the Peterborough writer. He is really on the spot. It appears up Peterborough way they've planned a right gala Winter Sports Carnival for this weekend and if Mr. Weatherman doesn't soon donate a good blanket of snow it's gonna spoil one of the best and grandest winter shows put on in these parts in quite some time . . . . We kinda went for the figure skating business last time it was staged here."

FIRST GAME of the bantam Church Cage Loop championship serial will be tomorrow eve at 7.15 in the "Y". Teams are St. John's, last year's champs, and St. Paul's. They'll play a two-game series with points counting. St. Paul's went through the schedule without a reverse, losing three players via the over-age route and having only five guys, D. Hall, F. Ferguson, P. McBride, D. Fraser and E. Taylor. The coach is Harry Marsh and the team is favored to win. St. John's are coached by Vic Coleman and have lost most of last year's crew. Like all St. John's team, they are heavy checkers and have come along fast after dropping three early games. Their eligible players are D. Moore, W. Thompson, R. Land, E. Castle, W. Crowter, R. Dutton, H. Cranford, A. Hume, H. Sage and A. Marshall. Second game will be next Saturday and G. Johnston is referee. Final juvenile tilt is this Saturday at 6.30 between St. Andrew's and St. John's.

* * * * * * *

WE WERE busy this a.m. whistling a tune about a chapel in the moonlight when someone behind us made a noise like the last gurgle of pop coming through a straw—sore of a second cousin to a Bronx cheer. It turned out to be a guy with the volleyball schedule for the "Y" tomorrow afternoon and without giving him credit by naming him, we'll list the games: Lions meet Bears at 2.00, Tigers tackle Pumas at 2.45, Wildcats play Gorillas at 3.30, Bisons battle Beavers at 4.15, and Leopards lay into the Kangaroos at 5.00 o'clock.

* * * * * * *

THIS FROM Belleville: "Speedy St. Louis returned home displaying a bandaged head, there being two stitches necessary, while the rest of the roster say they took the well-known shellacking. 'We held the Petes scoreless for the first 10 minutes and then went out and scored. Our boys looked much better at this point when suddenly a loose puck rolled into the net after Watts had made the save. Being front-runners, the Petes simply went to town the rest of the period to tally five. In the second, we again scored first and had the better of play, but the third spoiled our chances. We'll get ours back on Friday night, however,' predicted Manager Thomas. It's a case of it's always rough weather when good Belleville and Peterborough fellers get together, especially when they get together on the ice with hockey sticks in their hands."

All Saints' Victors In Church Loop Tilt

All Saints took a 4-1 win over Knox Juveniles in their Church Hockey League tussle last evening at All Saints' rink. The winners won their first game by showing more finish than the young Knox crew, who had a good part of the play and checked well but had few scoring chances. Wade had two goals and was outstanding for the Anglicans, while Todd and Buchanan notched the other markers. Smythe was best for the weakened Knox gang. The losers' goalie was bad on some of the shots, but made several nice saves. The teams:

All Saints.—Goal, Lacey; defence, Carpenter, Ellis; centre, Wade; wings, Todd, Buchanan; alternate, Roberts.

Referee—J. Smith

Church Juveniles Battle To 1-1 Tie

St. Paul's and Mark St. Juveniles went to a 1-1 tie in their Church Loop puck tilt at All Saints' rink last night. St. Paul's kept their unbeaten record, but had a tough time holding the smart East City crew in check for a draw. Mark Street forced play, but nice checking by the Presbyterians kept it even. The two goalies were good. Graham and Ascott got the counters in the middle stanza. With the net guardians, Mason, Mackness and the husky St. Paul's defence were outstanding. The tie leaves the Saints well on top of the heap. The teams:

Mark Street.—Goal, Agnew; defence, Scriver, Strickland; centre, Nicholls; wings, Craig, Graham; alternate, Mason, Barringer, Easton, Gamble.

St. Paul's.—Goal, McBride; defence, McMillian, Moorhead; centre, Easton; wings, King, Morrow; alternates, Lockington, Mackness, Ascott.

Referee—S. Seabrooke.

All Saints' Seniors Cop 8-3 Church Win

All Saints took an 8-3 Senior Church Hockey League win over St. George's before a good gang of spectators last night at All Saints' rink. It was the winners' fourth triumph in a row from their fellow Anglicans, the latter being minus their regular goalie and Coach Tom Maudsley had a tough time filling in. McDougall, Fisher and Rusaw scored for All Saints in the first with Fisher getting another in the second. Adamson tallied twice for St. George's in this chukker, as the losers forced play. All Saints sweat through in the third, with J. Maudsley getting four as Gibson got credit for one for the losers when Charlton cleared into his own net. It was a clean game, with Stephenson, Armour, Frost and the goal-scorers outstanding. The teams:

St. George's.—Goal, T. Maudsley; defence, E. Tice, Armour; centre, Gibson; wings, Adamson, Stephenson; alternates, W. Tice, McBride.

All Saints.—Goal, Jay; defence, Rusaw, Seabrooke; centre, J. Maudsley; wings, Alton, Frost; alternates, Fisher, Charlton, Beauclerc, McDougall, Mortimer.

Referee—D. Charlton.

Ashburnham Aces Win Over St. Peter's

St. Peter's dropped a 7-2 Southend Hockey League Juvenile decision to the Aces last night at the Sacred Heart rink. The winners showed too much power on the attack with a fast-breaking sytematic passing offensive and hard shooting. It was a smart game of hockey despite the one-sided count, with both teams dishing up neat stickhandling and checking. Craig was the big star of the contest with four goals, while Foster got two and Hefferman one. Thornton and Connolly scored for the losers. The teams:—

St. Peter's.—Goal, McCormick; defence, Curtain, Lynch; centre, Thornton; wings, Hoy, Corkery; alternate, Connelly.

Aces.—Goal, Cournyea; defence, Foster, Hawkes; centre, Craig; wings, Ferguson, Vivash; alternates, Nicholls, Hefferman. Referee, Bill Bennett.

Remember When—

Chicago Black Hawks were leading the National Hockey League's American division. It is a year ago tomorrow night that Clem Loughlin's team climbed into the top spot with a 4-3 victory over Detroit Red Wings at Detroit. It's a different story this season with the Hawks in the cellar or near it ever since the schedule opened.

Stanley McCabe Makes Brilliant Showing In Fourth Test

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 29.—(C.P. Cable).—Australia, making a bold bid to even the test cricket series with England, scored 267 runs for seven wickets to-day in the opening day of the fourth test. Stanley McCabe, Aussie vice-captain, made 88 of his team's runs in a brilliant innings lasting a shade more than two hours.

Thirty-four thousand spectators watched their favorites go after victory. Defeat for Australia would give England test honors with three wins to one. The tourists won at Brisbane and Sydney but failed at Melbourne. The fifth and final encounter between the two countries will be played late in February. The score card:—

King Edward Victors In Southend Contest

No 8—King edward victors . . . . .

King Edward beat St. Peter's Bantams, 2-1, in a nifty Southend Hockey League tussle last night at the Sacred Heart rink. Play was quite keen from start to finish with both sides checking closely. The rival forwards worked in on the goalies time and again, only to be thefted of scoring chances. Hodson and McAdams tallied for the winners with Garvey notching the losers' lone goal. The teams:

St. Peter's.—Goal, Cupoli; defence, Gordon, Hickey; centre, Garvey; wings, Huard, Doran; alternates, Murphy, Hynes, Kennedy.

King Edward.—Goal, Leether; defence, Baldry, Hodson; centre, McAdams; wings, Close and Dalliday; alternates, Blakey, Pammett, O'Brien.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Before we start on anything else, we wish to remind the boys about the bonspiel on Saturday afternoon—and don't be late.

It is very seldom that No. 8 is treated with such fighting finishes as were seen on Thursday night. Starting with Ice No. 1, Sorenson made Pratten play an extra end before he would say "uncle"—and at that it took Pratten's last stone to do it.

On Ice 2, J. J. Howden and J. H. Sedgewick fought it out tooth and nail, with Howden one up coming home....Sedgewick had the game tied, but tried a fancy shot with his last stone and gave J. J. another shot.

Ice 3—Shirley and Currie were tied coming home, but E. R. succeeded in grabbing off two and the game.

Ice 4—Donaldson completely smothered Hall by some good playing and lots of luck.

Ice 5—Kay and Cairns were tied coming home, but George had the better of the last end and finished two up.

Ice 6—Downey and Westbrooke pecked away all night, with Charlie two up coming home——When R. F. came to play his last stone he had four stones hanging on and all around the 12-foot ring....Charlie had two on the four-foot ring, but at a difficult angle....Ross made a noble effort to get both stones, and was successful in getting one but missed the other — another great finish.

Ice 7—J. Skinner had it all over D. Carlisle, and finished with a comfortable margin of 8 shots.

Scores.

Canadian Motorcycle Racer Starring On British Tracks

Loss of Two Fingers Failed To Stop Toronto-born Eric Chitty

STARTED IN 1926

Not only are Canadian hockey players invading England with great success, but Londons most sensational young short track motorcycle rider is Toronto-born, Eric Chitty.

Ace rider of the West Ham speedway team, young Chitty started his European riding career in May, 1936, and at the end of the first season had demonstrated ability that points to his being rated among the first ten in Europe by the end of his second year of racing on the hard-packed sand and cinder tracks, of which London has 12.

Commenced in Toronto.

Born in Toronto 26 years ago, Eric Stephenson Chitty first became interested in motorcycling in 1926 when he joined the Toronto British Empire Motorcycle Club. He rode on the Ontario dirt tracks, in speedway climbs and endurance events. During his first few years, although he was still in his teens, "Rickey" as he is nicknamed, won whatever honors he competed for in and around Toronto.

In the fall of 1934 Chitty's desire for speed and more speed found its outlet when he turned professional and entered the Cleveland motorcycle championship races.

Although a novice professional, the Canadian boy impressed the king of motorcycle promoters of the United States, "Bimbo" Seward, and the latter signed the Canadian boy to ride at Chicago, and continued in Milwaukee. It was here that Chitty met with an accident which caused him to be recuperating six months later at his Toronto home from the fractured skull and broken ribs he received in the crash. He had to have the first two fingers of his left hand amputated as a result of his accident.

Succeeds in U.S. and England.

These injuries would have been enough to make the average rider quit, but Chitty was soon back on his machine and won the Canadian championship in Toronto in the summer of 1935, repeating his win of the previous year. He left for New York too late to be eligible for the U.S. championships, but when one of the eligible riders was injured he was permitted to race, and came in fourth in the finals.

In May, 1936, "Ricky" made his European debut at West Ham and although he found riding in England much different, because the racing machines are equipped with clutches, he quickly forged to the top and during the season set track records for 440 yards, half mile and one mile events. Due to his late start he was unable to obtain standing in the point total of European riders, but based on the points he obtained in the part-season he would have been close to the top.

Next spring he will commence at the start of the season, riding for the "Hammers," and when he returns to Toronto next November to spend the winter with his family, he hopes to bring the British short track racing championship back with him to the Dominion.

DETROIT, Jan. 29—(CP)—There is a new rooter for Detroit Red Wings today—a girl—born to Mrs. Sydney Howe, wife of the Wing's forward, yesterday. Howe's teammates found it hard to believe for Red Wings usually become fathers of boys.

Johnny Sorrell has a daughter as has Marty Barry, and now Howe. All the rest have sons.

Scotty Bowman has two sons; Herbie Lewis, two; Captain Doug Young, two; Ebbie Goodfellow, one, and Wally Kilrea, one.

Painful to Move!

YOU can prolong life by taking the advice of a famous physician, which is: "Keep the kidneys in good order, avoid too much meat, salt, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking A-uric in tablet form." It is the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Invalids Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all druggists.

Read what Mrs. Wm. Rioux of 15 Oxford St., Hamilton, Ont., said: "A few years ago I was in bed for eight weeks and felt that I would never be well. I couldn't move without pain. Finally, I started taking Dr. Pierce's A-uric Tablets. I took three bottles and gradually was restored to health."

NERVES ON EDGE! DAYS OF MISERY, NIGHTS OF TORTURE

"I HATE to think of what I suffered with my nerves—the strain, the worry, the awful sleepless nights. Nothing did me any good until my husband bought me a bottle of Fellows' Syrup. That bottle soon worked a big change. I began to enjoy life and sleep like a child. I kept on with this grand old tonic and soon felt fit again." The mineral elements in Fellows' Syrup are just what nerve-wracked systems need. This 60-year-old tonic is prescribed by Doctors in 52 countries to help nervous ailments. 'Fellows' tones up the appetite, helps to renew tissue, blood and nerve cells. 'Fellows' has many imitators. Demand the genuine. Look for the name 'Fellows' on the wrapper. Two sizes — at your druggist's.

LOUIS AND PASTOR IN RING TONIGHT ODDS ON BOMBER

Many Expect Fans Will Hardly Be Seated Before Fight Is Over

BOTH PREDICT KNOCKOUT

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Before the season's largest tight crowd, which figures to get considerably less than the 10 rounds it pays for, Brown Bomber Joe Louis makes his first important start of the year tonight against husky Bob Pastor in Madison Square Garden's ring.

If pre-fight calculations stand up, some 18,000 of the fight faithful, laying as high as $16.50 tops each on the line to see the battle, probably won't be more than comfortably seated before the thing is all over.

Each fighter has predicted a knockout victory for himself. The experts are almost unanimous in picking Louis for a kayo triumph. The betting odds, as high as 12 to 1 a few days ago, are still on Louis at about 5 to 1, for a quick finish.

This drop in the betting figures was the result of the ballyhoo attending a training camp knockdown for Louis on Wednesday — knockdown which boosted the ticket-purchasing pace to such an extent that the gate promises to come within shouting distance of the $100,000 mark before the boys answer the bell.

Has More Experience.

In making Louis the overwhelming favorite, the experts point out that all the advantages appear on his side. He is considerably more experienced than the former New York University footballer who jockeyed a fair right hand and a college education into a front line heavyweight berth. Joe also will take a considerable weight edge into the ring, probably scaling about 203 to his New York rival's 185.

However, remembering the 10 to 1-shot fiasco in the Max Schmeling fight last year, when a right hand exploded the Louis myth of invincibility for all-time, those who are on Louis in tonight's fight are leaving plenty of loopholes in their predictions.

The 22-year-old Pastor considers himself sufficiently equipped with all the ring necessities to stop Louis. One thing is certain: He insists he won't be frightened into defeat as in the cases of Max Baer and King Levinsky when they faced the booming two-fisted attack of the Bomber from Detroit.

HOWIE MORENZ BREAKS HIS LEG IN HAWK GAME

May Mean End Of Hockey For Peerless Stratford Streak

BLOW TO CANADIENS

Skate Catches In Boards During Early Power Drive, Twists In Fall

By Sidney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

MONTREAL, Jan. 29—(C.P.)—Old Howie Morenz, his left leg encased in a cast, watched the hockey world go by from a hospital bed today, while the faithful wondered whether the brilliant career of "Peerless Howie" was at an end.

They carried Howie from The Forum—where he's played for all but two of the 13 National Hockey League seasons—on a stretcher last night, the leg fractured above the ankle from a mixup on the boards with Chicago's Earl Seibert.

It was an innocent-looking rush that led to the break; the end of the league's most famous comeback of the season and the busting of the famed Morenz-Gagnon-Joliat line after being reunited for less than a season with Montreal Canadiens, the team they led to hockey's heights.

Howie broke through Chicago's defence after a loose puck. Seibert reached him as he went into the boards. Morenz' skate caught in the boards as Howie, off balance, fell to the ice. The imbedded skate stuck and his falling body twisted the leg and snapped the bone.

At 35, and Howie is all but a few months of that, you can't break into the big league any too easily. That's why the faithful feared Morenz, who was thought to be washed up three years ago, definitely was at the end of the trail.

Morenz hasn't been free of injuries since the season of 1933-34 when an ankle injury kept him out for a month. He broke his thumb in the last playoff game that season and since, with Chicago and New York Rangers, he was far from the Morenz who played on three Canadian Stanley Cup teams and led the league's scorers twice.

But, brought back at the start of the current season under Cecil Hart, the man who signed him as a professional from Stratford Nationals in 1923, he was again Hurtling Howie. With his Flying Frenchmen linemates, Johnny Gagnon and Aurel Joliat, he showed his old-time speed and all the playing-making ability that had marked his decade as a top-notcher.

Morenz, including the four goals scored this season, has scored 270 goals in the N.H.L., not far off the all-time record of Joe Malone. That total doesn't include the playoff scores, and Howie had many.

In between periods of the Hawk-Canadien game, Hart sat on the rubbing table, surrounded by the quietened Canadiens, and said: "That's one of the toughest breaks we've had this year."

Only yesterday, Hart had given what he thought was the secret of Morenz' return to form.

"I think he was lonesome away from Canadiens," said Hart, who has Morenz and company 12 points in front of the Canadian section. "He is happy now. He's playing fine hockey—backchecking well—working his head off."

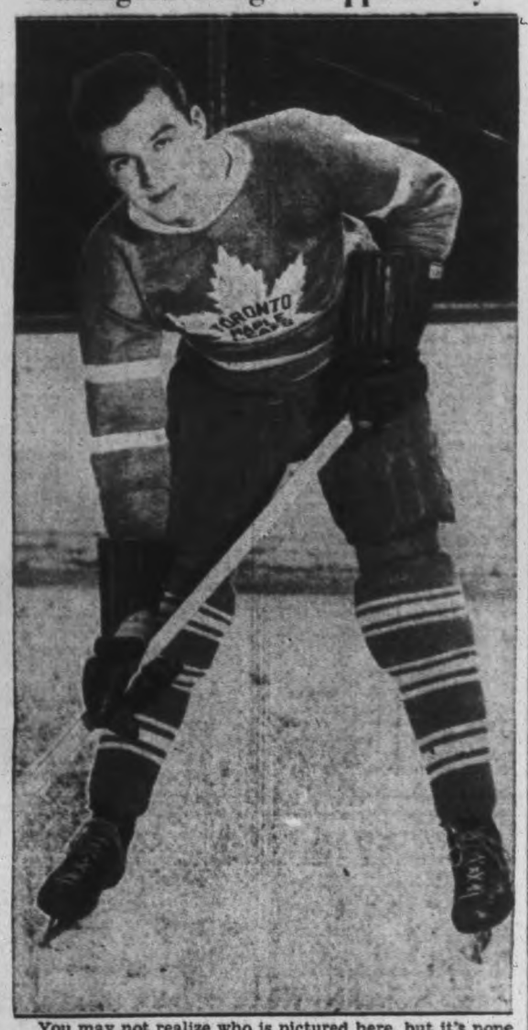
Taking Advantage of Opportunity



You may not realize who is pictured here, but it's none other than that Toronto Maple Leaf rookie who is becoming a sports head-liner, Gordon Drillon. He is a former Maritime player, but was brought up from the minors to the N.H.L. for the first time this season. Due to the lengthy injury to Charlie Conacher's wrist, Gord. got a break at right wing with Harvey "Busher" Jackson and Syl Apps. The way Drillon is shaping up has the sport critics acclaiming him as the possible rookie standout of the year.

RANGERS BATTLE BRUINS OVERTIME FAIL TO BREAK TIE

Boston Defenceman Portland Draws Cheers From 13,000 New York Fans

SCORE IS 1 TO 1

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN New York, Jan. 29 (C.P.). — New York Rangers fought an overtime 1-1 tie with Boston Bruins last night, and kept three points ahead of the Bostonians for second place in the National Hockey League's United States section.

A goal by Alex Shibicky of the Rangers "kid" line late in the first period while the Bruins were short-handed gave the New Yorkers a lead they held until half-way through the third frame when Ray Getliffe tied the count on a booming shot from the right boards.

Playing of Jack Portland, giant young Boston defenceman, was one of the outstanding features of the hard fought contest. The 13,000 fans constantly cheered the Bruin youngster for his hefty blocking and offensive dashes.

Rangers — Goal, Kerr; defence, Coulter and Heller; centre, Boucher; wings, Dillon and Patrick; subs, Pratt, Johnson, Shibicky; N. Colville, Murdoch, Keeling, Cooper, Watson, M. Colville.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press.)

Johnny Gagnon of Montreal Canadiens, picking up a goal as the Canadian section leaders whipped Chicago 6-5, was the lone scoring leader to move up in the National Hockey League point-making race last night. Gagnon slipped into a third-place tie with Detroit's Marty Barry, two points behind the leading and idle Larry Aurie of Detroit. Gagnon's linemate, little Auriel Joliat, closed the gap between sixth place and Harvey Jackson in fifth by gaining an assist.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pt.
Aurie, Detroit	17	12	29
Schriner, Americans	12	16	28
Gagnon, Canadiens	14	13	27
Barry, Detroit	8	19	27
H. Jackson, Toronto	13	13	26
Joliat, Canadiens	14	11	25
Chapman, Americans	6	17	23

CANADIENS DOWN CHICAGO HAWKS FOR 6-GAME LEAD

Mantha Sets Pace, Scoring 4 Goals To Give Habitants 6-5 Victory

MISS SPEEDY MORENZ

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—(CP). — Montreal Canadiens pulled out six full games in front of the National Hockey League's Canadian Section last night with a 6-5 win over Chicago Black Hawks, but they paid for the victory with the loss of Howie Morenz.

The cannonball centre of the Habitant front line wer t of the rink on a stretcher. left leg broken in a pile-up at the Chicago end boards. Canadien officials feared the team would have to go the rest of the season without Morenz, making a sparkling comeback after a number of poor years.

Led by Georges Mantha, who scored four goals, Canadiens never were headed after they offset an early Hawk lead with three swift counters while Earl Seibert served a first-period penalty. Twice Chicago, deep in the American section cellar, pulled up within a goal of the Flying Frenchmen, but there was only one second to play after they did it the second time.

Even without the speedy pivot, Canadiens had little trouble turning back Black Hawks before 6,000 fans.

Wildor Larochelle, who fired three of the Hawks' goals, sent them into the lead a minute after the game opened. Seven minutes later, as Seibert watched from the penalty box, Canadiens' close-in passing wizardry had beaten Mike Karakas three times, two by Mantha and one by Toe Blake. Johnny Gagnon made it 4-1 before the period ended.

Almost Tied.

Pep Kelly and Louis Trudel brought it to 4-3 before Mantha scored his third. Larochelle bagged both third-period goals for Hawks, while the easy-skating Mantha wound up his night's work with a fourth.

Chicago—Goal, Karakas; defence, Seibert, Blair; centre, Larochelle; wings, Jackson, Thompson; subs, Weibe, Burke, Levinsky, Brydson, Gottselig, Kelly, Trudell, Palangio.

Canadiens—Goal, Cude; defense, MacKenzie, Buswell; centre, Morenz; wings Gagnon Joliat; subs, Lorrain, Miller, Haynes, McGill, Mantha, Desilets, Blake, Siebert.
